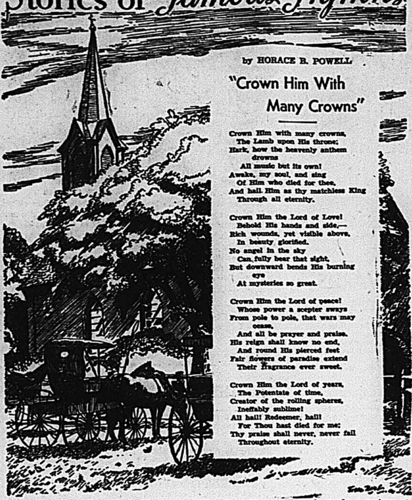
There are still some Spaniards who consider Portugal as the lost province of Spain, and would like to bring it back once more into the Spanish state. It is even said, that, had the Republic remained in power in Spain, they would have tried to bring about a union of the two countries. From a Portuguese standpoint that would never happen if they could help it. Most of them frankly do not like Spain, and even less the Spanish government. For ninety years at one time Portugal suffered under Spain, but never again. The people are just beginning to realize the possibilities of their country, the progress they still have to make, and are taking once more a pride in their country; a pride which has been lost since the days of the explorers. This only serves to make any union with Spain a remote possibility.

Stories of Famous Hymns



by HORACE B. POWELL

"Crown Him With Many Crowns"

Crown Him with many crowns,
The Lamb upon His throne;
Hark, how the heavenly anthem drowns
All music but its own!
Awake, my soul, and sing
Of Him who died for thee,
And hail Him as thy matchless King
Through all eternity.

Crown Him the Lord of Love!
Behold His hands and side,—
Rich wounds, yet visible above,
In beauty glorified.
No angel in the sky
Can fully bear that sight,
But downward bends His burning eye
At mysteries so great.

Crown Him the Lord of peace!
Whose power a scepter sways
From pole to pole, that wars may cease,
And all be prayer and praise.
His reign shall know no end,
And round His pierced feet
Fair flowers of paradise extend
Their fragrance ever sweet.

Crown Him the Lord of years,
The Potentate of time,
Creator of the rolling spheres,
Ineffably sublime!
All hail! Redeemer, hail!
For Thou hast died for me;
Thy praise shall never, never fail
Throughout eternity.

"Crown Him With Many Crowns," one of Protestantism's favorite hymns, was written by a Catholic, Matthew Bridges. Like John Henry Newman and Frederick Faber, whose religious songs have also contributed much to the music of the church universal, Bridges was a Protestant—a member of the Church of England — before he joined the Church of Rome.

He was born in Maldon, Essex, England in 1800 and, at 25, had already written a number of accepted poems. A volume entitled "Hymns of the Heart," which was published in 1848, the year he became a Catholic, contains many of the hymns for which he is best known today.

"Crown Him With Many Crowns," when first published, bore the title, "The Song of the Seraphs." It was introduced in Bridges' book, "The Passion of Jesus," published in 1852. Through nearly a century of its use its popularity today is undiminished. It is a favorite with choirs as a processional hymn and is used frequently to open services of worship.

Christendom will always associate the name of Matthew Bridges with this, his greatest hymn, but he wrote a number of others, including "Behold the Lamb of God," "Lo, He Comes With Clouds Descending," and "My God, Accept My Heart This Day."

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By
WINIFRED E. WILSON

GREBES MUST GO

This is no time of year for grebes to linger on in Canada. When ice covers the osprey's favorite pond so that fishing is an impossibility, it moves further south, to open water. Under similar circumstances, the grebe would like to do the same, but cannot, because, on account of the way it is made, this bird is able to take off from land or the slippery surface of ice. To have difficulty in procuring aquatic food, as fish, crawfish and other crustaceans, water bugs, and dragon-fly nymphs, seems bad enough; but to be unable to reach a land of plenty because no start can be made is a worse misfortune.

The fact is that a grebe is extremely skilful in water, reluctant to rise into the air, but a strong, swift flier once there, and quite helpless on land. It is properly equipped for diving and all sorts of manoeuvres under water. The long bill is cone-shaped; plumage compact, smooth, and absolutely waterproof; neck long, wings short, and no tail visible. The short legs, useless for walking, extend out behind when the grebe is flying, and so, in place of a tail, acts as a rudder. Their position on the body is so very far back, that the posture of the grebe sitting on the shore reminds us of pictures of penguins. The only progress the bird can make on the ground is necessarily very slow, as it must be done by wriggling along on the under side of its body, seal fashion.

The feet of a grebe are quite unique. Instead of being fully webbed like those of other swimmers, each toe, which has a short, rounded nail, is lobed. When suddenly disturbed, the grebe dives swiftly, and swims under water for a long distance by using its feet as we would a paddle. When the stroke is made, the flattened flaps of the toes push back the water, then fold up so as to give little resistance as the foot is pulled forward. When opened out, the foot has a scalloped edge.

Until the Migratory Birds Convention Act was passed, grebes were much persecuted both in this country and the United States. Their breast feathers have a peculiar, silvery sheen, very attractive for millinery purposes. So many birds were shot, that for a time it seemed as though the grebe would soon be extinct. Now the only danger is that they be mistaken by hunters for their relatives, the ducks, which are not protected in fall migration.

CITY HALL FOR SALE?

What does the average American tourist think when, upon entering Canada, he sees the flag with the forty-eight stars and the thirteen stripes displayed above a sign urging him to feed at Ye Old Tyme Hot Doggery? Or when he sees the same flag prominently displayed above a sign inviting him to spend the night at Karl's Kosy Kabins?

Our guess is that the American tourist is not fooled for even a moment by such misuse or abuse of the American flag. Our guess is that, other things being equal, he would sooner spend his money at an establishment which either displayed no flag at all or the Union Jack. In their own country, Americans make Canadian visitors welcome, but they do not do it by displaying the Union Jack or any other foreign flag as a welcome sign. The farthest that American business concerns go, in at least several neighboring states, is to display a small inconspicuous maple leaf bearing the legend "Canadian money accepted at par here."

In any event, the chamber in which the municipal council of a city like Belleville does its deliberating does not seem to be an appropriate place for displaying an American flag large enough to make a fair sized tent.

Even if some members of the city council are pondering the possibility of selling the present city hall in the event that a new municipal building is constructed on the former county home property, it seems unlikely that any American visitor will make an offer for it because of a large American flag being displayed inside it.

A CONTRACT IS A CONTRACT

The Ford Motor Company of Canada at Windsor is undergoing another of its numerous strikes. This strike, which has idled between 6,000 and 7,000 men, is of the type that is described as a "wildcat" strike. A "wildcat" strike, it is explained, is a strike that has not been authorized by the officers of the union; it is merely a sort of spontaneous general walkout.

This wildcat strike at Windsor is by no means the first of its kind in this country and probably will not be the last. There is one point in connection with these wildcat strikes, however, which should be considered by those who indulge in them. After a long and sometimes bitter struggle labor won the right to bargain collectively with its employers. This right is now recognized by law, although it is still opposed by a few employers here and there. The law provides machinery for collective bargaining and for conciliating differences of opinion between union and employer wherever union and employer are unable to settle those differences themselves.

When a union agreement is reached, the employer agrees to pay specified wages and to provide specified working conditions. But the workmen, through their union, also agree to abide by the terms of the agreement, which is a kind of contract. One of the terms of this agreement or contract, almost invariably, is that there shall be no strikes during the life of the agreement, which is usually one year.

Therefore, people who engage in wildcat strikes are not only disregarding the wishes of the elected officers of their own union, but are also breaking a contract into which they have entered through those same union officers.

If union agreements are going to be flouted at will by union members, the employers will soon be placed in a position from which they will be able to point out, and with justification, that there is no advantage to them in signing an agreement which is binding only on the employer. To this argument, the union leaders who are negotiating with an employer will not be able to produce a very satisfactory answer.

If some of the younger workmen of this country knew of the battles which their fathers and grandfathers fought in order to establish and legalize collective bargaining, they would hesitate a long time before deliberately breaking a contract which their union leaders have made with an employer.

If collective bargaining is destroyed, the real losers will be labor and not those who have fought labor and labor unionism with every weapon at their disposal from the day when unions first appeared to the present.

IF "DOMINION" GOES

On a minor act, almost by accident, a major governmental policy has been announced. Before it gets into effect there ought to be some opportunity for parliament to declare whether it wishes to see "dominion" wiped from the statutes bit by bit.

If it is to be made to disappear what is to take its place? How shall Canada be described if not as a "Dominion"? We speak of the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, the Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

If this is no longer to be "one dominion under the name of Canada" as the Fathers said, what shall it be? Further explanation from Mr. St. Laurent is in order. — (Toronto Telegram.)

DESTINY

This is all that they were told
That crisp December morn:
Within a stable bleak and cold
A baby had been born.

They didn't know a wondrous thing
Was happening to them
And that in time that child would bring World fame to Bethlehem.

Nor do we know who merely see,
A little boy at play
That he may prove the man to be
The world will need some day.

But though the future none can read,
No one God's plan should scorn,
The man the world will some day need
Already has been born.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 8th., 1931.

In the local municipal elections yesterday, Geo. O. Tice, an alderman for the past six years, was elected mayor for the year 1932 by a majority of 419 over Geo. A. Reid, who served for the past two years as mayor. Tice received 2163 votes and Reid received 1749 votes. The following were elected aldermen in the order here given: Imlah, Armstrong, Marshall, Hill, Bennett, White, Sprackett, Woodley, Donohue, MacMillan, Walker, Morgan and Brickman. The following were defeated, their standing being in the order given here: Foster, Ross, Looker, Holley, Luman, Lancaster and McKenna. For Hydro Commissioner Charles Hanna was re-elected over W. R. McCreary by a majority of 1152. The vote was Hanna 2507 and McCreary 1355. Daylight Saving was defeated by a majority of 417. The vote was 1706 for and 2123 against.

30 YEARS AGO

December 8th., 1921.

A meeting of Belleville property owners will be held in the city hall on the evening of Dec. 12th for the purpose of forming a Property Owners' Association. Nearly four hundred owners of real estate have signed as prospective members and it is expected that much active interest will be shown by them in the coming municipal elections.

Mr. G. A. Bennett has announced that he will be a candidate for the office of mayor at the coming municipal elections.

Three cows owned by Mr. Fred McCutcheon of Stirling were killed by a G.T.R. train on Sunday. He was driving the cows to pasture and the view of the track was hidden by a barn and the approach of the train was not noticed by him. Four cows were upon the track when the engine hit them and three were killed.

MALIGNANCY IN THE SPIRITUAL LIFE

What is the greatest of all sins? Some would say murder, since it carries the most severe penalty. Others would say dishonesty, for this vice ruins the fabric of human society. Others would say sexual immorality, since there is always a marked deterioration in the whole of one's moral character where this sin is practised.

That these are all very devastating sins no one can deny. But the Bible lists three other sins as being so devastating in character that they stand in a class by themselves.

The first of these is pride. The Christian Church throughout its history has regarded pride as ultimately ruinous to character. It is the roadblock which prevents moral progress. The second sin which the Bible decries as ruinous is an unforgiving spirit. If we will not forgive men their trespasses against us, all hope of the ultimate forgiveness of God for our sins in vainly cherished. The third sin which both the Old and New Testaments denounce in an unloving heart. This was the sin of the Pharisees. It was the Judas-sin, which makes the end of the Gospel story so horrifying and solemn.

The trouble with these most ruinous sins is that they are very often mistaken for virtues. They can eat our lives away without our suspecting their nature. They are essentially malignant.

Jack Isaac Canada's Host For Newcomers

St. Paul l'Ermite, Que. — (CP) — Linguist, teacher, walking guide-book to Canada, father confessor and hotel director all rolled up in one—that's Jack Isaac, manager of the labor department's hostel for immigrants here.

Mr. Isaac speaks six languages and wishes he knew more. He needs them in his job of catering to anywhere up to 500 immigrant guests at a time who stop over for a few days in his multi-lingual hostel waiting for job assignments and a new life in Canada.

Mr. Isaac's unique hotel is 25 miles east of Montreal. Here, in a very brief time, he manages to introduce his guests to the country, to the English language and to the national employment officers who will find them jobs.

German is probably the handiest language around the hostel as many of the immigrants have been in or around that country. It's a language often used by Mr. Isaac when he gives talks, often illustrated by films, of Canada.

A point is made of keeping families together during their stay here. Childless couples are in another part of the building, and single men and women in two other wings. Meals are eaten in shifts with family groups given priority.

House-keeping isn't the problem it might be in a transient hostel such as this. Many of the immigrants are slated for domestic work and there is never a shortage of capable help. With a minimum of permanent staff, the whole place is kept spotlessly clean.

Interviews with employment officers, talks by Mr. Isaac and lessons in basic English make for a full day. But, for those with time on their hands, there is a large, comfortable living-room complete with desks for letter writing, tables for cards and chess —the most popular game — and even a bowling alley.

Announce Startling Steel Discovery

Dr. O. W. Ellis

P. E. Cavanagh

Working at the Ontario Research Foundation, Toronto offices, Dr. O. W. Ellis and P. E. Cavanagh say they have developed a new process of making steel in small abounts and of controlled density. Already 70 companies have sent representatives to the provincial offices seeking information on producing steel by the new method, which is particularly adaptable to small ore deposits and tailings of other minerals. Both discoverers say they have no idea where the applications of this new process will end, but are sure it will be extensive. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

West Gathers Anti-Aggression Forces As It Seeks East-West Negotiations With Russia

Paris, Dec. 8 (CP)—The western powers are crawing together the anti-aggression forces of the United Nations at the same time as they try to discover whether Russia is ready to negotiate east-west problems.

While the Big-Four powers hold secret disarmament talks in the U.N., the problem of collective measures is being held in abeyance to avoid rise in east-west temperature which might spoil any chances of Big-Four agreement.

But the west already has tabled a resolution aiming at a tigher U.N. setup to pounce on any aggressor. The debate on that item —bitterly opposed by Russia— will begin after the disarmament talks.

The resolution was co-sponsored by 11 countries, including Canada, which was one of the first U.N. members to make armed forces available to the U.N. to fight aggression. Fourteen countries have been studying the problem for the last year in the collective measures committee but three of them—Mexico, Egypt and Iran refrained from sponsoring the resolution because they disagreed with some of its aspects.

Russia is expected to fight the resolution but some non-Soviet opposition is expected to be heard of the western proposal to make regional forces such as the Atlantic pact army, available to the U.N. to fight any aggression. Some Middle East countries have expressed their opposition to the pact.

Avoid Fumbling

The major collective measure's aim is to avoid any of the U.N. fumbling that was evident when North Korea struck at South Korea, and to ensure that no Russian veto can stop U.N. action against any future aggressor. At the start of the Korean war, Russia was in the midst of a general walkout from the U.N. over the question of Chinese communist membership. Thus the Security Council at the time was free to go ahead with its anti-aggression plans. But now Russia is back in its Security Council seat.

So there is a plan to allow the U.N. Assembly—where there is no veto—to set up any necessary executive military authority to fight aggression. In the Korean war, the United States was authorized by the Security Council to direct the U.N. fighting forces, thus the Korean unified command is in effect the United States government.

When the U.N. was first set up it was planned that all the big powers would contribute to an international army under the Security Council to defend the peace. But in almost six years there has been no agreement between east and west on how such an army should be formed.

Some U.N. officials see in the new collective measures plans a means whereby the U.N. will become the world security body originally visualized.

Downed by Reds Held in Hungary

Captain Dave H. Henderson of Shawnee, Okla., is one of four Allied airmen held in Hungary after their plane was forced down by Soviet fighters two weeks ago. First confirmation that the twin-engined plane missing since Nov. 19, had been forced down came in a Moscow broadcast. The Hungarian Foreign Office demands what they call punishment of those responsible against violation of its territory and lodged an official protest with the U.S. legation. In Washington, the government promised "immediate action" to obtain the release of the airmen. — Central Press Canadian.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

POPULARITY

What a price some folks pay for what Stevenson noted as "that empty and ugly thing called popularity." and then he asks: "Will any man suppose it worth gaining?" And yet what bribes and sales are made to possess this fleeting thing!

Who was the popular man or woman of a year ago, or indeed of a week ago? Some glorious deed often brings about popularity, uninvited, as has been the case so many times. I recall the winning of the naval battle by Admiral (then Commodore) Dewey before Manila Bay, whereby the United States came into possession of the Philippine Islands. He received a tremendous welcome in Washington and was so popular that his friends wanted to make him president—but in a few months they were hissing him in the theatres because he had presented to his new wife a home that the children of America had given to him!

Rarely in history has a man been so honored as was Col. Lindbergh, and justly so, for the brave feat of a first perfect trip in his plane from New York to Paris. People and governments vied with each other to pay him their greatest tribute, but it didn't take long for the great masses of people to denounce him for no other reason than that he wished to live his own life and express himself as he chose.

Many of us recall the tremendous popularity of Theodore Roosevelt, before and while president. Yet the time came when he was reviled and turned against, and one New York newspaper gave an order that his name should not appear in its columns! Stevenson well named popularity as "that empty and ugly thing."

There is no striving so permanent and full of personal satisfaction as to serve one's fellowman as best as one is able, and leave the results of one's efforts upon this earth to the final summing up. Even the world's appraisement proves inaccurate in endless cases. The humblest, who does his best from day to day, caring nothing for popularity, finally sleeps happily and safely beside the great of this earth.

Personal Health Talks

THE COLITIS BUSINESS

A quack business, like the patent medicine business, must turn back at least one-half of the take into luring new customers, otherwise the business is doomed to peter out. Even the simple customers who "tried" the amazing new medicine or treatment and perhaps signed testimonials under the spell of the master promoters realize how thoroughly they have been bamboozled and thereafter do not recommend the nostrum or quack to their friends.

Calling upon divers dead or non-existent "specialists" to corroborate the claim, the charlatan finally traces the symptoms to the unidentified "poisons" or "toxins" absorbed from the colon, and urges the suckers to visit his colon filling station for irrigation. "All of these people" (people who have any of the symptoms the quack has listed) "have colitis . . . even though they may not know it."

That tears it. There's magic, blue magic or black, in the term "colitis." To the ignorant wiseacre it sounds exclusive or smart. It it like "neurasthenia" in that respect in the refined quackery of the nineteenth century. The riffraff might have "nervous breakdown," "nervous prostration," exhausted nerves" or just "nerves"; it was only the rich and the snobs who had "neurasthenia" which required the "rest cure" in a "sanitarium."

Inflammation of the colon (large bowel) happens all right. When it occurs it is a pretty serious condition and the victim who attempts to treat himself for it is one d. f.

There is no inflammation in the thousands of cases of so-called mucous colitis—except that caused by over-enthusiastic use of enemas, bowel washes or irrigations.

The excessive mucous which these poor geeks with the "colitis" obsession are sure to find if they look for it long enough is secreted by the mucous lining of the bowel in a frantic attempt to protect itself from the repeated irritation of enema, bowel wash or other unnatural interference. The pain the poor geeks suffer is due to spastic or spasmodic writhing, violent peristalsis, excessive contractions of the intestinal wall caused by irritation. Moreover, due to long, ill-advised restrictions of diet, the poor geeks (a geek is a person who thinks he understands his own physiology and pathology better than an "ordinary doctor can) are generally spastic or spasmophilic—that is, they have a tendency to tension, tightness, spasms, convulsions. This is called the spastic state and it is due chiefly to calcium deficiency.

Spasmophilia or the spastic state has been recognized for a century or longer, but until the past ten or fifteen years it has remained an unsolved mystery. I may be a bit too far ahead about this, but from study and observation I am satisfied that correction of calcium deficiency is a fundamental part of the treatment in all spastic disturbances — from colon derangement ("mucous colitis to you, stupid) to nocturnal cramps in persons of mature age.

Colon derangement — that's a more sensible name for it—and if you have don't forget that you yourself deranged it or keep it deranged by interference. Unless you are confident that you know more than an ordinary doctor knows about these things, you might learn something to your advantage by studying The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene booklet available for 25c each, if you provide stamped self-addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Piles

The results were amazing. While I thought the doctor was making an examination it was really the first injection. Only five were required, and I am as good as new. No operation, no hospital, virtually no discomfort, no time lost. Funny part of it—one day while I was waiting who should come in but Dr. ———, who came in for the injection treatment, although he tells his patients they will have to have the operation in hospital! (C. A. G.)

Answer — Well, maybe Dr. Blank wants to try it on the dog before he recommends it to his patients. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for the pamphlet—It Is Stupid To Suffer From Piles—and don't try to change the name of the pamphlet, Stupid.

Excessive Sweat

Hot weather or cold, excessive underarm sweating ruins all my dresses. Doctors say it is dangerous to stop it. What can you suggest? (Mrs. A. P.)

Answer—Millions of women have proved that the doctors—but then, you will find few if any reputable physicians who imagine it is dangerous to stop excessive sweating of the armpits, feet or other particular area. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet Excessive Sweating and dont try to change the title.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The carving season is almost at hand. Most men look forward with considerable pleasure to the dissection of a Christmas turkey and a New Years goose. But there are house-husbands who literally fear the job of carving, the reason being that they make a mess of it. It is astounding how some men can get a beautiful brown bird all over the table.

Jim Boa, one of Canada's greatest marksmen, has been carving ever since he was a boy, a disability in his father's wrist having promoted him to the job while still in short pants.

To stand up or not to stand up whilst carving is the first item of etiquette. Jim Boa votes for standing up. In the first place, the carver who stands to the job receives the full aroma of the turkey, a pleasure he is entitled to in compensation for his work. In the second place, at a festive board, the sight of the host standing up to dispense his hospitality has an old fashioned and homely quality about it that stimulates the spirit of the gathering. everybody watches the carver: very well, then, make a ceremony of it.

The procedure is: first, cut off the near leg, and there you have the dark meat at hand. Then start slicing the breast, being careful not to remove the wing.

"Leaving both wings on to the last," says Jim Boa, "is the secret of keeping the bird upright on the platter. There is a great temptation, in carving, to do the near side entire, wing and all. But the wings serve as props or pedestals to hold the bird erect. It is when the wing is removed that the bird falls over on the platter. And then disaster soon follows.

"There is a school of carving which works on the far side of the bird first. But this exposes the operation to the guests at table. Stick to the near side, leaving the beautiful golden view of the far side to the audience. And above all, leave the wings on as long as possible."

There you have it.

Hon. T. L. Kennedy Cuts Ribbon to Officially Open Splendid New Warehouse

Colonel, the Honorable T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, cut the ribbon for the official opening of the new $350,000 Ontario Cheese Producers' cheese curing and storage warehouse in Belleville Friday afternoon following a luncheon in the Masonic Temple of the cheese producers of this area.

Civic dignitaries and honored guests at the luncheon head table included James Clemson, Warden of Prince Edward County; Allison Graham, president of the Ontario Concentrated Milk Producers' Association; Kenneth Cruise, director of the Ontario Whole Milk Producers' League; D. W. Osmond, director of the Cheese Producers' Association; Archdeacon F. A. Smith, representing the Ministerial Association of Belleville; W. O. Coon, director of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association; J. B. Lemoine, official of the Union of Catholic Farmers of Quebec; Sir Andrew Jones, representative of the British Food Missions; Alderman Harry Rollins, representative of the city of Belleville; Warden Harry Coulter of Hastings County; Charles E. Harkness, president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association; W. C. Cameron, chairman of the Dairy Products Board of Canada; Roland Camirand, General Inspector of Dairy Products,

Hon. T. L. Kennedy

Province of Quebec; E. M. Biggs, Dairy Commissioner for Ontario; John I. Ballantyne, representative of the Dairy Farmers of Canada; C. A. Milligan, Vice-president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture; A. E. Hicks, Director of the Cheese Producers' Association of Ontario; H. L. Waters, President of the Cheese Merchants' Association; and W. E. Bateman, President of the Hastings County Cheese Producers' Association.

Greetings Extended

Alderman Harry Rollins of Belleville and Warden Harry Coulter of Hastings County brought the greetings of their respective municipalities to the luncheon with the reply being made by W. E. Bateman, president of the Hastings County Cheese Producers.

Shortly before two o'clock, everyone in attendance at the luncheon adjourned to the new warehouse for the official opening ceremonies carried out by Col. Kennedy, following which they assembled inside the building to hear the address.

"No one in this hall can appreciate the feeling that I had to step into this building today," stated Col. Kennedy. "A feat that looked impossible a few years ago is now an accomplished fact, a fact that I am extremely proud of," he added.

Success Due to Producers

Col. Kennedy said that this was the first time in the Province of Ontario that the farmers could process and ship their products themselves. He pointed out that a large part of this success was due to the Cheese Producers' Association's good credit standing in Great Britain which in turn was made by the Association keeping its committments with the mother country.

He stressed the necessity of not depending on anyone else to market the product, but of having agents all along the line for that purpose.

"Ontario produces the finest cheddar cheese in the world," said Col. Kennedy, "and if we keep this standard up, it will pay dividends in 1960 and 1970. This area has a high respect from the Province of Ontario."

Sir Andrew Jones, representative of the British Food Mission, congratulated the chairman, directors and marketing board for the successful outcome of the year's operations.

Entitled to Assist

He said that many of his friends had predicted that the Ontario Cheese Producers would not "get to first base" but they have done a magnificent job. He felt that the British Ministry of Food was entitled to an assist because during the past year they had bought 25,630,000 pounds of cheddar cheese at a cost of approximately $8,200,000.

Sir Andrew stated that he had taken a personal interest in the erection of the Belleville warehouse and had visited it many times during its construction.

He paid high tribute to Col. Kennedy's intense interest in the project. "It has been shown to me by personal contact that Col. Kennedy has a high regard for the welfare of the Ontario farmer," he added.

Exemplified a Faith

W. C. Cameron, Chairman of the Dairy Products Board and representative of the Federal Department of Agriculture of which he is an associate director, stated that the building exemplified a faith in the future of the industry. It will contribute much to the economic welfare of the country, a factor overlooked in most other industries, he said.

He extended his best wishes for continued success in this worthy effort which, if successful, will benefit all Canadian dairymen.

Roland Camirand, General Inspector of Dairy Products for the Province of Quebec and representative of the Quebec minister of agriculture, said that he was proud and pleased to express the desires, wishes and opinions of the Province of Quebec.

He said that we must learn lessons from others and try to copy; as sister provinces we must apply brotherhood.

Milestone in Industry

C. A. Milligan, vice-president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, brought the greetings and congratulations of his organization. He stated that this system of marketing will bring thousands of dollars revenue and is a grand example to other groups. He offered the assistance of the OFA.

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare for the Province of Ontario, said that this building was a milestone and a move in the right direction.

"Don't depend on the government," he continued, "but help the government to make conditions better for yourself. You will not have achieved the ultimate until this stage is reached."

The minister congratulated the trade on the enormity of their sales to Great Britain and added that an additional 40,000,000 pounds had been assimilated by the trade.

Charles E. Harkness, president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, thanked all those who were responsible for making this venture a success. This included the British Ministry of Food, the licensed buyers and many others. He urged their co-operation in the trade for future development.

Can Check Quality

Charles N. Heath, secretary of the Producers' Association, remarked that the building was erected by the Ontario Cheese Producers to enable them to carry out the marketing of their products more effectively. Recognizing the importance of assuring the consumer of a regular supply of a quality product, he continued, the plant includes a curing room where ideal conditions for curing cheese to desired degrees of ripeness can be achieved. The building is capable of curing and holding more than 5,000,000 pounds of cheese where the quality also may be checked.

Giving the physical features of the building, Mr. Heath said that it is approximately 200 feet long and 121 feet wide of reinforced concrete construction. He also described the loading and handling facilities, the waxing tank, the curing room and the air conditioning changes with regard to air change and humidity.

In conclusion Mr. Heath stressed the co-operation of the entire cheese trade in making this curing and storage warehouse a reality.

Phone Foils Robbery Attempt At Port Perry

Port Perry, Ont., Dec. 8 (CP) —A jangling telephone last night helped foil a robbery attempt by five armed men on the Canadian Bank of Commerce here.

The sound apparently frightened the five who were holding up bank manager J. R. Helm, causing them to flee after trying up Mr. Helm and his wife and son.

The manager told police the group entered the premises while they were being cleaned up by the janitor, Tom Asher. They forced the janitor to accompany them to the manager's upstairs apartment.

Mr. Helm said he was eating supper when the group entered, holding Asher among them. They attempted to get Helm to open the safe but he said he didn't know the combination.

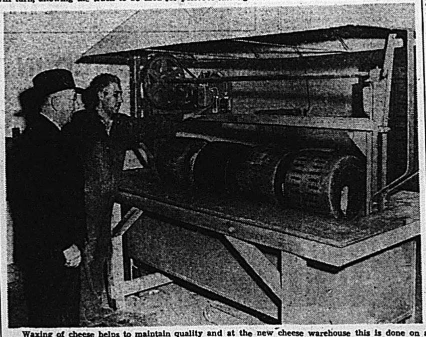
Piling cheese nine high is no physical effort in the refrigerated storerooms of the new plant. Not with an electrically operated "fork" truck shown here. The truck can take nine cheese at a time, transport them from one end of the building to another and stack them. The "fork" of the truck will turn, allowing the truck to be used for periodic turning of cheese in the warehouse.



Waxing of cheese helps to maintain quality and at the new cheese warehouse this is done on a mass production scale. Joseph Bey operates the switch controlling the waxing machine as warehouse manager Robt. Hart looks on. Cheese are rolled onto a frame, the machine automatically lowering them into a vat filled with liquid wax.

Exterior view of the new warehouse which cost $300,000 to build and equip. The building is of poured concrete with Association offices over one corner of the structure. Two transports can back into a covered loading platform. Platform at the rear (not shown) runs full length of the building and is also covered for loading onto railway cars.

New $300,000 Cheese Storage Warehouse Inspected By Minister of Agriculture

In operation since the first of December the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association's new cheese storage warehouse in Belleville was officially opened Friday. The opening followed the British Empire Cheese Show also held this week.

The Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, officially opened the new plant in the presence of Association members and other government officials representing both the provincial and federal departments.

The new plant at Belleville is the first warehouse of its type in Ontario built specifically for the storage of cheese. It has a storage capacity of nearly 60,000 boxes and nothing has been overlooked to facilitate the efficient handling of cheese. All storage rooms are refrigerated.

Steel and Concrete

Of steel and concrete construction the building has dimensions of 120 feet by 200 feet. Offices of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association are on the second floor of a front corner of the building. It is from here that the Cheese Producers' Association conducts its cheese purchase and price support plan.

Charles N. Heath, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association which Friday officially opened its new cheese warehouse at Belleville.

Associate Secretary Charles N. Heath has an office staff of seven persons looking after records concerning purchase of cheese and sending out payments to Ontario cheese factories. Storage plant manager Robert Hart has another five employees receiving and shipping cheese from the big storage plant.

On Railway Siding

Built on Wills Street south of the Belleville General Hospital, the building has its own railway siding with covered loading platform. Truck shipments are also received entirely under cover.

Although the cheese manufacturing program has tapered off for this season, the storage plant is still busy during the latter part of each week as cheese boarded Tuesday are received at the plant.

Cheese are trucked in from factories throughout the entire Bay of Quinte district; are checked according to their factory numbers and prepared for grading by government graders. Then they are stacked in refrigerated storage for aging and final disposition.

The main storage room at the plant is 120 by 100 feet with a second storage room 40 by 120 feet. Ceilings in the storage rooms are 16 feet in height. In addition to the main storage rooms, there is the waxing room where waxing of 90-lb. cheese is done on a mass production basis, and the shipping room where cheese are kept prior to being shipped out.

Cheese Turned by Fork

The almost continuous handling of cheese at the storage plant is greatly facilitated by use of a special electrically operated "fork" truck. Through use of the truck cheese can be rapidly transported from one end of the storage to another. The truck will stack cheese nine high and has a turnable "fork" that can be used to turn the cheese.

In the words of plant manager Mr. Hart the "fork" truck is the workhorse of the storage. It reduces the manual labor of handling cheese to an absolute minimum.

Three hundred thousand dollars went into the construction and purchase of equipment for the Cheese Producers' big cheese storage plant. Some of the money was provided through a special grant from the Ontario Department of Agriculture, while the plant also came in for the federal government's subsidy on cold storage plants.

The plant has been in operation only since September but already is paying dividends to cheese producers through their cheese purchase program.

WEDDINGS

THOMPSON—REID

On Saturday, December 1, at 2:30 p.m., before an altar banked with chrysanthemums, ferns and tall white tapers, a pretty wedding was solemnized by the Reverend C. W. Neelands in Wallbridge United Church, when Jean Beverly, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Reid, of Wallbridge, became the bride of Douglas William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Thompson, of Moira.

Mr. Fred Porter, of Thomasburg, provided the wedding music and the soloist, Mr. Harold Carruthers, of Belleville, sang before the ceremony, "I Love You Truly" and during the signing of the register, "Because".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta fashioned with molded bodice, tiered peplum and accordion-pleated skirt. She wore a fingertip veil of tulle illusion held in place by a Juliet cap of taffeta sprinkled with seed pearls and carried a bouquet of white orchids.

Miss Dorothy Hodgins, of Belleville, was maid of honor, wearing an attractive floor-length gown of rust taffeta with Chantilly lace jacket, Japanese collar, and long sleeves with points over the hands. Her headdress was a coronet of braided taffeta.

Miss Denyse Vandome, of Belleville, was bridesmaid, gowned in forest green taffeta and lace fashioned on similar lines to that of the maid of honor. They each carried small taffeta muffs with corsages of roses and chrysanthemums.

The flower girls were little Patsy and Beverly Reid, cousins of the bride, gowned alike in floor-length frocks of yellow and nile green nylon over taffeta with matching bonnets trimmed with lace and pink rosebuds each carried tiny nosegays.

Mr. Earl Thompson, brother of the groom, was groomsman. The ushers were, Mr. Glenn Reid, brother of the bride, and Mr. Elmer Thompson, brother of the bridegroom.

The reception was held in Wallbridge Hall for 75 guests. The bride's mother gowned in twilight blue crepe with black accessories and corsage of Sweetheart roses received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore green crepe with coffee brown accessories and corsage of bronze chrysanthemums.

For travelling to New York City and eastern points, the bride chose a navy suit with tomato red accessories, matching topcoat and corsage of red carnations.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside in Belleville.

Jack Sproule Outlines History of H.S. Board

The December meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association was held in the auditorium of the school with 45 members present.

Mrs. Jack Clarke, the president had the chair during the business session. Mr. Gallagher reported that the euchre was a wonderful success. There was a good crowd who reported an enjoyable evening. Mr. Peter Murry gave an outline of the progress of the school rink, which is now being erected. Mrs. Howard Thomson gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Mastin's room won the banner for the largest number of members present, as usual—but by a narrow margin.

At the close of the business, Mr. J. Durant took the chair. Mr. Bert Brown, accompanied by Mrs. K. Bird, delighted the audience with two violin selections, "Chopin's Nocturne", and "Hungarian Love Song".

Guest Speaker

The speaker for the evening was Mr. Jack Sproule, a member of the South Hastings area H.S. Board. He gave an enlightening talk on the history of the organization. For his talk, Mr. Sproule cited the reasons for the formation of the board. He also touched briefly on the cost of the operating of the high school area. In closing he outlined the organization of the new Bay of Quinte High School Area, which includes the townships of Thurlow, Tyendinaga, Ameliasburg and the city of Belleville, and which commences operation on January 1st, 1952.

Mr. Bird thanked the speaker, after which followed an auction sale of small articles donated by the members. Mr. Osten Gallagher was auctioneer and Mr. Ted Bedford, cashier. This provided a lot of fun with amusing incidents and benefited the club to the amount of $11.25.

The meeting closed with refreshments served by Mrs. Gray and her committee.

Ontario School For The Deaf Vividly Portrays 'The Nativity'

Once again, last evening at the Ontario School for the Deaf, the old, old, but ever new story of the 'Nativity' and the events leading up to the birth of the Christ Child were portrayed by Scripture, act and music with simplicity and sweetness to an over-capacity audience of teachers, parents, friends and children.

Part one of the program consisted of brief remarks by Mr. W. J. Morrison, superintendent of the school, in which he welcomed the many present, thanking them for the manner in which they had, through the years, so splendidly responded to the Christmas exercises by the pupils. At the close of the program he also spoke at greater length, explaining the manner of teaching the children by lip reading, so that in future days these children might become members of the outside society, able to earn their own way in life, either by vocational or academic means.

Live As Others

During the school term, the children are encouraged to live as other children; they attend church, and though not able to follow all that the service contains, yet they obtain a grasp of what God is, learning from the service as a whole, rather than just from what the minister is saying. The children come to the school around five years of age and remain until 18 or 19. The province maintains the school with the parents providing for the clothing, which amounts approximately to $10 or more.

Following the chairman's remarks, two choruses, "Snowflakes", and "Whistling Wind", by the 2A Senior pupils were well rendered, as were the trios, "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas", and "Away in a Manger", by Misses Mildred Laffrenier, Vivian Curtis and Rosemary Burnadz.

The rhythm band, "Santa is Coming to Town", by the senior pupils was received with much acclaim, and the carol "Silent Night", in which the vast audience took part, was something to be long remembered.

The Nativity play, adapted and directed by Miss Helen Keeler, with music and dialogue arranged by Mr. Alec Gordon, was exceptionally well done, with the scripture parts taken by Robert Reid, Doreen Brown, Joanne Brontmeir, Jeannette Masci and Mary O'Neill.

The play consisted of five scenes, the annunciation, the arrival at the Bethlehem inn; the shepherds on the Judean hills; King Herod's court, and the Nativity.

Simple and Dignified

The annunciation scene depicted the Virgin Mary seated alone, in deep meditation, and the arrival of the announcing angel. The simplicity and dignity of this scene was delightful. The arrival of the various people at the inn, their paying of their individual taxes, even unto the last shekel, and the haughty inn-keeper's "no room," with a sweeping gesture of the hand to the remote cow stables, when asked by Joseph for accommodation for Mary, his wife. All showed appreciation of their individual parts.

The Judean hill scene showing the shepherds around the fire of coals was vivid, and the startling arrival of the herald angel, the host of trumpeting white clad angels with their rustling wings, was most appealing.

Herod's court took one back to early history; the gorgeous apparel, the Roman sentries, the high priest with his venerable grey beard, and costly robes, the scribes, altar boy, slave girls and the wise men, Herod's dilemma when confronted by the news of a newborn king of Israel, was splendidly depicted by his nervous twitching at his beard, and his walking to and fro, lost in thought, his sudden decision, closed a scene well-worth remembering.

Crowning Scene

The final scene, which depicted the nativity, with the guardian angels, Mary, the Virgin mother, and Joseph, the cherubs, shepherds, the adoring kings of the east with their gifts, all worshiping in holy silence the Babe in the manger, and the arrival of the heavenly host, slowly wending their way along the centre aisle, with outspread wings, and flowing white robes, was, perhaps the crowning scene of the old, old, story, but one so ever new, which coupled with the repetition of John 3:16, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life", was a most fitting climax to a lovely portrayal of "The Sweetest Story Ever Told."

Members of Cast

Those of the cast included: Mary, Iona Muir; angel of annunciation, Mary Gallant; Inn keeper, Mario Micetick; publicans, Billy Habkirk, David Craven; Roman soldiers, Wilfred Saumure, Robert Ebersole; tax payers, Peter De Rose, Larry Knoch; Joseph, Charles Denomme; shepherds, Wilmot Scott, Robert Renout, Burt Foster, Leroy McGregor, Michael Martin and Douglas Leeman. Young shepherd, Marshall Wick; herald angel, Joan Laidlaw; heavenly host, Lilliam McOrmand, Julia Madach, Joyce McPherson, Elaine Garnett, Dorothy McArthur, Johanna Ridekopp, Eunice Richardson, Verna Martin, Alma Allin and Lulu Cayer.

Additional Music

Mrs. M. Davidson gave a fine rendition of "Ave Maria" during the scene of the annunciation; the teachers' chorus supplied "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night" in the Judean hills scene, and also "We Three Kings" and "Adeste Fidelis," at the Nativity.

Mr. Morrison tendered appreciative thanks to Miss Keeler, to Mr. Gordon, to the teachers, and to each and all who had assisted in the portrayal and arrangement of the play.

Tea was served following the close of the play.

Shalom From Israel

By Leo H. Marcus

(Article 11)

Jerusalem, Israel — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer — A ma'bara is a temporary camping place for newly-arrived immigrants to Israel. The Israeli government is not able to find work and living accommodations for the great number of immigrants arriving in Israel each day and so the immigrants live in these ma'baras until employment and homes can be found for them.

It is interesting to note that during the year 1951, one hundred and eighty thousand immigrants will have been absorbed by the state of Israel. As a result of this immigration ma-baras are springing up all over the country.

Situated in the Jerusalem corridor to the west of the city of Jerusalem lies the ma'bara of Kisalon. This particular ma'bara houses immigrants from Yemen. During our hike through the Jerusamel corridor we stopped at Ma'bara Kisalon.

One-Room Dwellings

The immigrants in the ma'bara live in aluminum houses which have only one room. The houses would provide adequate living accommodations for one person, and yet an entire family of five or six persons have to live in one room. The houses are not equipped with running water and the entire ma'bara gets its water from a number of outside taps in the centre of the ma'bara. Despite the fact that most of these Yemenite families have one or two small children, sanitary conditions are not good; yet it is the best that can be provided by Israel in its present austere condition.

I spoke to a Yemenite teacher who lives at the ma'bara and I asked him what he thought of conditions existing at the place. His rather astonishing reply was, "Conditions here are not good, but they are 100 per cent better than the conditions in Yemen." The government of Israel tries to find permanent homes for these dwellers as soon as possible because of the wrong impressions of the state, formed while living in them.

Skilled at Reading

There is a one-roomed school in the settlement and when I visited it I found a Yemenite teacher trying to teach the Hebrew language to the children.

I was quite surprised to see one of the children reading a book that was in an inverted position. Upon asking the child why he was holding the book in such a position, he demonstrated that he could read the book from any angle. I later learned that in Yemen there is a great shortage of books and when reading is taught, the children sit in a circle with the teacher in the middle holding the book. It is therefore necessary for the pupils to be able to read from any position.

The ma'baras are only temporary things in the present transition period through which the state of Israel is passing. As time goes by permanent homes will be found for all of the new immigrants where they will be able to live happy and secure lives as citizens of the state of Israel.

SISTERS ALL

By JEAN LOVE GALLOWAY

A dispatch from Vienna tells of the Romanian government's announcement about three new medals to reward women who give birth to many children. Mothers of 10 or more children will qualify for the highest medal — the Heroine of Motherhood. Mothers of seven to nine children will get the Glory of Motherhood and those with five to six, the Medal of Motherhood . . . This is a similar "medals-for-mothers" scheme as the one brought in by Mussolini in Italy. Canadian mothers too, are honored by their government for the bearing of children. Only in Canada, mama gets a monthly pension cheque to help buy food and clothes and cod liver oil for her children.

Baby Gifts

Over the bridge table, we listened to a new gradma Oh and Ah over her first grandchild. She has a wonderful idea for a Christmas present though for the babe and her mother. It's a three months' subscription to a local baby diaper service. We have no doubt that gift will be treasured beyond all pieces of silver.

Worth a Price

If dollars would accumulate around the house like wire dress hangers, we would all be wealthy. But these scads of hangers we'd like to toss into the river are really worth something, if you have enough of them. Any dry cleaning company will be glad to buy them from you at 1c each. They will take them away in the truck when delivering a garment. All you have to do is to count them and tie them with string.. Trouble with most of us is that we live in a lot of clutter which can be turned into cash.

It's the same way with the cellar and the attic as it is with the clothes closets. There are all sorts of articles which could be turned into money, if we but took the effort to advertise them. One of the astounding things about an auction sale of household belongings is the amount of cash money which totals up from used articles on which we usually place no value at all.

Funny Bits

Much of the humor of everyday life comes from the quick glance at the odd cartoon. Funniest one we've seen recently pictures a milk man stepping on the first step of a series of long sets of steps upto a house perched high on a hill.

From up at the house the milkman looks a tiny, tiny man as he begins to scramble up the steps with his wire basket full of milk. At the top of all these steps is an empty milk bottle with a note chucked in the top. The flap of the note is bent over, and if you lean down you can read the message. It says No Milk Today.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Is she old at 36?

Psychologists tell us that of all the emotional shocks which human beings must weather in the course of their progress from the beginning to the end of life, there are two which have the most profound effect. These are the shock of birth and the shock of growing old.

Now—need I say it?—all of us realize that some day we'll have to face the business of growing old. We know it's something we can't escape, unless we have the misfortune to die young. And most of us would rather take a chance on living to a fairly ripe old age, provided we keep our health and our wits as intact as possible, than have our enjoyment of life come to a sudden, premature ending.

So, we're somewhat reconciled to the thought of having to adjust to growing old around, say, 70 or 80 or thereabouts. But what if you suspected the limitations of those latter years were creeping up on you before you had barely reached middle life? How would you feel about it then? Wouldn't it be an almost paralyzing shock if you suddenly found yourself asking: "Must I, at the age of 36, resign myself to the fact that I am getting old?"

Busy Hours

That is the question which ends a letter from a woman who divorced her husband a number of years ago. For awhile, after her divorce, all her time and attention were concentrated on being both father and mother to a small daughter. During the day, she went to work to earn the money for their support. After work, she hurried home, eager to spend the next few hours just being with the child, and, she goes on to say in the letter she writes me, "after she was put to bed, I had a lot of things to do—wash, iron, all the household chores." Busy every minute, from the hour she got up in the morning to the hour she set her alarm clock for the next day and dropped, exhausted, into bed, she forgot herself in the needs of her child.

Then, suddenly, came the awakening; the shock of finding that while she was absorbed in other things, the years had raced by her faster than she knew. It came, as it comes sooner or later to most women when their children grow beyond the need of concentrated care from their mothers. All at once, she was aware that life seemed to hold nothing more for her, and, she reasoned, an empty life can mean only one thing—that one is growing old.

She put it this way:

"Now my daughter is fifteen and in high school. She helps with all the chores, which leaves me with free time on my hands. Also, she has her own friends with whom she likes to be, which naturally leaves me alone and very lonesome.

"I have tried to find a group at my church where I could find friends, but it seems that the activities are all planned for couples and not for single women. There is a business women's club, but all the women who belong to that are a good deal older than myself, and we have nothing on common.

"Must I, though only 36, resign myself to the fact that I am growing old, accept my life as it is and quit seeking things I can't have?"

Nurses' Aide

Fortunately, the answer to that question is easy. It is that so far from having nothing to look forward to but growing older and older, this woman, actually, stands at the beginning of a whole new life, if she will only see it that way. All she needs to do is to choose one single activity outside her home in which to interest herself, and she is certain to find that it will lead her to new friends, new experiences, new satisfactions and new happiness.

For her, at 36, I suggest that she might become a nurses' aide, perhaps in a veterans' hospital where such help is sorely needed. Or, she could volunteer for work in her local Red Cross, where a great variety of choices are open to her. Once she has allied herself with a group whose purpose is to serve in the community, and throws herself, heart and soul, into its activities, she will have a sense of "belonging" and her problem of loneliness will be solved.

BEAUTY

Care of the complexion is a life-time job

It is generally conceded that a naturally fair skin is one of the most attractive features a woman can possess. Given a dazzling complexion of fine texture, smooth surface and exquisite coloring, almost anything in the way of beauty can be achieved. It helps to glorify the hair and the eyes. Usually such a skin tells a story of radiant health—brisk circulation, good digestion, sound nervous system—and constant, daily attentions in the way of cleansing, creaming and light massage.

The complexion has enemies, and it stands to reason that it will not get along happily on its own. Climatic changes, atmospheric dust, fatigue, strong sunlight, and harsh winds all get in their mean licks. Then there are the cruel fingers of the old gent with the scythe and the long white whiskers waiting to make marks on human faces. But even he can be thwarted if fastidious care starts early enough to keep facial tissues strong, fibres resilient, the skin in perfect condition.

The summer season can put leathery faces on sun worshippers; cold weather can cause the epidermal surface to become so dry that it flakes and seems bent on its own destruction. Hence no woman can afford to neglect her beauty chores. She should find pleasure in them. The before-bed-time face-washing, together with a five minute anointing with a fragrant emollient and a bit of tapping and slapping, is a period of relaxation during which one can review the day's activities, plan for the morrow.

To be a follower of the Goddess Hygeia is to give the complexion a helping hand. Outdoor exercise and deep breathing, which act favorably upon the blood streams, will create natural roses in the cheeks, and one can dispense with the rouge compact. The daily bath, which aids the skin all over the body to function as an organ of elimination, will impart freshness to the complexion.

Diet plays a more important part than most of the sisters realize. Too much fat in the daily intake of groceries will cause the sebaceous glands to riot, with the result that the facial areas look as if they had been buttered. A fat free diet will bring dryness of the skin, as will a cutting down on liquids.

A sallow complexion will often change its yellow character if the victim of this defect will drink a glass of unsweetened lemonade every morning before breakfast.

Food for Thought

Readers' Saturday Column

By MARY MOORE

I enjoy your writing very much. I am a bride so I read everything carefully and clip for future use. Could you please give me a recipe for cooking rabbit? My husband is an avid hunter who likes to bring the game home. He has promised to clean the rabbits, if I will only find out how to cook them.—Jay.

ANSWER:

ROAST RABBIT

Ask your husband to keep the heart and liver. Simmer these until tender and chop and add to the stuffing along with the liquid in which they were cooked. Stuff the rabbit, which should be young for roasting. Sew up opening. Tie or fasten legs close to body. Place on side in roaster. Roast at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, turning once and basting frequently with melted butter or bacon drippings. Reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. and continue roasting for 1 1-2 hours, basting every 15 minutes. Make gravy by stirring together flour and water to a smooth paste and stirring this into the drippings in pan.

Stuffing for Young Roast Rabbit:

1 small onion, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 cups soft breadcrumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning.

Young rabbit may be used almost in the same ways chicken is. It lacks fat and th's always has to be added. You can use rabbit for a deep rabbit pie with pastry or biscuit crust, or for a stew with dumplings using exactly the same recipe you would use if it were chicken. If you do not have these write to me again.

QUESTION:

I always look at your column . . . Years ago I remember we steamed our Christmas cakes at home. We finished them off in the oven. I see you say to have a water pan in oven and to keep adding water as it boils away. I wonder what you would think of the steaming and finishing off in the oven, and how long would you steam and finish off? I'll have to try your plan on an ordinary fruit cake.—M. McN.

ANSWER:

Splendid. Steam large cake 4 1-2 to 5 hours. Bake 1 hour at 275 deg. F.

QUESTION:

Would you please tell me the trade name for Monosodium Glutamate used for flavoring wood.—Ann J. C.

ANSWER:

I am sure you mean for flavoring food not wood. In Chinese stores ask for "White Seasonings"; in ordinary grocery stores ask for "Ac-cent".

QUESTION:

Could I please have some information regarding Emem's Dark rich fruit cake. I made this once but it was rather light in color. Would cutting down on the citron peel do this? Could more cherries and nuts be added and less citron? My family does not like peel in cake. What makes the cake crumble when cut? I have never made many fruit cakes but this one. I am sure they would like it very well at our house because they love cherries.—Mrs. M. C.

ANSWER:

The one thing that worries me in your letter is that your cake was crumbly when cut. When you store your cake wrap it in several thicknesses of heavy wax paper, then in a heavy Turkish towel then put it in a covered crock or tin box with lid. This cake contains plenty of moisture—especially if it is baked in an oven with waterpan kept filled throughout baking time. It should not crumble when cut.

Yes—substitute cherries and walnuts for all of the citron. To make the cake darker add from 1-2 to 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, and nutmeg and from 1-4 to 1-2 teaspoon each cloves and allspice. To make the cake darker still use part dates for some of the materials substituted for the peel.

When you want quick answers to your questions regarding Christmas recipes be sure to enclose stamped self-addressed envelopes.

GOOD MANNERS

December birthstones. . . there are three. . .all blue.

For December there is a choice of three birthstones, all of them blue, all interesting shades of blue. Turquoise. . . Lapis Lazuli . . . and Zircon. A Turquoise (which, incidentally, is supposed to bring success in the affairs of the heart!) may be an Oriental Turquoise of a beautiful azure blue, and set in gold; or it may be of the American type, a greenish blue, and very often set in silver, though sometimes in gold. Then there is the deep, rich blue of the Lapis Lazuli, full of ancient lore and tradition and mystery, and believed to be the "sapphaire" of the ancients. And very popular today is the third of December's birthstones. . . the Blue Zircon. Although the Zircon comes in several brilliant colors, the Blue Zircon, in radiant aquamarine tones, is the best known, and blends harmoniously with all colors and with all other shades of blue.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going with a man who is married and has two children. The divorce has been started by his wife, and we are to marry when it is granted. He wants me to accept a diamond engagement ring, and to wear it when we are together. But my mother insists that this is "outrageous", that I shouldn't accept a ring until the divorce is final. Is his idea so improper, or is mother just old-fashioned, as my finance says.—S. L.

The truth is, of course, that you should not consider yourself engaged to this man or accept an engagement ring from him while he is still the husband of another woman. As of course you know perfectly well, your mother isn't "old-fashioned" (as your "fiance" is trying to persuade you). . she simply has the right, the decent, point of view.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to use colored ink on Christmas cards?—Reader.

Yes. . .yes, indeed . . . Christmas is the time for colored ink. A Christmas red or green ink will add sparkle to your message or signature on your card, and to the envelope-address to. And you can make an artistic plan to have the holiday-red ink or the bright holly-leaf green carry out the color scheme of the border of the card and/or the design.

GINGER ROGERS is New York's million-dollar baby right now. Her Broadway show "Love and Let Love" just closed because there was nothing much to it except glamorous clothes. But Ginger needn't give a snap of her pretty be-diamoned fingers for that! CBS had already signed her on five-year contract of dramatic shows for 1 million dollars! Nice work, if you can get it! Ginger is so healthy and full of life, she fairly skips when she walks, off-stage or on. She's going to Hollywood, she told me, before her CBS debut, to make another picture — the theme, marriage, and Fred Allen playing her husband.

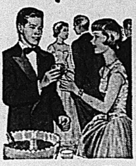
Are you in the know?



Can you remedy cold, red hands with—

☐ Open-air workouts
☐ Mittens
☐ Lotion

If Winter turns your mitts to icy "lobster claws"—chances are, your circulation needs recharging. Get more outdoor exercise. Swap tight gloves for warm, wool mittens that give your fingers wiggle-room. And use hand lotion faithfully. On difficult days, choose Kotex for comfort . . . downy softness that holds its shape. And to top your poise-rating, those flat pressed ends of Kotex prevent revealing outlines!

How to straighten out a feud you started?

☐ Make the first move
☐ Wait for him to call
☐ Try the weeping technique

You blow your top. And you're sorry — even before you hear the door slam. Well, tell him so, in a little note. Or ask the crowd over and include your bitter half. If that doesn't fetch him, why knock yourself out? 'Taint worth it . . . any more than it is to fret over trying days' woes. You needn't, for Kotex gives you the extra protection of an exclusive safety centre. A Kotex feature that guards against accidents; spares you "those" nagging cares.

3 ABSORBENCIES: Regular, Super, Junior

*T.M. Reg.

☐ Perk up your wardrobe

Before "that" time, be ready! All 3 answers above can help. But to assure extra comfort, buy a new Kotex sanitary belt. Made with soft-stretch elastic—lightweight Kotex belt's non-twisting. Stays flat even after many washings. Dries pronto! So don't wait . . . buy a new Kotex belt now. (Why not buy two — for a change?)

P.S. Have you tried Delsey? Delsey* is the new bathroom tissue that's safer because it's softer. A product as superior as Kotex . . . a tissue as soft and absorbent as Kleenex*. (We think that's the nicest compliment there is.)

Every Rule In Boxing Book Broken As De Marco Out-Roughs Saddler

MURRAY ROSE

New York, Dec. 8 (AP) — Billygoat Paddy De Marco, who butts with the most angelic look on his face, was aiming for a title shot with lightweight champion Jimmy Carter today following his split decision over featherweight king Sandy Saddler.

As for Sandy, he still was spluttering with rage over the tug-of-war, wrestling match, judo exhibition and part-time boxing contest he and the Brooklyn battering ram staged at Madison Square Garden last night Any resemblance to the fine points of boxing was purely co-incidental.

Tears trickled from the infuriated Saddler's eyes as he stormed into his dressing room and declared "I'm through—this is my last fight.

Judges, Referee Differ

"What do they want me to do?" said the tall Negro, "go in and beat a man down to win a decision."

"I wasn't rough," said De Marco with a grin on his face. "Saddler is rough. He can't fight any other way. My corner told me to let him be the tough guy."

Saddler, of course, soon changed his mind about retiring.

Referee George Walsh voted for De Marco, a 3-to-2 underdog, by an 8-1-1 count. Judge Harold Barnes also had Paddy the winner, by 6-4. The other judge, Frank Forbes, scored for Saddler, 6-3-1. The Associated Press' scorecard had De Marco in front 6-3-1. De Marco had a six pound weight edge, 136 to 130.

"De Marco sat down deliberately twice without being hit," stormed Sandy's manager, Charley Johnston. "He should have been disqualified for that. He turned his back not only once but three times. He ducked out and grabbed the ropes. He did all the pushing and holding."

"Saddler pushed De Marco to the canvas twice," said the referee, who had a very busy evening. He warned Saddler in the first minute and admonished him at least seven times. He told off De Marco at least three times. The gladiators hit on the break, held and hit, heeled, butted and broke almost every rule in the book.

Toronto, Dec. 8 (CP) —Brian W. Newkirk, Toronto mining promoter, and Benny Litman, president and owner of Atlas Recreation Club, yesterday were fined a total of $2,400 after pleading guilty to six of 14 foreign exchange control act charges.

Neither Newkirk nor Litman appeared in court. Newkirk pleaded guilty to acquiring United States funds illegally, buying money from an unauthorized dealer, and incurring a debt to a non-resident of Canada.

Litman pleaded guilty to buying U.S. currency, selling U.S. currency, and having U.S. funds in his possession. Eight other joint charges were withdrawn.

HYDRO ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO

Report on South Dakota

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

Back in 1942 I went to South Dakota to shoot pheasants. There was a great deal of talk about the shooting to be had in that state at that time. Motion-picture shorts showed pheasants being shot on those broad prairies and the sound accompaniment invited the hunters of the nation to come there and shoot birds.

For several years previous to that time there is no question about the South Dakota farmers having suffered crop losses because of the over-supply of ringneck pheasants. The land owners were glad to have the birds shot off and reduced in numbers.

The South Dakota Game, Fish and Parks Commission fixed a liberal daily limit on the birds you could shoot — five roosters and three hens per day. Your non-resident licence allowed you to ship home forty birds.

The hunters of the nation responded to this invitation in royal style. They came by the thousands. They brought magazine guns and all the shells they could scrape together during those war years. This army of invasion did what the state had invited them to do — they shot pheasants, not by the thousands but literally by the millions. The slaughter was both terrific and disgraceful.

Meat Hunters Attracted

A situation of this sort always attracts the meat hunters. These gentry showed up in considerable numbers. As might be expected, they paid not the slightest attention to the game laws. Individuals killed birds by the hundreds. Not content with that, they shot chickens, turkeys, sheep, pigs and so on. The damage they did in livestock alone was incalculable.

Then the reaction set in. Farmers began to post their lands and hunters were no longer welcome. The Game, Fish and Parks Commission realized all too late that the state's supply of pheasants was not inexhaustible and the numbers of birds dwindled to the danger point.

Seeking means to curb further inroads on their supply of game, the Commission took drastic steps. Having been far too liberal at the outset they now leaned too far the other way. The daily limit of birds was cut to two male birds and hens were not allowed to be shot.

Discriminating Law

Not content with that, the Commission decided upon the most high-handed and unprecedented piece of game legislation that has ever been imposed upon the sportsmen of a nation. They prohibited non-resident hunters from shooting migratory waterfowl within that state.

The non-resident hunters took the hint and stopped coming to South Dakota. When they stayed away, their money stayed away with them, thus curtailing the gross annual income of the state to the extent of about ten million dollars. In a state as sparsely settled as South Dakota, that is a lot of dollars.

We who had shot pheasants in South Dakota sat back and waited to see what would happen. Believe me, it's happening.

Last November I journeyed once more to South Dakota. A grand party had been arranged at Red Rooster Camp near the little town of Henry, so I decided to join up. I was anxious to see my friends again and I was quite curious to look over developments at first hand. I learned many things about South Dakota during my stay.

In the first place, the Commission has the upland game season set too late. When I was there in 1943 we shot birds in mid-October. The weather was mild, just cool enough for comfort, and it was a joy simply to be outdoors.

Unfavorable Weather

Now they open the pheasant season on October 20th, evidently forgetting that South Dakota is a cold state. We arrived at camp on November 2nd, and for the next four days we hunted in temperatures ranging from ten above zero to four below zero.

One day, the 3rd, the wind reached a velocity of 72 miles per hour. There were blinding snow flurries and the thermometer hovered around zero all afternoon. That, certainly, is not my idea of proper upland-shooting weather.

Not being allowed to shoot ducks at all and pheasant shooting being permitted only from noon on, the non-resident must loaf around camp all morning. Of course, camp is no hardship in zero weather, but just the same the entire set-up is not designed to appeal to the out-of-stater.

We were allowed to shoot three cock birds a day and to ship fifteen birds home. That part of their regulations is all right. Fifteen birds certainly should satisfy anybody.

The philosophy of the average South Dakota farmer, at least in the sections that we hunted, seems to be somewhat confused All of the men I talked to are out of patience with the Game, Fish and Parks Commission. They miss the annual fall revenue that formerly was drained from the pockets of the non-resident hunters, anr they blame the Commission for taking such drastic measures. Yet the great majority of them post their farms against public hunting.

Not only that, but they are pretty tough when refusing requests to hunt. Thus, if you go there and do not employ the services of a local guide (at from $10.00 to $15.00 a day) your chances of getting your three birds from the comparatively limited unposted lands are rather slim.

When the non-resident duck law was first passed, the various "sportsmen's associations" were pleased over having the duck shooting set aside for local gunners only. Now they are not so sure.

Ducks Not Disturbed

There are countless potholes and grain fields in the state and all of them are used by the ducks. Without the non-residents, there are simply not enough guns abroad to keep the ducks moving, and South Dakota duck hunting has declined from very good to mediocre and very bad, depending on location. Again the Commission takes the blame.

When you go to South Dakota, you plunk down twenty iron men for a licence which entitles you to hunt and shoot upland game. They have a law which prohibits the wilful waste of such game as you may shoot. In other words, if you shoot a bird you must take it with you. Now get this one!

When you pick up that bird, technically you are "transporting" it. To do this legally you must lay down three more iron men for a country stamp which entitles you to that "right of transportation." Moreover, you must buy a county stamp for every county in which you hunt and shoot birds.

There is space on the back of your licence for four of these stamps. That adds up to thirty-two bucks. Thus, you buy a licence which states that you are "hereby licensed to hunt birds in this state." Sure — hunt all you please, but if you shoot one it costs three bucks to pick him up.

The Commission has definitely broken faith with the men who have invested real money in the construction of shooting camps during the heyday of the pheasant shooting in the early forties. They now own establishments which no longer attract out-of-state customers, and the local boys certainly don't patronize them. That, of itself, is not easy to overlook.

So there you have it. Go to South Dakota if you want to. Personally, I think that I will do my shooting someplace else.

Rangers, Hawks Peewee Winners

The Belleville Hockey Association newly-formed peewee league got under way this morning at Memorial Arena with a pair of closely-fought games.

The pint-sized puckists, under the supervision of Walter Bent, flashed a good brand of hockey with the Rangers defeating the Maple Leafs 3-1 and the Black Hawks edging the Canadiens by a 3-2 count.

Jimmie Brennan starred for the Canadiens getting both their goals in the second game. Johnny Brennan got a pair for the winning Hawks with Bobbie Dafoe scoring the third tally.

Bruins and Red Wings the remaining teams of the six - team loop will see action next Saturday.

Rams, Lions In Feature Game

New York, Dec. 8 (AP) — The National Football League presents quite an appetizing menu tomorrow and the prospects are that both the National and American conferences races will be decided.

The spotlight is on Los Angeles where the Rams entertain the Detroit Lions. The victor will take over the National conference lead and just about assure itself of the crown.

Los Angeles leads Detroit by one-half game. Both have a game apiece remaining. The Rams are gunning for their third straight conference title while the Lions are seeking their first diadem since 1935. The game probably will be a test between Los Angeles vaunted aerial attack and Detroit's strong defence plus the ground and air offence led by Doak Walker and Bobby Layne.

Chief interest in the American conference centres on Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. At Pittsburgh, the Steelers clash with Cleveland Browns while Philadelphia plays host to New York Giants.

Senior Hawks Whip Peterborough Eagles 3-2; Lindsay Edges Juniors 7-5

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BACK ON TOP!

So, defence or no defence, call it what you will, these senior Hawks can play hockey even with these odds against them. Last night they resorted to the hard both-way checking that characterized their early-schedule performance, and it paid off. But it was close.

They deserved to win by at least six goals on their performance. For the first two periods, especially the second they had the touted Eagles looking like an ordinary hockey team, and M'sieu Ned Vitarelli, Eagles coach can thank his lucky stars, a guy named Nicholls was splitting the goal posts. For Mr. Nicholls stood between a six-or-eight goal to-two verdict.

True the Eagles soared back in a third-period desperation series of sorties and they paid off with a pair of counters. Here enters one Lefort, Maurice turned in a fine performance, one that was shaded only by that of Nicholls. After all Lefort was not called on to heave back the hot rubber that his counterpart did.

Offsetting the weakness of their defence the Hawks front lines in an outstanding display of backchecking held the Eagles opportunists off the scoring sheet. During that hectic six minutes in the second period, it seemed that Nicholls was magnetized. The Hawks threw everything at him but the city hall and he would have stopped that.

The fine both-way checking of the Hawks is seen in the fact that neither of the Eagles goals was scored while they were shorthanded. At some time in the first period two Hawks sat in the penalty box and watched three mates check five Eagles scoreless.

On their performance here last night we fail to see how the Eagles were six goals better than the Hawks in Peterborough the other night. Some rinkside experts have called the Peterborough "Birds" the team to beat for the group title. Let's hope they are. It's home-townish and all that, but from what we saw the Hawks do last night, with one or two defenceman on the roster, they're as good as anything in the league. That should get a rise out of Perdue and Rodden. In any event they're on top, so what? They can't take that honor away from them, at least until the next game.

The entire Hawks team played good hockey last night, but Keith Macdonald was a "skating fool" and very effective. Doug. Bastedo played an outstanding game on defence and his pokecheck stopped many an Eagle rush. Coach "Red" Doran used Leo Goyer and Huck Reeves in an effort to bolster his defence.

The victory hoisted the Hawks back into the top slot of the group standing with four wins and three defeats for eight points. The Peterborough Petes win over Kingston Essanays in Peterborough last night gives them six points and forces a three-way second place tie with Eagles.

So why cry havoc? These Hawks seniors are all right. They've won four and lost three to lead the group. They need help in the defence department, so their record to date is not so bad.

* * *

NO TEA PARTY!

From reports from up around Lindsay way, it might be an idea to equip junior "B" hockey players with muzzles. It seems our Hawklets who got themselves 52 minutes in hoosegow decoration practically talked themselves into extended stays after being thumbed to the rinkside dungeon.

It appears Referee Dick Oulmet had a field day at waving the lads of both the Hawks and Kinsmen to the sidelines and for the greater part of the game he resembled a railroad semaphore sign.

While the statistics show that the Belleville squad sinned the most, the Scugoggers are a far cry from being a bevy of halo-equipped cherubims. None of them, from what we witnessed here the other night is eligible for any junior "B" "Byng" Trophy unless you spell it with an "A".

Maurice Reid of this department who covered the game said Oulmet started from scratch to get the official thumb working and kept it going at top speed throughout. A lot of the penalties were borderline affairs and others of the 'cheap' variety. However, we repeat, and it's about time some of these junior puckists believed it, that the gent with the whistle and sweater is the boss-man and all the argument in the world won't change his mind, nor cause him to minimize a sentence once it has been handed out.

However, the defeat won't hurt the Hawks one iota. They swept through five tussles with nary a setback and an occasional shellacking is good for any potential cranial inflation besides taking away from the team any ideas that they are hockey supermen. They still top the junior "B" roost hereabouts with a one-point lead over the Lindsay crew.

* * *

BIRD-BATTLE!

Should be some neat bird-chasing at the Bridge Street Armouries tonight, which has nothing to do with turkey shoots. The Garrison Badminton Club is playing host to the Peterborough club and some twenty-five players from that city are expected to furnish the other half of an exciting inter-club tournament. The tourney should be a warm-up for the Central Ontario championship tournament scheduled for Belleville sometime in January. And Chris Lockyer and Kay Smith have arranged a warm post-tourney reception for their guests, regardless of what happens on the badminton courts.

Petes' Brabin Is Non-Import

Toronto, Dec. 8 (CP) — The executive of the Ontario Hockey Association yesterday turned down a request from Peterborough Eagles, Senior B team, that player George Brabin be reclassified.

Brabin, who played junior B hockey in Oshawa last season, was classed as a "non-import."

Port Hope protest over the eligibility of Cobourg players Fred McMillan and Harvey Rowe was turned down. A sub-committee ruling which led to the protest was reversed, yesterday's meeting agreeing that Ken Medhurst will be eligible to play for Port Hope if he can find a job there before Dec. 17.

Refused was a request from Nick Ferri for release from the Georgetown intermediate club in order to play with Brampton.

Peterborough Petes of the Senior B group asked for $255 as travel expenses for a trip made to Kingston before Queen's University withdrew from group competition. The executive ruled the bill should first be sent to Queen's before any action would be taken.

Visitors' Third-Period Rally Fails to Catch Flying Hawks Who Have Wide Play-Margin

Completely outplayed for two periods, the Peterborough Eagles' desperate third-period rally failed to overcome a three-goal lead and the local Hawks regained the senior "B" group leadership with a 3-2 victory here last night.

The Hawks win coupled with the Peterborough Petes 8-3 defeat of Kingston in Peterborough forces a three-way tie for second place in the four-team group standing.

It was the Hawks all the way for the first two periods, and only the performance of Nicholls in the Eagles net, which was little short of sensational, especially in the second chukker that held the score to its low level.

Hard-Checking Game

The local senior "B" squad, reverting back to its early-season hard-checking style of hockey stymied the speedy Eagles front lines for forty minutes. In the second period, they hemmed the Eagles behind their own blue line for six straight minutes while Nicholls reached almost sensational heights in turning back the goal-hungry Hawks.

Big Vern Goyer was in alone on Nicholls on four separate occasions but the Peterborough veteran coolly outguessed the group's leading goal-getter.

It was clean, hard and fast hockey all the way through. The desperate Eagles, finally got the puck by Lefort early in the third chukker and that seemed to spark them to greater efforts.

The third period was clearly a battle of the goalies. The Eagles had the better of the play scoring two goals to come within striking distance and Lefort in the Hawks nets stood out with his fine stopping of hot Eagle rubber. By the same token, Nicholls, the hardest-worked man on the ice all night repeated his first and second period performance with another fine display.

With 39 seconds to go coach Ned Vitarelli yanked Nicholls from the Eagles' nets. A few seconds later he was back as the Hawks hurled back the Eagles threat with some time to go.

Referee Bill Reason held the hockey factions down to strict business. He issued 13 penalties but all were of the minor type with seven going to the Hawks.

The game was halted for several minutes during the third period when Referee Reason had to go to a dressing room for repairs when he stopped a high stick with his lip. He came back with one stitch, and a taped mouth.

Nearly 1,300 fans saw one of the better hockey games of the senior 'B' season. They stood on their feet in the second heat and gave Nicholls in the Eagles net well-deserved applause. He earned it.

An inspired Hawks team carried the play from the start and had a wide edge in territorial play in the first period. Over 13 minutes had gone, with Nicholls the hero before Vern Goyer finally batted in the puck from a scramble to open the scoring. Surging to the attack the Hawks scored their second goal in 20 seconds when Keith MacDonald batted home the rubber from a goal-mouth scramble.

The second period was scoreless with the Hawks practically skating Eagles into the ice for six minutes, but there was too much Nicholls.

MacDonald Gets Two

It looked the game was on "ice" when the Hawks surging again to the attack scored their third goal before two minutes had elapsed when Keith MacDonald slashed home the rubber on what looked like Vern Goyer's assist.

Three minutes later, Slater took Wooton's pass from close-in to break the Eagles duck egg. Play speeded with Eagles roaring to the attack. Vitarelli cut the margin to one with a minute to go on a neat combined play with Montgomery, and Crowley. The Hawks staved off any further efforts.

Keith MacDonald was one of the best players on the ice, scoring two Hawk goals with Vern Goyer, another star getting the other. Bastedo played a fine game for the Hawks on defence while Lefort also turned in an outstanding effort.

The teams:

Belleville—goal, Lefort; defence Semark, Bastedo; centre Goyer; wings Moher, MacDonald; subs, Jones, Desjardins, Barrett, Doran, Wardhaugh, Day, Reeves.

Caps Defeat Providence 5-2

Providence, R.I., Dec. 8 (AP)—Indianapolis Capitals, winners of only six of their American Hockey League starts, last night topped Providence Reds for the fourth time 5-2 before 2,469 fans.

During the third period Earl Reibel scored twice and Larry Wilson once before Jack McGill provided the second Providence marker with less than three minutes remaining.

Barrie Flyers Whip Bilts 9-2; Indians Beaten

(By The Canadian Press)

Hap Emms' hot and cold Barrie Flyers came up with one of their best Ontario Hockey Association Junior A performances last night and delighted a home crowd by walloping first-place Guelph Biltmores 9-2.

The victory moved Barrie into eighth place in the 10-team standings and left Guelph tied with Toronto Marlboros for the league leadership.

In Kitchener, the fifth-place Greenshirts trounced the cellar-dwelling Windsor Spitfires 10-5. The Border City crew has won only three games in OHA Junior A play this season.

Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen put an end to Stratford Indians' unbeaten home record in the OHA senior A last night when they set the first place club down 10-7. The win moved the Dutchmen into a second place tie with Hamilton Tigers who dropped a 7-3 decision to Owen Sound in Hamilton. It was the Tigers' fifth straight loss.

At Brantford it was Sarnia Sailors who showed their heels to the Redmen and pounded out a 7-4 victory. The win over the senior A tailend club kept Sarnia in a fourth-place deadlock with Owen Sound.

Up north, Sudbury Miners climbed into second place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings with a 5-4 overtime victory over league leading Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds. The win moved the Miners to within three points of the Sault club.

Leafs Take On Rangers, Hawks Over Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

The "hungry" clubs of the National Hockey League may get their chance this weekend.

The New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks, who have been batting each other in and out of the league cellar all season, may make the most of the occasion when they take on the crippled Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Chihawks, who have a few casualties themselves, showed an animation that impressed rail-birds in their practice session yesterday at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Coach Goodfellow of Hawks moaning over an injury list that includes forwards Max McNab, Pat Lundy and Fred Hucul, said he was calling up Harry Taylor former Leafs farmhand, from St. Louis of the American League.

For their part the Leafs called on Tim Horton from Pittsburgh to bolster their depleted team. On the ailing list are forwards Howie Meeker, Danny Lewicki and Rudy Migay and defenceman Bill Juzda.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Vince Dundee, in the first defence of his world's middleweight boxing championship, earned a split decision in 15 rounds over Andy Callaghan at Boston 18 years ago tonight. Dundee had won the title a few weeks previously from French-Canadian Lou Brouillard, and he lost it to Teddy Yarosz in 1934.

OHA Refuses Kingston Nylons' Appeal for Reinstatement

Toronto, Dec. 8—(CP)—The appeal of nine Kingston hockey players against suspension levied for alleged participation in a fixed hockey series was tossed out early today by the Ontario Hockey Association.

The executive questioned the group for more than five hours, all of them suspended following investigation of charges that Kingston Nylons hockey club threw a league final series to Peterborough Petes last spring.

The discussion lasted until 2 a. m. and there were indications that although some members of the O. H. A. executive believed some of the nine might be innocent, there was no means of distinguishing them from the guilty parties.

The nine players, who were accompanied by their lawyer, were: Buddy Aitken, suspended for two years; and Walter Gerow, Ken Partis, Jack McKeown, Fred Harrison, Joe Watts, Glenn Udall, Bob Joyce and Kenny Potts, all suspended for one season. Affidavits of innocence were in the hands of O. H. A. secretary Bill Hanley.

Told Similar Stories

When questioned separately every one of the nine told similar stories of the "party" following the last scheduled game which earned the Nylons a playoff with the Peterborough club. It was at this party that the plan for throwing the series was said to have been made.

George Dudley, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, remarked that the strong feature of the situation was that none of the nine players ever had voiced any indignation at being accused of throwing a game.

O. H. A. president Jack Roxburgh said: "Not one boy came into the previous hearing mad at being charged falsely. Everyone had a story and stuck with it, but in spite of that there were actual cases of lies and reversals of statements."

Lorne Cook and Dinty Moore, two other executive members, cautioned that there appeared to be some members of the group who were innocent. Cook blamed team manager E. L. McKnights and Coach George Patterson. "A lot of the younger boys didn't realize what was going on," Cook said.

Both McKnight and Patterson were suspended for life.

Twenty-Seven Penalties Mark Boisterous Junior B Battle As Lindsay Cuts Hawk Lead

Two third-period goals by wingman Bruce Hall of the Lindsay Kinsmen proved to be the deciding markers in their win over the Belleville Junior Hawks in a junior "B" fixture in the Lindsay arena on Friday night.

The loss was the first for the league-leading Hawks and left them a scant one point ahead of the Lindsay crew after one complete turn around the circuit.

Penalties featured the contest, especially in the third period when 13 penalties totalling 57 minutes were handed out by referee Dick Ouimet of Peterborough. The Hawks were assessed a total of no less than 56 minutes during the course of the game while the home team drew only 27 minutes.

Twenty-Seven Penalties

Referee Ouimet really tightened down on the play and at times appeared to be whistle happy. A good stiff bodycheck was enough to draw a two minute rest and 'twas in that department that the Hawks suffered. Then they very foolishly tried to argue the point and Ouimet was having none of it. He banished Carey for calling him a "homer" and Lalonde for protesting too violently, each serving misconducts.

Hawks took an early lead on Lalonde's first goal at 1.52 of the opening period but Powell evened the count near the halfway mark. Lalonde scored again on a solo effort from centre ice with a shot through the goalie's legs. Copeland knotted the score again and Powell put the homesters ahead at 17.17 for the first time in the game.

Lindsay came out strong in the second and banged in two quick goals by Cameron and Lucas. They had a decided edge in the play during the first half of the period.

Strahan hit the score sheet for the visiting Hawks at 8.21 on a play set up by Brown and Lalonde and the tide seemed to turn at that point. Therrien and DeGray connected before the period's end, the latter's being a beautiful backhand shot to the short side of the net.

Hall's two counters in the early stages of the third frame spelled defeat for the Belleville team. The Hawks drew too many penalties to collect themselves for an effective attack after that. At one time there were four Hawk players sitting in the penalty box.

Belleville pulled Barclay, who played well in the nets, off the ice at the 19.15 mark but had to put him back on again with seconds left in the game for a face off inside the Hawk blueline.

Powell, Hall, Copeland and Lucas were standouts of the winning team; Green, Brown, Wilson and DeGray played well for for Belleville, with the latter standing out.

The teams:

Summary

1 Hawks, Lalonde (Jacklin, Strahan) 1.52
2 Lindsay, Powell (Copeland) 8.49

Sarnia Sailors Protest Game With Stratford

Sarnia, Dec. 8—(CP)— Sarnia Sailors have protested their 13-2 Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League loss Wednesday to Stratford Indians to O.H.A. secretary W. A. Hewitt.

Sarnia bases its protest on the indefinite suspension of player Bruce Burdett last January by the international hockey league because he "refused to play with the Sailors after Dec. 24 1949."

C. H. Meier, president of the Stratford team, said he was informed Nov. 21 by Bill Hauley, O.H.A. assistant-secretary, that Burdett was eligible to play for the Indians.

Shortly after Meier said, Stratford received a player's certificate for Burdett, signed by Hewitt, and have used him ever since.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Dec. 8—(AP)—Bill Cook is coming back to this town tomorrow and its our guess that there'll be a revival of interest in the neglected game of hockey. . . As a sports spectacle, it had been allowed to drop to a level somewhere between six-day bike racing and honest wrestling. . . Bill isn't the kind of guy to endure complacency or to put up with mediocrity. . . he always played his best (which was good) and he played to win every minute he was on the ice. . . He'll insist that the guys who work for him do the same thing. . . Incidentally, the "Bad Bill" tag they have hung on him now, is undeserved. . . Cook didn't have the speed of Howie Morenz or the size of Eddie Shore, Nels Stewart, Battleship Leduc, Red Horner or the blasting shot of Chuck Conacher. . . Instead, like King Clancy, he made skill, determination and competitive spirit overcome the the differences. . . He never hesitated to crash headlong into those big guys or to hold his shot until the last possible moment as they bore down on him, waiting for the opening that would mean a goal. . He got his share of penalties, of course, but he never really got fighting mad until someone got rough with his younger brother, Bunny. . . then watch out.

Baseball attendance figures listed in the 1951 minor league report show only two leagues with higher totals than the peak year of 1948. . . one, the wester, was increased from six to eight clubs in that time, and the Longhorn moved up from D to C classification. . . George Mikan conducts a weekly television show for the Minneapolis Lakers. Wonder how they get all that height on a 20-inch screen?. . .

Michigan's hockey players really can stick their chin out this winter. . . It's George Chin of Lucknow, Ont., the first hockey player of Chinese extraction ever to appear at Michigan.

CRU Secretary Says Panthers Not Champions

Toronto, Dec. 8 (CP)—A rumpus between promoter Sam Manson of Hamilton and acting secretary Tommy Allison of the Canadian Rugby Union may be smoothed out today.

The dispute is over the status of Hamilton Panthers, who defeated St. Boniface Legionnaires 18-0 at Hamilton last Saturday for what was billed as the Canadian Intermediate Rugby championship.

Allison said last night that the Panthers are not the official Canadian champions as no challenge was received through the CRU office. Manson said at Hamilton he'd been assured by CRU president Meyer Insky that the Panthers "are most certainly the champions."

The rhubarb began with Manson issuing a statement that the CRU had demanded a financial statement for the contest and that the request was "unmitigated gall."

The game attracted some 8,000 spectators who paid more than $7,000. Manson said a cheque for $3,000 had been mailed to the St. Boniface club, which had been guaranteed $2,000 for making the trip. Panthers, who had been about $2,000 in the red, wouldn't have much left after other expenses were paid.

Judge's Blast At College Head Said 'Unfair'

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 8—(AP) — David Blair Owen, blamed by a New York judge of morally debasing three basketball players in his position as president of Bradley University, was joined today by school officials and townspeople in labeling the blast as "unfair".

Owen, who rose from the job of sports publicityman to the $14,000-a-year president of Bradley, was assailed yesterday by Judge Saul S. Streit, after the judge gave suspended sentences to three former Bradley basketball players on charges of conspiracy to fix games.

Judge Streit accused Owen of giving university sanction to "moral debasement" of the three former players who had pleaded guilty.

Streit denounced Owen for "his acquiescence" in the three players' "subsidization, and by his extensive traveling with the members of the team while their studies were ignored he gave official university sanction to their moral debasement."

Streit hit at what he charged were snap courses taken by the players, such as social and square dancing, and money paid to them by the Braves booster club.

MICHIGAN WINS

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 8 (CP) —The University of Michigan tonight defeated the University of Montreal 9-2 in an International Collegiate hockey game.

Doug Mullen, George Chin and Earl Keyes each scored twice for Michigan. Bernhard Quesnel, leftwinger, and rightwing Jean Bruneau got Montreal's goals in the second and third periods.

Expect Stanky To Become Cards' Manager

New York, Dec. 8 — (AP) — Eddie Stanky was expected to become the new St. Louis manager following a "yes, or no", huddle today between Cardinal president Fred Saigh and officials of the New York Giants.

Only an unexpected last minute obstacle, or stubbornness on the part of one or both of the club executives, will prevent the year's outstanding deal from being made.

In exchange for the aggressive second baseman, the Giants were to get pitcher Max Lanier and center fielder Chuch Diering, the players they have been demanding since last Nov. 20—shortly before Marty Marion was released as pilot of the Cardinals.

Saigh, who is here to attend the major league meetings opening this morning, has been reluctant to part with Lanier, the Cards' 37-year-old southpaw who had an 11-9 record last season. He had tried, without success, to interest the Giants in right hander George (Red) Munger.

President Horace Stoneham of the Giants however, has insisted all along: "No Lanier, no deal."

Stoneham would rather keep Stanky but is resigned to letting him go because he knows Eddie is eager to manage the Cardinals.

Quakers Whip Edmonton 5-2

The third-place Quakers, playing their last game under the coaching reins of Cook, whipped Edmonton Flyers 5-2 in one of the three Pacific Coast Hockey League games last night. In the others the leading New Westminster Royals beat Vancouver Canucks 6-4 and Victoria Cougars downed Calgary Stampeders 5-2.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Baseball's minor leagues wound up their annual convention yesterday at Columbus by eliminating the ban on chatting with high school players and asking the majors for half their radio-television revenue.

Unless the big leagues go along with the action of the minors, the high school rule will revert to the current one which prevents baseball men approaching scholastic stars in any way.

Under the compromise worked out of three separate proposals, the minors agreed that during 1952 the professionals might talk with high school players, but not sign them to a contract until their class had graduated. In 1953, the rule would change allowing the scholastic players to sign contracts, but would ban them from playing a game until their eligibility had expired.

At Valleyfield, President Arthur Vinet of the Valleyfield Braves said yesterday that unruly hockey fans will get the heave-ho—and for the reason. Vinet said people throwing things on the ice or jumping on the ice will be put out of the arena and barred for the remainder of the season.

At Miami, Fla., four golfers tied with 132 at the end of 26 holes yesterday in the $10,000. Miami open tournament as par took a beating over the Miami Springs municipal course. Sam Snead, defending champion from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Tommy Bolt of Durham, N. C., co-leaders with 64's in the opening round, remained deadlocked as each carded 68 in the second trip around the 6,310-yard 35-35—70 course. Toney Penna of Cincinnati and Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., joined the leaders in the top bracket. Penna had a 34-32—66 and Hamilton had 32-33—65 in yesterday's play.

The possibility of a championship bout between Kid Gavilan, world welterweight titleholder and European champion Charles Humez of France was disclosed yesterday. Bob Christenberry, chairman of the New York State athletic commission, said he had received a letter from the European Boxing Union secretary, R. Robert, disagreeing with the recognition of Gavilan as world champion.

Christenberry showed the letter to Al Weill, matchmaker for the International Boxing Club, and Weill replied he would see Gavilan's manager and try to arrange such a match in the United States.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 8 — (AP) — Here is heartening news for newspapermen: Hollywood is making a picture about them that is guaranteed to be accurate.

At least that's what its makers claim. The movie is called "Deadline U.S.A." And its writer - director is Richard Brooks, a former newspaperman himself.

The studio has constructed a newspaper city room that looks more authentic than most of those whipped up for movies. It has the appearance and smell of a newspaper office. No bottles or blondes sit on the desks.

Real McCoy

"This is going to be the real McCoy," assured Humphrey Bogart, who plays the managing editor (with a crew-cut toupee). "No reporter is going to come running through the city room shouting 'Scoop! Stop the presses!' "

The city room will neither be a hub-bub of noise and activity, nor will it have a funeral hush.

Asked if he was a member of the vast "I-used-to-be-a-newspaperman" club, Bogart said:

"I should say not. And most of the guys who claim they were, weren't either. That's just like all the he-man movie stars who claim they were once lumberjacks, sand hogs or steel workers. Most of them never did a hard day's labor in their lives."

Capsule Review

'Glorious You' is a fantasy which should not be taken too seriously. The story involves an atomic scientist who returns to the 18th century by some quirk of time and nature. As with the Connecticut Yankee, he gets in trouble because of his predictions. The result is fantastic but rather entertaining. Tyrone Power and Ann Blyth are the leads in this new version of "Berkeley Square" which starred Leslie Howard in 1933.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

It is often rough weather when experts get together. Many of the prejudiced ideas of bridge hep-cats do not click. Especially in unusual situations.

Take the case of your partner's redouble of an opponent takeout double of your opening bid. Let me illustrate with the first round of bids in this deal:

NORTH
♠K J 6 4
♥K 5 2
♦A 6
♣A 7 6 4

WEST
♠A Q 10 5
♥J 9 6 4
♦10
♣K Q 8 2

EAST
♠9 7 2
♥8 7
♦8 7 4 3
♣J 10 5 3

SOUTH
♠8 3
♥A Q 10 3
♦K Q J 9 5 2
♣9

South starts with an opening bid of one diamond. Suppose west doubles for a takeout. North should redouble. What is the procedure of south and north from there on.

There is only one way to determine the best purposes of any bid. Decide how its use will offer more advantages than disadvantages. That will tell you the best rule for it.

Horse Sense is very definite about the use of such a redouble. It uses that signal for a purpose that will bring the most profits to the pair that employs it.

It shows a hand as good as a jump response; is forcing to game or its penalty equivalent; signals for a penalty double or obligatory pass from partner.

It says to a partner: "I could have made a jump bid. But we have the opponents in a box. If my next opponent bids for either a rescue or otherwise, do not let them out of our clutches."

It further says: "Double any opponent bid if you think we can make more than we could if we went to game. Otherwise, pass and give me another crack at them."

It goes on to say: "The main thing is to keep them doubled if we can win more that way. If neither of us can set them for more, we can still go on to a game."

There is wisdom in such a signal.

RECIPE FOR LONG LIFE

Richmond, Calif., Dec. 8 —(AP) — A man whose records show he was born 114 years ago at San Augustin, Mexico, died last night. Quirino Perez Ortiz had attributed his long life to hard work, early bed-time and rising hours, and restrained drinking.

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 8—(AP) — Hampered by clothes, statuesque Lili St. Cyr gave an eager jury a rough idea of her controversial bathtub scene right in the middle of court yesterday.

She demonstrated —with no visible bumps or grinds—how she gets out of the bathtub in her night club act. The bathtub was purely imaginary.

On cross-examination, prosecutor Bernard Gross made a big point of asking the stripteuse where people's exhibits A and B, a brassiere and silk panties—were during the various phases of the act. Lili indicated people's A and B were just where they should be, and firmly under control.

The prosecutor said that before getting into the bath, Lili did a revealing twirl in a sheer split negligee.

"Yes, but I always had people's A and B on," pouted Lili.

Miss St. Cyr is defending herself, against charges of an indecent performance at Ciro's night club Oct. 19.

AT THE CAPITOL — Academy Award winner Judy Holliday is back again in "Born Yesterday," with William Holden and Broderick Crawford. On the same program in color by Technicolor, "Petty Girl," starring Robert Cummings and Joan Caulfield. Both hits open at the Capitol Theatre on Monday,

AT THE BELLE — Zachary Scott, Claudette Colbert and Macdonald Carey provide fun and fireworks in a new romantic comedy, "Let's Make it Legal," now playing at the Belle Theatre today and Monday. On the same program the jungle's own Sabu appears in "Savage Drums."

Your Individual Horoscope,

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, December 9

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—It isn't so much what you are, what you do, but how you take it, and how you do it. Many of the happiest people are in simple surroundings; many in complex lives know how to be content, too.

April 21 to May 21—(Taurus)—Don't go always away from your own environment to find the success or pleasures you seek: Some of the best—for you—are at home. Pray for guidance; accept good suggestions.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Others, especially children, are observing, often when you don't think so. Show your true, gallant, generous self. Quell all temptation to sharp answers and foolish hazards.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Configurations in your chart are, as with most of us today, highly enlivening. You can do much to make yourself and loved ones cheerful, lead more useful lives. Reason, don't argue.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Little annoyances only grow when we permit them more thought than they deserve. If you will remember you are more important than they, they will diminish. Good deeds go far.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—You can be very busy doing worth-while things, or, if you have the day free, just relax.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Children, bright companions, music, matters of public welfare are big interests for your big heart and able mind. Don't waste any free time with do-nothings.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—No matter about past mistakes or ills, there is always a future to build; better ways, truer thinking, sturdier action. And Scorpio can lead. When? Why not now?

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Don't merely think, "I won't make that error!" But aim not to! Be alert and eager to correct faults, sidestep pitfalls. Going to church builds such strength of character.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Believe in good, and it will come in abundance. But that isn't enough to secure it individually. We must work for it, help others. Day's highlights: Prayer, charity, will power.

January 22 to February 20—Aquarius—There are many ways in which you especially can aid righteous causes, and we hope you won't let discouragement or others' poor disposition spoil such sound ambitions.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—You may have more chores today than some others, but there is no one with more opportunity for enjoying life's reasonable, good things. It's a good day for good deeds.

YOU BORN TODAY are full of the spirit and directness of purpose that have been the springboard of many successful and highly respected citizens. Properly managed, your talents and initiative can lead others as yourself to a full, well-rounded out life. Where there's a will there's a way might well have been instituted as a practice by a Sagittarian. Don't be too sharp along your way, but do use smartly your knack for cutting through wasteful red tape. Pray daily for inner strength and the will for only right ambitions, and you will soar high.

WHY WE SAY, By Bob Hoffman and Bob Morgan

"A TINKER'S DAM"

. . . To fix pots

When you tell someone that you do not "Give A Tinker's Dam" today, you are alluding to the small plug or stopper that the traveling tinker (mechanic) used to stop up a hole in a pot. (Thanks to Alton Becker, Jr., of Clifton, N. J.)

McLean Urges Reading Books To Ease Tension

That's the advice of Prof. E. C. McLean of the English department of the Ontario Agricultural College. Addressing the Guelph Macdonald Club on reading for pleasure and profit" he said:

To avoid neurotic frustration, maladjustment, suicidal or alcoholic tendencies, ease the tension before it gets unbearable and a vacation through reading."

He gave four reasons for reading: Personal pleasure; gaining knowledge which can be used in one's job; to make a person a better citizen; and self-development.

Men who made history were avid readers. Reading could be good clean fun, suitable in all places and for all periods of life. Its variety was endless.

Reading helps give an insight into our own characters and that of others. With this knowledge and a good command of English, domestic arguments can be settled quite easily."

Prof. McLean urged that increased recognition be given Canadian writing.

"Why read American Steinbeck's 'Grapes of Wrath' when Canadian Irene Baird's 'Waste Heritage' on the same subject is equally good? Books by Hugh McLennan and Gwethalyn Graham, among others, also are well worth reading."

RAWDON

Rawdon—Mrs. Sid Williams, Anson road, attended a party on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Ray in honor of Mrs. Alfred Livingstone who is planning to spend the winter months in the United States.

Free of Debt

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Reid entertained the Board of Stewards of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon United Church last Tuesday evening. The proceeds from sales at Hoard's auction and from the chicken dinner were used to pay the last of the debt on the new parsonage. In the past three years there has been extensive redecorating of the church and the share of the parsonage has been added expense, however, once again the church community is free of debt.

Mr. Archie Meathers and his daughter, Mrs. A. Harvie of Hermon, attended the Hoard's auction and turkey supper on Monday evening and were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Menzies.

Mrs. Merle Spencer and Mrs. Marguerite McMullen gave interesting reports of the recent "Religious Education Convention at Carmel", at the close of the Sunday School period at Mount Pleasant-Rawdon United Church on Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Wilson and Nancy and Mrs. Percy MacMullen attended St. Paul's Baby Band party on Thursday afternoon.

A lovely Christmas greeting from "the parsonage family at St. Paul's" has a frontispiece taken from the original drawing by Anna Jane Galbraith of County Tyrone, Ireland, from Inverness, Scotland, wife of Thomas Sinclair Baker, U. E. of Stirling, Ontario, school teacher in the Bay of Quinte District, 100 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gillespie, Forde and Paria, Grafton, Mr and Mrs Cecil Nelson and Leslie, Ridge Road, were supper guests at the home of Mr and Mrs James Menzies

Several former Mount Pleasant folk now living in Tweed, Belleville, Frankford and Detlor are celebrating their 35th wedding anniversaries in 1951. In four months from September 1916 until the close of the year there were seven couples married. Six of the young ladies and three of the young men belonged to Mount Pleasant-Rawdon community and the others were from outside points. They were as follows: Percy MacMullen, Florence Montgomery, Ella Hubble, Hermon Tucker, Tweed; Earl McAdam, Bertha Fair, Stirling; Margaret Solly, Arthur Phillips, Annie Atherton, Albert Carlisle, Carmel; Mabel Bailey, Clifford Sine, Salem; Marguerite McMullen, Alex Moore, Detlor.

Mrs. Wesley Heath has returned home from Kingston hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John Carlisle and Mr. Alex Johnston entertained Miss Stella Fletcher, Trenton, over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wright recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Bert Sarles, Oak Lake.

Mr. William Henry Scott spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred King.

Mr. Gordon Reid, Rawdon school teacher, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Reid in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clancy have returned home from a holiday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Morton recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. C. Dayman and daughter of Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Broadworth entertained Mrs. Paul Sharp and Mr. Jack Sharp on Sunday.

FRANKFORD

Frankford—Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Simmons, of Trenton, were Friday evening visitors with Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Simmons.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Reeve and son, of Toronto, were Sunday guests with Mrs. C. Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Whitley, of Trenton, were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Howard.

Miss Mary Elliott and Miss Vivian Wood were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mac Wilson.

Mrs. R. Maher and family, of Belleville, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wood.

Mrs. L. Poynter, of Locust Hill, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Art Duncan and family in Batawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Carman Westlake, of Batawa, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Westlake in Frankford.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Huycke, Mrs. Lela Weeks, of Consecon, Mr. and Mrs. F. Cory of Belleville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Spencer.

Mrs. Mary A. Gunter spent Thursday with Mrs. Hugh Patrick in Batawa.

Mr. Arthur Duncan of Batawa was the special speaker at the Accident Prevention Association at Napanee on Wednesday evening.

Rev. and Mrs. Ken Comber and son, of Gananoque, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Curry.

Mr. and Mrs. Orval Cooney and family, of Trenton, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Watson.

The 4X Club of Batawa held their organization meeting in the Recreation Hall, Thursday evening.

The Batawa Soccer Club dance in the Recreation Hall was quite successful Friday night.

Mr. Cranston was chairman for a special Sunday evening hour in the Batawa United Church basement. A sing song, recreation were enjoyed, and two films were shown.

Mrs. Dunning of Napanee, spent Tuesday with her daughter, Mrs. Don Kellar.

Mrs. Ron Smith, of Middleton Park, Trenton, was a Thursday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Moore.

Mrs. G. Vandervoort, Mrs. M. Snider, Miss Florence Hatfield, Mr. Murney Reynolds, spent Sunday visiting Miss Vera Reynolds in Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Hall and son Larry, and Miss Marjorie Forbes spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. Ron Smith in Trenton.

Mrs. Olive May, of Belleville, and son-in-law, Mr. Ted Hoar, of Moncton, N.B., visited Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carlisle on Sunday.

Presentation Made

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Moore entertained a number of friends Thursday evening in honor of Mrs. Aiken, mother of Jack McInally, who leaves for her home in Scotland in the near future. The evening was spent in visiting with several contests being enjoyed, also a Bible quiz. Mrs. Ron Smith, of Trenton, presented a Maple Leaf costume brooch to Mrs. Aiken, as a remembrance of her visit to Canada. Mrs. Geo. Spencer returned thanks, and bountiful refreshments were served by Mrs. Moore.

The regular meeting of the W.M.C. of the Full Gospel Tabernacle was held Thursday afternoon at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Knowlton Wright in Wallbridge. President, Miller opened the meeting. Miss Maude Ellis, of Bannockburn brought an inspiring message on "Lydia" from the "Acts". Mrs. Miller read the Review. Mrs. Gerald Curry read the "Prayer Bulletin."

A quilt was handed in. Work was given out to the members. Mrs. Fred Wannamaker closed the meeting. The next meeting will be held Dec. 13th at the home of Mrs. Austin Watson. Twenty-one were present for the meeting.

An executive meeting of the Frankford United Church Sunday School was held Monday evening in the church, with a fair attendance. Plans were completed for the annual Christmas concert. It will be held in the Community Hall, on Friday evening, December 21, begining at 7:30, in order to allow the younger ones to get home early. A number of other items of business were discussed, and a breakdown of attendance and offering showed an increase in both over last year.

The C.G.I.T. of the Frankford United Church held their bimonthly meeting in the Rose-Lowery Hall Monday evening. Roll call showed a perfect attendance. The usual program was dispensed with, in order that the girls could rehearse for their annual Christmas Candle Light service, to be held in the church Dec. 16th. The C.G.I.T. Christmas service is always a beautiful event in the life of this church, and it is hoped that a good number will be out.

Friends will be sorry to hear that Mrs. Miles Palmer is very ill at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Harry Rogers.

Mr. Vernon Smith of Alberta, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith in the 6th of Sidney, also, other friends and relatives in the district.

A number of the community concert workers in Frankford have been invited to attend the reception for the De Paur Infantry chorus, who will be the concert artists in Trenton, Thursday evening. The reception is to be held in the King Street United Church Sunday School room.

An attempt is being made to reorganize the Frankford Badminton Club. Anyone interested in the sport, is urged to contact Ray Scott as soon as possible. The club ceased activities a year ago, because of lack of members, and it is hoped that new interest will be shown this year.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

He was not over five and a half feet, tall weighing I would say, 200 pounds, yet his voice was oddly soft, almost womanlike. "Son, I thought for a minute there you was gonna be weighed down by your boots when you made the big jump."

"Friend," I agreed, anxious to talk now that the tension was broken. "I was never so scared in my life."

"Wouldn't be surprised." There was a chuckle in the soft voice. "You looked cool as a cucumber and twice as green. Any idea who that was you was buckin'?"

Reaction to the string-up of the game was setting in hard. My esophagus wrestled manfully to see if it couldn't keep my stomach pinned down. Apparently it could, at least long enough for me to answer. "No, none at all. His partner called him 'Slate,' I think."

"Yep. That's right. Name's Slatemeyer. John Slatemeyer. Slate to his friends, of which there ain't none. He's got another brand on him in this here range's tally books, though. Folks out there gesturing vaguely off toward the west, "call his 'Arapahoe Jack.'"

I thought it best to find a building to lean on. My knees had abruptly turned to pure gelatin, while my gullet threatened anew to loose its hammerlock on my stomach.

If I had made an enemy, I had done no piker's job of it. Arapahoe Jack was almost a latter day Simon Girty. I knew at once why the onlookers at our little game paid me such respect of distance following Slate's departure. Arapahoe Jack!

"If you're bound west," he offered, after hearing my story, "and can handle yourself like you can your gun, I can hire you on. My name's Ed Geary."

"Where you heading and what is the work?"

"Headin for Montanna Territory. Takin' a wagon train through. Twenty hook-ups. Mostly the people are headin' out for the goldfields. That ain't so much interestin' as the fact they're aimin' to go across the Powder River country to get there."

"Where do I fit in?"

"Scouts is scarce. There's more trains than there is of us to guide 'em. I need help and I figger four years of sneakin' around in them southern woods, potshootin' Yankees nominates you."

"Mister," the impulse to accept came on me suddenly, "you've got yourself an apprentice. My name's John Clayton and west is my direction."

Twenty-eight days later, as we approached Fort Laramie, an event took place which shook even Geary to the soles of his moccasins.

It was just twilight, our camp having been made earlier than usual to allow for an early start on the remaining day's journey to Laramie. With our wagons in a tight circle, good high ground under us, our guards on post, plenty of wood and water in camp, we felt reasonably secure, particularly so because of the proximity of Fort Laramie. In five minutes this pleasant prospect burgeoned into a nightmare of apprehension.

Geary called to me shortly after sunset saying he had spotted smoke from many fires to our north. We squatted out of earshot of the others, under the bed of the lead wagon.

"Colonel," he continued (he always called me by rank, over my objections), "if those fires are what I think they are, we're in for a hot time."

"Indians?"

"No, worse." He kept his voice low, talking fast. "You remember the trapper that rode through headin' down-river when he was noon-halted?"

"Yes. He appeared to be in a hurry to get where he was going."

"He was. And where he was goin' was away from here."

"Where'd he come from?"

"He come from Laramie. Big man from Washington is in Laramie. Name's Taylor. Head of the Injun Bureau. I think Red Cloud Crazy Horse, and purty nigh the hole Sioux Nation has come into the fort to talk treaty on this new Bozeman Trail, which the Army is aimin' to lay a string of forts along and which we're aimin' to take our train up. That is right, smack-dab acrost Powder River country, Colonel. The self-spittin' land the Injuns got that guarantee on last year.

"Then Sioux ain't agency Injuns. Red Cloud is ugly and his people is with him. Council's called for tomorrow mornin'. This here trapper smelled Injun trouble and headed out. Said there was maybe better'n 2,000 warriors camped around Laramie."

I had learned much from Geary about the Indians and their country since leaving Kansas City, but this knowledge did not give significance to what he was now saying.

"Where does that put us, Ed?" I asked. "If they're all in Laramie what are those fires to the north?"

"Only one answer to that." His tones were so low I scarcely caught the words. "Fraid I know what it is, but I'm ridin' north right now to make sure. You want to come along?"

In an hour we were working our way to the crest of the last ridge between us and the fires, Geary seeming to have no more trouble finding his way than in daylight. We tethered our horses and crept the last few yards on our bellies. Not knowing what to expect, I parted the last scrub-growth peering down into the valley below. Geary made no sound, but the intake of my breath was as sharp as an arrow's whisper.

Below us, spreading along both banks of a beautiful stream stretching for half a mile, dotted by dozens of campfires and ghost-white against the moonless night lay scores of evenly spaced tents, a scene which at once brought nostalgia to an ex-officer of the Confederacy.

"It's an Army Camp, Ed. Infantry. Must be thousand men."

"That makes it perfect," said Geary his voice as calm as water in a horse trough. "Not enough of them to do any good, too many not to cause trouble, Colonel we've got to mosey down there and find out what they're doin' here."

It was a nervous half-hour which saw us finally on our bellies 100 yards out from the pickets.

"We won't have to go into that camp, after all. You see that man in the buckskins? The one sittin' just outside the firelight in front of the command tent?" I finally made out the figure he referred to. "Well you watch him."

As I followed his instructions, Geary cupped his hands tightly to his mouth, emitting such a marvelous series of fox barks that I could not believe they came from a human throat. I actually looked around for the fox. For a moment the man by the faraway fire didn't move. Presently, he arose, left the circle of the firelight. Three minutes later, a fox barked off to our right.

"There's the real thing," I whispered. "And it's no better than yours."

Another minute, another fox bark, brought the man in buckskin to our side. He grew right out of the ground in front of us.

"'Lo, Ed."

"'Lo, Jim."

"Who you got along there?"

"This here's Colonel Clayton, Jim. Scoutin' with me. Colonel, Jim Bridger."

We acknowledged each other with nods. I too taken with viewing the great scout to respond to his friendly grin. My memory of him shall always be unreal, for the darkness was such that only general impressions could be gained. Still, I could make out enough to see he had a large goiter.

"Big Throat," I learned was his Indian name.

"This outfit's under Colonel Carrington, a sure enough Garrison officer. Never been out in Injun country, a engineer, good man fer barracks drillin.' The troops is all green. There ain't a thousand of 'em, countin' a whole passel of musicians. They ain't got a round of ammunition, and are headin into Laramie to draw a hundred thousand rounds. Here a slight pause, then the dry conclusion. "I'd say just the kind of outfit which ought to be roamin' around in the neighborhood where the Sioux raised sich particular Ned with Gen'ril Connor last summer."

"Yep. And him with 3,000 veteran cavalry, too," Geary's agreement was equally dry, but his next words rose in pitch. "Do you know there's 2,000 Sioux and Cheyenne sittin' around Laramie right now, tryin' to set up a treaty with the Injun Bureau on the Bozeman Road?"

"I knowed there was somethin' more than drawin' ammunition in Carrington's orders."

"They're goin' in there with a barracks engineer and a few hundred green boys, to run a bluff on 2,000 mounted warriors."

Worker Plunges Into Trent River To Rescue Child

Boy, 3, Falls Into Water While Playing on Dock

Trenton — (Special)—Vido Lukosius, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Lukosius, of King Street, Trenton, narrowly escaped drowning in the Trent river here today.

The child was rescued by Gregory L'Esperance, of Trenton, one of a number of workmen who were at work nearby. L'Esperance, summoned to the scene by others, removed most of his clothing and brought the child ashore.

Owes Life to Suit

It is believed that the Lukosius youngster either fell off the dock or walked off the ramp beside it. He probably owes his life to his heavy ski suit, which filled with air and kept him afloat until help arrived.

The Woolley child, unable to remove his playmate from the water, ran to summon adult assistance. He encountered Mrs. Theresa Young, clerk in a nearby drug store, who was out to make a delivery. She saw the child struggling in the water and called Jack Clark and Bruce McDonald, both of Carrying Place. McDonald threw a life preserver to the child, but he was unable to reach it.

Makes Valiant Attempt

Horace Chard, of Frankford, leaped into the river fully clothed, but was unable to reach the child, and had to be helped out himself.

It was at this juncture that L'Esperance arrived, removed his clothing, swam out and rescued the youngster, whose ski suit by this time was becoming so badly soaked that it was losing its buoyancy.

At the police station later, the two children were so badly frightened that neither could tell his surname, and considerable time elapsed before their identity was learned.

Iranians Are Continuing Search for Oil

By LEOPOLD HERMAN

Tehran, Dec. 10—(Reuters)—While the vast oil fields of Khuzistan and the giant refinery at Abadan lie idle, the Iranians are continuing the search for oil elsewhere in their country.

A test well begun in the spring between Qum, 92 miles north of Tehran, and the Great Salt Lake, has reached the gas zone, an official announcement said. The prospects of finding oil at a depth of 6,000 were termed good.

Official quarters make no mention of the use to which the crude oil be put nor do there appear to be any plans to set up a refinery to provide products for her small annual home consumption of oil being found in commercial quantities in this region.

Indeed, it is difficult to see how, in her present economic plight, Iran could find the funds to construct even a small refinery to provide products for her small annual home consumption of oil —which Iranians estimate as 150,000 tons a year, plus 450,000 tons of lamp oil.

Abadan is too far away and in any case, even if Iran manages to bring it into operation again, it would be fully occupied refining Khuzistan crude oil.

Iranian oil exploration teams are also at work in the Caspian coastal regions, in the largely unexplored Great Salt Desert which lies in the centre of Iran on the coast of the Gulf of Oman, in the Bakhtiari Mountains, in Sistan and Persian Baluchistan, and in the northern frontier province of Azerbaijan.

Party Reaches Headwaters Of Orinoco River

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—A cable message reading "Greetings from the headwaters of the Orinoco River" last night signalled the first penertation by explorers into the interior of the southern Venezulean jungles.

Ever since Sir Walter Raleigh first tried in the 16th centery, explorers have been stopped from reaching the Orinoco headquarters by mountainous gorges and insect?infested terrain.

The conquest of the 1,600-mile-long Orinoco was announced here by Charles B. Hitchcock, explorer and Venezuela expert for the American Geographical Society.

Hitchcock said the eight-word message was sent by Dr. Jose M. Cruxent, director of the Museum of Natural Science at Caracas and Ethnologist on the expedition.

The message indicates, Hitchcock said, that the expedition had required five weeks to travel from the outermost settlement on the Orinoco up the river and across 70 miles of hitherto-impassable terrain.

Cruxent and his party, including three young French scientists, started out from Caracas early last summer.

The Orinoco headwaters are in the southernmost tip of Venezuela near the Brazilian border. The only known inhabitnats of the region are two primitive tribes of Indians, constantly at war with each other.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, (Dec. 10 (CP) —Synopsis: Cloudy skies and very light snowflurries dot the Ontario weather map this morning. Temperatures during the night held about 30 in southern regions but in far northwestern Ontario at Armstrong the mercury plummeted to 16 degrees below zero.

A fresh polar outbreak is getting started over northern Manitoba this morning and will be sweeping into northern Ontario this evening and into southern regions Tuesday afternoon. Snow or snowflurries will accompany the colder air on its southward journey.

Sinatra Suite Robbed

London, Dec. 10 (AP)—A burglar took jewels worth more than $16,800 from the hotel suite of song star Frank Sinatra and his actress wife, Ava Gardner, police said today. The haul included a diamond and emerald necklace —Frankie's Christmas gift to Ava last year.

Regina — (CP) — The junior Chamber of Commerce here has protested that Toronto's title of "Queen City" is an infringement on Regina's long-standing title of "Queen City of the Plains."

OUTLOOK GLOOMY FOR ARMISTICE WITHIN 30 DAYS

Sub-Committees Locked In Stubborn Debate

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 10. (AP) —Only 17 days remain for Allied and communist negotiators to agree on an armistice within the 30-day time limit they set. The outlook is gloomy.

The negotiations entered their sixth month today with an Allied demand for immediate talks on exchanging prisoners of war.

The truce sub-committees also are locked in stubborn debate over how to enforce an armistice.

The talks have piled up a record of bitter debate, delay, distrust, deadlock and—at varying times since they opened July 10—prolonged suspension.

But some high Allied officers express belief privately that an armistice agreement may yet be reached by Dec. 27. That was the date agreed upon as a deadline when the issue of a buffer zone across Korea was settled Nov. 27.

It took four months to agree on the demilitarized zone which would separate opposing armies. That zone follows the current battle line, most of it north of the 38th parallel.

Both sides then introduced plans for supervising an armistice. They were wide apart.

The Allies proposed joint Allied-red inspection teams free to travel all over Korea; the right to rotate troops and replace worn equipment; a ban on military build-up including construction of airfields; the right to hold war-won islands off North Korea.

Reds Accept Principles

Later, the Allies said they would give up the islands for "suitable compensation".

The reds accepted the principle of behind-the-lines inspection. But they said observers should come from neutral countries and should inspect only "ports of entry".

The reds also said that neither side should introduce into Korea any military forces, weapons or ammunition under any pretext. This raised a block against rotation of troops.

The communists demanded the question of withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea be placed on the agenda. Allied delegates refused, saying that was a political issue. The communists finally proposed, and the Allies accepted, a broadly-worded proposal that would give them a wedge to recommend withdrawal later.

The negotiators immediately debated where to draw a cease-fire line. The communists demanded the dividing line along the 38th parallel; the Allies proposed the general area of the battlefront, mostly north of the parallel.

On Aug. 23, the communists broke off the talks. They charged that an allied plane attacked Kaesong in an attempt to murder the red delegation. The sessions were resumed Oct. 25. A month later a joint sub-committee agreed that the battle line should determine the cease-fire line.

Russians Hard for How to Find In Berlin But Stories Plentiful

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, Dec. 10 (CP)—You are more than 100 miles inside the iron curtain here, encircled by Russian soldiers, and it is mainly for that reason that Berlin is the first city to be placed out of bounds to Canada's 27th Brigade.

An American sergeant who has been here a year says three Russian soldiers got drunk one night and came into the Allied sector of the city. He hadn't seen them himself though. He'd read about it in a magazine weeks after it happened.

The Russians don't normally come into the west sector of Berlin except on duty or, in the case of senior officers, for social events. They leave their own sector of the city to German communist police. Their nearest units are in the surrounding countryside.

Even there, according to correspondents who have been there, the Russians are kept largely within their own camps or compounds. They don't mix with the Germans the way American and British soldiers do, roaming the streets, going into bars, sometimes getting into fights with Germans over German girls.

In west Berlin, you can see one or two Russians on guard at the huge Soviet war memorial for they guard it day and night, reportedly because the Germans defile it if they don't.

We went to see it after dark one evening and a soldier beckoned us away with his Tommy gun. A west German policeman nearby said no one is allowed near the memorial after dark.

But if there aren't too many Russian soldiers in sight in Berlin, there are lots of stories about them. Like the one about an Allied officer who told a Russian officer at a dance how much he'd enjoyed an "American foxtrot."

He and his fellow officers have found that the one real way to get action from a Russian soldier is to be tough. Hence the conduct of a British brigadier who was once arrogantly asked for his passport by a red soldier.

He reared in his seat, bristled his moustache and thundered, "you—" and the Russian briskly let him pass.

United Nations Group Delays Discussing East German Views On Election For All Germany

Paris, Dec. 10. (AP) — The United Nations' special political committee put off until tomorrow an airing on East Germany's views on a proposed U.N. survey designed to pave the way for unified free elections in Germany.

Chairman Selim Sarper of Turkey told the 60-country group that the East German delegation, which arrived from Berlin last night had told him it was not yet ready to give its views.

The communist-controlled East German government has sent a four-man delegation to tell the U.N. what it thinks of the proposal by the United States, Britain and France for an international inquiry to find out whether the time is right for holding free elections throughout Germany.

West German spokesmen told the committee Saturday the German people eagerly want such an inquiry. This, they said, includes the 18,000,000 persons in East Germany.

Before Committee

Anton Ackermann, member of the East German politburo, told reporters last night "We have decided to say what we have to say only before the committee."

But prior statements by Russia's Andrei Vishinsky, Jakob A. Malik and other cominform delegates—who were at Orly airport to greet the East Germans—indicated clearly that the delegation will tell the committee it wants no part of the U.N. inquiry.

In Berlin deputy premier Ulbricht of East Germany said yesterday that such an investigation would be senseless. He said the Germans themselves should get together and decide on holding elections.

"Usurpers"

West German spokesmen already have said that East German leaders are "usurpers" dominated by Soviet masters. Ernst Reuter, mayor of West Berlin and one of the Bonn republic representatives here, commented sarcastically today:

"The thing is that when we make a statement, we make a responsible statement of our own and it will always be the same on fundamentals. We don't have to ask the U.S. State department what we should say.

"I suggest the East German representatives must get their speech written for them and sent to them by a teletype machine. And everything they say will be false."

'Shoeless Hillbilly' Who Hoaxed United States Army Does Not Remember Much About It

Toronto, Dec. 10 (CP) —The "Shoeless Hillbilly" who hoaxed the United States army doesn't remember much about it.

Peter Grainger, 25-year-old Ontario Forest Ranger, who has been under treatment at Sunnybrook Military Hospital since early this month, told an interviewer he must have been in a daze when questioned by newspaper men in Texas.

He was brought here from Sudbury, Ont., after a tourist camp operator called police because of the man's strange behavior.

At that time friends and police said he was the barefooted Peter Grainger who joined the U.S. Army at San Antonio Tex., and later deserted. When he joined up he told the recruiting officer he came down out of the mountains "after paw died."

"All I can remember," he said in hospital, "was doing an awful lot of walking. It's happened before to me. I seem to get the urge to escape every once in a while, like when I escaped from an Italian prisoner - of - war camp."

The bronzed, sandy-haired and moustached veteran of the British army said he joined an Italian partisan group that time.

He said he felt badly about stories printed about his United States escapade. He felt they implied he had made a fool of the American army. He said he suffers from amnesia from being clubbed with rifle butts for hitting an Italian guard.

Does Not Remember

He doesnt' remember being interviewed, photographed and given a taste of San Antonio night life.

"They gave me a lot of newspapers to read in Sudbury," he said. "I thought at first it must be somebody else. They asked me if I remembered all that and I couldn't decide whether I remembered it or had just read it. It was just as if I had read about it."

He expressed concern for his 30-year-old wife, Helen, in London, England, and their two children. He did not know how they would fare for money.

"I thought we would be together this Christmas. . . I can't even send them a food parcel. And I'd still like to do what I came here to do, but I don't know whether I'll be able now."

He came to Canada in March to make a home here. He had rented a house in Webbwood, west of Sudbury, when he had a lapse of memory and wandered in the bush for two weeks. He said that after he was found immigration authorities would not let his family sail.

Psychiatrist Upholds Belief In Santa Claus

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York, Dec. 10—(AP)—It's okay for the little ones to believe in Santa Claus, his reindeer and his Christmas chimney activities, says psychiatrist Marynia Farnham.

Dr. Farnham said in an interview that children live by myths and fairy tales and Santa is among the best of these.

Like so many things of interest to phychiatrists Santa is a symbol. Dr. Farnham, co-author of the recent book, "The Adolescent," explained its meaning:

"Obviously Santa Claus represents the gift-bearing father. He relates particularly to the Christmas season when the birth of a child is being celebrated by the world. That means to the child that a baby is the greatest gift of all, and the child thus associates himself with the other baby. At Christmas and through Santa Claus, the child sees his own value being celebrated, ritualized and affirmed. Santa represents this giving quality."

However, she said, all this fantasy can turn to dust when a child is permitted to behold a real-life facsimile of St. Nick and glimpses costumed charity solicitors at their sidewalk stations.

When the children see an imitation of Santa Claus, their reaction, said Dr. Farnham, is "what goes on with this fantasy which I pretend is real for my own purposes?" Then they say "Who are these men? Besides, I don't care." By then, the shining idea about Santa Claus is tarnished.

Value of Canadian Dollar Reaches Highest Point

New York, Dec. 10. (CP)—The value of the Canadian dollar today reached the highest point since it was set free last year to find its own level on the world market.

At the opening of foreign exchange dealings here the Canadian dollar was worth 98 1-4 cents in terms of United States currency—a jump in value of 9-16ths of a cent from Saturday.

A steady rise in the dollar is attributed in banking circles to a heavy influx of United States money into Canada. There has been considerable purchase of Canadian dollars to buy securities of Imperial Oil Company and Canadian Pacific Railway.

MANY MONTREAL RETAIL STORES DEFY CITY BY-LAW

Majority of Stores Open In English-Speaking End

Montreal, Dec. 10—(CP)—City police today tabulated a list of 556 retail stores which Saturday defied a by-law ordering them to close on Holy days of the Roman Catholic Church.

The tabulation was in preparation for issuing summonses against the stores. The list will be turned over to city legal advisers for action.

In point of fact more than 556 stores defied the by-law but police said they could not make cases against all stores which remained open because they didn't have enough men to do a thorough over-all job.

The majority of the stores open were in the English-speaking west end. The predominently French-speaking east end was closed up tight.

Inspector Jack Laviolette said he was not clear on legal action but believed all offenders would receive summonses to appear in recorder's court this week. A conviction carries a fine of $40 and costs or two months in jail.

Inspector Laviolette said there was little likelihood a special clause of the by-law—which says stores convicted on two infractions within a 12-month period might be padlocked—would be enforced.

This clause generally applies to pool rooms, race betting establishments or gambling dens, police said.

On Saturday some 75 to 100 French-speaking students demonstrated in front of major retail stores which were open. The students, mainly from the University of Montreal carried posters reading "Fermez Vos Magasins" (close your stores).

Some were shouting "the law is there for one and all."

Seven stores — Eaton's, Morgans, Simpsons, Ogilvy's, Birks' Holt Renfrew's and Mappins—announced previously they would defy the by-law in order to fight a test case before the courts.

OPEN LETTER RECEIVED

Hong Kong, Dec. 10—(AP)—The Chinese reform association yesterday urged Britain to produce a measure of self-government for Hong Kong. In an open letter to Oliver Lyttelton, colonial secretary, the association said the Hong Kong government does not intend to implement its many promises of constitutional reform.

600 Buffalo at Elk Island Park In Alberta Will be Slaughtered

About 600 of the shaggy one-time roamers of the western plains will be slaughtered.

Soon butcher shops across the country will have buffalo meat for sale. But it won't help with cost-of-living problems. The meat will retail at about the same price as beef.

Seventy-five of the hides will make fur coats for Royal Canadian Mounted Police and 50 for federal park officials. The remainder will be sold commercially.

The herd is being cut because it has outgrown the grazing capacity of the park. The thinning is being done scientifically to eliminate the least desirable animals and maintain the vigor of the herd.

This is a far cry from the indiscriminate slaughter of the last were all but wiped out. century when the vast herds

Once Buffalo were so thick on the prairies that a herd would take days to pass a given point. But wholesale killing by construction crews and ruthless slaughter of the animals to starve the Indians into submission left only a few.

From the original 700, they increased to 21,000 by 1930. Then nearly 6,000 were sold or slaughtered and as many moved north to the wood buffalo range in far northern Alberta where the plains buffalo was crossed with the wood buffalo

During the Second World War the 3,000 buffalo then remaining at Wainwright were killed off and the range turned into a military camp. That left Elk Island Park, about 25 miles east of Edmonton, with the only major herd of plains buffalo.

The herd there now numbers 1,625 animals. The 600 head to be slaughtered this week will reduce the herd to the level of 1948, when the last thinning was carried out.

An abattoir has been built in the park for the thinning, which will take about 10 days. The usual procedure is to round up the animals and shoot them in the park abattoir.

A similar thinning took place last week in the small herd at Riding Mountain National Park in Manitoba. There, 27 of the 87 head were slaughtered.

Egypt Considers Severing Relations With Great Britain

Action Follows Levelling Of Village By The British

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 10—(AP)—Egypt's government today considered severing diplomatic relations with Britain following levelling of an Egyptian village by road-building British soldiers.

The acting foreign minister, Ibrahim Farag Pasha, said a decision will be made soon. The cabinet held two lengthy sessions yesterday but a spokesman said only that Anglo-Egyptian relations were discussed.

In the Suez canal zone, British sources announced that two of their soldiers were stabbed, beaten and killed and a third was critically wounded in Ismailia's Arab quarter Saturday night.

An Egyptian communique reported another Egyptian dead from wounds received in the fighting at Suez last Tuesday, raising to 51 the number of Egyptians reported killed.

The Egyptian cabinet yesterday also approved a royal decree confiscating the lands of the 78-year-old British-founded Gezira sporting club in Cairo.

The club's 150-acre establishment includes a race course, polo field and golf course, leased from the government and situated in Cairo's expensive foreign residential section.

Informants said that the cabinet also decided yesterday to discharge all Britons employed by Egyptian government departments. The order would affect about 250 teachers, technicians and other experts.

Make Way For Road

The proposals to sever diplomatic relations resulted "directly from British forces' aggression in Suez," said the acting foreign minister in referring to the demolition Saturday of an Arab village outside the city.

Egyptian police had failed to heed government orders to resist the demolition. The new road, linking the British garrison area at Suez with a water filtration plant, bypasses a favorite spot for Egyptian snipers.

A full severance of diplomatic relations would mean the departure from Egypt of Britain's entire diplomatic staff here, though consular representation would continue. This would leave an estimated 23,500 British civilians in Alexandria, Cairo and the Suez zone without diplomatic representatives.

OUT OF GAS

Carthage, N.C., Dec. 10—(AP) — Motorists on the Carthage - Putnam highway smiled last night as a small plane overhead blazed forth commercial advertisements for motorists to clear off the highway. The plane set down neatly on the highway. The pilot explained that he was about out of gas.

Youthful Gunman Kidnaps Couple, Heads for Border

Yuma, Ariz., Dec. 10 (AP) — A youthful gunman who boasted he is "tougher than Billy Cook" kidnapped a young couple near here and headed for the California border, the sheriff's office reported.

The kidnapping was reported to Sheriff James Washum last night by a Casa Grande, Ariz., garage mechanic, James E. Beaird.

Beaird said a young man flagged him down while he was delivering a car, pulled a gun, robbed him of $36 and forced him to drive 135 miles across the Arizona desert.

Twenty-two miles east of here the gunman saw a young couple in a car parked by the roadside and ordered Beaird to halt. He climbed in the other car and ordered the pair to start driving toward California Beaird said.

The gunman displayed a wad of bills he said he got "from other jobs like this." And bragged that he was tougher than Billy Cook, Beaird said.

Cook is the Joplin, Mo., badman who a year ago killed a family of five. Cook also murdered a Seattle salesman before he was captured. He was sentenced to death last Nov. 28.

FIRE CHIEF INJURED

Harriston, Dec. 10. (CP)—Fire Chief Charles Burrows suffered third-degree burns about the face and neck Saturday night when a gasoline pump exploded after it was struck by an automobile.

The pump was hit by a car driven by Roy Kilgour of Toronto and Mr. Burrows was burned when he and volunteer firefighters battled the blaze with hand extinguishers.

Mr. Burrows now is in hospital at Palmerston.

VISIT CUT SHORT

Washington, Dec. 10 (CP) — President Truman cut short his Key West vacation yesterday to fly back to Washington for conferences. He emphasized, however, that "no emergency" is involved.

Indications are that he will meet with top military and diplomatic advisers to discuss world problems in general, and will discuss with other aides the domestic problems facing the administration, particularly the income tax scandal involving members of the government.

FIRE EXTINGUISHED

Santa Fe, N.M., Dec. 10—(AP) —Convicts and guards worked shoulder to shoulder yesterday to put out a $250,000 fire at the state prison. Two shops were destroyed. The fire started when fumes from cleaning fluid ignited. Warden Joe Tondre sent 680 prisoners in to help firemen and guards. The flames were extinguished after three hours.

3 Charges Laid After Accident Near Frankford

Result of a hit-and-run accident which occurred on No. 33 highway north of Frankford Saturday night Michael Coe of Trenton has been charged by provincial police with dangerous driving, careless driving, and with leaving the scene of an accident.

The accident occurred about three miles south of Stirling when the truck allegedly driven by Coe was in collision with another vehicle driven by Ronald Henry of Marmora. The Henry vehicle was tipped onto its side on the highway shoulder while the truck sped away with a passing motorist, Farley Parnell of Stirling in chase.

Parnell said he followed the truck to Stirling then south on No. 14 highway to Chatterton where he lost the vehicle. Later the truck was found abandoned on No. 33 highway north of Frankford about a mile south of the scene of the accident.

No one was injured in the accident but the Henry car was damaged to the extent of about $500. while the truck was also considerably damaged. Provincial Constable Ron Devey of this city investigated.

Obituary

MRS. MARGARET ANN CAVERLY

Well known and highly respected in this city and at Madoc and Tweed where she resided for many years, Mrs. Margaret Ann Caverly, died at the McLean Nursing Home on Sunday after a lengthy illness.

She was born in Madoc township, 83 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Dougan. For the past 25 years she has resided in this city with her daughter, Mrs. F. H. Houston, 6 Pine Street, and previous to that time she made her home in Madoc and Tweed. She was a woman of great gentleness and friendly disposition and made many friends in the communities where she resided. Since coming to the city she was active in the work of Bridge Street United Church, when health permitted, the late Mrs. Caverly took an active interest in the W. M. S. and was a life member of that organization.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Fred H. Houston of Belleville, one grandson, Dorland Houston of this city, one granddaughter, Mrs. John Potter of Kitchener, two great grandchildren, one brother, Murney Dougan of Concord, California and three sisters, Mrs. A. F. (Dr.) Kay of Schomberg, Mrs. George Jose of Davidson, Sask., and Miss E. M. Dougan of Madoc. Her husband, Dorland Caverly, died some years ago.

Resting at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. BEATRICE IRENE BECKLER

Ansonville, Ont.

In failing health for some time, Mrs. Beatrice Irene Beckler, of Ansonville (near Iroquois Falls) died Sunday morning. She was in her 54th year.

Born at Rednersville, daughter of Mrs. Elijah Brickman and the late Mr. Brickman, Mrs. Beckler had lived in Northern Ontario for the past 25 years. Previously she had lived at Rednersville. She was a member of the United Church.

MISS CLARA ELIZABETH YEOMANS

An aged and highly respected resident of Belleville for many years in the person of Miss Clara Elizabeth Yeomans, died at the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday. She was born in Belleville, 89 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Horace Yeomans and has resided in this city her entire life.

She was an active member of Bridge Street United Church, when health permitted and she made many friends by her cheerful smile and splendid character. Surviving are three nieces, Miss Nina Yeomans and Mrs. Norman Haldenby of Toronto and Mrs. F. C. Donald of Perth.

The funeral was held this Monday afternoon from the Pinkston Funeral Home with Rev. Duncan McTavish of Bridge Street United Church conducting the service in the chapel. Interment was in Belleville cemetery.

LATE FRANK OLIVER

Trenton — (Special) — Funeral services were held this Monday afternoon for Frank Oliver, 63, who died suddenly at Bowmanville on Friday. Mr. Oliver was a resident of 131 Burch Street, Trenton. A Jehovah Witness clergyman from Toronto conducted the service at the Weaver Funeral Home and at Mount Hope cemetery.

Mr. Oliver was born in Brighton township, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Oliver. He had resided in Trenton 10 years on moving here from Brighton.

He is survived by his widow, the former Hazel Pelster, three daughters, Audrey, Mrs. Alvin Reid and Mrs. Frank Mitchell, all of Trenton. Three grandchildren also survive along with two brothers, Claude of Bowmanville and Frederick of Peterborough.

The bearers were friends of the deceased.

MRS. HELEN ETHELWIN CASEY

The funeral of the late Mrs. Helen Ethelwin Casey took place Saturday with service in St. Thomas Anglican Church, being conducted by Archdeacon Arthur Smith. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

4,000 City and District Kiddies Greet Santa Claus

In an enthusiastic rush which almost bowled the sponsors off their collective feet, well over 4,000 Belleville and district kiddies and almost as many parents crowded their way through the Belleville Armouries Saturday afternoon to get a brief glimpse of Santa Claus.

On the invitation of the retail merchants' division of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce Old Santa was in the city from 1:30 until six o'clock, and during the whole time he passed out bags of candies to the kiddies and admonishing them to "be good" promised to visit them all on Christmas.

Brought in by Train

Garbed in his traditional costume the jolly old fellow was transported to the Armouries in a Canadian National Railways passenger coach from the station via Pinnacle Street. He waved and shouted greetings to the kiddies as the engine and coach chugged along the busy thoroughfare.

Santa detrained at Bridge Street and passing through throngs of kiddies and grown-ups went into the Armouries through the main entrance.

And from then on in children ranging all the way from one-year-olds up to grown ups filed past to receive greetings. Old Santa had a bag of candies and a good word for each of the kiddies. In addition the kiddies received free gifts at the fish pond and were treated to free drinks and ice cream as well as movies.

Exceeds Expectations

The party was a "thank you" note from Belleville merchants to parents in Belleville and district and their kiddies.

They were prepared for a crowd but the turnout at the Armouries exceeded even their expectations and throughout the afternoon there was a long lineup waiting to get into the Armouries to see Santa. So vast was the crowd that the children could not be allowed to linger and for the most part after seeing Santa and receiving gifts passed directly out of the building.

At that many went home disappointed as the wait in the lineup proved too much and parents took their children up town or back home.

City firemen and police were on hand to help handle the crowd, while members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade were ready for any emergency. Members of local service clubs turned out to assist.

"On the whole the party went off very well", stated Mr. J. Davis, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce". The crowd was bigger than expected but the merchants were well pleased.

Salvation Army Will Help You Be Santa Claus to Some Child

With stores spilling over with perhaps the largest most variable offering of Christmas goodies for the kiddies in years, it looks like the jolliest Christmas in a long while for the majority of the city's youngsters.

But there's another side to the picture. In a number of homes wistful eyes will gaze at trees that are devoid or nearly devoid of toys, and the bright glitter that is part and parcel of the Great Morning.

It will be a toyless Christmas for a lot of boys and girls not as fortunate as yours and mine. Tear-filled eyes, will tell the sorrowful story of Yuletide disappointment. Little hearts will be near broken because Santa Claus forgot them. Empty stockings hung in hope on Christmas Eve tell a tragic tale.

The Salvation Army here will help you be "Santa Claus" for a few minutes. Major H. Honeychurch has offered the facilities and assistance of the "Army" to help bring some semblance of Christmas cheer to these kiddies.

Army Will Do Work

It's simple. You provide the toys or money and the Salvation Army will do the rest. This is in conjunction with the tremendous job it is doing along other Christmas endeavors.

When you are in a store shopping, take time out to buy a toy, no matter how inexpensive, and forward it to Major Honeychurch at the Salvation Army Citadel here. If you prefer, send along the money and the "Sally Ann" will purchase the toy and deliver it. Or if you purchase a gift, telephone and the Salvation Army will call for it.

But do it now. Last year, the response to a similar appeal was more than gratifying. But it takes time and work, and the sooner you send in your toy or money, the sooner the Salvation Army can get the job done.

Remember the Christmas happiness of a lot of kiddies depends on you and me. A few cents will bring smiles of joy to some youngster. Add an extra toy or two to your list when shopping.

Badminton Club Wins Tournament

The Belleville Garrison Badminton Club defeated the Peterborough Badminton Club in an inter-city tournament at the Bridge Street armouries courts on Saturday night. The score was 14 matches to 12.

Play was close and many exciting finishes featured various matches. Some twenty-five players represented the visiting club.

The clubs were evenly matched in the mixed doubles, each scoring six wins. Garrison took a decided edge in the men's doubles defeating the visitors 5-2 while the Peterborough ladies shaded the home club by a 3-2 score in the ladies' doubles.

Following the tournament the visitors were entertained at a reception in the officers' mess. there was a long lineup waitnig to

POLICE BLOTTER

No less than three car radios were reported stolen in the city over the weekend, two of them from autos in a used car lot operated by Jack Bonn on Dundas St.

First report from Mr. Bonn was that one radio was stolen but when the matter was investigated by police it was found that the radios from two cars on the lot were missing.

The other radio stolen was reported by Roy LaChappelle, 64 Bridge Street, West, who complained to police that the radio had been taken from his car while it was parked at the rear of a Front Street business establishment.

Mr. M. Cain of Foxboro reported that his late model pick - up truck was stolen from where he parked it on Bridge Street. He said he had been out of the truck only a matter of minutes and when he returned the vehicle was missing.

A householder living on Dundas Street, West, reported three pairs of women's panties and a pair of men's shorts stolen from the clothesline. This was the second time in recent weeks that the clothes line had been raided, the woman claimed.

Dogs in Pound

Two male dogs were reported in the city pound this morning. One is a small hound with sand and white markings while the other is a collie and spaniel, mostly black with white markings.

Thousands of Tots Watch Trenton Santa Claus Parade; Mayor Couch In Leading Car

Trenton — (Special) — Thousand watched the annual Santa Claus parade as it passed through town on Saturday.

Sponsored by the Kinsmen, it is estimated that more children jammed into the section between Marmora Street and the Trent Theatre corner to see old St. Nick make his annual visit than crowded the main thoroughfare for the visit of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

There were 16 floats in the procession which started at the College public school grounds and ended up at St. Peter's school grounds, where Santa Claus distributed nearly 6,000 bags of candy and oranges.

Mayor Kenneth J. Couch was in the police car leading the parade. A detachment of airmen marched alongside the displays. The Lions Club Boys Band provided music. Two young women riders carried a banner supported by standards.

A float depicting the birth of Christ entered by the Salvation Army was awarded the prize. The Ellis ice entry of "Rudolph the Rednosed Reindeer" placed second, while the Boy Scouts campsite display took third honors.

Judges were: Dr. J. V. Byrne, J. H. Alexander and F. A. Filion.

Responsible for the parade were: Vern Wannamaker, parade marshal; D. Cummer and J. Goldberg, costumes and floats; Bob Cretney and Frank Lozo, purchasing and advertising; Hank Filion, finance; Kinettes Mrs. D. Cummer, Mrs. R. Chapman and Mrs. C. Carr assisted.

Golf Club Dance Held at Trenton Is Big Success

Trenton —(Special)— Success again marked the annual Golf Club dance held in the clubhouse at the top of King Street, on Friday night. More than 50 couples attended the functions and enjoyed themselves dancing to the strains of Russ Chessom and his orchestra.

The lounge where the buffet supper was served was beautifully decorated, the fireplace being banked with yellow mums and fern while several baskets of mums and fern were displayed about the room.

The buffet table was decorated with silver candelabra with matching tapers. The centrepiece was of mixed flowers and ivy.

McFARLAND REPAIRS ROAD

Contract to repair the Ontario Street route into Presqu'ile Point has been awarded the McFarland Construction Company of Picton. Holidayers will welcome the improvement, since high water has been giving travellers of this road much trouble especially last year when the roadbed was inundated from the Gossport corner to within a short distance of the monument. Preliminary work has started.

BALKE HEADS MESS

WORKERS IDLE

Hong Kong, Dec. 10—(AP) — Thousands of textile workers were idle in this British Crown colony, the Hong Kong Standard said today, because of competition of cheap Japanese cotton goods in southeast Asian markets and the United States raw cotton embargo on Hong Kong. The newspaper said reduced demand from Pakistan cotton yarn buyers contributed to the unemployment.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 10 — (CP) — Steadily weakening mid-session support today eased early afternoon stock market prices from morning gains.

Industrials opened firmly and edged upward during the first hour. Miscellaneous industrials posted a wide list of fractional advances to form the market's strongest section. Papers, agricultures and textiles drew firm support while utilities, steels, foods, refining oils, banks and manufacturing companies held gains and losses in balance. Liquors and retail stores slipped while constructions dipped sharply.

Western oils and Base Metals showed scattered bursts of activity. Kelore, in the secondary golds was a standout as more than 140,000 shares changed hands.

Base Metals reversed a slow climb. Consolidated Smelters lost most of a $4.50 jump while other market leaders—Waite Amulet and Falconbridge slipped fractions. Pend Oreille dipped sharply.

Western oils showed little trend. Anglo-Canadian, Home Oil, Jupiter, Long Island Petroleum, Mid-Continent and Royalite edged upward. Okalta and Security Free eased.

Senior golds posted six losses ranging from pennies to about 25 cents. Secondary issues made little headway.

Rev. S.E. Larman Dedicates New Memorial Organ

Special dedication services were held in the Holloway Street United Church on Sunday, when the minister, Rev. Sidney E. Larman dedicated the new memorial organ, the revamped choir loft and memorial chimes. The chimes were presented by Mrs. George Woodley and family in memory of the late George Woodley who was an elder and a member of the church for over sixty years.

During an impressive memorial service the following names were memorialized. Those who paid the supreme sacrifice during the war of 1914-18 were C. E. Brown, J. E. Canniff, M. Debert, W. M. Rutter, M. Vandervoort and in the war of 1939-45, L. Bedell, G. Burkholder, J. B. Campbell, W. Faulkner and H. Hubbs.

In presenting the key to the director of music, Mr. Clifford Templer, the minister said, when Christ said to Peter "I will give you the keys of the Kingdom," it simply meant that a key is the law that governs any realm. Mr. Templer was congratulated on acquiring the key to the realm of music, both academically and practically. Bruce Parsons was the bugler who played the 'Last Post' and "Reveille.; The Canadian Legion, Belleville branch, loaned flags, a wreath and a white cross. The senior choir sang "By Babylon's Wave" and the entire service was broadcast over CJBQ. During the evening service the senior choir presented the cantata, titled, "Penitence, Peace and Pardon," with Mrs. Clifford Templer, Arnold Diltz and Garth McCreary, soloists. Miss Rosslyn Robertson sang a solo titled, "Behold the Master Passeth by."

if your hospital were a hotel...

WHEN we travel for pleasure or business our usual home-away-from-home is one of North America's many fine hotels where everything is designed for our convenience and comfort.

But when we are sick, we go to hospital — and hospitals are as different from hotels as apples from pomegranates, cotton from wool, butter from cheese. Yes, they look the same in some ways — buildings, foyers, elevators, beds, etc. — but there are many differences. Take meals — what hotel serves you three meals, exactly to your doctor's orders, in bed every day (at least without substantial extra cost)? And service—are hotels staffed and equipped to provide bed comforts and modern scientific treatment for your particular illness? Of course not. There is no comparison, and hotel owners would be the first ones to say so.

Just as their services differ — so do their costs. Figures show that to subtract the cost of "treatment" services in hospital from daily rates would reduce the figure to a fraction of a day's expense in a hotel.

RUSTLERS ON THE RANGE!

The lure of big profits created by high beef prices, plus the mobility provided by modern highways and motor vehicles, have united to bring about a revival of highly-organized cattle rustling in the ranching regions of southern Alberta.

Reports from Lethbridge, Macleod and Claresholm recently indicate that the rustlers, apparently acting on the principle that they may as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb, are scorning common range stock; they are concentrating their attention on the high grade, purebred Herefords for which southern Alberta is famous, since these animals are naturally more valuable than scrubs, even as beef.

A single truckload of Herefords, which vanished near Macleod a few days ago, was valued at not less than $12,500. The price which these animals will bring as beef, even at present prices, will be considerably less. Individual animals worth from $1,000 to $5,000 have also vanished. Since all such animals are branded and every rancher's brand is registered, these cattle can be sold as beef only.

So serious has the situation become that the Western Stockgrowers Association is offering a reward of $2,500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any rustler.

In the western fiction which a good many of us used to read in our younger days, the hunting down of rustlers was done by sheriffs. In Alberta as in Ontario, however, sheriffs are not law enforcement officers, and the tracking down will have to be done by the R.C.M.P., who are the provincial police in Alberta, as in the other western provinces. The Mounties have no doubt already called out their famous detective dogs and spread their equally famous dragnet.

But in tracking down rustlers or in any other such colorful activity, the Mounties of today, in Alberta as elsewhere, labor under under one serious handicap, at least from the viewpoint of their juvenile admirers — they no longer wear red coats, only prosaic fawn-colored "patrol jackets." The red coats are now worn only for special occasions.

A SAD SPECTACLE

The Conservative government of Great Britain headed by Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill has already made one set of enemies. These enemies are the oculists, optometrists, opticians and so forth — in plain English, the eye doctors.

Under the Laborite government which was in power in Britain from the end of the war until recently, everyone who applied was supplied with "free" toupees, "free" dentures, "free" wooden legs, "free" spectacles, "free" medical attention, and so on. Even visiting foreigners and British nationals from overseas, such as Canadians, were eligible to receive "free" services.

From the time the Laborite government started its welfare state operations in 1945 until its defeat a few weeks ago, the people who supplied this "free" equipment to all and sundry enjoyed a business boom. Why would they not, when everyone who wanted "free" spare parts had merely to apply for them, while the British taxpayer paid for it all, whether he liked it or not?

Under new regulations, people who want "free" spectacles must pay £1, 10s, for the frames, although apparently the lenses are still "free." As a result, the number of pair of spectacles being issued to the public has dropped by two thirds.

For those who are living in Great Britain, it must be a sad spectacle indeed to witness the sudden decline in the spectacle business. Probably the eyes of all the taxpayers in the British Isles fill with tears whenever the plight of the optical business is brought to their attention.

It is possible that the issue of millions of pairs of "free" spectacles had something to do with the defeat of the Laborite government, since it is reasonable to suppose that the people who received these spectacles would be able to see more clearly the sort of thing that was going on around them.

EVERY KNOCK A BOOST

We believe that it was Napoleon Bonaparte who once remarked that, while the type of friend a man attracted gave a clue to his character, the type of individual of whom he made an enemy was a far more accurate index of his worth.

Councillor Victor R. Ryan of Trenton has become the target for abusive attacks which are being made by the same individuals who were only recently making similar attacks upon the Trenton senator, Hon. W. A. Fraser.

It is beyond dispute that Senator Fraser has done more for Trenton than any other citizen of that community. Within the last two or three months, unaided, he induced two more important industries to locate in that town. But Mr. Fraser's benefactions to Trenton are too numerous to be recapitulated here; indeed, they are too well known to require recapitulation.

Within his own sphere of activity, Councillor Ryan has done a good job for Trenton too. Mr. Ryan should feel flattered that he is being placed in the same category as Senator Fraser, and by the same people.

DOWN TO THE LAST CENT

"There is a shortage of pennies and the government wants them out of the piggy banks and back in circulation." — News item.

If you've been saving pennies in
A china pig, or one of tin,
Or candy box or paper sack,
The government would like them back.
Though little now the penny buys,
To hoard one isn't business wise.
The coin is meant to circulate
And not a china pig inflate.

I read this notice with dismay!
With taxes mounting every day,
The time has come when government
Won't even let us keep a cent.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 10th., 1931.

West Belleville is proud today. Why? Because the mayor elect Geo. O. Tice, lives in that section of the city and eight of the thirteen newly elected aldermen also live on the west side of the city. This is nine of fourteen in the new council live in Murray and Coleman wards. The eight aldermen are Harry Hill, Geo. A. Bennett, Richard P. White, William A. Woodley, William Donahue, Dan MacMillan, Harry A. Morgan and C. Brickman. All the hydro commissioners for 1932 live on the west side also, Messrs. Hanna, Fairfield and Tice. The west side of the river had more candidates in the field for aldermanic honors than did the east side.

Mr. Geo. Watkin, Cedar St., spent the weekend in Toronto, the guest of the Rev. C. E. Clarke, former Rector of Christ Church here and Mrs. Clarke.

30 YEARS AGO

Dec. 10th., 1921.

The officers of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 179, Plainfield, are as follows: Everett Hodgen, W. M.; Matthew Tummon, Chaplain; Samuel Marshall, Recording Secretary; Fred Hall, Financial Secretary; J. W. Hamilton, Treasurer; Lorne Carleton, Director of Ceremonies; Almond Hall and Stanley Hazard, Lecturers; Committeemen, E. Emerson, D. Hall, S. Shaw and E. Parkes.

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 10th., 1911.

Jack Marks, a Belleville boy, who played left wing here when Belleville had a real hockey team, will play with Quebec in the N. H. L. during the coming season. Jack has had a long and interesting career in hockey.

The indoor baseball match which was played in the armouries between Marsh and Henthorn and the Hardware Company resulted in a score of 19 to 17 in favor of the former team. The following composed the teams: Marsh & Henthorn: Smith, Brown, Connell, Gerow, Kelleher, Hogan, Connolly, Campbell and Draycott. Hardware: McGuire, McKenna, Clarke, Stewart, Doran, Westover, Barnum, Stark and Barton. Connell and Connolly were the battery for the victors and Clarke and McGuire for the losers. The umpire was William Cochrane and A. P. Allen was judge on bases.

Dec. 10th., 1901.

At the annual meeting of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 251 Holloway the following officers were elected: Lewis Juby, W.M.; Charles Rose, D.M.; George Morgan, Chaplain; Robert Juby, Recording Secretary; William Kelly, Financial Secretary; S. J. Kelly, Treasurer; Arthur Juby, Director of Ceremonies; J. Wilson, Lecturer; Committeemen, S. Elliott, J. Lowery, A. Cadman and S. Townsend.

Manager Pitney of the Y. M. C.A. basketball team has chosen the following to play against Albert College: G. Adams, B. Carr, H. O. McGuire, W. Hough and W. Cornelius.

Mayor Rathbun of Deseronto was in town today.

Mr. William Kelly of Marmora was in town today.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Women have crowded pretty well all the way into the world of men. They smoke cigarettes, wear trousers, sit in saloons in most provinces, drive cars, trucks serve on juries, get elected to public office, are judges, lawyers, doctors, engineers, electronic experts.

Most of them no longer expect to be given seats in street cars, buses. They have abandoned their illusions. They ski, play golf, poker, fly planes, swim, race, win championships against men.

But they don't smoke pipes.

I have yet to see a lady reach into the hip pocket of her slacks and pull out a worn tobacco pouch, and, with the other hand produce a fine old polished black briar and proceed to fill it with that far-away, dreamy expression that belongs to men at such instants.

The pipe may be said to be the barricado behind which we men must take our last stand.

Most types of men can be duplicated, imitated, copied, mimed, or impersonated by women. The business type, the athletic type, the scholarly type. Even the curious types among us, the artists, the Bohemians, the cranks, and crack pots can be simulated very accurately by the fair sex.

But away at the back of the broken ranks of manhood sits quietly at their barricades a company of last-ditchers. They are the bronze faced, carelessly-clad shrewd, watchful-eyed, air-sniffing, earth-watching, homely, thoughtful, original and primordial smokers of dank old pipes.

They are male. At them, the invasion halts.

Arctic Winds Bearing Snow Heading South

Toronto, Dec. 10. (CP)—Cold Arctic winds bearing snow were heading for Toronto today, and weather bureau officials said it should be snowing well here by tomorrow night.

An "advance bombardment" of hailstones "big as peas" fell on suburban areas this morning and most downtown areas had a brief shower of snowflakes that melted almost as soon as they hit the ground.

However, citizens are keeping their fingers crossed. Tomorrow is the anniversary eve of "the big snow" of Dec. 12, 1944, when 20 1-2 inches paralyzed the city.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

DON'T WRITE IT

That's the report brought back from the unhappy peninsula by Bob Mayhew, the cabinet minister who recently visited the front. I hope all of you who know any of the men over there are doing something about it. But before you do, I'd like to give you some advice on the letters not to write.

Every ex-serviceman is an authority on this subject and will doubtless recognize some of the examples I have in mind.

* * *

There is for example the letter a girl friend writes to the private who knows it'll be another year, at the least, before he gets home. Goes something like this:

Dear Stanislaus: I am getting very impatient for your return, particularly because I see in the paper that other men are coming back. Don't you want to come home? Have you forgotten what we mean to each other? Have you forgotten that night at Lake Mud? And the poison ivy? You never write me nice things any more like you did when you were at Camp Petawawa. If you don't get the first boat right away I guess I will know why. Aunt Min has told me all about what happened to Uncle Lem in Paris in the first war. I guess you are having too good a time in Korea to remember those of us who had to stay home. Yours angrily, Sybil.

Then there's that other morale-booster that comes from the old pal who is looking out for the soldier's interests on the home front and which sounds something like this:

Hiya, Stan, old boy: Just thought I'd drop a line to let you know everything is okay back here. Sybil is missing you very much. We were parked the other night out at the Point and she talked about nothing else but you. I have been trying my best to keep her from getting the blues and have been taking her dancing quite a bit. Just last night we went out to the Roadhouse and Sybil said, "I'm only going because I know Stanislus would like me to be happy." She is a good kid, and what a build, eh boy? Well, I am sending you a pair of socks for Christmas and don't forget to let me know if there's anything else I can do. Your pal, Marvin.

Every ex-soldier knows, too, the happy gloom type of letter usually writen by an aunt or older sister which comes out something like this:

My dear Sanislaus: I must apologize for not writing more often as I don't believe I have written you since Uncle Fortescue passed over. He suffered a great deal towards the end. Things are doing along very well at home. I guess you heard about Mr. and Mrs. Oglethorpe being tragically killed when their car went over the big cliff at the edge of town. My they were horribly maimed! I did not know them very well, but thought the funeral most impressive. Mother has been feeling poorly of late. She thinks it is indigestion, but, as you know, heart trouble runs in our family. Hoping you are well. Yours, Matilda.

P.S. Your dog, Pal, has been sick and Father thinks we should put him to sleep.

* * *

Another familiar type is the boy who recounts the trials of life here at home. This is usually a very long letter, but here is how it begins:

Dear Stan: Boy, I sure envy you being away from this lousy country right now. The cost of living here is getting worse every day. Last night I had to pay $2.25 for a T-bone steak smothered in mushrooms and that, on top of a bottle of rye, meant the end of a ten dollar bill. It's rough, believe me. You ought to be glad of that free uniform. I bought a suit the other day a lavender sharkskin job, that set me back $95. Some times I wonder what we're fighting for. . .

* * *

Or consider the unexpected letter of the type a pal of mine actually received in the last war. Went like this:

Dear Pvt. Muldoon: I was sorry to read in the paper this morning that you have been wounded. I hope it is not true that you may lose your left leg. It was quite a coincidence seeing your name because only the day before, checking through our back accounts, I noticed that you are still in arrears $42.20 on your account and with our regular interest charges this now amounts to $88.90. I trust that we will hear from you in the near future. Your for victory, J. O. Legree, Credit Account Manager.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ELASTICITY OF MIND

It is the matter of the mind out of which we present a picture to the world of what we are—our manner of thinking, deciding, judging, and evaluating. To be blessed with an elasticity of mind is a wonderful thing—being endowed with the will and ability to recover quickly from mental depression, disappointment, or misfortune—again to be cheerful and to present to the world, or to one's immediate neighborhood, youthfulness of mind and buoyancy of spirit.

During times of trouble and confusion when character is so strongly challenged it is inspiring to meet with one whose elasticity of mind helps to put facts and truths in their proper place, restoring confidence and hope. What a privilege to have a friend thus constituted!

What a multitude of people there are all around us today who have lost this God-given ability to bounce back from the unhappy happenings of each day, or from unexpected emergencies. How few there are who can walk right past failure with a smile and a will! And yet that it what it is to have elasticity of mind.

However, if we offer no resistance to the many vicissitudes of life, that great power of elasticity finally loses its potentiality and we are no longer master of ourselves. We then become dependents and tenants of other minds.

Use is what gives life to everything. Store a thing and it begins to grow old, needing the elements of air and handling to keep it in a useful condition. Lack of exercise for the body allows it to become weak and unable to resist disease. It's the trained body that is elastic and vibrant with life and enthusiasm. It's the same thing with the mind. It needs activity and interests to keep it healthy.

Spread your thoughts out. Send them on errands! They will come back with their arms full of dividends. You will view new horizons. And you will experience many a new birth of enthusiasms. That's what creates elasticity of mind!

Personal Health Talks

SOME COMMON CAUSES OF PHYSICAL DEGENERATION

Physical degeneration is "a retrogressive pathological change in cells or tissues in consequence of which the functioning power is lost and the living substance becomes converted into an inert mass." That's the definition given by Stedman's Medical Dictionary. It would be better to say the functioning power is enfeebled or impaired—when functioning power is lost you're dead, aren't you? Webster's dictionary gives the medical sense of degeneration as "deterioration of a tissue or an organ in which its vitality is diminished; substitution of a lower for a higher form of structure, either by chemical change of the tissue (true degeneration) or by deposit of abnormal matter in the tissues (infiltration)."

If these definitons of degeneration are Greek to you, perhaps another view of it will give you a better idea. We are like roses or cabbages; if we are lucky we live, grow and develop until we attain maturity—say around the age of 35. The next instant we begin to die. After 35 there is but one way we can go, downward. The dying process is degeneration.

We degenerates (every one of us past 35) may as well face up to it—we are dying, let us hope in the natural way of all life on this planet. How fast the process of degeneration may be depends largely. I believe, on one's nutritional condition in childhood and youth. I hope this will catch the eye and arouse the interest of parents of growing children.

Growing children who are permitted to indulge in pop and similar beverages whenever they wish and to make a meal of cheat foods for the prize in every package are bound to suffer from malnutrition — nutritional deficiency, as we call it today.

Children under sixteen years of age should drink milk or fruit juice beverages, not tea, coffee, cocoa, pop, or beer They should eat whole wheat bread or brown bread, not white bread.

From time to time I have cited here the only cook book that rates shelf room in my library: Let's Cook It Right, by Adelle Davis. Now I strongly recommend to all mothers of growing children another fine book by the same author: Let's Have Healthy Children (this one also published by Harcourt, Brace). As a nutrition expert Adelle Davis is top drawer. As the mother of healthy children she does what she's talking about. In fact I'm trying to decide which old volume to discard in order to make room in my working library for Let's Have Healthy Children. In her practical way the author names several mills in various parts of the country where wheat germ, and middlings, wheat germ, whole wheat flour and similar products may be bought, and says she buys blackstrap molasses from a bakery supply house at 23c a quart by getting it in 5-gallon cans (as bakers do) for $4.50 a can. Although brewers' yeast is often priced at $2 a pound or more a market near her home sells excellent yeast at 59c a pound. Her milkman delivers powdered skim milk to her in 100-pound sacks at $14. fourteen cents a pound, that is—practical, eh?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Growing Pains

Grandson, aged five, complains often of leg ache, sometimes in one leg, sometimes in the other or both. Rubbing seems to relieve it for a while. His mother thinks perhaps he plays too hard . . . (G. M. D.)

Answer—In most instances it is a manifestation of tentany, due to calcium and vitamin D deficiency. Many elderly adults have painful cramps in the feet or legs at night, sometimes in hands or arms, from the same cause. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet Growing Pains and Adult Tetany. A clipping will not suffice.

Coffee and Coronary Trouble

Saw a statement in your column that a person with coronary trouble may take coffee . . . . this is a counter to the general belief . . . (F. C.)

Answer — Adults with heart disease, angina pectoris, coronary thrombosis or what have you may, and I think should take coffee regularly. It tends to open the coronary arteries. Send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for booklet C V D (about heart and artery troubles).

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LIGHT, NOT SHADOW

Many years ago in a lighthouse along the Atlantic seaboard, a pane of glass was accidentally broken one evening, too late to have it replaced. The lighthouse keeper put a piece of tin in place of the broken glass. All that night as the light shone out over the water, there was a dark shadow, widening the farther the light shone out to sea until it covered many a mile. It was said that there were ships, which, because of the shadow cast across their course, found themselves in serious trouble before dawn. There was a dark spot where there should have been light.

Sometimes there are dark spots on our characters which cast shadows across the pathways of others. The intemperate parent, or the parent who lacks sincerity and is discovered by his children to be a cheat, casts a shadow across their souls which may some day bring about shipwreck. There are preachers who stand in the pulpit and eloquently set forth everything except the essential Christian doctrines; these are casting a shadow across the needy souls of their listeners. The teacher who scoffs at spiritual realities and sends his student out into the world to be jeering and wretched agnostics has done something to these boys and girls which may later put their lives on the rocks.

Construction Toys Prominent In Offerings for Junior

Bunk-house and bullets, tanks and tea-trays, bombs and Buster Browns, six-guns and shuttlecocks, dollies and drums, ditch-diggers and depth charges, that make up the majority of the products of the Santa Claus Manufacturing Company's 1951 output must have had the bewhiskered old boss-man and his cohorts in a tizzy.

Probably a pre-season survey of this cock-eyed world gave old St. Nick a mental shock for he has come up with a variety of production-destruction toys that appear to have shoved 1951-52 Yuletide's cowboy trend a little toward the back of the shelves.

True, Hopalong Cassidy, Gene Autrey, Roy Rodgers, Wild Bill Hickok and others of their six-gun ilk occupy a prominent place on the shelves and display counters of the toy stores and Toylands, but there is a noticeable increase in the "war stuff" and likewise an inclination towards Buck Rogers and his 25th Century gadgets.

Construction Toys prominent

Construction toys play a prominent role in the offerings for junior's Christmas morning tree parade. Steam shovels, all sizes, ditch-diggers, mechanical sets, locomotives, the inevitable electric trains that range from a small one-car job to an immense "line" that occupies at least half the ordinary size of the living room, carpentry sets, cement mixers and others are available in quantity.

Air-minded youngsters have a field day visiting the various shops that purvey the toys. There is everything from a heavy bomber to the last word in jet fighters on display. Transport jobs, near-perfect imitations of the real thing, air-liners, single and two-passenger "private" jobs offer the youngsters a wide range in aerial toys.

The army, and the navy too have come in for their share of Santa Claus manufacturnig genius. Tanks and anti-aircraft guns of all sizes, soldiers of various corps and nationalities, guns, ships, and other naval whatnot are in quantity and variety.

Funny Toys Not Neglected

But the funny toys have not been neglected. All kinds of mechanical whirligigs, cowboys, fairy tale characters, animals, comic strip heroes, whirl, prance, roll, amble and pirouet from spring-powered "innards." There are all kinds of box games, hockey, cricket, card games, "snakes and ladders" and other pastimes that call for dice rolling, sleighs, wagons, and the hundred and one other toy attractions that formed the majority of Santa Claus productions before the war and science took a prominent part in world affairs.

And lest we forget there are the dollies for Jane and Diane. Huge affairs that almost act like humans, one talks for at least thirty seconds, little ones, the mama variety, Negro dolls, Indian maidens, fuzzy-topped Africans and other jungle types, the wee lassies in the kilt, fairies, in fact the entire dolly empire is represented.

But over all it would appear it is a boyland's toyland this season. The emphasis is definitely on toys that appeal to the youth of the city, while the electrically operated gadgets such as the streamlined trains, definitely occupy a spot in the mind of the head of the house.

MARMORA

Mrs. Frank Leal Again President Ladies' Guild

Marmora—Officers of St. Paul's Ladies Guild elected at the December meeting of that organization held in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening are: President, Mrs. Frank Leal (re-elected); 1st vice-president, Mrs. P. Eamer; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. W. M. Regan; secretary, Mrs. W. D. Lavender; treasurer, Mrs. D. McInroy.

Mrs. Leal presided for the business session and opened the meeting with prayer. A good number of members answered the roll call. Following confirmation of minutes the secretary Mrs. W. D. Lavender read two letters of thanks. The financial report presented by Mrs. D. McInroy showed a good balance on hand and revealed the splendid success of the recent bazaar.

Vote Money to Fund

The amount of $250 was voted to the Hall Building Fund. Concerning the remodelling of the interior of the rectory, Mrs. J. M. Brownlie expressed sastisfaction with the progress made. Mrs. G. Kerr for the Sick Committee told of three calls made. The slate of officers having been presented by Mrs. R. G. Winters, their election was confirmed. The retention of the group system was decided upon. Mrs. T. Pearce was chosen as leader of group 2. The appointment of leader of group 1 was deferred until the January meeting, which will be held at the rectory. Canon J. M. Brownlie thanked the guild for their untiring and successful efforts. He hoped their objective next year would take the form of providing a kitchen for the Parish Hall. He closed the meeting with prayer and benediction, following which refreshments were served.

WEDDINGS

O'NEILL—GEHAN

In St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church, Tweed, Ontario, an early November wedding was solemnized when Alyce Elaine Gehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Gehan, of Tweed, became the bride of John Leo O'Neill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent O'Neill of Belleville. Reverend F. J. O'Neill,, brother of the groom, performed the ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white Chantilly lace and nylon net. The bodice was of Chantilly lace and was fashioned with a low neckline and long lily-pointed sleeves. The full nylon net skirt fell in soft folds, and both the skirt and the bodice were accented with lace applique. Her full-length veil of tulle and Chantilly lace, was held in place by a pearl tiara and fell in a graceful train to the floor. She carried a white orchid bouquet with white carnations and trailing English Ivy. She was attended by her three sisters, Miss Ellenore Gehan, Mrs Douglas Spencer, and Miss Betty Jane Gehan. They wore similar gowns of misty-grey net which featured bands of silver braid throughout, and had short shoulder capes. Their headdresses and gauntlets were matching and they carried bouquets of cream chrysanthemums and trailing English ivy.

Mr. Thomas O'Neill, of Belleville, was groomsman, and the ushers were, Mr. Lorne Gehan, of Trenton, and Mr. Leonard Coughlin, of Belleville.

At the wedding dinner at the Hotel Tweedsmuir, the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of mauve marquisette with matching hat and black accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a gown of rust crepe with green hat and accessories. Their corsages were of Johanna Hill roses.

For travelling to Maryland, U.S., the bride wore a rose tweed suit with a muskrat fur coat. Her accessories were black and she wore a corsage of white rosebuds.

Bridge Street W.M.S. Elects 1952 Officers

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Bridge Street United Church was held in the ladies' parlors, Friday afternoon, December 7, with Mrs. Houston presiding and opening the meeting with prayer and a few words of welcome to newcomers.

During the business meeting, after discussion as to the advisability of changing the regular meeting day, it was decided to change the date from the first Friday of the month to the first Thursday.

Miss Clazie, supply secretary, read letters of thanks from Japan for parcels of lcothing received, which had been sent in the spring.

Mrs. Farnsworth, reporting for finance, told the story of the Christmas Bell.

The program of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Al Davis and Mrs. H. Parker and their group.

Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Davis led in the worship service and were assisted in the candlelight service by Mrs. Warren, who sang several carols most effectively, and by the following members, who lit the candles of friendship and goodwill to all Canadians and to our French Canadian compatriots.

Mrs. Fuke, Mrs. Fetterley, Mrs. Houston, Miss Clazie, formerly a missionary in Japan, and later in Sydney, Nova Scotia, gave a short summary of the new study book, "From Lakes to Northern Lights" by Dr. MacDonald. Miss Clazie then told something of her work in Sydney, N.S., near the great steel plants and the coal mines, among the new Canadians and, of out her experiences with these people, made a plea for understanding and spoke of the heartaches caused by racial discrimination.

Mrs. Davis thanked the speaker for her interesting story of her work.

Mrs. Houston invited the ladies to stay for a cup of tea provided by Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Parker and their group.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Denyes and her committee, Mrs. Bert Howard and Mrs. C. E. Meyers brought in the new slate of officers for the coming year, which was accepted, and the officers declared elected.

Officers For 1952

President, Mrs. F. Houston; 1st vice president, Mrs. C. L. Hyde; 2nd vice president, Mrs. E. Denyes; 3rd vice president, Mrs. L. Hodgens; treasurer, Mrs. J. A. Thornbury; recording secretary, Mrs. F. C. Adsett; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. H. Finkle; Christian Stewardship, Mrs. L. Hudgens, and Mrs. H. Ackerman; community friendship, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. W. J. Morrison, Mrs. H. Ackerman, Mrs. I. Hefkey, Mrs. F. Parrott, Mrs. C. Morgan, Mrs. C. E. Meyers, Mrs. E. Denyes; Associate Members' secretary, Mrs. C. E. Meyers; Christian Citizenship, Mrs. E. Farnsworth, Mrs. N. Montgomery; Missionary Monthly secretary, Mrs. C. MacDonald; Literature secretary, Mrs. George Campbell; Supply secretary, Miss M. Clazie; pianist, Mrs. K. Bird; press secretary, Mrs. F. C. Adsett; card secretary, Mrs. H. B. Fetterley; nominating committee, Mrs. A. H. Maguire, Mrs. H. R. Phillips and Mrs. R. L. Warren.

Group leaders and assistants are as follows; Mrs. J. C. Anderson, assistant Mrs. C. L. Hyde; Mrs. T. Franklin, Mrs. P. L. Allcorn; Mrs. E. Denyes, Mrs. H. Rollins; Mrs. George Campbell, Mrs. C. Massey; Mrs. W. H. Finkle, Mrs. A. M. Richards; Mrs. C. Howie, Mrs. K. Bird; Mrs F. Houston, Mrs. F. Cook; Mrs. H. Parker, Mrs. F. Countryman.

Children of Mary Hold Meeting

The December meeting of the Children of Mary was held recently in St. Michael's high school. Following the reading of the office, the minutes were read and adopted.

Miss Cletus Trudeau spoke to the girls about making up Christmas baskets to send to the poor. They were urged to bring toys and clothing to the high school, where there would be a container for them. Miss Sally Genereaux offered to make a poster for the school.

Plans were made to hold a Christmas dance in December. The reception of the new members to the Sodality which will take place Sunday evening was discussed.

The business of the meeting attended to, the girls retired to the Assembly room where a delightful social evening had been planned for them.

The Christmas story "Scrooge" was dramatized with Miss Patricia O'Grady as Scrooge and Miss Bernice Tobin as narrator.

Later there was a brief Christmas film featuring the Christmas carols which all the girls joined in singing.

Refreshments consisting of Christmas cake, cookies and grape juice were served and the meeting adjourned.

Good Companions' Club Welcomes Santa Claus

Because of the unseasonable weather, Santa was not able to use his trusty reindeer and sleigh for his annual visit to the Good Companions' Club on Tuesday evening, December 4, at Tabernacle United Church. However, he did put in an appearance and from his jolly manner and obvious pleasure at seeing his old friends once again, he apparently did not mind any inconvenlence caused by lack of snow.

The evening was in keeping with the true Christmas spirit. As on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, there is a deep sense of close communion with one's God as well as the traditional joy and merriment, so on Tuesday evening the members felt that "hush subduing all" as, seated in a circle in a darkened room before a multi-lighted Christmas tree, they joined in singing the old well-loved carols.

Following the distribution of gifts by Santa, a treasure hunt proved profitable to some while others were not quite so fortunate at locating the hidden nuts and candles. A guessing contest brought to the fore the imaginative ability of the members. Again some members were more adept than others.

President Lew Andrews conducted a short business period after which refreshments were served.

Women's Activities

UNITED CHURCH BAZAAR

Shannonville.—At the United Church bazaar, Mrs. Sam Elliott assisted by Mrs. Will Ross was in charge of the fish pond in the afternoon with Mrs. Gammon relieving them at tea-time. Mr. Scott sold tickets. Mrs. Claude Clarke assisted in the activities. Mrs. Scott welcomed the guests.

KEEN AGE CLUB

Annual elections of officers of the Keen Age Club of Tabernacle United Church saw the following executive installed, president Mrs. P. Huddleston; 1st vice president, Mrs. S. Kelleher; 2nd vice president, Mrs. G. Robinson; secretary, Mrs. B. McCready; treasurer. Mrs. G. Davies; devotional convener, Mrs. R. Garieoy; press reporter, Mrs. F. Davidson; catering conveners, Mrs. J. Hall and Mrs. F. Douglas; program, Mrs. K. Alexander; sick committee convener, Mrs. M Wiley; sewing convener, Mrs. A. Firth; look-out conveners, Mrs. L. Redner and Mrs. E. Tebworth; hostess convener, Mrs. K. Wardle; manse representative, Mrs. W. Eakins.

The elections were held during the annual Christmas banquet which was suitably decorated for the occasion. The guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Ten Hoopen, of Demorestville, and spoke to the club on Christmas in Holland saying that church services on Christmas morning started at 10 a.m. There is also an evening service. Gifts are not given, just worshipping God. The children fill their wooden shoes with straw for Santa's horse on Christmas eve.

A musical program was presented, during which Miss Jerry Jerome gave an accordion solo; Beth Davidson provided clarinet numbers; Mrs. Mildred Kingston played the guitar and mouth organ; Mrs. Charlton recited these numbers being enjoyed by all. Christmas tree gifts were distributed by Mrs. P. Huddleston, Mrs. C. Shaw, Mrs. F. Davidson and Mrs. F. Douglas.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Can't "stick up for herself" in family crises

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What do you do about someone who cannot stick up for herself whenever a family crisis occurs, who bursts into tears or tries to get back at you by turning others against you? Whenever a family crisis takes place—which, of course, is often in a large family—she cannot seem to take her place as an individual but is always trying to get people on her side, and is very successful at appearing abused and victimized, as she is quick to seize an opportunity to build up friction between others, although it is never done openly and is hard to pin down.

Otherwise, she is very pleasant, and such good company that it is difficult to think of her as a trouble-maker. Granting that others around her also have faults to overcome, isn't this something that should be corrected?—L. A.

Dear L.A.: You don't tell me so, but I rather imagine it is a sister about whom you are writing, so I shall proceed on that theory.

Of course, I only have one side of your story, so that what I say must necessarily come from looking at the situation from your viewpoint alone. I suggest that, if you haven't done so already, you try to turn psychologist, and see if you can figure out what makes your sister act this way. The chances are that, however, it cames about, she has acquired an inferiority complex which puts her on the defensive in any argument. That is, she gets excited and angry if she feels she is being criticized.

Possibly she does need some help from an expert to overcome this, but first, if I were you, I would see what I could do myself by taking special pains to look at things from her point of view, and to keep from building up any difference of opinion that may arise in the family. If you will do this patiently and consistently, you may be surprised to find the friction gradually lessening.

The old text from the Bible that "A soft answer turneth away wrath", is still excellent psychology. When disagreements occur in your family, let yours be the soft answer, and see what happens.

Go slow on friendship with older man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a member of the faculty of the evening school I go to in whom I have become very much interested. He is 40 years old but looks about 32. He is very kind, and is the sort of person who makes you glad you're living. He asked to see me several times but I refused on account of the difference in our ages, as I am only 20.

I am told that I act much older than my age, and my interests in life are those of a much older person. This man and I seem to have everything in common except our ages. Do you think I should go out with him?—R. T.

Dear R.T.: In the first place, are you quite certain that this man is free to go out with you? In other words, do you definitely know that he is not married? Comparatively few men are with? out ties at forty.

In the second place, while it is perfectly possible that you may be one of the exceptional girls who is really older than her years, and so find older people more congenial than those of their own age, on the other hand it quite often happens that young girls go through a phase when they are romantically attracted to older men, and I think that you should not be in a hurry to decide you are seriously interested in this one.

If all the conditions are right, however, and this man is free and of good character, I see no harm in your going out with him occasionally, so long as you don't let yourself be rushed into anything.

GOOD MANNERS

Forms for printed names and addresses

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a woman's name and address are printed on writing paper or on post cards, should the title be used before the name? For a married woman? For an unmarried woman?

2. Please give best form for address.

Marie D.

The practical rule is this: The name and address should read like a postal address. That is, a married woman's formal name should be used: Mrs. Arthur Hall. And an unmarried woman's name should include the title: Miss Marie Davis.

The two most popular forms:

(1) Mrs. Arthur Hall
123 Park Street
Haven 5, New York

Separate lines for city and state, if these names are long.

(2) Or, printed in a straight line across the top, the form usually used on post cards:

Women of the family wear hats at funeral parlors, also at house funerals

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) When there has been a death in the family and a woman member of the family of the deceased is receiving relatives and friends at the funeral parlors, is it necessary for her to wear a hat all during the time she is there? (Would this be the same for all denominations, including the Roman Catholic?) To me this seems very uncomfortable, but lately I have noticed that in several cases the women in the family have worn hats at the funeral parlors.

(2) If the funeral is in the home, then what about the women wearing hats?

G. H.

(1) In these circumstances it is best form for a woman to wear her hat. And this is true for all denominations.

(2) At a house funeral the women of the family wear hats, as in a church.

Food for Thought

Venison Steak—$85 Per Pound

By MARY MOORE

Last year our friend Joe drove up to our house and stuck his head in the door and shoved a parcel in my hand.

Since they live 400 miles from here I said "Where'd you come from? Come on in!" (He was in his red plaid hunting togs.) "Can't do it Emmy—just brought you that 85-dollar venison steak so treat it right!"

I found out later what he meant. His trip had cost him alone $200. The one deer that one of them shot was divided amongst four men—so they figured each steak was worth $85 in cold cash—but the fun they had was worth it all.

That was a good question I was asked about venison. We were not lucky enough to have any venison this year and so I neglected to mention it here.

Some chefs say all venison should be nearly rare. Some experienced hunter-cooks say cook venison like beef—if you like your beef rare cook your venison rare—if you like your beef well-done that is the way you will like your venison. But everybody agrees it requires additional fat.

ROAST VENISON

A haunch of venison which is being prepared for roasting should be "larded" by the butcher or dredged with flour to which you have added salt and pepper, all over, then covered with a thin layer of fat salt pork or beef suet, and seared at very high temperature of 475 or 500 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes, then roasted at 350 deg. Fahr. for 12 minutes to the lb. for well done or 10 minutes to the lb. if liked fairly rare.

Another thing that all experts on this subject agree on is "never overcook it"—venison always becomes dry and unflavorful if overcooked.

Do everything you know to keep it moist: (1) sear but undercook; (2) cover; (3) lard it or cover with fat and (4) baste.

VENISON STEAK

As you know venison which is newly killed is rather tough, though sweet. Venison should be hung for two weeks, but should not be frozen. Freezing only further adds to the chance of it being dry.

Steeks should be broiled, but if this is not convenient may be panfried in very hot fat with butter or some of the venison fat (if any). Have broiler as hot as possible, preheating the broiler pan too. Sear the steak on one side until it is golden brown, turn over, baste with drippings in pan, season with salt and pepper and broil other side until golden brown. Then with sharp pointed knife make a slit near the bone to see if it is done until pink or red-pink at centre. If so serve at once on hot plates. The traditional accompaniment to venison is wild plum jelly but I've never been able to find any wild plums to make into jelly so we served it last year with

CURRANT JELLY SAUCE

(This is good with roast venison too.) Make gravy from drippings in pan by adding flour to them to make a paste, then adding 1 cup boiling wawer and stir until thick. To this add 1-2 cup red currant jelly, and 1 tablespoon lemon juice or horseradish. Heat through and serve hot.

For Venison Pie use tough parts such as the shanks and shoulder just as you would for a deep beef pie, stewing the meat in 1-inch cubes until tender, before making the pastry and adding the vegetables.

Ladies' Night At Lions Club Banquet in Hall

Frankford — The Frankford Lions Club held their annual charter night banquet in the Frankford Community Hall Wednesday evening. As in other years, it was Ladies' Night, and was well attended.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion provided a bountiful chicken dinner, and Lions and guests were high in their praise of the repast.

Guest speaker for the evening was District Governor Ross Burke. Lion Ross was introduced by zone chairman, Art Duncan. On completion of a fine address on the aims and objects of Lionism, Lion Ross was heartily applauded. He was thanked by Lion Claude Moran, and presented with a small gift from the club in appreciation of his visit to Frankford.

Following the banquet, a program, presented by the Campbellford Hillbillies in the main auditorium was enjoyed by Lions and guests, and by private citizens of the village who were invited to attend.

Attend Concert

A large number of Frankford folk attended the community concert in Trenton Thursday night and thoroughly enjoyed the splendid offerings of the DePaur Infantry Chorus. Following the concert, the members of the Frankford executive of the Community Concert Association attended the reception in King Street United Church Sunday school rooms. They met many of the singers personally, and found them most congenial. The Concert Association is to be congratulated on their splendid choice of artists, and it is sincerely hoped that it will be possible to have the chorus back for a return engagement at a future date.

Personals

Word has been received that Mr. Arthur Sharpe, well known in Frankford district, passed away in Edmonton, Alberta on November 22. Sympathy is extended to relatives of this vicinity.

Sorry to hear that Mrs. George Hood is ill in bed with the flu.

Mrs. Dick Acton spent the dinner hour with Mrs. Jack Williams on Friday.

Frankfordites enjoyed the musical program heard Thursday afternoon over CJBQ, featuring talent from the Frankford Public School. Under the direction of music director Miss Phyllis Sine, and with Mrs. Olive Williams at the piano, the school choir offered several selections. First number was "In Bethlehem One Night", featuring grades 4, 5 and 6. Sue Anne Wallace then played a piano solo. Beethoven's "Peasant's Dance". The older choir, made up of pupils from grades 6, 7 and 8, sang "Flow Gently Sweet Afton". The choir's next number, "Good King Wenceslas", featured Gary Walker as the king, and Keith Helm as the page, in solo parts. The concluding number was "Angels We Have Heard on High".

Rockets 'Hot' Team In Bowling League

Frankford — Ed Tomecek's Rockets have become the hottest team in the Frankford Bowling league, racking up their second consecutive seven points, this time at the expense of Harry Hearns' Hotshots. Jack Farley's Fireballs continued to pace the league, picking up two games, but dropping high total in their contests with the Inkspots, under Russ Hogg's leadership. Ross Huffman's Crackpots continued on their upward drive, by knocking Gene Lohnes' Pinpoppers out of second place, on a clean sweep. The Crackpots copped current league high single, with a 1,300 contest.

Next week is the league turkey roll, at which a turkey will be given away for ladies' and for men's high singles.

WOULD CALL STRIKE

Bonn, Germany, Dec. 10—(Reuters)— Christian Fette, chief of West Germany's union federation, said yesterday that every union in the country would call a general strike the moment any Nazi group moves to seize power in the government.

'SHOELESS'

He is periodically given sodium amatol, the so-called "truth serum," and under its influence recounts his past to doctors in the hope this will bring relief to his subconscious.

London, Dec. 10 (CP) —Peter Grainger, the United States Army's "Shoeless Hillbilly" was identified yesterday as a wounded veteran of Britain's Eighth Army who fought alongside Italian partisans after escaping from a German prison camp in the last war.

The Sunday Chronicle published an interview with Mrs. Helen Grainger. She said she is the wife of the man who hoaxed the American army and who now is under treatment at the Sunnybrook military hospital in Toronto.

Grainger broke into the news last month when recruiting officers reported he had joined the U.S. army after a lonely life in the New Mexico hills. He walked out of the mountains barefoot.

Three weeks after he was inducted he disappeared and turned up later near Sudbury. An Ontario Provincial Police Constable recognized him as the man who had disappeared from his Forest Ranger's post six weeks earlier.

His wife said in the Sunday Chronicle interview that Grainger's reported actions in the United States paralled his wartime experience.

Mrs. Grainger said her 27-year-old husband had gone to Canada to try to make a home for his family.

His wife told the Sunday Chronicle:

"I read the story of how my husband behaved in America with tears in my eyes. What he did in Texas was almost identical with what he did in Italy during the war.

"He was in the Eighth Army and was wounded badly in the head. He escaped from a German prison camp. He was barefooted and secured a mule.

"Then he reached the mountains—mountains, I presume, like those in New Mexico. He joined the Italian partisans and fought with them.

He contracted gangrene in partisans and finally met a unit of the American army. An American surgeon wanted to amputate his arm up to the shoulder but he begged them not to and finally went to a British hospital. His arm was saved.

"People mourn for the dead, but it is men like my husband they should mourn. His head wound resulted in his losing his memory," Mrs. Grainger said.

"That is what happened in Canada. He overheard a conversation that he was to be deported because he was unfit. He had gone to Canada in March of this year to make a home for us. That is all he wanted—a home and job in the woods.

"It was quite obvious to me that the shock of having to be deported made him lose all sense of the present. He went to America (the U.S.) and relived his wartime experiences."

Mrs. Grainger said she did not know what was going to happen.

"What is there back here for him if they send him back? His heart was set on making good in Canada.

"He is intelligent and well educated. I do hope that the Canadian authorities will give us all a chance to settle in that wonderful country."

Prisoner-of-War Issue Holding Up Negotiators

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 10—(AP)—Allied truce negotiators today demanded that the communists quit stalling on a United Nations proposal to begin immediate discussion of plans for exchanging prisoners of war in Korea.

The reds were told that an Allied liaison officer will be in Panmunjom at 10.30 a.m. Tuesday (8.30 p.m. EST Monday) for their answer.

And a one-man U.N. sub-committee will be ready to start negotiating for the exchange of prisoners 2½ hours later.

Joint sub-committees working on arrangements for enforcing a Korean armistice met only 41 minutes Monday. They quit as far apart as ever but they scheduled another session for 11 a.m. Tuesday (9 p.m. EST Monday).

While the Allies moved to force a decision on the prisoner-of-war issue, communist negotiators insisted the U.N. answer their proposal for behind-the-lines inspection by representatives of neutral countries.

They were told the matter still is under serious study because of its many ramifications.

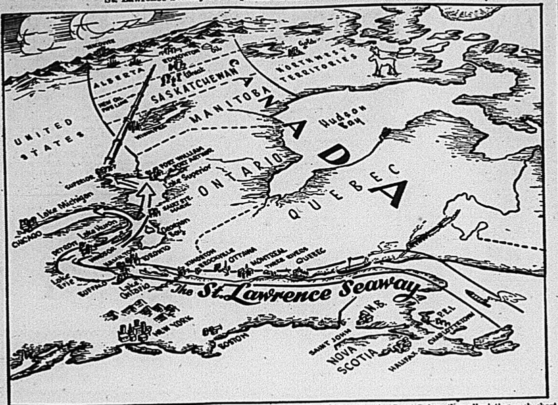
St. Lawrence Seaway Development to Affect All Canada's Economy



In a 6,000-word brief to Parliament, Hon. Lionel Chevrier, minister of transport, outlined the tremendous benefits which Canadian industry will derive from the much-discussed $700,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway project. Mr. Chevrier emphasized that not only Ontario and Quebec but the entire dominion will benefit from the vast navigation scheme. The prairies will find a substantial saving in cost of moving grain and flour to markets in eastern Canada and overseas. In addition, the seaway will permit large ocean vessels to enter the Great Lakes, thus alleviating such shortages of shipping as occurred this year. The four maritime provinces will find cost of transporting goods on the new seaway route much cheaper than rail. And the iron ore of Quebec and Labrador will find its way into world markets much faster. More shipping would travel up the St. Lawrence and through the Great Lakes locks than now passes through Suez, Panama, Kiel and the Manchester canals combined. — Central Press Canadian.

Secret Session Iranian Senate Is Convened

Tehran, Iran, Dec. 10 — (Reuters) — The Iranian Senate, convened in secret session, today heard Premier Mohammed Mossadegh pledge that those responsible for recent riots in Tehran will be punished.

As he spoke the number of persons seeking sanctuary in the majlis (parliament) chambers rose to 50. They are newspaper editors and majlis representatives who say they had been threatened by "government gangsters."

Today they decided to send a petition to the Shah, declaring that public order was breaking down and urging him to take steps to restore it.

The Senate was called to discuss the riots, which reached a peak Thursday with eight dead and 250 injured.

Meanwhile Iranian oil officials, seeking outlets for the product of their nationalized oil industry, said they have worked out a plan for payment through barter.

Abbas Mazda, information officer for the industry, also said Iran is willing to accept on a short-term basis a "mixed board of supervision" consisting of Iranians and representatives of the world bank.

(London reports said the world bank had suggested it become trustee of the oil industry, at a standstill since the nationalized Anglo-Iranian Oil Company withdrew its employees.)

Rescuers Bring Man to Surface

Pendleton, Ore., Dec. 10 (AP) —Rescuers today brought a 51-year-old man to the surface after he had been trapped since 2.30 p.m. EST yesterday when a 15-foot well caved in.

Searchlights flooded the scene as Norman Vina Ford, weak but still conscious was brought out of the gaping hole on a stretcher.

Earlier, bulldozers and heavy diggers gouged a hole 40 feet wide in the back yard of the Ford home.

The walls caved in yesterday when Ford and his 18-year-old son were digging the partially completed well.

GIVEN 'PEN' TERM

Guelph, Dec. 10 (CP) —Four 18-year-old youths who escaped Nov. 30 from Guelph reformatory were sentenced today to two years each in Kingston penitentiary plus their unexpired reformatory terms.

James Rogers, Norman Coe and Robert Marshall, all of Toronto, and Floyd Bryans of Lindsay elected trial by higher court but today changed their minds and were tried summarily.

Freezing Winds Shriek Across South California

Los Angeles, Dec. 10 (AP) — Freezing winds of up to 75 miles an hour shrieked across Southern California today, imperilling lives and crops.

Long stretches of highway were were closed. All but the largest vessels were warned off the seas. Airports were closed. Power lines fell, plunging cities into darkness.

Two young students in a skiff were believed blown out to sea in the Malibu area.

Gale-whipped desert sands scoured the paint from automobiles in the San Bernardino area. In the San Fernando valley, palm trees were stripped of fronds.

Ontario International Airport was closed when great sand clouds cut visibility to one-sixteenth of a mile. Burbank, San Bernardino and Riverside airports also shut down for a time.

Parts of San Bernardino, Ontario, Sun Valley, Canoga Park and Reseda were blacked out temporarily by power failures.

Crop damage was believed running high but there were no estimates of cost yet. Smoke from orchard smudge pots billowed high in the air as growers fought to save their crops from temperatures that dropped as low as 15 degrees above zero.

Yesterday was the coldest Dec. 9 in the 75-year history of the weather bureau here. The official 32 in Los Angeles was the lowest since the record of 27.9 in January of 1949.

U.S. Infantryman Shows Splendid Courage in Action

Washington, Dec. 10. (AP)— An infantryman with less than seven months service in the army when he knocked out five communist gun emplacements has been awarded the Medal of Honor.

The highest United States military decoration was conferred on Sgt. Joseph C. Rodriguez, 23, of San Bernardino, Calif. He was a private when he fought his own personal and courageous action near the Korean village of Munye-ri last March 21, killing 15 of the enemy. He was wounded eight days later in another engagement.

The army announcement today on the award said Rodriguez's action was an "incredible display of valor".

Rodriguez now is en route home.

One of the eyewitness reports upon which the award was based came from Sgt. John J. Phelan, Jr. He said the reds opened up at 100-yard range with intense machine-gun and mortar fire. Attempts by the three platoons failed to dislodge the reds.

"I then noticed that Rodriguez left all cover and dashed 60 yards up the slope, yelling and throwing grenades with no regard for the murderous fire aimed at him.

"He dropped several grenades in the first hole and then ran around the left flank where he silenced an automatic weapon with two more grenades. He then dashed across the top of the peak, dropping grenades in two enemy holes as he passed. Reaching the right flank, he assaulted the remaining enemy automatic weapon and killed all of its crew."

Four Companions Drowned in Lake, Boat Overturns

Denison, Tex., Dec. 10. (AP)— A 'teen-ager today told of watching his companions slip, one by one, from their overturned boat on Lake Texoma. Four youths were drowned.

Robert Davenport, 17, of Odessa, spent 30 bitter hours on the lake, much of the time in sub-freezing weather. He was in the water about 10 hours, buffeted by wind-swept waves. He was semi-conscious when found on a small island by Dr. W. C. McCaskill.

Dr. McCaskill had gone to the island to investigate the half-submerged boat, which had washed up on the shore.

The four companions were Harry Kirklin, 18, Abilene, and three other Odessa youths, Jerry Harrod, Robert Reed and Shirley Thomas.

Davenport said the five shoved off Saturday in a 14-foot aluminum motor boat on a duck-hunting trip. High waves soon capsized the craft.

POLICE GET INCREASE

Kitchener, Dec. 10. (CP)—Kitchener policemen will receive a $400 salary increase next year under an agreement signed at a meeting of the Kitchener Police Commission today.

In line with what other civic employees receive, the officers will also be given credit for 10 statutory holidays instead of six. Covered in the agreement are all officers except chief John Patrick.

No Settlement Is Imminent In Ford Strike

Windsor, Dec. 10. (CP)—Today, a week after it began, no settlement appeared imminent in the strike which had idled 10,000 Ford of Canada employees.

The company announced during the weekend that it will pay a $35 advance on wages earned by 9,000 hourly-rated production workers during the period Nov. 5 to Dec. 1. Under this arrangement, more than $300,000—about 80 per cent of wages due—will be paid the men Thursday and Friday.

About 1,200 salaried office employees, sent home when the strike began, are getting full pay.

The union still waited today for an answer to a bid made Friday by George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) when union-company negotiations broke down over the company's refusal to rehire 26 men whose firing touched off the strike.

Burt called upon Rhys Sale, Ford president, "to meet with myself and the union committee until this dispute is settled."

The union is asking for a 30-cent-an-hour "package" increase on a $1.32 basic rate.

Canada Accepts Slight Increase In Contribution

Paris, Dec. 10. (CP)—Canada today accepted a slight increase in her contribution to the United Nations budget but called for readjustment next year.

Maurice Bourget, Liberal member of parliament from Levis, Que., and Canadian delegate to the U.N., said Canada hoped that Soviet Bloc states would pay more toward operation of the U.N. in view of their claims to improved economic conditions within their borders.

Canada agreed to pay 3.35 per cent of the U.N. budget compared with 3.30 per cent or $1,404,810 last year when the total budget was $42,570,000.

The United States asked for an immediate cut of her share and ran into vehement opposition from the Soviet bloc.

U.S. delegate John Vorys suggested a reduction from 36.90 to 33.33 per cent, arguing that no single country should be asked to pay more than one third of the costs for running the world organization in normal times.

J. E. Chicherbatyouk of the Soviet Ukraine, attacking the U.S. proposal, said the U.S. contribution "should not be reduced but on the contrary considerably increased."

He complained that the "current trade policy of the United States and its embargo on trade between the United States, the Soviet Union and the People's Democracies" was making it very difficult for the Soviet Bloc to earn dollars.

MARMORA

Two Accidents Due to Slippery Road Conditions

Two accidents occurred on No. 7 highway on Wednesday morning due to the slippery condition of the road. A 1950 Dodge, driven by Ernest Lough of Madoc, went out of control, striking a large rock, doing damage to the car estimated at 400 dollars. This accident occurred about three miles west of Madoc.

The other accident occurred about two miles east of Marmora, when a 1950 Meteor driven by Walter Caldwell of Ottawa turned over on its left side, and damage was estimated at $200. Neither driver was injured. Provincial Constable Gould of Madoc investigated.

'D' Company of Royal 22nd Wins Big Praise In Korea But Suffers Heavy Casualties

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, Dec. 10 (CP)— Five cold days and five cold nights without sleep.

Men three days without water, thirsty, parched dry, and the snow ahead of their slit trenches so muddy that they daren't touch it.

Three little islands of infantrymen on a saddle between two peaks, beleaguered by Chinese communists attacking them down the crests on either flank, up a gulley ahead, and at times from their rear.

Canadians determined to hold where others had given way, to hold despite the collapse of neighboring troops on the high ground to their right, exposing them terribly to increased pressure.

And all the while, that shelling. Three hundred rounds every two minutes, artillery, mortar, tanks, self propelled guns, all splintering trees, speeding murderous shrapnel through the air, pounding dugouts, striking fear and reducing men to panic-stricken shell-shocked shadows of themselves.

And throughout that hell men of the 2nd Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment's "D" company held their ground while the winnowing by death and injury and nerves went on until—at the end of the fifth day—the ordeal ended, leaving the company at half its strength but every man a man.

They admit to no heros among them.

Welding Influence

Says the commanding officer, Lt.-Col. Jacques Dextraze of Montreal:

"It welded us as a battalion. The other companies were right alongside helping where they could and taking the same artillery punishment. The riflemen no longer think of the mortarmen as being far away back; they know they're right there too and essential to the team, and that they take their casualties, too."

Says Sgt. Denis Lapierre of Quebec City:

"Those who tell you how many Chinese they killed can give the figure only because they didn't kill enough. Those who killed can't say how many they killed. We were there to do our job. We knew we could withdraw only on orders of the company commander, and he had said there would be no retreat.

"We were there to fight and, if need be, die. And we did."

Such is the company commanded today by Maj. Real Liboiron of Windsor, N.S. and Ponteix, Sask., who chewed his Meerschaum pipe half way up its stem during the five-day holdout.

So tired from strain and watchfulness, did Liboiron become "that as I'd speak my eyes would close and I would open them to find myself talking about something else."

And in their trenches along the front, said Lapierre, "we were so tired we kept mumbling songs to ourselves between attacks to prevent falling asleep."

Guns Frozen

They fired their Brens, then found them frozen. A section position commanded by Lapierre resorted to grenades. While Pte. J. L. Bougie of Valleyfield, Que., and a Korean "rice burner," named Cheh Sang Sup, crouched in the trench, pulled safety pins and dropped the levers from the grenades, the sergeant took them in his cupped hands and tossed them over the parapet onto the advancing Chinese.

Throwing the "eggs" with him that night were Cpl. Raymond Dunbury, Ville La Salle, Que., Pte. Noel Pelletier of Montreal and Pte. J. P. Charrette of Point Claire, Que.

Forty cases of grenades were tossed, right down on the platoon's wire, over which the communists were advancing.

Said Lieut. Walter Nash of Ottawa, commander of platoon: "They're much better at such close quarters—they don't give your position away when you throw them."

There was the devotion of Pte. B. Asselin of Quebec, sent from Liboiron's headquarters to Nash's platoon "loaded like a mule" with needed oil, rifle flannel, water, two cases of grenades, and a Bren gun.

"I might as well take a double load, I mightn't make it a second time," he had said. It took him four hours, uphill, through both communist and Commonwealth artillery fire, to reach the platoon with his 175 pound load.

He stayed all night, taking the place of two dead and two wounded men, manned a Bren gun position, and in the morning carried down on his back the body of one of his comrades.

You'll like it better because of NICKEL

Freezing coils for refrigeration and ice cream freezers are made of corrosion-resistant nickel alloys. Nickel alloy containers protect the purity and flavor of fruits and syrups.

Hundreds of everyday uses for Nickel have been developed by the Nickel industry through a planned program of research. Today a large share of Canada's Nickel production is being diverted from peacetime uses into channels for preparedness. So the Nickel mine facilities, greatly expanded over the past decade, are again being operated at peak capacity. There is actually more Nickel now being delivered by Canada to the free world than in any peacetime year.

MUST PAY THE PENALTY!

As was expected in most quarters, the Ontario Hockey Association turned thumbs down on the appeals of nine former Kingston Nylon hockey players for reinstatement. Regardless of the facts of the case, it was hardly to be expected that the executive body would reverse the decision of its subcommittee. Such action would have resulted in a tremendous loss of face for the OHA moguls.

Many contradictory stories anent the suspension of the players and the barring for life of two team officials have come to light but here's another that hails from Kitchener.

"The cases of several suspended Kingston Nylons will be reviewed at the next OHA meeting. President Jack Roxburgh says. There is a possibility that a number of the players may be reinstated for some of them obviously were caught in the middle and unwilling to squeal on their mates. There is a great story that can't yet be written behind he investigation which came perilously close to court action, but for a chance discovery in a city not too far from Kingston. One lesson the OHA learned was in future to take recorded testimony with properly signed statements from witnesses. As it was some clever legal action came close to involving the provincial body and its officers in what could have been a very costly court action."

It would be interesting to know what this "chance discovery in a city not too far from Kingston" is. It looks suspiciously as though the find was made in Belleville unless the Kitchener scribe's knowledge of geography of this neck of the woods is a little off the beam. The only court action or threat of court action was that voiced by the ousted manager of the Nylons, who stated in a radio interview that he was placing the matter in the hands of his legal advisers for court action. Nothing, as far as we are aware, ever came of it.

However, from the performances of Kingston's new squad, they can get along quite nicely thank you without the services of the suspended players. True, some of them would help a little, but the fighting hard-checking crew now wearing the colors of the Essanays is a force to be reckoned with. They'll cause plenty of trouble for the rest of the squads before the playoff bugles blow the charge. Some of the new troops may not have the finish and polish of the boys of the old brigade but they'll do very nicely, especially this season when the rugged rollicking biff-'em-and-bang-'em style of hockey seems to be the popular type among the players. And that goes for the beardless buckaroos, too.

WISHFUL THINKING?

Don't look now, but up west o' here the little baseball birds are beginning to twitter a pre-season symphony. Rotund Bunny Morgenson, did a spot of crystal gazing in his office in the Toronto Tely a while back and what he saw was more or less astounding. Floating before his vision was a professional league composed of Kingston, Peterborough, Oshawa and a team from Toronto or some place. Funny how some sportswriters get spots in front of their eyes.

Another number on this baseball score is that Peterborough and Oshawa interests are looking eastward with longing eyes and yearning for the good old days when the Central Ontario Baseball League consisted of teams from Belleville, Oshawa, Peterborough and Kingston. Oshawa and the Petes got a bit snooty a couple or three years ago and left the old diamond ranch for the, what they thought, greener pastures of the Viaduct League. They plugged their squads with imports until they oozed out of their figurative ears, then found the Toronto opposition was no better, or not as good as that before the American invasion. It ended up by both being ousted from the loop, and now comes the Prodigal Son complex.

This is being written merely to furnish the winter cracker-barrel boards of strategy and the back-room hot stove leagues with food for argument. So we'll let it go at that for the nonce.

* * *

CHANGE OF DATE

Word comes from the public relations department of the Belleville Hockey Association via the keeper of its privy purse the hon. Richard Beare, that the junior "B" game scheduled for Memorial Arena Wednesday has been moved forward to tomorrow evening. Likewise the game between Lindsay and Belleville dated Feb. 13th will not be played until Friday, Feb. 15th.

* * *

THE PICTURE CAN CHANGE

At the moment the senior Hawks are seated on the top rung of the senior "B" ladder a scant pair of points above the rest of the pack which are stalemated in second slot with six points each. Eagles or Kingston can pull up on even terms with the Hawks tonight following their clash in Peterborough. Hawks can pull out in front again on Wednesday night when they go to Peterborough as guests of the Petes. Next Friday night, those Eagles are back here again in a resumption of the Battle of the Birds, while the Kingston Essanays entertain the Petes down Roddenville way. Don't start tossing that lettuce around willy-nilly for anything can happen in this unpredictable group. Todate all four squads have come up with some smart and otherwise hockey with emphasis on the rough and rugged type.

From now until January 2nd, the schedule resolves itself into a three-way series between Belleville and the Peterborough teams. The Hawks don't get a sight of Kingston until the New Year's Boxing Day.

LINKS TOMORROW NIGHT!

As was mentioned before the junior Hawks entertain the Peterborough Triple Links, sometimes referred to as the chain gang while Kingston Vics take a whack at Lindsay on the latter's ice. Coach "Red" Doran will have control of the Hawklets tomorrow night, and they'll likely be told to get their orations off their chest before leaving the dressing room, and not to save any choice remarks for whomever is doing the whistle-tooting. The Doran crew have defeated and tied the Liftlockers in the two games played between the squads thus far, and they should take the measure of the visitors tomorrow night.

Blueshirts on Scoring Spree Prove They Belong In N.H.L.; Detroit Humbles Habs Twice

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Bill Cook, the old Ranger terror, was back on the bench—this time in mufti; the Blueshirts clobbered Toronto Maple Leafs 7-2 in their snazziest scoring spree in a couple of years, and 12,683 hockey-happy fans, one of the largest National League gatherings in the gardens this year, enjoyed every minute of it.

The Ranger victory convinced the critics that this season's edition of the Rangers belongs up there with the pros although it was only their seventh victory in 24 games.

Celebrates Return

It was Bill's first return to his old stamping grounds since the one-time great Ranger right-winger hung up his gear in the 1935-36 season. He returned as coach and if Rangers continue to produce anything of the class they showed last night he needn't worry about developing ulcers or being put on a milk diet.

It was the most one-sided decision of the weekend activity on the N. H. L. front. Detroit Red Wings, who have Montreal Canadiens' number this season after Canadiens eliminated them in the playoffs last spring, came up with a pair of victories over Dick Irvin's club—3-0 at Montreal Saturday and 3-2 at home Sunday.

The league-leading Wings, who now boast a four-point lead over Toronto, have a record of five victories and a tie this season over Canadiens.

Chicago held its fifth position, one point ahead of Rangers, with a weekend split. The Hawks lost 3-1 to the Leafs at Toronto Saturday and followed with a close 4-3 victory over the third-place Boston Bruins Sunday. Bruins are seven points behind Toronto and only one up on Montreal.

Rangers Inspired

The big noise belonged to Rangers, playing under Coach Cook for the first time. They played an inspired brand of hockey, took advantage of every Toronto lapse, skated faster than they have all season and generally performed as if they really belonged in the big time.

Cook took over from Neil Colville who resigned last week and the Blueshirts rose to the heights. They led 1-0 at the end of the first period, poured four more goals behind Toronto goalkeeper Al Rollins in the second and matched the Leafs' two-goal effort in the final stanza.

Don (Bones) Raleigh was the individual star with four assists. Gaye Stewart, finding his scoring eye after a long drought, notched two and assisted on another by Ed Slowinski. Other Ranger marksmen were Reg Sinclair, Edgar Laprade, Hymie Buller and Wally Hergesheimer.

A crowd of 13,593 saw Detroit come from behind a 2-0 first-period deficit to take the points. Floyd Curry and Doug Harvey got the Montreal goals and the Red Wings took over in the middle stanza.

Alex Delvecchio whipped in Detroit's first goal and Marcel Pronovost, who had scored only twice before this season,, got hot and exploded with a two-goal effort within 33 seconds.

Chicago, playing before a 10,208 crowd, led 1-0 at the end of the first period and 3-2 going into the third. Hawk scorers were George Gee, Gus Bodnar, Steve Hrynnak and Pete Horeck with Dave Creighton, Milt Schmidt and Bill Ezinicki scoring for the Bruins.

Marlies Take Over Junior Lead From Biltmores

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Marlboros broke their first-place deadlock with the idle Guelph Biltmores in the 10-team Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race on Sunday by whipping Oshawa Generals 5-1 in the second game of a double header at Toronto. Toronto St. Michael's took over sole possession of third spot when they edged Galt Black Hawks 3-2 in the opener.

Marlies didn't fare so well in Saturday night's play however, as they dropped a 4-2 decision to Galt Black Hawks while St. Mike's were handing the Generals a 7-3 set-back in Oshawa.

In other Saturday night junior games, Waterloo Hurricanes maintained their hold on sixth place with a 4-3 victory over Windsor Spitfires. At St. Catharines, the Teepees bowed 5-3 before Barrie Flyers.

Indians Hold Lead

O.H.A. Senior A play on Saturday night saw Hamilton Tigers snap their five-game losing streak in Owen Sound with a 5-2 win over the Mercurys. Stratford Indians continued their winning ways with a 4-3 victory in Sarnia while Brantford Redmen bowed 8-2 before the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in Kitchener.

Up north, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds maintained their Northern Ontario Senior A League lead with a 7-3 drubbing of Sudbury Miners before 4,572 Sault fans Saturday. At North Bay, the Sudbury Wolves scored a 6-2 win over North Bay Black Hawks.

NOHA Suspends Stan Groshak

North Bay, Dec. 10—(CP)—Roy McKay, senior hockey player with South Porcupine Porkies, has been suspended for the balance of the season for signing playing certificates with both Sudbury Wolves and the Porkies.

The Northern Ontario Hockey Association executive approved the suspsension at a meeting Saturday. It also suspended Stan Groshek of the Kirkland Lake intermediate team until Jan. 1, for signing with both Peterborough and Kirkland Lake.

Baseball Wind-Up Is Fizzle No Trades, Sales, Or Purchases

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Dec. 10—(AP)—The windup of the week-long minor-and-major-league baseball conventions today produced nothing but a lot of legislative action which was greeted by yawns from the man in the street.

"What happened to all those dynamite deals cooked up last week in Columbus?" he asked.

The plain truth is they turned out to be a lot of duds. An innocent bystander would have wagered that at least one trade would be pulled off by the way the club officials—especially Buzzy Bavasi of Brooklyn and Gabe Paul of Cincinnati—hustled around.

Waste of Time

Nearly all the club owners and managers have left and Ted Williams is still with the Boston Red Sox, Eddie Stanky is still the property of the New York Giants, Fred Saigh still is seeking a manager for his St. Louis Cardinals and the Dodgers and Reds are no nearer to a deal than they ever have been.

Each league had an excuse for not completing a transaction. American League men blame the impasse on the veil of secrecy that shrouds the status of Joe DiMaggio. All clubs are anxious to trade with New York Yankees, who have the only expendable young players of promise. The Yankees, however, have said they will not deal until they learn from DiMaggio whether he intends to play. The Yankee Clipper has promised he will make known his decision tomorrow.

National Leaguers say they have been stymied in deals because of Saigh's failure to select his manager.

"I have broached a deal to Mr. Saigh," said an official, "only to have Saigh tell me he wouldn't do anything before naming a manager.

"I know of at least two other clubs that got the same answer from him."

Unless Horace Stoneham, owner of the Giants, and Saigh come to an agreement today, the Card boss was determined to leave for St. Louis and name someone other than Stanky as manager. The job then is expected to go to Terry Moore, popular Cardinal coach.

On the legislative end, the majors poured cold water on minor-league hopes when they voted down the 23-player limit and a proposed ban on the 24-hour recall. They went along with the new high school rule and agreed to "open" classification for the Pacific Coast League, and awarded the 1952 all-star game to Philadelphia, July 8.

To Study Status George Dunn, Cantor Conqueror

Edmonton, Dec. 10 —(CP) — Georgie Dunn, winner of a hotly-disputed decision over Solly Cantor of Toronto Saturday night, will have to pile up a few more points in another league before he gets the shot he wants at the Canadian lightweight boxing title.

The Negro boxer, ranked 10th internationally in his division, has some explaining to do back at his previous stamping grounds of Hartford, Conn., before he gets any fights against top-ranking opponents.

Jack (Deacon) Allen, Toronto matchmaker, said in Toronto last night he had received a letter from the Connecticut Boxing Managers' Guild stating that Dunn, who now fights out of Edmonton, was being "grounded" pending clarification of his status.

The letter said Dunn had obtained permission to travel to Edmonton for a number of fights but had not returned to his American connections when the permitted time had elapsed.

Meanwhile Dunn's status was clarified in another respect—after a committee-room huddle—it was decided that his decision over Cantor was unanimous despite the contrary opinion of many of the 3,000 fans present.

Immediately after the fight Dunn was announced as winning on a split decision. The boos were loud and prolonged.

Sports Roundup

New York, Dec. 10—(AP)—Toward the end of the summer golf season, manager Bob Pinney of the Hartford, Conn., golf club decided to reward walter Pete Skowroneck by taking him to a ball game in Yankee Stadium. . . With the Yanks drawing near the pennant, tickets were hard to get, but Bob managed to come up with a pair of seats directly behind home plate. . . Pete took one look and declared: "These seats are no good. I could never catch a ball here—there's a screen in the way". Pinney went back and traded the good duckets for a pair high in the stands back of third base. . . "This is better," Pete said as they settled in the seats. And the words were hardly out of his mouth when Joe Dimaggio hoisted a high foul; the ball bounced around the stands and landed squarely in Pete's lap.

Hornets Win Two Over Weekend To Stretch Lead

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets took two weekend games to continue a pace that has them atop both sections of the American Hockey League.

Last night they toppled the Cincinnati Mohawks 5-3 and Saturday night closed the door on Buffalo Bisons with a 9-1 rout.

The goals, both tallied by Chuck Blair, came while the Mohawks had Ed Harrison and Jack Lancien in the penalty box. They had been banished 18 seconds apart shortly after a wild fracas in which Hornet Gil Mayer and coach King Clancy protested that Bill Wylie's goal, which knotted the game at 3-3, did not go into the cage.

Phil Maloney and Bob Hannigan scored the other Pittsburgh goals. Cincinnati's other goal-getters were Pat Egan and Jean-Paul Denis.

At Buffalo the Bisons and the Indianapolis Caps played to a 3-3 overtime tie before 4,872 spectators.

The other Cleveland scorers were Fred Thurier, Steve Wochy, Fern Perreault and Ike Hildebrand.

In other Saturday games. Syracuse beat Indianapolis 5-3, Cleveland defeated Cincinnati 3-1 and St. Louis shaded Hershey 3-2.

Wings' Richmond Int. League Batting Champion

The 32-year-old bespectacled former major leaguer, won the 1951 crown with a .350 mark according to the final official averages released today. Richmond took the 1950 title with a .333 average.

Richmond began the season with St. Louis Cardinals but was sent back to Rochester because of weak hitting. Don previously was up in the big time with Philadelphia Athletics.

Richmond is the first to win the International League batting championship two straight years since Jim Walsh of Buffalo performed the feat in 1925-26.

British Racing Has Unsavory Side; Horse-Doping Charged by Rosebery

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 10 (CP) — Two money offers for information on horse doping showed plainly Saturday that British racing has its unsavory side.

Months of gossip about alleged dirty work during the 1951 flat-racing season may come into the open following what one newspaper describes as the "greatest doping sensation in recent turf history."

This was the announcement last night by Lord Rosebery, perhaps the best-known man in British racing, that he has offered £1,000 for information leading to the arrest of persons who doped one of his horses. He did not name the horse.

Match Offer

The Daily Express, which earlier had promised to bare some secrets about racing scandals during the 1951 season, promptly matched Lord Rosebery's offer with a £1,000 reward for information leading to conviction of any offenders.

Lord Rosebery was third in the list of winning owners this year. Great horses which have raced under his colors include Blue Peter, winner of the 1939 Epsom Derby, and Ocean Swell, winner in 1944.

In his letter offering the reward, Lord Rosebery noted a great deal had been written about the doping of racehorses.

"I was dissatisfied with the running of one of my horses this season and instructed a veterinary surgeon to examine it. . ." said Lord Rosebery. "I now find the animal had received a dope causing it to be stopped."

Knowledgeable horsemen believe the horse in question is the brilliant two-year-old Bob Major, which started at the prohibitive odds of 1 to 8 in a race at Goodwood last July, but was beaten by Gay Time.

Before Lord Rosebery's announcement Clive Graham of the Daily Express hinted that all was not well on the turf this season. Even the Times correspondent referred drily to the fact that the number of short-priced horses which were beaten in small fields was considerably greater last year than usual.

Browns Win 2nd Conference Title, Detroit Leads National Division

By ORLO ROBERTSON

New York, Dec. 10 (AP) — The battle for the right to represent the National Conference against Cleveland Browns in the National Football League playoff comes down to the wire Sunday with three teams still in the thick of the fight. And a fourth has an outside chance of breaking into the picture.

While the Browns defeated Pittsburgh Steelers 28-0 yesterday for their second successive American Conference title, Detroit Lions moved back into first place in the National division by edging Los Angeles Rams 24-22.

Bears in There

At the same time Chicago Bears remained a strong contender with a 45-21 decision over New York Yanks. San Francisco's 49ers stood ready to move into at least a tie if the leaders slip by turning back Green Bay's Packers 31-19.

So as the leagues go into the final week of regular competition the standings show the Lions lead the National Conference by a half game with a 7-3-1 record. The Rams and Bears each have won seven and lost four for second place. The 49ers trail with a 6-4-1 performance.

Next Sunday the Lions meet the 49ers at San Francisco with a victory necessary for the conference crown. Only a week ago the 49ers beat the Lions 20-10 at Detroit.

Meantime, the Rams and Bears meet what figures to be easy competition. Los Angeles will be at home to Green Bay and the Bears meet the lowly Chicago Cardinals.

Bob Waterfield did his best to send the Rams home victorious over the Lions as he kicked five field goals for a league record. The kicks varied from 17 to 40 yards.

Sedgman Wins Over Savitt For Aussie Title

By GAYLE TALBOT

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 10 (AP)—Frank Sedgman of Australia today won the Victorian Tennis Championship with a one-sided victory over Dick Savitt of the United States.

Immediately afterward, captain Frank Shields of the American Davis Cup team named Ted Schroeder and Tony Trabert to play singles against Sweden in the inter-zone final starting Thursday.

Savitt lost his chance for a single berth when he went down before the Aussie ace in only 58 minutes by scores of 8-6, 6-0, 6-4. Sedgman was on top of his form in walloping the Orange, N.J., star.

In the opening singles tilt Thursday, Trabert will oppose Sven Davidson, Sweden's No. 2 player. Schroeder will tangle with Lennart Bergelin, who hasn't lost a set in Davis Cup play in two years.

Neither side will announce its pairings for Friday's doubles until 24 hours before the match.

Savitt, after gaining a 5-2 lead in the opening set, lost 12 of the next 13 games as Sedgman raced through the second set at love.

The match was delayed for about a nhour by rain squalls. Showers fell intermittently throughout. This didn't seem to bother either player but Sedgman asked and received permission to wear spiked shoes. From then on the Aussie was the boss.

In the last two sets he displayed a mastery of the all-court game by scoring 23 placements to Savitt's six. A crowd of almost 5,000 was on hand to see Savitt, Wimbledon and Australian titleholder, take his lumps.

Schroeder and Talbert also are expected to form Uncle Sam's doubles team.

Men's Commercial Bowling League

Standings remained unchanged in the Men's Commercial Bowling League on Friday night at the Bowl-O-Drome although the first three spots tightened considerably, only three points separating the first three teams.

Moose Lodge still lead the pack with 76 points but are being hard pressed closely by Boziaks with 74 and Star Welding with 73. Behind them come Gourleys 58, Rockets 50, O'Neil Sales 49, Welding Gases 47, Alemite 43, Stephens Admanson 43, Balyx Bros. 34, Mead Johnson 25, and Legionnaires 16.

Star Welding once again toppled the pins for high pinfall of 3398 in taking seven points from Mead Johnson. Other seven point winners were Boziaks over Legionnaires and Gourley Motors over Stephens Adamson. Alemite 43, Stephens Adamson 43, 4-3 wins over Moose Lodge and Balyx Brothers teams.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

President J. Elliott Hudson last night banned further Maritime Major Hockey League games between Glace Bay Miners and Charlottetown Islanders until sufficient police protection is provided in both forums.

Judge Hudson announced his decision after studying reports submitted by referees who handled games between the clubs on Nov. 26 and Nov. 28.

He said he would give the clubs until Dec. 12 to arrange police protection. If they didn't, further games between the two clubs would have to be played on neutral ice.

At New York, American Baseball League executives, Saturday voted unlimited night baseball for the 1952 season and also adopted the National League's plan of suspended games.

The new suspended-game rule provides that if play is halted for reasons of curfew, train schedule or failure of a lighting system the game will be resumed at the interrupted point on a later date. However, if the interruption comes after nine full innings have been played the contest will be called a tie and will be replayed completely.

Reversal of a 10-day Ontario Hockey Association ruling banning a Port Hope player from participating in Lakeshore Intermediate A play has the Cobourg entry in the loop threatening withdrawal.

The new ruling allows Ken Medhurst to play with Port Hope along with Bernard Flesch. Both Flesch and Medhurst live in Cobourg. The previous O.H.A. ruling had banned Medhurst from playing while allowing Flesch to continue turning out with the Port Hope club.

At New York, Jim Thorpe, down on his luck after a fabulous sports career, yesterday received a $1,000 cheque from George Trautman, president of the National Association of Minor Leagues, as a result of a fund-raising campaign.

Mrs. Thorpe said nearly $2,000 has been received by her husband from various sources and she understands another $7,000 has been raised which will be given to Jim on an annuity basis.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

What is the first duty of partners in a bridge game? To exchange as much information as possible about their hands. They do so in order to reach the best final contract for their side.

Not only do they try to decide their best trump suit, if any. Not only do they decide how many tricks they can jointly take. They also signal each other when to stop and when to keep on bidding.

An opening bid of one promises partner at least (1) five tricks (2) four high cards, (3) two sure tricks. If a suit is bid, it promises a suit that is at least biddable.

An opening one bidder asks partner (1) to pass with not more than two tricks, (2) to bid with more than two tricks, (3) to have bids follow the order of choice in T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump.

If the response is a takeout to a new suit, it promises a suit that is at least biddable. If the response is an assist in partner's suit, it promises support in that suit.

If the response is a bid in no-trump, it denies having a biddable suit. It also denies having adequate trump support for partner's suit. It admits having enough no-trump tricks for that response.

A takeout to a new suit is a signal that orders the opener to keep the bidding open for one round. If the response is a one-jump in anything, it orders the bidding kept open to at least a game.

When should the responder one-jump? When he can guarantee enough tricks to make a game. Thus, if partner opens with a bid of one club, decide your response with this hand:

♥9 5
♣A K 4 3

You should one-jump to two spades. Your spade suit is biddable. You have six tricks; five high cards and a short card. Partner showed at least five tricks. So you see enough for game.

Your one-jump signals partner not to stop short of game. Unlax while you swap all the dope you can.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

CAMPBELLFORD

Police Officers Given Talk By Doctors, Dentist

Campbellford—A number of police officers from this district met in the council chambers here onWednesday for a friendly get-together, and to hear lectures from a Campbellford doctor and a dentist. Provincial Police officers from Belleville, Peterborough, Cobourg, Lindsay, Brighton and other points as well as chiefs of police from Havelock, Hastings, Norwood and other nearby towns and villages attended the gathering, the first of a series of such gatherings to be held each month or so in different municipalities.

Dr. C. A. Bright discussed problems faced by the police in dealing with individuals who may appear intoxicated, but may be suffering some disease or injury producing similar appearances. Dr. Bright described the drugs and diseases, which may produce symptoms and cause a person to act as though he were under the influence of alcohol. He cited instances where this had been found to be the case. He said the smell of alcohol on a person's breath need not necessarily mean his condition, however abnormal, is caused by the effects of alcohol.

Dr. Bright answered questions for the officers, who described cases and asked his advice. Inspector William Stringer of Peterborough thanked the speaker.

Dental Records Help

Constable Donald Erskine introduced the next speaker, Dr. Ross Richardson of Campbellford who told of the way in which dental records could be of help in identifying bodies. He told of the manner in which facial features reveal the type of teeth in the mouth, and likewise the manner in which a certain type or types of teeth determined one's facial features. The Noronic disaster, he said, was an example of this. After other means of identification had failed, a board of dental specialists was called in to help identify the bodies. From the teeth of a number of the victims the dentists, with the help of artists, were able to make sketches of the person as he would have appeared in life, and in a number of cases, these sketches were remarkably accurate and served to identify a number of bodies. In other cases, records of dental work provided grounds for identification, but there were no records of a great many of the victims, and the dentists resorted to these sketches.

Doctors Can Help

Dr. R. Dure, coroner for Northumberland County, told of cases where conditions outlined earlier by Dr. Bright had been found to be correct, and said that he thought the medical profession could be of great help to the law enforcement agencies of the country. He also told the officers that alcohol is definitely not a stimulant, but rather a depressive, and described how this was caused.

At the close of the evening, Cpl. Doug. Wilson of the Cobourg detachment of the OPP presented PC Donald W. Erskine and his new bride with an electric clock, a gift from all those present. Mr. and Mrs. Erskine thanked the officers for the gift, and accepted the congratulations of his fellow officers and others present. The get-together was organized and arranged by constable Erskine and Chief Geo. H. Hardy of Campbellford.

Mrs. Erskine and Mrs. Geo. H. Hardy served coffee and sandwiches at the close of the meeting.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking and ma was just thinking, saying, William, you haven't asked me what I want for Chrissmas?

I was coming to that, my dear, pop said, and ma said, Then you can just change your mind again, because I dont even want you to ask me.

Do you meen you want to tell me of your own free will? pop said, and ma said, I meen I want you to decide all by yourself. I want a present that represents your very own personel unaided choice, she said.

Yee gods, do I have to lie awake nite after nite from now till Chrissmas wondering what to get you? pop said, and ma said. Well naturelly I expect a little serious thawt and mental effort on your part. I dont want to have a thing to do with it. I only insist on one point whatever you finally decide on, I want you to tell me in advants, so I'll have the dubble pleasure of anticipating the gift as well as the joy of receeving it, she said.

Well, to be frank with you, I've been keeping my eyes open, pop said. For instance I saw a stunning coffee perkolater that's almost human. It does everything but hand you the creem Now William, you know you're the only one in this house that drinks coffee like a fish. Sometimes I dont touch coffee for days, she said.

Well, I saw a cromium and ebony ash stand that's called "The Wife's Best Frend" because it's mounted on wheels and practically follows a man all around the room, pop said, and ma said, Oh, stop this before you suggest a solid silver shaving mirrer, William, I want a nice string of cultured perls, and that's all I want, she said.

Probably being what she will get.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 10 — (AP) — Charlie Chaplin has embarked on his eighth starring feature film in almost 40 years of making movie history. It is his second picture without his traditional tramp costume.

Rarely has the English - born comic permitted any outsiders to observe him during the production of one of his movies. But he has mellowed in recent years. I was allowed to visit the set of his new film, "Limelight."

Asked if he was glad to be back to work after a four-year absence, Chaplin grinned:

"Not exactly. I work like the devil when I'm on a picture. After I get one started, I wonder why I undertake so much work."

No Tramp

"No," he replied.

"Do you think you ever will again "

"I don't think so," he said. "But then, you never can tell."

Chaplain abandoned his tramp character in one other picture — "Monsieur Verdoux."

Unlike the talky "Monsieur Verdoux," "Limelight" will carry no message (except the underlying human theme that marks all Chaplin films). The new picture is the story of an English music-hall comedian who has seen better days. He befriends a destitute ballet dancer, played by Claire Bloom, who was discovered in a London musical.

The girl's career rises as the comic's descends. The situation is reversed and she must keep up his morale, even though she is in love with a younger man, played by Sydney Chaplin, Charlie's son.

The whole project shapes up as a family affair. Also in the cast is Sydney's brother, Charles Jr. (agent for both is their mother, Lita Grey Chaplin.) Playing another role is the comedian's half-brother, Wheeler Dryden. And Chaplin plans to have a brief appearance of his three children by his present wife, Oona O'Neill.

All-star

As with all Chaplin films, Charlie performs most of the functions. He is star, writer, composer, director and producer and even moves furniture.

AT THE CAPITOL — William Holden and Broderick Crawford are the men in Judy Holliday's life in "Born Yesterday," Columbia's comedy hit of the year, brought back again by popular demand and opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program in color by Technicolor "The Petty Girl," starring Robert Cummings and Joan Caulfield with the most beautiful girls in Hollywood.

AT THE BELLE — Claudette Colbert makes a brilliant return to comedy in "Let's Make it Legal", playing for the last times today at the Belle Theatre. Starring with her are the lovely Marilyn Monroe, pictured, above; MacDonald Carey and Zachary Scott.

AT THE McCARTHY — A super-charged love affair between co-stars John Garfield and Shelley Winters highlights the tense melodrama, "He Ran All the Way," which was produced by Rob Roberts for United Artists release. The film opens today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

LOIS LOIS

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, December 11

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—May have to run the gamut of certain oddities and obstacles, a requisite confronting those seeking success. Use that inborn clever mind and will, and you will overcome hazards quickly.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Business, professional effort will be harder to put over unless you act smartly and reasonably. Don't take "No" for an answer; keep trying. Have faith in you!

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Stick to your rightful vocation. Plan moves rather than skip around here and there. Avoid being too sensitive or over particular. Things are not as bad as they may seem.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—If matters appear perplexing, hard to solve, stop, think, don't get into an excited state that only confuses more. Aim high and law of averages will be in your favor.

July 24 to August 22 —(Leo)—You may be "on the spot" in some instance now. But there are also good opportunities for you. Select your course carefully. Be sure it's within your ability to carry on.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)— A little extra urging, minus emotionalism, will help considerably today. Some problems may retard early progress, but after 1 p.m., things will tend to right themselves more favorably.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Some spirited happenings to watch. Business and personal affairs could profit by well thought-out effort. It will further your interests to co-operate where reasonably possible.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Your interest and appeal, tastefully presented in all issues, will be effective. Whittle down activity to essentials. Don't take on too heavy loads, usually a Scorpio failing.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Stars offer a day long on opportunity for you true-to-Sagittarius self-reliant, enterprising folks. Believe in what you attempt; don't let anything sour your disposition.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Day and week should be filled with good results if you are alert and apply virile, albeit reasonable, methods. Employ sensible ideas; avoid farfetched, out-of-line tactics.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—You can enjoy fine returns from worthy endeavors if you exercise sound thinking. Personals in favorable position but they need your full co-operation and care.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces) — Scan the field, get yourself set early. Attractive day for those who give extra effort for extra rewards. Latter part of day, personal, home interests require more thought.

YOU BORN TODAY: Make able managers, directors, both because of your clear insight, ability to think and act quickly, and because you handle people fairly. Are blunt at times. This can cause misunderstandings. Don't let frank decisions and speech live without tact. Fond of games of chance, may tend to go beyond means trying your luck. Are prompt, could find success in any number of fields, put your mind seriously to one. Master impatience, criticism; over-doing.

DEFENCE CONSTRUCTION (1951) LIMITED

TENDER

File#122-5-B1-21 Job#1702

Sealed tenders plainly marked as to content and addressed to the undersigned will be received up to 2.00 p.m. Tuesday, January 8th, 1952 for the performance of the following work: installation of storm sewers at R.C.C.S. Area (Vimy) Barriefield, Ontario.

Plans, specifications and contract documents for this project may be obtained by prime contract tenderers at the address shown below. A deposit of $50.00 in the form of a cheque made payable to Defence Construction (1951) Limited is required for each complete set of plans, specifications and documents, which deposit will be refunded if the documents are returned in good condition within two weeks of the closing of tenders.

Each tender must be accompanied by a security deposit amounting to ten percent (10%) of the tender total. The security deposit will be forfeited in the event the successful tenderer refuses to enter into the contract on the basis of his tender when called upon to do so. The security deposit of the unsuccessful tenderers will be returned. A marked cheque on a chartered Canadian Bank and made payable to Defence Construction (1951) Limited or negotiable Dominion of Canada Bonds will be accepted as security deposit.

Plans, specifications etc., have been made available for the purpose of information of sub-contractors and material suppliers at the following locations: The Kingston Builders Exchange, 83 Clarence St., Kingston, Ontario and at the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Ontario Regional Office, 441 Queen's Quay West, Toronto, Ontario.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

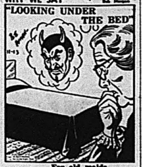
WHY WE SAY



. . . For old maids

Comedians have made many jokes about the old maids who look under the bed before retiring. The custom did not start with old maids, though. It began in rural England where people looked under the bed to see if there was a devil hiding.

DESERONTO

Mr., Mrs. W. Shane Celebrate Their 50th Anniversary

Deseronto—Mr. and Mrs. William Shane recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary quietly at their home on Main St. E., Deseronto.

Mrs. Shane was the former Mabel Gertrude Chambers, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Chambers of North Fredericksburg.

The happy couple were married in Grace United Church parsonage by the Reverend S. T. Bartlett on December 2nd 1901.

After spending some years in the Niagara Peninsula, Mr. and Mrs. Shane returned to Deseronto in 1914. They have resided in the community since then.

Friends and neighbors called at their home during the day and evening to offer congratulations and best wishes. The couple also received numerous gifts and cards to mark the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Babcooke have received word that their daughter, Miss Joan Babcooke, nurse-in-training at Toronto General Hospital, is at present at the Ontario Hospital at St. Thomas, where she will spend the next three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Topping spent Sunday at Brighton, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Hughes.

Mr. Dave Martin was a recent visitor at Toronto.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Demille, were Mr. Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Don Kellar, all of Kingston.

BRADING BREWERIES APPOINTMENT

JACQUES BEAUDET

F. A. Devine, Sales Manager, Brading Breweries Limited, announces the appointment of Jacques Beaudet as Assistant District Manager of Kingston and district.

DON'T ENDURE "MORNING SLUGGISHNESS"

Do you wake up morning after morning feeling tired out? And does that dull, heavy sensation drag on all day, making life a misery?

Don't put up with it.

Chances are the whole trouble stems from sluggish kidneys and constipation. Your system is becoming clogged by accumulated poisons that are slowing you down.

Kruschen Salts are a wonderful help at these times. In many ways they are identical with the waters of well-known Mineral Springs . . . in other words, much more than a simple laxative. For Kruschen contains diuretic ingredients (for the kidneys). So they help you to get rid of waste matters through healthy, natural bowel and kidney action.

Millions of people use Kruschen. They have found that less than half a teaspoonful in hot water works wonders. Find out what Kruschen can do for you from your nearest druggist today.

Americans In Tripoli Declare Dirt, Arabs, Language Trouble Features of Living Conditions

Tripoli (AP)—Home life in Tripoli is just like suburban life in the United States with dirt, Arabs and language difficulties added—according to some Americans who are living it.

Some 380 of the 400 American families two are in Tripoli because of the military air transport service base at nearby Wheelus Field, are almost unanimous in living their way of life.

"It's really not much different from life at home," says Mrs. Marvin M. Stanley, wife of Maj. Stanley, Wheelus Field's public information officer.

The Stanleys, formerly of Lexington, Miss., have an eight-year-old son and a six-year-old daughter, both enrolled in a "dependents' school" on the field. They live in a small villa they rented in this ancient Arab town of Tripoli, about seven miles from the field.

Wives of the officers have formed a "wives club that meets each Wednesday and sponsors such projects as old clothes drives for Arab orphanages, bingo parties and rummage sales.

"Bridge, cantasta and taking care of the household and the children take up the rest of the time," said one wife.

Many Wives Work

Many of the wives have jobs here, working either in the Wheelus Field post exchange and commissary, or with a civilian construction firm now improving the field's runways and building new warehouses.

The dependents' school runs all the way from kindergarten to high school and has an enrolment of 170. The faculty includes four women teachers engaged in the U.S., two wives of Wheelus Field officers, a lieutenant and a sergeant.

She explains she took the job to get overseas teaching experience to train for a position with the United Nations educational scientific and cultural organization. In off duty hours, Miss Lipe is studying art in Tripoli under Prof. Corso Malverna, formerly of Rome.

The pay, she said "just about averages out the same as in the United States, plus the advantage of free travel." The salary is lower than in the U.S., but the low cost of living makes up the difference.

Shop at Commissary

Dependent families living in Tripoli do nearly all of their shopping at the field commissary but buy vegetables, eggs and some meat on the local market.

Eggs in Tripoli are 25 cents a dozen, tomatoes eight cents a pound, beefsteak 40 to 50 cents a pound. Top grade English woollens are expertly tailored into men's suits for up to $50, on the Corso Vittorio Emmanuele, Tripoli's main street.

Most of the American wives have at least one Arab servant, usually a "safragi" or cleaning boy. Most of them prefer to do their own cooking.

One drawback: Because it would offend the Moslem religion, Tripoli wives are sternly admonished by their husbands "never wear slacks or shorts on the streets."

No Survivors

By Will Henry

"Oh, thet ain't all, Ed. These boys is got nothin' but muzzle-loaders."

Geary's only answer was a groan.

"Ed, you figurin' to take your train through tonight?"

"Got to. Any livin' thing on this prairie 24 hours after Carrington brings them troops into Laramie won't be white and two legged."

We had no trouble. Our wagons being all mule drawn, the trail broad and clear this close to the fort, daybreak found us rattling into Laramie through the largest Indian encampment I'd ever seen.

As we forded the river, a group of about 50 mounted braves swept around one corner of the fort. In their lead rode a magnificent chief, tall, statuesque, his naked skin gleaming copper-red in the morning sun, a battle chief's full eagle feather bonnet shadowing his dark face and streaming down his muscular back. To my surprise, Ed and this splendid warrior greeted each other like long lost brothers.

After a moment's conversation in a language I thought was Cheyenne, the chief and his warriors rode off. I had the uncomfortable feeling the chief had taken too long a look at me while talking to Ed.

"That was Dull Knife, the Cheyenne. He is my brother."

I looked sharply at Geary to see if he were serious. He grinned at the earnestness of expression and, offhandedly as though speaking of the weather, told me he was half Cheyenne, his mother and the mother of Dull Knife being sisters. Strange the tricks of heredity. Looking at the two of us, one might very well take me for a blood Sioux, while my companion could be the typical white plainsman.

As if reading my thoughts, Geary at this moment remarked smilingly, "the chief wanted to know what tribe you were from. I told him I didn't know, that you came from far to the south of the Father of Waters, but that you were mighty in war, making big hmunha with the little guns."

"What is hmunha?" I asked, my curiosity aroused by Dull Knife's interest in me, with its supposition I was an Indian.

"Strong medicine," Geary replied. "The chief was impressed. He paid you an Indian compliment".

"Said you were unquestionably a chief among your own people. That you had the 'eyes and beak of the Hawk.'"

Geary and I seated ourselves with the army scouts, alongside Taylor's tent, a privilege arranged earlier through Captain Fetterman. Looking over the vast, restless panorama of savagery, I was struck with the queer feeling that something was unnatural about the whole picture.

"It's the silence," Geary said. "You find it only in Indian gatherings. Always dumfounds a white man first time he locks horns with it."

Scarcely had the negotiations opened, when the outermost ranks of warriors opened with a great shout. Down the hill, through the corridor thus opened, rode two chiefs, bedizened in such manner as to leave no doubt of their exalted rank. The larger wore a blanket of blood-red, topped by a war bonnet of pure white eagle feathers. He was a very large man. The other, an older man was trapped in white elkskin and quill-work, his face so hideously splattered with ochre and cobalt as to appear totally inhuman. Red Cloud and Man-Afraid-of-His-Horses had come to the council.

He was slender, of human, yet superb build. He rode stark naked, save for moccasins and breech clout of black wolfskin. His skin color was very dark, almost mahogany, his face, thin, aquiline nose, high-bridged; wide mouth, eyes set far apart and slanting; the chin beautifully chiseled and square.

I had guessed his identity when Geary, his voice for once excited, whispered in my ear, "Tashunka Witko! Crazy Horse!"

The council began. Well into the afternoon it ran. Taylor was skillful in debate and had the Indian's confidence. Red Cloud and Man-Afraid, with many minor chiefs, were coming to a point of agreement.

Here, with success in view, the thing which Geary dreaded and against which he had warned Captain Fetterman happened.

Down the long valley of the Platte, guidons streaming, band playing, ammunition and field wagons dumbling, men shouting a lusty "Hep, hep!" as they swung along, came Carrington's command.

The serried ranks of subchiefs began coming to their feet with the spreading action of a water ripple moving out from a cast stone. Only Crazy Horse remained seated.

Yet when he spoke, all were still and Carrington listened.

"Where goes the Little White Chief with the troops?"

Col. Henry B. Carrington was a man totally unversed in Indian dealing, moreover a man of frank and honorable character. In so may words he told Crazy Horse exactly what his mission was.

"My orders are to march into the Powder River country, there to build forts and garrison them. The forts and soldiers are to guard the new road to Motana, the Bozeman Trail."

At this, Red Cloud burst out, his voice shaking with fury. "The Great Father sends us presents and wants a new road, but the Little White Chief goes with soldiers to steal that road before the Indians say yes or no!"

By the middle of July, Carrington had garrisoned Fort Reno, just south of the Powder. Then with attention to orders but little sanity, he began building his new post, Fort Phil Kearney, 70 miles further north.

I had long since parted company with Ed Geary, he going on up the Bozeman Trail with our train, I staying as a civil scout and meat hunter for Carrington's command at Fort Kearney.

I was lounging in quarters, having been in the field the entire night previous, scouting a rumor of a giant war camp on the Tongue, when word came the captain wanted to see me.

I was immediately apprehensive. Fetterman was the one who had told Geary, "with 50 good men I could ride through the whole Sioux Nation." Earlier in the same day, one of the young officers had shown me a notebook kept by a private of his company, in which the latter had filed a list of game taken in the vicinity of the fort. Numbered carelessly among the elk, bear, antelope and buffalo, were "five common Indians."

It was with these thoughts I reported to Captain Fetterman, quickly learning my fears had been conservative.

"Clayton, we've got a wood train stuck over on the Tongue Ambushed and surrounded. Care to scout the action for me?"

"You're a gay blade, I thought to myself. Not every man would be so delighted at the prospect of having his brains pureed by a tomahawk. Aloud, I said, "I'll go. How many men are we taking?"

This was not presumptuous of me. I was a civilian scout. It was understood I had the right to refuse service, to question tactics Of course such an attitude persevered in was not conducive to long employment.

"Forty," he went on, in reply to my question. "Colonel Carrington insisted. 'Taking no chances. you know.'"

Two hours hard riding brought us within sound if firing. Lieutenant Wands and I went in ahead, scouting. We brought Fetterman back what appeared to be good news. The train, which I now knew had a guard of 20 soldiers was in excellent defensive position, the five wagons half circles up against an overhanging bluff 200 yards from the river on their front. There was a steady rifle fire pouring from the wagon. Twelve men were visible, on their feet and fighting.

On Fetterman's command we went cowboying down into the river valley, our troops yelling brandishing sabers, recklessly discharging side arms.

Our appearance heartened the defenders of the wood wagons and apparently demoralized the hostiles, for with echoing whoops they scattered off up the valley. In the van of their gallant pursuers galloped the eager Hussein, fat from six months of army oats while in his rocking saddle went Civilian Scout J. B. Clayton, for that moment and action quite as fat as his mount, notably in certain regions bounded by the hair and ears.

Past the wagons we went, pell-mell, on up the valley after the "cowardly redskins." No sooner had the last of our troops cleared rifle range of the wagons than the hills on both sides of the shallow Tongue disgorged such a lively number of interested friends and relatives of our intended victims as shortly to put in our rear, and between us and the wagons, no less than 100 Sioux and Cheyennes. It was a beautiful trap.

Fetterman actually gave a shout of pleasure when he saw our predicament. Splitting his command, he sent Lieutenant Wands and 30 men in a pistol-charge back at the Indians in our rear. Then with a joyous yell, he led the remaining eight troopers on a wild dash toward the 150 savages above us.

The ranks in front of us opened up like a great scarlet maw, swallowing Fetterman and his eight troopers whole. By some miracle I won through, breaking out behind the seething mass of warriors into the clear. By the time I could check Hussein, I beheld an equal miracle. Fetterman was still mounted, though the length of his future at that minute could have been counted in seconds on the fingers of one hand. The futures of his eight men were behind them.

The Indians, checked momentarily by my unexpected return and kept from slaughtering us with arrow fire by the fact they couldn't shoot without hitting each other, now swept forward to finish us off with lances. As they came I fired.

At such close quarters the effect was devastating. A path literally did open in the direction of my fire, the Indians pulling their charging ponies aside to get out of the way.

Behind us the Indians reformed, streaming after us in a wave Their bows were busy now, the air around us was hissing with arrows.

Before us lay no apparent escape. I had thought to try and join the survivors of the 30 troopers, should there be any, but on all the field not one showed, while between us and the wagons lay a sea of red warriors. At least 100 rode at us from the front, the remaining scores closing in on the wagons for the kill. I can remember an instant before we hit them, hearing a great cheer go up from the wagons. Our men had seen us.

A foolish phrase flashed through my mind "Well, Eyes-and-Beak-of-the-Hawk, you will never have a better audience for your Magic-with-the-little-guns performance." Then the pistols were in my hands.

In the short seconds of our gallop down the valley, Fetterman had come out of his shock. A stream of shots from his repeater joined with my fire to make a river of lead which impacted on the red ranks before us with the suddenness of water from a burst dam.

What is the Miracle of Canada?

The miracle of Canada is the reward of its thrifty people; it is a standard of living wrought by men and women who believe in spending and saving wisely. The average Canadian, for example, owns his own car and his own home. He pays his bills when due. His pattern of living is excellent.

When the pattern breaks

But unexpected emergencies do break the pattern. Usually the emergency requires more money than he has available. This can happen to anyone. Then help must come from a dependable outside service.

Red Concessions Rekindle Hope Of Christmas Truce

Exchange of Prisoners Thorny Matter to Solve

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 11—(AP)—Truce negotiators discussed exchange of war prisoners today for the first time and immediately tangled on how to do it.

The communists proposed all prisoners be released by both sides when an armistice is reached. The United Nations insisted on a "fair and equitable" exchange, which was interpreted as a man-for-man swap.

The prisoner question was taken up by a two-man sub-committee (one from each side) a few minutes after the communists capitulated to allied insistence that the subject be tackled now.

Simultaneously the red negotiators intimated they would agree to continued rotation of troops and to two other allied demands if the United Nations command would agree to neutral behind-the-lines inspection during a Korean armistice.

Reds Raise Complaint

The reds complained that a U.N. plane bombed and strafed the security area surrounding their Kaesong headquarters. But it appeared the incident would be smoothed over. Neither side seemed desirous of making it a major incident.

There has been no official word on how many prisoners the reds hold. But Lt.-Col. Howard M. Levie, U.N. spokesman, said communist broadcasts reported 139,000 U.N. and south Korean troops were held by the reds.

"Roughly I'd say we hold 100,000 North Koreans and between 15,000 and 20,000 Chinese," Levie said.

He estimated that the communists have 70,000 to 85,000 South Korean prisoners, and 12,000 to 14,000 U.N. prisoners. Of the U.N. group he estimated 1,000 to 1,500 were British, 1,000 were from other countries and the remainder were Americans.

His figures on possible American prisoners don't coincide with a recent U.N. atrocity report in which Col. James M. Hanley of the U.S. Eighth Army said the reds have killed about 5,600 Americans after taking them prisoner. Fewer than 11,000 Americans have been reported missing in action, so Hanley's figures would leave only about 5,000 Americans as potential prisoners.

Wants General Release

As a result of Tuesday's developments at Panmunjom, negotiators are working simultaneously on two of the three remaining clauses of a proposed armistice—supervision of the truce and exchange of prisoners.

Father Hanged For Slaying Of His Son

The body of the youth, killed with a rifle bullet, was found in his bed in the Davidoff home last April 16. Motive for the murder was said to have been a $2,500 life insurance policy which had been taken out on young Davidoff the previous fall. His father was sole beneficiary.

A petition, signed by more than 1,000 Doukhobors, sought to have the convicted man's sentence changed to life imprisonment. But defence counsel A. G. Cameron, of Trail, announced last night the Governor - General - in - Council would not interfere with the death sentence.

Typhoon Howls Out to China Sea, 23 Dead

Manila, Dec. 11 (AP) — A typhoon howled out into the China Sea today leaving 23 dead and tens of thousands homeless in the devastated central Philippines.

The Philippines news service reported 200 were missing.

The tropical cyclone ripped across Leyte, Cebu, Negros, Panay and neighboring islands Monday. Winds of 130 miles an hour blew away thousands of thatched huts, drove ships ashore, uprooted trees wholesale. Torrential rains floded rivers, washing away bridges and flooding sugar cane fields.

They crossed the strait to Mindanao Island by every means available. Behind them Hibok Hibok belched flames and smoke for the eighth consecutive day. Huge landslides thundered down its slopes.

The eruption killed at least 266 people. Another 500 are estimated buried under lava and ashes.

DRUNK DRIVING CHARGE

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Dec. 11—(CP) — Harry Lyons, newly-elected Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Sault Ste. Marie, was arrested early yesterday in neighboring Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., on a charge of drunken driving. Police said that, when arrested, he asked for an insulin injection.

GIVEN JAIL TERM

Toronto, Dec. 11 — (CP) — Alfred Greene, 39-year-old former school teacher, Monday was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500 for deserting his wife and four children. He pleaded guilty.

Greene and Mrs. Beatrice Reason, a former pupil of Greene's, were arrested in Chicago Nov. 15, 15 months after Greene's blood-spattered car was found in a Toronto ravine. Police said the fake murder scene was staged to cover Greene's flight to the United States with four-times-wed Mrs. Reason.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 11 (CP) —Synopsis: Light snow is fairly general over Northern Ontario and the Lake Huron region early this morning. This snow will continue its southward advance through the morning and by noon will be falling throughout southern Ontario. Snowfall amounts are not expected to exceed two inches except in the Lake Huron and southern Georgian Bay regions where falls up to 4 inches may occur.

The forecast for Wednesday is for cloudy skies with occasional snowflurries and temperatures 5 to 10 degrees below today's values.

BLAST DAMAGES HUGE OIL TANKER, FOUR INJURED

Imperial Leduc Will Go Into Drydock for Repairs

Sarnia, Ont., Dec. 11—(CP)—The huge oil tanker, Imperial Leduc, is expected to go into dry dock for repairs to damages from yesterday's explosion in her hull which injured four men and sent smoke billowing over Sarnia and neighboring Port Huron, Mich.

The 18,500-ton Imperial Oil Limited ship, one of the largest fresh-water tankers in the world, lay alongside her dock today. Despite damage to her plates officials said she is in no danger of sinking. She had a decided list to port.

Three of the four injured men are in Sarnia hospitals. Most seriously hurt is Michael E. Harris, of Corunna and London, Ont., an Imperial Oil Laboratory employee. His condition is termed critical as a result of burns to the face, hands, chest and legs, and extensive shock.

Capt. F. C. Smith, shore captain of the Imperial fleet, is also in hospital with burns to the hands and head. Stanley Pleasance, a 51-year-old native of Collingwood, is suffering from burned hands and head.

Pleasance was near the bow of the ship when the blast occurred in the forecastle.

"I heard a roar behind me and turned to see what had happened," he said. "The next moment I was laying flat on the deck. I looked up and tongues of flame were shooting overhead. I crawled to the protection of a hatch cover.

Some officials felt the damage to the ship wouldn't be as great as was first feared. They felt any would be to tank plates and tank frames deep inside the $4,000,000 vessel.

The Leduc was being cleaned out in preparation for loading a cargo of fuel oil for Toronto when the explosion occurred. The bottom of her tanks had been corroded. She had been carrying crude oil from the lakehead to Imperial refineries here since her launching last summer.

There was another smaller explosion following the first which injured the four, but it was of minor nature.

There were some 70 men working around the ship when the blast took place, but within a space of minutes the area had been cleared and company fire-fighting equipment was in action. They had the ensuing blaze under control in an hour.

Dr. J. L. Huggett, Sarnia refinery general manager, said he had no idea of what caused the explosion.

DIES OF INJURIES

Toronto, Dec. 11 —(CP)—Four-year-old Billy Turgeon died yesterday when he fell under the rear wheels of a dump truck. Police said the child may have slipped on the muddy pavement.

Canada Looms Large in Eyes Of Germans Seeking New Start

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hannover, Germany, Dec. 11—(CP)—In a single day this year, 1,300 Germans wrote to one of Canada's two immigration offices in this country and said they wanted to emigrate to Canada.

The Hannover office alone — the big one is at Karlsruhe— has a backlog of some 50,000 names of potential Canadians among these people who want to try a new life in a country which a few years ago was their enemy.

Soon after it became known, largely by word of mouth, that the Canadian government was putting up money for assisting movement across the Atlantic, people were lining up at 6 a.m. and the staff had a hard time to get into their office.

Movements from Europe were so heavy that funds set aside by Ottawa for assisted passages have been exhausted, with quick effects on the flow of emigrants. There are warm hopes over here that the system will be revived.

Some 20,000 Germans will reach Canada in this first year of mass emigration from Germany since the war.

They are all asked why they want to go. The stock answer is that they want to build new homes, new horizons for themselves or their families, in a land of greater opportunities than battered, divided Germany has to offer.

But there are probably underlying reasons as well. The Germans are tired of war, fear that a new war would devastate their land and possibly bring new, if transient, tyranny. They live amid mounting inflation, low pay, heavy unemployment with war ruins close around them. Millions of refugees have come in from the communist east to compound these problems.

And Canada's open spaces, her small population, her surging growth, appeal to them. Some Germans say they appeal more than the temptations of the United States. The main Associated Press office in Germany, at Frankfurt, in fact, recently lost two German staff men who emigrated—both to Canada.

Former German servicemen are among those who have gone to Canada, but not nazis nor communists. A close eye is kept by people trained in security work to see that political undesirables don't get in. But only about two percent of applicants here are turned down for security reasons.

Mutual Military-Aid Program Given Another $65,000,000 In Arms, Equipment by Canada

Ottawa, Dec. 11. (CP)—Canada has offered to the North Atlantic Treaty mutual military-aid program, another $65,000,000 worth of arms and ammunition besides the $200,000,000 worth of equipment already sent to Europe.

C. M. Drury, deputy minister of defence, disclosed this yesterday to the Commons' special committee on defence expenditure in tabling detailed information about Canada's forces and military commitments.

Canada already has equipped a division for each of The Netherlands, Belgium and Italy and sent smaller allotments to Luxembourg and other countries.

The deputy minister's return showed also that Canada has committed a further $24,784,000 worth of equipment to be diverted from new production sometime in the future.

The documents were tabled following testimony by M. W. Mackenzie, deputy minister of defence production. He said Canada has decided to purchase two British comet jet transports at a cost of $3,500,000 mainly because Canada's jetliner is not yet fully developed.

Development Halted

Development of the jetliner was being virtually halted—but not abandoned—to allow AVRO (Canada) Limited to concentrate on fighter production. He said the $8,000,000 already spent on the jetliner had helped to establish jet research in Canada.

A minor row developed in the committee when the chairman, Lt.-Col. Davis Croll (L—Toronto Spadina) moved to adjourn it until Thursday. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader whose party pressed for establishment of the committee, said if a three-day adjournment was taken, the committee would get "no real" information before the end of the session.

Mr. Drew moved that the committee meet again Tuesday, but his motion was defeated on a voice vote.

Detailed Documents

The detailed documents tabled by Mr. Drury made these disclosures:

1. Canada's 25th Brigade in Korea cost $72,636,064 to Nov. 30. This included $3,454,173 for movement to and training at Fort Lewis, Wash., last fall; $3,463,567 to get the Brigade to Korea and $38,751,203 for maintenance in the field since it landed late last year.
2. Canada's 27th Brigade, sent to Germany, has cost more than $12,000,000 to Nov. 30, including $3,545,898 involved in movement to the Hannover area of Germany.
3. R.C.A.F. participation in the Korean airlift cost $8,951,334 to Oct. 31 this year.
4. Canada's destroyer contribution to the United Nations Naval Forces in Korean waters cost $6,639,803 to Oct. 31.

These figures include pay and allowances for the forces involved.

Senator Wants Two of Truman's Top Cabinet Members Fired

Washington, Dec. 11—(CP)—A California Republican senator has demanded that two top members of President Truman's cabinet be fired because of the tax scandal currently being investigated here.

Senator Richard Nixon said both Attorney-General Howard McGrath and Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder "should be fired" as was done with McGrath's former assistant, T. Lamar Caudle.

Caudle was fired by the president last month for "outside activities" which the White House deemed incompatible with his duties as assitant attorney-general in charge of tax fraud prosecutions.

The House of Representatives ways and means sub-committee, investigating tax irregularities, has brought out testimony that Caudle received a $5,000 commission on the sale of an airplane to a representative of defendants in a tax fraud case.

Capping all that was the sensational story of Abaraham Teitelbaum that two men, one of them a frequent associate of Caudle at race tracks and other places, tried to shake Teitelbaum down last April for $500,000 under threat he would have tax troubles.

McGrath testified today before a sub-committee. He said he holds "no brief" for any "indiscreption" by Caudle.

As McGrath testified, Washington seethed with rumors that President Truman is about to take some dramatic action in the situation and that the heads of still more top officials will roll before long.

At the White House, presidential secretary Joseph Short was told by reporters of a headline in one newspaper saying that McGrath was about "through."

Asked whether this was true, Short said:

Mr. McGrath has not resigned, if that's what you are asking me about."

Short had no comment on Senator Nixon's suggestion that McGrath and Snyder should resign.

Last night Cecil King, Democratic representative from California and chairman of the sub-committee, denounced Caudle as a public official guilty of indiscretions amounting "to a breach of your public trust."

Caudle, a voluble witness, admitted to indiscretions but denied any dishonesty. He sat silent as King told him: "The damage you have done to your government will take a long time to repair."

FOUR-HOUR FIRE

Brampton, Ont., Dec. 11 — (CP) — A four - hour fire last night destroyed 20,000 bushels of grain stored in an elevator owned by the Brampton Milling Company. Several dull explosions were heard inside the elevator and sparks from the flaming 100-foot structure threatened several homes in the area. There was no estimate of the damage and the cause of the fire was unknown.

Russia, Western Powers Agree On Commission

Paris, Dec. 11—(AP)—United Nations assembly president Luis Padilla Nervo officially reported today that Russia and the western powers have agreed to set up a new disarmament commission. But the opposing sides still are far apart on how the commission should operate, he added.

Canada, along with the 11 members of the U. N. security council, would make up the new disarmament commission.

Padilla Nervo's report summed up the results of 10 days of secret talks among the big four on how to end the world arms race. Padilla Nervo presided over the talks.

The agreement to set up a new commission—which would deal with both atomic and conventional weapons—appeared to be the only concrete result of the conversations about rival Soviet and western plans for disarmament.

Padilla Nervo's report was unanimously approved by the four powers—Russia, Britain, France and the United States—who asked that it be considered their formal report to the U. N. political committee.

The three western powers in a separate statement said the talks were "frank and objective" but "fundamental differences still remain."

VOTE HELD INVALID

Timmins, Dec. 11 — (CP) Timmins ratepayers won't be allowed to vote on the question of a town bus system in Wednesday's municipal election. Originally called for in a by-law passed Nov. 19 by the town council, the vote was held to be invalid by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of Ontario today because council abrogated its powers in asking the voters to decide a question which should have been settled by council.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Kingston, Dec. 11 — (CP) — Allan Vernon Lyons, 33, yesterday was committed for trial on a charge of murder in the stabbing to death of his wife Nov. 10. He will be tried by an assize court jury next February.

FATHER OF EDITOR DIES

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 11 — (CP) — Alfred Vaughan, father of Harold Vaughan, executive editor of the Windsor Daily Star, and Douglas Vaughan, the Star's sports editor, died yesterday. He was 79.

NO TAXATION CHANGES UNTIL NEXT BUDGET

--Abbott

Drops Hint Cigaret Tax May be Reduced Then

Ottawa, Dec. 11—(CP) — Finance Minister Abbott, defending his taxation policies, told the Commons yesterday that no tax changes will be made until he brings down the 1952-53 budget in March or April.

He dropped a broad hint that the tax on cigarets may be reduced then, but as for other taxes he will assess the situation in the spring.

Mr. Abbott spoke after John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) called for a vote of non-confidence in the government because of its taxation policies.

"I am quite prepared to stand by the fiscal proposals I made last March," said Mr. Abbott. He wished to deny, he added, that there has been any over taxation of the people.

Mr. Diefenbaker moved his motion during the throne-speech debate. It will be voted on later in the session, possibly Wednesday.

At the house opening, Justice Minister Garson introduced a bill to outlaw resale price maintenance—the fixing of retail prices of manufacturers or suppliers. The controversial bill, one of several measures remaining on the order paper, may be debated today.

Extend Sitting Hours

Members agreed to extend their sitting hours, starting Wednesday, in an effort to finish their work either this week or early next week. They voted 129 to 26 for the extension after George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, protested that members could not work on committees and in the Commons at the same time.

In the main debate, Mr. Diefenbaker criticized the government's tobacco tax, increased in the last budget, as a "national scandal" which has decreased revenues in that field and led to smuggling and increased lawlessness in the country.

Mr. Abbott agreed that cigaret consumption has dropped, but said it probably is due partly to the higher tax, partly to the price increase by cigaret manufacturers and partly to an accumulation of inventories prior to the spring budget.

He said, too, that the question of smuggling is "a very important one" and that when a tax is pushed to the point where there is "too great an incentive" to break the law the situation should be "pretty carefully considered."

Mr. Diefenbaker referred to the surplus of $605,000,000 for the first seven months of 1951-52 and recalled that Mr. Abbott had forecast a surplus of only $30,000,000.

Mr. Abbott replied that the budgetary surplus of $605,000,000 does not mean that the government has that much extra cash on hand. Payments over and above the ordinary budgetary expenditures had reduced the surplus to $208,000,000 at Oct. 31.

Communist Fight Against Christianity Grows in Intensity Each Passing Day

Hong Kong, Dec. 11—(AP) — Chinese communists efforts to drive the Roman Catholic Church out of China have reduced the number of foreign Catholic missionaries from almost 5,000 to 1,879. Every day more are expelled.

More protestant missionaries, never as numerous as the catholics, have left China. The protestants have no central office here which keeps records so the number still in China isn't known But it is small by comparison.

The latest count showed 142 catholic foreign missionaries in China jails and probably twice that number under house arrest. Additional scores are awaiting "expulsion."

The communist fight against Christianity in China has grown in intensity ever since Peiping set up its own church and tried to force foreign missionaries to divert their flocks to it. Catholics flatly refused and the red wrath has been visited upon them ever since.

Today it became known here that Bishop Leon de Smedt, 70, of Saint Nicholas, Belgium, died after three months imprisonment at Siwantze (Mongolia). He was arrested for opposing the Peiping church.

An unconfirmed report said Bishop of the Hong Kong diocese is in a red jail in Hoifung, Kwangtung Province. He was in Kwangtung when he became bishop on the death of Henry Valtorta Sept. 3.

Late reports also said Rev. Thomas Langley, an American from Framingham, Mass., was jailed Dec. 1 at Hsuchow in Kwangsi Province; that Archbishop Alexander Derouineau of France was jailed at Kunming, and that Archbishop Louis G. Jantzen of France was jailed at Chungking.

Opposition Makes Bold Bid to Topple Iran Government

Factions Fight Bitterly Before Parliament Gates

Tehran, Iran, Dec. 11—(AP)—Opposition deputies made a bold bid today to topple the government of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh as a nationalist mob battered on the parliament (Majlis) gates, shouting for the blood of the aged premier's opponents.

Inside the packed building several persons were injured as supporters and opponents of the government fought briefly with fists and feet, delaying the parliament session.

When the Majlis chamber finally was cleared of press and public and the session opened opposition deputies at once leaped to attack the premier whose oil nationalization program ejected the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and ended Iran's chief revenues from oil production.

Yelling at the top of their lungs, the opposition accused Mossadegh of leading Iran into terror and ruin and demanded that he resign.

The crowd outside, realizing that the eight-month-old government was at stake, raced for radio loudspeakers to hear the broadcast of the session.

Some 500 army troops, armed with rifles and bayonets, were parked outside the building in trucks.

Did Not Heed Clamor

Opposition deputies didn't heed the clamor outside. As Mossadegh walked unsteadily to the rostrum, his opponents in the chamber jeered, booed and banged at their desks in an angry uproar.

Mossadegh threatened to go outside to deliver his address, but finally yielded the floor to opponents, telling them to talk first. The premier had been slated to deliver an ultimatum to the west to start buying Iranian oil within 10 days. If the west did not, presumably the oil would be offered to the Soviet bloc.

In the square outside the building, nationalist orators earlier had whipped the crowd to a frenzy, yelling "death to the opposition deputies."

Nationalists Predominate

The nationalists followers of Mossadegh predominated in the crowd in Majlis square, some were armed with sticks. No communists were in sight among those rushing the parliament gates, nor in more hundreds loitering in the sunlit square.

Some 42 oppositionists—deputies, newspaper editors and actors—have been in refuge inside the building during the weekend, charging they were in danger from nationalist mobs who sacked newspaper offices and a theatre during communist-nationalist last Thursday.

The deputies and reporters charged the riot—in which eight persons were killed and more than 200 were injured—was fomented by government officials to crush all opposition in advance of national elections expected to be held about Dec. 20.

The government has denied their charges.

Conservatives Win By-Election In Calgary West

Calgary, Dec. 11—(CP)—Tradition was upheld yesterday when Carl O. Nickle, 37-year-old Progressive Conservative making his political debut, was elected to parliament in the Calgary West federal by-election.

Calgary West electors have voted Conservative all but once in seven general elections and three by-elections in the last 26 years. R. B. Bennett, former Conservative prime minister, initiated the trend in 1925 and represented the riding for 14 years. This was the first by-election to be contested.

Mr. Mickle won handily in a three-way fight. When vote-counting ended at 11 p.m. last night with 193 of 199 polls reported he had 10,513 votes to 6,280 for Liberal Dr. Frank G. Buchanan, 65-year-old retired school superintendent, and 5,279 for Social Crediter Arthur J. Dixon, 32-year-old real estate executive.

The by-election was made necessary by the resignation of lawyer A. L. Smith, who had held the seat for the Progresive Conservatives since 1945 before ill health enforced his retirement last summer.

In the 1949 general election Mr. Smith polled 11,457 votes to 8,619 for Liberal C. C. Matthews and 6,758 for Mr. Dixon.

Despite ideal weather and road conditions there was a 20-percent drop in the total vote from 1949. Then. 27,054 of the 38,511 eligible voters—or about 70 per cent—cast ballots. There were 44,901 qualified voters yesterday, 35,498 in the city.

Three Children Burned to Death In Cape Breton

Halifax, Dec. 11 — (CP) — Three children lost their lives after fire destroyed a frame dwelling at the northern tip of Cape Breton last night, it was learned when a rescue plane landed here today.

An R.C.A.F. search and rescue plane landed with Raymond Briand, 2, who was in serious condition. His two brothers and one sister died. They are: Barbara, 7 months; Stewart, 3; and Herman, 4.

Barbara died in the flames. Herman died in hospital at Neil's Harbor last night and Stewart died this morning on the way to the plane which was to have brought him to Halifax for treatment.

Facilities at the Neil's Harbor Red Cross Hospital, a few miles from their Smelt's Cove dwelling in the rugged Cape Breton northland, were insufficient to take care of the badly-burned children.

The tots were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Briand, away from the home when the blaze broke out shortly after dusk. Cause of the blaze was not known.

CLOTHESLINE THIEVES ACTIVE IN CITY

Clothesline thieves are busy again.

Police received a complaint from a Moira Street housewife yesterday that 10 pairs of women's garments had been stolen from the clothesline in her back yard. The underwear disappeared some time Friday night, it was stated.

O.S.D. Students Will Spend Christmas at Home

Approximately 340 of the 361 students at the Ontario School for the Deaf will spend the Christmas holidays at their homes, Superintendent W. J. Morrison said today.

Upwards of seventy students, residents in the northern and other distant parts of the province will leave on Thursday afternoon of this week with 270 leaving the next day.

The twenty students who will remain in residence will enjoy Christmas in a homelike atmosphere, with all the "trimmings."

The school Christmas parties will be held on Wednesday afternoon when Santa Claus will pay his annual visit to the various classrooms.

The school re-opens for the new year term on January 3rd.

Bay of Quinte Buttermakers' Club Winners

A three-man judging team representing the Bay of Quinte Buttermakers' Club won top honors at the 30th annual butter and cream judging competitions held in conjunction with the annual convention of the Ontario Creamery Association at Toronto last Friday.

Members of the championship team were Roy Jose, of Belleville Creameries; Douglas Ptolemy, Glen Roy Creamery and Russell Reid, Trenton Dairies, Trenton. They were awarded trophies and prizes donated by the Canadian Vegetable Parchment Company for the highest team standing in butter judging and also the S. F. Lawrason and Company trophies for having the highest aggregate in both butter and cream judging.

Jose also had the highest individual standing in butter judging and received a separate trophy.

The object of the competitions is to train employees in creameries in the art of butter and cream judging.

Prowlers Escape From Building

Interrupted while prowling around in the "Quinte" sea cadet headquarters on South Front St., two men made good their escape last evening when they ran down the street and disappeared around the corner.

One of the sea cadets from the local corps discovered the two men when he entered the building shortly after the supper hour. The men ran out the door with the cadet in hot pursuit but they made good their getaway in the darkness. A close check revealed nothing was missing from the building.

Given 3 Months For Assault Of Daughter

Found guilty on a charge of assaulting his daughter, Stanley Parks, of Madoc township, was sentenced by Judge J. C. Anderson to three months definite and three months indeterminate.

Parks appeared in county court on the assault charge last week before His Honor Judge Anderson. Testimony was that he had beaten his 16-year-old daughter after pulling her out of bed. He was remanded until today for sentence. Two morals charges against Parks were laid over until next spring.

Lavender Heads Councillor Poll At Marmora

Marmora — William Lavender headed the poll for councillors' seats at the election of Marmora village held on Monday securing 339 votes. A total of 478 electors cast votes of an electoral roll totalling about 550, occasioning an 87 per cent of the balloting strength participating in the election. Although a newcomer to the council, this councillor elect was until a few years ago village constable. Finishing second and third were two retiring councillors, Ritchie Wells polled 224 votes and Jack Reynolds was third with 201 votes. Carl Heath making his debut as a councillor managed to get the fourth seat with 194 votes. Trailing him was Harold Price, also with 189 votes. Arthur Pack received 172 votes but retiring councillors Fred Johnston and Arnold Walker saw defeat with 150 and 147 votes.

For hydro commissioner, Ralph Neal, ex-reeve, failed to defeat Fred Wells who has held the office for several years, but got 219 votes as against 246 received by the commissioner-elect. By noon, in spite of the fine weather of the morning only 75 had cast ballots. The tempo increased from 1 to 3 p. m. and the great rushes of voters were from 4 to 6 p.m. The election passed off with utmost goodwill and although the careful checking of votes which it entailed, was not completed until 9.30 p. m., a large crowd outside the hall waiting for the previous two and a half hours, then surged in and village clerk E. C. Prentice, who had been too busy to adjourn for supper, presided for a round of speeches by winning and defeated candidates.

The election was the second within the last 30 years when eight sought the four seats in the council. But for sickness the number of votes would have been nearer 500.

Two Members Lindsay Police Force Suspended

Lindsay, Dec. 11—(CP)—Two members of Lindsay's four-man police force Monday night were suspended for one week.

The suspension of constables Gordon McCartney and Russell Hargrave arose out of breaking-and-entering charges against William Daynes and Thomas Bolderstone, former member of Lindsay police force. The charges were dismissed.

Mel Cunningham, Lindsay lawyer, testified he saw two men entering the lane behind an electrical store. A few minutes later he heard scraping and glass breaking. He said he was unable to identify the two men charged as the two in the lane.

Constables McCartney and Hargrave said they had seen Bolderstone near the area but did not connect him with the break-in because he was several feet away from the store.

106-Year-Old Woman Suffering From Pneumonia

Owen Sound, Dec. 11 — (CP)—Mrs. Matilda Stickland Evans is in hospital here with pneumonia, but she is expected to recover. She is 106 years old.

Hospital authorities today reported her condition as satisfactory.

Mrs. Evans was born in Dorset, England, May 6, 1845. She came to Canada when she was 10 years old.

Her husband died many years ago. She lives in Owen Sound and cares for herself without assistance. Her spotless home bears testimony to her energy despite the passing of so many years.

Mrs. Evans has one son, Seymour, in Toronto. He is about 70 years old.

Christmas Story Given Before H. & S. Assoc.

Madoc—The December meeting of the Home and School Association held in the Madoc High School auditorium took the form of a delightful presentation of the Christmas Story to an audience of parents and friends, which filled the hall to capacity.

In delivering the Christmas message the Rev. T. H. Good reminded his listeners that in celebrating the birth of Christ we were celebrating the greatest event in the history of the world. From a human point of view, Jesus was born into a poor home, but it was a perfectly happy home and that is the richest home on earth.

From behind a bank of gaily lighted Christmas trees the clear young voices of the public school choir rendered many traditional Christmas hymns and seasonal melodies whilst on the stage the tableaux were presented by a host of angels in white gowns with sparkling wings, whose rendition of "Away In A Manger" was captivating; shepherds who came adoring, chief priests and scribes to enquire; kings to present their gifts, whilst Joseph and Mary watched over the Infant Jesus; the pageant ended with the flight into Egypt, and to the strains of "O Come All Ye Faithful" the cast of nearly 200 children filed through the auditorium.

Mrs. Gregor Murray, on behalf of those present, delivered a vote of thanks to Miss Wurm and the children and the pianist, Ronald Robertson, who worked so hard, and who, with the energetic co-operation of the public school staff, had presented such a colorful interpretation of the Christmas Story.

Presbyterians Hold Meeting At St. Andrew's

Campbellford— The monthly meeting of the U. R. Welcome Club of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held on Thursday evening in the church basement.

Mrs. Eva Fraser, the president, conducted the meeting with Mrs. Fred Rabethge as pianist for the devotional portion.

Mrs. Fraser reported on the sale of Christmas cards under auspices of the club. Treasurer Bruce Hay gave his report.

A nominating committee was elected to choose officers for the new year. The club approved the granting of $10 if needed, toward candy for the Sunday School concert.

An invitation to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn having been accepted, the date was set for December 17. A committee was chosen to arrange the details and lunch. A maximum value of 50 cents was set for gift exchange among those attending the December 17 party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Meiklejohn.

A CPR travelogue on western Canada was given by Kenneth Kingston. A vote of thanks was moved by Bruce Grills.

The meeting closed with a prayer by Mrs. Toombs.

Hot Pipes Cause Fire Alarm

Campbellford — Overheated stove pipes threatened to cause a fire at a home on the outskirts of Campbellford on Sunday night. The home had recently been rebuilt after a fire.

The fire truck responded. On finding the fire outside the corporation, waited until permission was granted by the town council, before proceeding. Permission was granted and the truck continued on its way. There was no damage.

Two Automobiles In Collision

Campbellford—No one was injured but slight damage resulted from an accident on Highway 30 about two miles south of Campbellford on Sunday night.

Brian Vanderly, 20, of R.R. 5, Campbellford, was travelling north when his car developed trouble. He stopped on the highway without lights. William Hay, of Campbellford, age 19, was travelling in the same direction and did not notice the parked car until he was almost upon it. A car was travelling quite close behind him and another car was approaching from the opposite direction. Hay swung his vehicle sharply to the left, and the two rear fenders of the Hay car and the parked auto collided. The Hay vehicle narrowly missed hitting the approaching car head on. Less than $100 damage resulted to the two vehicles.

EXPENSIVE CLUBHOUSE

Sydney, Australia. (Reuters)—Banned by restrictions from building a welfare club six years ago, a local organization now has received permission to go ahead with the job. There's a snag—the tender for the building has increased from $23,000 to $64,000 in six years.

Pope May Soon Name Cardinals To Sacred College

Vatican City, Dec. 11—(AP)—The approach of Christmas is giving new impetus to speculation that the Pope soon will name cardinals to bring the membership of the sacred college to its full strength of 70.

Some Vatican sources express belief the Pope will name candidates for the red hat on Christmas Eve, when he receives the traditional greetings of the cardinals resident in Rome. The consistory probably would be held early in 1952.

Deaths of cardinals since the consistory of February, 1946, have thinned the membership to 49, leaving 21 places vacant.

No official confirmation of such intentions on the part of the Pope could be obtained, but it was recalled here that he announced the names of cardinals-to-be last time on Christmas Eve, 1945. The consistory was held Feb. 18, 1946.

The Conservative Rome newspaper, Giornale D'Italia, today carried a dispatch of L'Informazione, a small news distributing agency, which said it learned the Pope would announce the names of new cardinals Christmas Eve.

However, it gave the names of only 10 prelates—nine Italian and one French—who, it said, would be elevated to the rank of prince of the church.

The agency said it is not likely that Archbishop Alojzjic Stepinac of Zagreb, recently released from jail by Yugoslav authorities, would be given the red hat at this time. Such a step now would be avoided by the Vatican, the agency said, to prevent further embittering of relations with Yugoslavia.

Four Ontario Girls Given Life Saving Awards

Toronto, Dec. 11 — (CP)—Four Ontario girls have been given life saving awards by the Canadian Council, Girl Guides Association, executive secretary S. Dorothy Hooper announced today.

A 16-year-old Toronto Sea Ranger, Gloria Gerner, and two 11-year-old Willisville Brownies, Myrna Campbell and Linda Lou Witty, were awarded the Silver Cross for their courageous rescues.

Gale Campbell, 9, also of Willisville, was awarded the Gilt Cross for assisting her sister and Linda Lou Witty in saving Marjorie Spry from drowning July 17.

A boat carrying three people, all over 60 years of age, overturned near the summer resort where Miss Gerner was working. She heard their cries for help, jumped into Lake Kashawackamac, near Harlow, fully clothed and swam about 75 yards to save them.

She instructed two of the persons to cling to the boat while she swam back to shore with one woman. Then she returned for the others.

TORONTO STOCKS

Papers and steels attracted firm support while utilities, constructions and retail stores weakened. Textiles, liquors and manufacturing companies dipped sharply.

Base Metals slipped. Consolidated Smelters dipped $1 after an early gain. Noranda lost $2 while Quemont eased fractions. Cassiar climbed strongly but Golden Manitou, Normetal, New Calumet and Silver Standard weakened.

Western oils made little headway. Calmont, Calvan Consolidated, Central Leduc and Sapphire strengthened while Canadian Atlantic, Calgary and Edmonton and Royalite eased.

Dome, Lake Shore and Malartic gained in the senior gold list. Secondary issues showed a majority of penny advances.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Dec. 11 — (CP) Trade was dull at the Ontario stockyards today with prices 50 cents to $1 lower on all grades. Receipts: cattle 600, calves 90, hogs 300, sheep and lambs 50. The leftover from Monday was 1,400 cattle.

Medium to good weight steers were $33-$34 with a few choice steers selling at $35-$36. Common to medium light steers and heifers brought $25-$32 with boners selling downward to $20. Common to medium cows sold $21-$24 with canners and cutters bringing $15-$19. A few bulls sold steady at $23-26.50 while fed yearlings made $31-36 according to quality. Common to medium stockers brought $27-$32.

Veal calves were steady at $36-$38 for choice quality and from $26-$35 for common, lights, medium and heavies.

There were no hog prices established.

Lambs sold steady at $32.25 for good ewes and wethers with bucks selling at $1 discount. Culls sold mostly $25. Medium to good sheep brought $16-$22.

Allied Pilots Probably Knocked Down Two MIGS

Seoul, Dec. 12 (Wednesday) — (AP)—Allied jet pilots probably destroyed two Russian made MIG 15s and damaged two others in two flashing air battles over northwest Korea today.

The Fifth Air Force reported all allied jets returned safely although 62 of them were pitted against 115 MIGs in the two engagements.

The first air battle in MIG Alley was between 26 Sabre jets and 50 MIGs. One MIG was probably destroyed.

Late Tuesday, 36 Sabres took on 65 MIGs near the northwest Korean city of Sinanju, scoring one probable and two damaged.

In the southern provinces, South Korean troops pressed their campaign against an estimated 8,000 red guerrillas and bandits in the Chiri Mountains.

Thus far the South Koreans have reported 1,043 reds killed and 1,580 captured. Many guerrillas have surrendered.

The alleged red chieftan, Lee Hyung Sang, still is at large. He is a former leading member of the outlawed communist Labor party. The government has placed a price of 1,000,000 won ($167) on his head.

MAKES NO STATEMENT

Ottawa, Dec. 11 — (CP) Prime Minister St. Laurent said yesterday in the Commons he could make no comment at this time on the case of Kurt Meyer, Nazi war general sentenced to life imprisonment for responsibility in the killing of Canadian prisoners of war during the last war.

HEAVY LIVESTOCK LOSS

Ladner, B. C., Dec. 11 — (CP)—Five hundred pigs and 1,500 chickens perished in a fire Saturday night at the nearby farm of How Cam. A two-storey barn was destroyed. The loss was estimated at $50,000.

STIRLING

Election Date Set by Council

Stirling — A by-law naming Monday, December 31st at 8 p.m. as the date for holding nominations and Monday, January 7th, 1952, as the date for the election (if required) was given its several readings and passed by council at the regular monthly meeting held in the council chambers on Monday evening. Reeve Wells was in the chair and councillors West, Rodgers and Montgomery were present.

Clerk Mallory submitted a report from Councillor Wm. Montgomery, chairman of the streets committee on sidewalk construction showing 1480 square feet built for $646.80 or approximately $4.39 per square yard.

The clerk also reported that $663.07 had been received from the county of Hastings being 25 per cent rebate on the 1951 county road levy.

Harry Francis waited upon council in the interests of the Business Men's Association which was sponsoring the Santa Claus parade. The usual grant of $50 was made by council.

Owing to the shortage of steel council decided to order two 20-foot cutouts with two couplings from the Roofer's Supply Co. with delivery in February.

Councillor West reported a number of trees on village streets that should be cut and the members will make a tour in the near future to determine which trees will go under the axe.

By-law to raise $15,000 by debenture for construction of a new hydro sub station was given its final reading.

Several accounts were ordered paid.

Many Special Visits

Mr. Fred Bateman, Grand Master of the Loyal Orange Order of Ontario East has made several official visits lately.

Last Thursday evening he paid his official visit to Carleton County and was guest speaker at a banquet held in North Gower with over 350 in attendance. The guest speaker was Rev. W. Patterson of Lachine, Que., while M. Worthy Bro. Jas. A. Clancy of Vancouver, Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America, Rt. Wor. Bro. John Corrigan, P.G.M. and Rt. Wor. Bro. Bateman also spoke.

Mr. and Mrs. Bateman were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Montgomery, parents of Gerald Montgomery, who served as assistant agricultural representative here some years ago.

On Friday evening Rt. Wor. Bro. Bateman paid a visit to West Peterborough with a banquet at which he was the principal speaker being held in Peterborough Orange Hall. He also has visited several district lodges at their annual meetings.

Christmas Service

Christmas communion service was observed at St. Paul's United Church on Sunday morning with a good attendance. The royal choir rendered an anthem, "Lead Me Lord" by Wesley. The senior choir rendered "God So Loved the World." A male quartet also rendered a number.

At the evening service Mr. K. A. Patterson led in the singing of Christmas carols. Mr. Jack Bush rendered a solo and the choir rendered an uncommon carol "Sweet Baby Sleep." Miss Ruth Donnan rendered a solo "Infant Holy."

The drama was in two parts. The first: "The Nativity of our Lord according to St. Matthew and the second part the Nativity according to St. Luke with Mr. Wm. Wilkins as narrator.

Mr. George Carlisle as King Herod, Mr. X. P. Mayhew as Joseph, Mrs. Don Tucker as Mary and Wayne Tucker as baby, Jesus.

The Wisemen and Shepherds were Messrs. G. Belcour, J. Bush, W. Elliott, Z. Jeffrey, R. Tucker and H. Wells.

Mr. Maurice Bell handled the lighting.

The angels were, Mrs. C. A. Wells and Mrs. Walter Elliott.

Mrs. Baker rendered for the organ prelude a Danish carol, "Angels at Christmastide". The offertory interlude "The Shepherds at the Crib". P. Gregory Heigle, O.S.B., and the organ postlude, French carol "Patapan".

WILL APPEAL SENTENCE

Toronto, Dec. 11 — (CP) — Attorney General Porter yesterday announced that his department will appeal sentences recently imposed on four Toronto youths, convicted of raping a 16-year-old girl, on the grounds that the sentences were too lenient. Mr. Justice Gale sentenced Robert Williams, Robert Whyte, Robert Blair and Donald O'Brien to terms ranging from four months definite to one year definite and six months indeterminate.

RED CONCESSIONS

Lee proposed this solution in the 2 1-2 hour meeting:

"After the armistice agreement is signed, all prisoners possessed by both sides shall be released."

Libby countered with a two-point plan:

"1. Early, regulated exchange of prisoners-of-war on a fair and equitable basis and under suitable supervision.

In response to Lee's questioning, Libby said that by "fair and equitable" he means an exchange which would not give either side an advantage if hostilities are resumed.

Levie said the allies were not going to hand the reds a lot of troops they could use to strengthen their North Korean and Chinnese armies. He said if the allies hold more prisoners than the reds, the exchange would be disproportionate.

"In effect," Libby said, the reds "refused to discuss anything until we agreed" to release all prisoners as soon as an armistice is signed.

Charge Blackmail

The red negotiators agreed to take up the prisoner question after eight days of allied pressure. U. N. command spokesman had accused the communists of blackmail and using prisoners as a "human club" to force acceptance of red terms for policing a truce.

In an attempt to speed work of the truce supervision sub-committee, Chinese Maj.-Gen. Hsieh Fang made a tentative conciliatory move to untangle one of the committee's knottiest problems.

He intimated, conditionally, the reds would go along with the allied demand (1) to continue troop rotation (2) replace worn out equipment and (3) create a single organization to supervise the armistice.

The condition was that the U.N. command accept the red proposal that neutrals conduct behind-the-lines inspection. The allies want joint U.N.-red teams to do the supervising.

Both sub-committees adjourned until 11 a.m., Wednesday (9 p.m. Tuesday EST).

MADE JEWELRY HAUL

Stratford, Ont., Dec. 11 (CP) —Thieves last night stole jewelry valued at between $8,000 and $10,000. Rings, watch chains and cufflinks were taken from a car parked outside a Stratford hotel. The car belonged to J. A. Mellidge, Tillsonburg, a salesman.

News of Trenton

Gunter, Armstrong Are Elected To Trenton Town Council

Trenton (Special) —Results of yesterday's municipal election indicated that the voice of labor again spoke, defeating two of last year's councilmen and electing trucker Clifford Gunter and insurance and ticket agent Reg. M. Armstrong to the new board.

Trainman Ross Burtt again headed the polls with a total of 1,438 and his nearest rival was garage operator Claude V. Graham with 1,256. Newcomer C. Gunter surprised the experts by placing third with 1,084.

Accountant Norman Banfield, who came out alone on the community centre platform, was returned to office in fourth position, one place lower than last term. He collected 974 votes.

The hottest race was for the sixth seat. Last year's chairman of finance, Victor J. Ryan, ex-councillor Donald J. Sutherland and Reg. Armstrong vied for the position from when the first figures were received until the final results were tallied. Ryan, who was fighting his 13th campaign fell by the wayside, 15 short of Armstrong. Sutherland was only a few votes back of Ryan at the end.

The bus franchise question carried. The 'yes' vote numbered 1,715 and 453 voted 'no.'

The ratepayers by nearly a two to one vote adopted the community centre question. There were 935 for the centre and 495 against it.

The community centre planning and development committee is now going ahead with plans to raise $150,000 by government grants and public subscriptions. When they have collected this sum the town will then issue debentures in the amount of $100,000 payable over a 20-year period to make up the needed quarter-of-a-million dollars for erection of the centre.

Another surprise came in the election for board of education when voters failed to return last year's chairman, M. Andison.

BARBARA ANN IN TORONTO

Toronto, Dec. 11 (CP) —Barbara Ann Scott, Canadian skater currently starring in the Hollywood ice revue, arrived in Toronto today by air. Her show has just finished a three-week engagement in Indianapolis, Ind., and she hopes to spend a few days in Toronto before rejoining the revue in Chicago.

THREE DIE IN FIRE

Mont Laurier, Que., Dec. 11—(CP)—A 31-year-old mother and two of her four children perished yesterday in a fire that destroyed their two-storey home three miles west of this Labelle county town. Dead are Mrs. Aristide Limoges, her six-year-old daughter, Claudette, and one-year-old son, Jean.

Stephen Woolley Leaves Hospital

Trenton (Special) — Three-year-old Stephen Woolley who was rescued from the icy waters of the Trent River yesterday improved sufficiently in Trenton Memorial Hospital that he was allowed to return home with his parents, Flying Officer and Mrs. S. K. Woolley of 149 Victoria Avenue.

Farm Forum News

Much interest was created by the weekly broadcast and discussion on the topic, "Educational Outlets for Adults". The attendance at the four meetings reported was respectively 26, 15, 14, 9.

All agreed that farm forum discussion groups and the film council with discussion on films are a desirable forum of education; also agriculture short courses such as motor mechanics, horticulture and handicrafts.

Those reporting stated that the evening is not wasted in card playing, or similar amusement. The broadcast is listened to, then discussed in groups and carried on when groups meet together.

Hazzards discussed a project they have undertaken—a community history on the line of a Tweedsmuir book. Last year they had a book exchange and this year have written for a travelling library through farm forum.

Brookdale forum arranged for a book exchange for next week and suggested that we have a book review and revive the old time spelling match.

Foxboro forum has arranged to send a girl to Kingston for the short course during Christmas holidays. They are also making arrangements to discuss credit unions.

All four report good reception and material and discussion gave much food for thought.

St. John's W. A. Holds Successful Bazaar

The visitors were greeted at the door by the president, Mrs. E. Hodgins. Christmas music was played by Miss Mabel Frances and Mrs. E. H. Foster.

The bazaar and tea was convened by Mrs. D. Kleinstueber, Mrs. Albert McTaggart and Mrs. Harold Foster.

In charge of the apron and fancy work tables were, Mrs. H. Austin and Mrs. Roy Jones. The home cooking booth with its cakes, tarts, cookies, buns, bread, etc., was in charge of Mrs. S. Bateman, Mrs. D. Kleinstueber, Mrs. W. Courtney and Mrs. J. Garrison.

The white elephant and plant booth in charge of Mrs. F. Manion and Mrs. R. Thompson. The fish-pond was in charge of Mrs. J. Orr, Mrs. Milton McTaggart and Mrs. A. Martin.

The small tables for afternoon tea were pretty with their white luncheon clothes centred with red and green candles. Those serving were, Mrs. S. H. Connor, Mrs. J. D. Welsh, Mrs. J. A. Thompson, Miss Cosey Meiklejohn, Mrs. E. Hodgins, Mrs. Harold Foster. Replenishing were, Mrs. A. McTaggart, Mrs. C. Moon, Mrs. A. Jones.

Those pouring tea during the afternoon from the attractively decorated table with its yellow roses and red Christmas candles and silver tea services were, Mrs. W. McCaw, Mrs. Roy Parks, Mrs. B. Clarke, Mrs. S. McCrea, Mrs. P. C. Barnett and Mrs. A. Blakely. The bazaar and tea was a splendid success.

A THEORY SQUELCHED

Over in Ottawa, the municipal authorities are having a battle over whether the ratepayers of the city should be called upon to pay for recreational facilities.

Charlotte Whitton, the capital city's woman mayor, has dug up some statistics bearing on whether these city-provided recreational facilities have anything to do with preventing what is nowadays called "juvenile delinquency."

In 1942, says Miss Whitton, 343 youngsters appeared in juvenile court in Ottawa. In 1944, there were 424, and in 1946 there were 230. In 1946, the Ottawa Recreation Commission was formed and in November of that year, began operating its recreational facilities.

In 1947, with the recreational facilities going full blast, the number of cases of juvenile delinquency rose to 301. In 1950, such cases increased to 376, which was 146 more than during the last year in which the recreational facilities were lacking.

Mayor Whitton contends that the presence or absence of these recreational facilities has nothing to do with the incidence of juvenile delinquency.

Supporting Miss Whitton's contention, the Ottawa Journal adds: "These few figures should squelch the unpleasant theory that our boys and girls, if denied the beneficient influences of planned and tax-paid recreation, drift inevitably into drinking places, dives and the ways of sin and vice. It just isn't so."

STATISTICS DEPARTMENT

Curious information is disclosed in some of the returns which are tabled in the House of Commons. Recently, such a return was made dealing with income taxation payments made by farmers.

One of these bits of curious information was that only 200 farmers in Quebec paid income tax in 1949, as compared with 8,000 in Ontario. Ontario's population is somewhat larger than that of Quebec, but a higher percentage of Quebec's population is rural, which means that there are probably at least as many farmers in Quebec as in Ontario.

Has Ontario 40 times as many prosperous farmers as Quebec? The figures might be interpreted as meaning that such is the case. The figures might also be interpreted as meaning that Ontario farmers are 40 times as prosperous as those in Quebec. Another interpretation, one which we would hesitate to accept, is that the income tax collectors are 40 times as tough in Ontario as they are in Quebec.

Another curious bit of information disclosed in the same return was that, during the last five years, only two Canadian farmers were prosecuted by the department of national revenue for evading income tax payments and that, of these two, only one was convicted.

Since no one would think of accusing the department of national revenue of playing favorites, there is only one possible explanation of this latter fact. This explanation is that the farmers are by far the most honest group in the community.

RESALE PRICE MAINTENANCE

The arguments which were advanced recently in Ottawa in favor of "resale price maintenance," (or price fixing, if you want to be crude about it), have apparently proven convincing to certain western Canada hardware dealers.

Recently, the purchasing department of the city of Calgary asked for quotations on a certain quantity of insulation cable of specified quality.

Four companies offered to supply the insulation cable, in the same desired quantity and of the required specifications. Each offered to supply it at exactly the same price—$9,252.

Maybe $9,252 is a fair price for the insulating cable which the city of Calgary wanted. At this distance, it is impossible to state otherwise.

But fair or otherwise, it is little occurrences like this one which provide leftist agitators with their most effective ammunition.

JUST FOLKS

SECOND CHILDHOOD

Is Christmas just for children? Then,
At Christmas from the world of men
I'll take a walk, as statesmen say,
And be a youngster for a day.
To prove in Santa I believe
I'll hang a stocking Christmas Eve.

If Christmas joys are not for men
Then I'll be seven years old again,
And claim once more the old time joy
That gladdened once a little boy.
I'll even wake at dawn to see
What Santa Claus has brought for me.

I may be grayed, and slow of pace;
There may be furrows in my face;
I may wear glasses; take a pill
With every meal I eat, but still
I am a boy at heart because
I've kept my faith in Santa Claus.

I dread the winters and the cold.
I've aches and pains, but I'm not old.
No longer trees I dare to climb.
But, when it comes to Christmas time
I'm still the boy I used to be
And loves what Santa brings for me.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 11th., 1931

At the annual meeting of the Belleville Curling Club, which was largely attended, the chair was occupied by the president, R. J. S. Dewar. The following officers were elected: Hon. members, Joseph D. Clarke and A. H. Mitchell; President, R. J. Wray; Vice President, J. W. Davidson; Secretary - treasurer, R. J. S. Dewar; Assistant Secretary, W. H. Gerrie; Representatives to the Ontario Curling Association: R. J. Wray and J. A. Kerr; Representatives to the Central Ontario Curling Association, R. E. Orr and C. D. Tice; Auditors, Mark Vanner and Ross Salisbury; Patrons, Mayor-elect George O. Tice, Judge J. F. Wills, R. W. Adams, J. A. McFee and J. G. Galloway. Management Committee,—Rev. Dr. Seymour, Walter N. Belair, Thomas Hurley, Glen Elliott and Charles J. Symons; Reception Committee, J. G. Galloway, R. A. Backus and R. E. Orr; Entertainment committee, M. Vanner, J. Houston, E. Dickens, Alfred R. Symons and William O. Adams; Ice Committee, T. Hurley, John Houston, Ross Salisbury and Glen Elliott. Skips, who have directed rinks for years, Walter Belair, Bob. Wray, Tom Hurley, Capt. Bottum, Percy Allen, Bert Backus, Alf. Symons, Percy Pitney and Bill Harding, will be on the ice again this season and new members are assured of experienced tutelage under their supervision.

A syndicate of Belleville yachtsmen has purchased the sailing yacht Temeraire which was built to defend the Canada Cup. The syndicate comprises E. Guss Porter, Judge Wills, P. H. Wills, B. L. Hyman and W. Schuster. The Temeraire is a beautiful craft which was built at Oakville from a Fife design and she is at present at the R. C. Y. C. anchorage in Toronto. She is fifty feet over all and has been in many important races. During a severe storm a year ago the Temeraire was caught out on the lake and all canvas was stripped from her masts, but she came into Charlotte with her sails in tatters and stood up under the blow like the brave hearted craft she is. The yacht has been purchased by the local syndicate with the laudable purpose of encouraging the sport of yachting on Bay of Quinte waters and to serve as a mother ship for the local fleet—the flag ship.

Last night the Bridge Street Church basketball team defeated the Quinte Quad in the first game in the junior league; the score was 23 to 15. Cole was highest scorer with eleven points to his credit. The following composed the teams:—Bridge Street,—Watts, Deacon, Maidens, R. Cole and Marshall; Quinte Quad,—Strachan, Cook, Allen, Elliott and Hurley.

A meeting of the Quinte Hockey Club was held last evening at Hotel Quinte with the president, W. Hitchon in the chair. The executive committee reported that an agreement has been made for the use of the rink on a basis of $50. down and 30 per cent of the proceeds. Last year it was the same down payment, but 50 per cent of the gate receipts. After paying last year's debts the boys have a balance of $30. which will be used towards the down payment this year.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A considerable and increasing number of people nowadays are unaware of how many nickles there are in a dollar. There actually are plenty of people who, if you were suddenly to ask how many nickels in a dollar, would have to think a jiffy.

If they measure dollars at all, in their minds, it is in terms of how many movie tickets there are in a dollar, how many quarts of milk, how many dry-cleaned dresses. In their minds, dollars no longer are considered as consisting of parts. A dollar is a mere part.

It is part of a hundred dollars, or part of a thousand dollars. In the hundred dollar units, these people think of rent, suits, coats, car repair bills, the monthly fuel oil bill, all the ordinary transactions and expenses of their daily lives.

In the thousand dollar units, they think of cars, fur coats, television sets, a new garage at the back, a decorating job in the upstairs rooms, a trip to New York or Los Angeles. A dollar is as absurd a unit as a nickel would be in such calculations.

But it is useful to bear in mind that despite the fantastic rise in cost of a great many things that are though to be ordinary elements of the standard of living for a large section of the community, there are hundreds of thousands in the same community who still know how many nickels there are in a dollar. And they count them, every one.

There are the families, by the tens of thousands, whom we see listed in the monthly government figures having to do with cost of living index. They are the workers by the hundreds of thousands, outside the field of organized labor, unskilled workers, clerks, almost anonymous white-collar toilers, who have no expectation of any useful increase in their wages. Any expectations they may entertain are in the nature of fear that they might lose their precious wages. So they count those twenty nickels, one at a time.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

O. GOLDEN BIRD

Once upon a time a very funny man named Morton Thompson wrote a book called "Joe, the Wounded Tennis Player". Each year about this time, as the shadows of Christmas lengthen across our lives, I get the book down from the shelf to dream and drool about Turkey a la Thompson.

The book itself made only a temporary splash. But Morton's recipe for cooking a turkey has become as immortal as my own recipe for clam chowder. Maybe more.

A great many of my pals have followed his directions in the years gone by with sensational results. This year I plan to join that select company and it occurred to me that you might like to come along for the ride. There's a lot of fancy stuff to buy so we can't waste a minute.

The turkey itself, according to Morton, must be between 16 and 22 pounds and should be rubbed inside and out with salt and pepper. Now, a step at a time, we proceed:

* * *

First we put into a stewpan the chopped gizzard, neck and heart to which we add one bay leaf, one teaspoon of paprika, a half teaspoon of coriander, a clove of garlic, four cups of water and salt to taste. Let this gravy simmer while we go ahead with the dressing.

* * *

For the dressing we need three large bowls.

In the first bowl we dice an apple and an orange and add a large can of crushed pinapple, the grated rind of one-half lemon, a can of drained water chestnuts and three tablespoons of chopped preserved ginger.

In the second bowl we put two teaspoons of Colman's mustard, two teaspoons of caraway seed, two teaspoons of poppy seed, two and a half teaspoons of oregano, one well-crushed large bay leaf, one teaspoon black pepper, one half teaspoon of mace, four tablespoons of well chopped parsley, four or five finely minced cloves of garlic, four cloves, well chopped and without heads, one half teaspoon of tumeric, four large well-chopped onions, six well-chopped stalks of celery, one half teaspoon marjoram, one half teaspoon savory (summer savory if you can get it) and one tablespoon of poultry seasoning.

In the third bowl dump the crumbs of three loaves of bread and add three quarters of a pound of ground veal, one quarter of a pound of fresh pork, a quarter of a pound of butter and all the fat (melted) you've been able to find and pry loose from the turkey.

* * *

Mix each bowl separately then mix them together. "Mix it until your forearms and wrists ache," Thompson advises. "Then mix it some more." Toss it around a bit after that.

* * *

Now we stuff the turkey, not too full, truss it up and turn to making our paste. This consists of the yolks of two eggs, a teaspoon of Colman's mustard, a clove of minced garlic, a tablespoon of onion juice, a half teaspoon of salt, two pinches of cayenne pepper, a teaspoon of lemon juice and enough sifted flour to make a stiff paste.

* * *

Turn your oven on full force and let it get red hot. Put your bird on the drip pan or, better, breast down in a rack. Let it brown all over remove it and turn the oven down to 325 degrees. Now, while the turkey is sizzling hot, paint it all over with the paste and put her back in the oven. Keep doing this until there's no more paste.

* * *

Turn now to that giblet-neck-liver-heart gravy that's been simmering and add one cup of cider. Stir it well and let it keep warm on top of the oven. This is your basting fluid and this is where you really go to work. The bird must be basted every 15 minutes!

After she's cooked about an hour and a half turn her on her stomach, back in the air. Let it cook that way until the last 15 minutes, when you restore it to its back again.

It ought to cook at least four hours and a half and probably will take an hour more. Don't forget to baste every 15 minutes.

* * *

When you remove the turkey it will be dead black and Thompson warns that you'll think you've ruined it. Not so. The useless paste from the bird, revealing the turkey "golden and dark brown, succulent, giddy-making with wild aromas, crisp and crunchable and crackling". Speak harshly to it and it'll fall apart.

* * *

Well, that's it. Sounds expensive, a lot of work and a lot of mess. But I've never known a man to try it who had regrets and one man I knew, a gent by the name of Delany, speaks of nothing for five months afterwards.

And say, let's hear how you made out.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOUR OWN MIND

You know the familiar saying that the man who rules his own spirit is greater than that one who takes a city. Your own mind is a citadel of power and possibilities greater than to own the whole world. You know what you can do with your own mind, but what would you do with a world to handle?

Stevenson once wrote: "To know what you prefer, instead of humbly saying 'Amen' to what the world tells you you ought to prefer, is to have kept your soul alive." What a miracle is that mind of yours! No one can rob you of it. It's yours as an inheritance from the Creator, and it was meant that you should manage it in your own way.

Emerson berated the man who boasted of his consistency, saying that consistency was "the hobgoblin of little minds." The late Henry Ford often said that he reserved the right to change his mind any time he wanted to. Why shouldn't a man have that right? If he learns on the morrow that he was wrong the day before, why shouldn't he take pride in changing his opinion to what he later considered right?

Your own mind is your castle and you are its sole ruler and owner as well. Keep it inviolate! What a glorious possession. Keep enriching it. Share its hospitality, however, with all whom you love, admire or wish to help and inspire. You be the giver. Furnish that mind of yours with the poetry and beauty of the ages. Welcome any thought, idea, or truth, that may add to its furnishing. Say with Montaigne: "I stop —I examine — I do not understand—I remain poised in balance—I take for my guide the ways of the world and the experiences of the senses."

To know one's own mind is one of the greatest accomplishments in this world! And never forget that there isn't a human being anywhere who knows your mind as you do, or ever can. A flower can teach any of us great things but we are sterile in our thoughts when we look upon that perfect creation of beauty and wonder. We can tell it nothing!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HIGH SPIRITUAL ADVENTURE

Ask great things of God.

Have you believed that God was pleased if you made your petitions to Him modest, well within reason, entirely consistent with what we call human possibility? No, God does not like that kind of praying. All through the Bible we are encouraged to ask big things of God. The bigger the gift we crave, the more is God pleased to listen to our asking. John Knox prayed God would give him Scotland, the whole of it. John Wesley said that the world was his parish. William Carey yearned for the great heathen world until he left his cobbler's bench in England and went out, amid the derision and scorn of a large section of the Christian Church, to lay the foundation of the modern missionary enterprise.

God wants us to ask great things for ourselves for others, for His Church, and for the world. He would not have us hedge about our petitions with caution lest we ask too much. God is always beckoning us to high spiritual adventure. Ask for greater things, believe in the possibility of greater triumphs. "Behold, I am with you always," Jesus said, "even unto the end of the world."

Personal Health Talks

BACKACHE AND BLIND PILES

Just what blind piles may be neither Stedman's nor Dorland's medical dictionary deigns to say, and as for Webster, perish the thought. Noah does tell us, however, that blind may mean difficult to discern, make out or discover. So let's settle for internal piles (hemorrhoids) which, so far as the affected individual is aware, do not bleed.

Bleeding is generally the chief complaint of one with internal piles. Pain is the chief complaint of one with external piles. Ambulant, office, injection treatment is usually sufficient for internal (bleeding) piles. It is not applicable for external piles.

Low backache or pains in the loins, down the thighs and in the perineum may be the only symptoms one with blind internal piles has, and unfortunately a good many sufferers, to say nothing of incompetent physicians, ascribe these symptoms to "kidney trouble", "lumbago" or, in women, "female complaint". By incompetent physicians I mean the quacks who pretend they can tell whether a patient has piles without a proper examination. If you're in doubt as to what a proper examination is you had better send a stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (not with a clipping) for the pamphlet It is Stupid to Suffer from Piles—if you change the name of the pamphlet your request will be ignored.

Besides the common complaints mentioned, discovery and treatment of hitherto unrecognized internal piles—painless, ambulant (injection) treatment in the doctor's office, as a rule—has cleared up some cases of what had been regarded as "bladder trouble", "sciatica", "nervous indigestion", "mucous colitis", "prostatitis" or "peptic ulcer."

Even a good doctor can't — and being a good doctor of course doesn't try to diagnose blind internal piles blindly. If yours pretends he can, that's all you need to know—he's a q-u-a-c-k—and you may quote me on it. Only by seeing the piles through a tube called a speculum can an honest doctor tell whether the patient has piles. If I seem unduly meticulous about the diagnosis of piles it is because of the reports I receive in the mail from victims of this shamefully prevalent type of quackery.

A chapter in the pamphlet deals with hygiene in the prevention and treatment of piles. The neglect of this important factor, by physicians and patients, is as difficult to understand as is diagnosis by guesswork. It is pleasant to note that people who have read the pamphlet and followed the advice therein sometimes write just to exress thanks for prolonged relief these hygienic measures have given them—and in this racket that is equivalent to approbation from Sir Hubert.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Huh? Ugh—

Although I didn't like it when you scolded me and every one else for eating onions I still read you. Some night just try a hunk with your bread and milk. (S. P. B.)

Answer—I can't recall having scolded anybody about eating onions. If I liked 'em I'd eat 'em.

What's an Acid Condition

My husband has always had an acid condition. But since he has taken the juice of a lemon in hot water without sugar every morning he feels a lot better. (Mrs. H. L. C.)

Answer—It is harmless and maybe beneficial to general health to eat a lemon or its juice daily. How does your husband know he has an acid condition? How does a quack determine that anybody has an acid condition. I don't know what it means.

Belly Breathing for Better Circulation

I have been practising the belly breathing exercise for twelve years. It keeps my blood pressure down and my circulation more efficient. I'd like to send the directions to my friend . . . (C. C. J.)

Answer—Detailed instructions which send 25c and stamped self-which send 2c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sympathies Rest With Milk Producers

It is certainly worth pondering —if true—that "according to Silverwood Dairies Limited, of London, Ontario, an average hour's work in Canadian manufacturing industries in 1939 paid 43 cents—enough to buy just over 3½ quarts of milk. Today the same amount of work pays $1.18—enough to buy slightly more than six quarts of milk (From Nov. 30 editorial "Milk Really Cheaper").

The foregoing reminds me of the following few sage words from that summary of the annual address of one of Canada's banking leaders (B. C. Gardner, M. C.,) in the news columns: Analyzing powerful long-term influences which were "tending gradually to undermine the value of the dollar," Mr. Gardner commented upon the danger of the assumption that "all of us can have more and more by doing less and less to get it."

In a specific sense, I recognize the terrific pressure of 22-cent milk (per quart) upon low-income large families, and am of the firm opinion that something can and should be done under such circumstances, but, on the other hand, in an overall or general sense, my sympathies are with the primary producers of this 'precious stuff'. They also, are entitled to a living wage at Canadian standards. To our organized urban brethren, therefore, I suggest that they remember to apply their own social and constructive rule to their rural cousins, and that the milk producers are also worthy of their hire.

All in all, I feel the stubborn logic in that closing paragraph of your editorial will stand its ground: "If milk is too expensive, and some people say it is, then it follows that labor is also too expensive, but none of those people who say that milk is too expensive are prepared to admit that labor is too expensive."

Parity Prices.

LED TO OWN CONVICTION

Nottingham, England, Dec. 11—(AP) — Herbert L. Mills, whose tip to a newspaper led to his own conviction for strangling a middle-aged woman, was hanged today. Mills, a 19-year-old amateur poet, sold a London newspaper a story about finding the body of 49-year-old Mrs. Mabel Tattershaw in an abandoned orchard.

Investigation led to the arrest of Mills as the killer.

WIVES NOT ADMITTED

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 11—(Reuters) — Immigration Minister H. E. Holt announced today that Japanese wives of Australian ex-servicemen will not be admitted to this country while Australian troops remained in Japan. He has asked army minister J. Francis, who is visiting Japan and Korea during Christmas, to make an on-the-spot investigation of the problem.

Rotary Club Hears Address By N.J. Millman, of Oshawa, On Planning of Municipalities

"Town Planning" was the topic of an address delivered to the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon on Monday by Norman J. Millman chairman of the Oshawa Planning Board.

Mr. Millman was born in Toronto, being educated at Ridley College and the University of Toronto, from which he graduated as an engineer. Following service with the engineers in the First World War, he began service with General Motors in 1919 as assistant-chief engineer. He rose through the various offices of service engineering, service manager of the New York Export Company, chief inspector at Oshawa, manager of the body plant, service products manager, and automotive design, until the Second World War when he went to Ottawa to serve in the army engineering design division of the department of munitions and supply and became director-general of this division.

He returned to General Motors following the war and remained there until his retirement in 1950.

Original town planning, the speaker said, was of tree-lined boulevards, and ornamental buildings and streets. Today it is planning in which we can feel that our earning power, our business investments, schooling systems, and recreational facilities are secure as well as having less traffic congestion and a reasonable tax.

Must Consider Future

In planning we must consider the future growth to attain our objectives, he continued. He said that more people are coming to Canada, of which a majority were coming to Ontario and particularly around Toronto and district. Therefore, he said, it is logical that we must try to grow advantageously.

Our planning must have an objective, he said, that will be available to all future city governments; it must have a framework on which to build.

Mr. Millman cited the need of close co-operation between the engineering department, public utilities, board of education and all other departments of municipal government. Each department should know what the other is doing, he said.

"Don't plan on hunches" was the advice offered by the speaker. "Look at the thing as a whole, gather facts and in many cases they will solve the problem or at least point to the solution."

Referring to his own city of Oshawa on many occasions Mr. Millman demonstrated how certain information was invaluable to proper planning. He said that assessment values, obsolescence, depreciation, accident rate, playground sites, and contour maps should all be taken into consideration.

Other factors to be considered should be the school-age population, pre-school population, new families, industrial counts, traffic situations and the rehabilitation of obsolescent areas, he added.

Must Have Publicity

Persuasion through proper publicity is also a big factor in city or town planning, he continued. Canadians don't like regimentation, he said, but if they are made to feel that they are playing a part on a team they will cooperate.

"What can Rotarians do?" he asked. "Rotarians can give intelligent support by word of mouth publicity" he answered. He stated that Rotarians should voice their opinions, whether positive or negative to the question as long as they were sincere in their thoughts. "Finally," he said, "if you are called upon to do anything to help, then do it."

The speaker was introduced by Harry Gourley and thanked by McLean Haig. Mr. Haig commented that he felt the club had benefited from Mr. Millman's remarks and they showed the enormity of the job being done by Jack Trudeau and his committee.

Other guests and visiting Rotarians included Stanley Goodwin, Harry Fuke, J. J. Trudeau and Ronald Moorman of Belleville, Gordon Campbell and J. J. Mackle of Picton, and Jack Webster of Scarborough.

Quenton Cook, past president of the Aylmer Rotary Club, was introduced to the assembled members by President Court Miller as the newest member of Belleville Rotary.

An event bringing much humor to the club was the comic presentations made to McLean Haig, Arthur Bateman and Percy McGuire, recent successful candidates in the municipal election. Presentations were very capably handled by Arthur Francis and Jack Yanover.

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 11 (AP)—A 20-year-old Scottish subaltern yesterday became the first national service soldier (draftee) in the British army ever to win the Distinguished Service Order.

He is 2nd Lieut. William Purves of Ednam, Roxburghshire, Scotland, a platoon commander in the 1st Battalion of the King's Own Scottish Borderers, now serving with the 1st Commonwealth Division in Korea.

Purves, commissioned after he was called into the army won the decoration for extraordinary heroism and skill Nov. 4 in one of the most savage actions of the Korean war.

The medal is second only to the Victoria Cross as an award for gallantry in action.

The citation, announced yesterday, tells how Purves and his platoon were holding a knoll when the Chinese attacked. The rest of his company was forced back, exposing his left flank. However, Purves held on and also took command of another platoon after it was left leaderless.

Still he dashed from foxhole to foxhole, disregarding bullets and shrapnel, directing his men's fire, and throwing hand grenades despite his wound.

By 9 p.m. the two platoons were isolated, but fought on. At 1.45 a.m., Purves got a message back to battalion headquarters, reporting the situation and asking for information. He was ordered to try to fight his way out.

This he did, directing the remnants of the two platoons through mortar fire and under the nose of the enemy.

Britain Requests $600,000,000 In Economic Aid

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP) — Britain was reported today to have requested about $600,000,000 in American economic aid during the next six months to prevent a new financial crisis.

But the informed officials who reported this said the United States probably will grant Britain no more than half that amount. The officials asked that their names not be used.

They said a delegation representing Prime Minister Churchill's government outlined Britain's need for American dollars during the talks here last week with the economic co-operation administration.

Americans, the Britons talked with, officials said, made no promises. But, after studying Britain's case Americans dealing with British-United States finances were reported to have concluded Britain urgently needs American help.

Britain has been getting no direct financial aid from the United States since last Jan. 1 when it dropped out of the American financed Marshall Plan. However, there is still in existence an E.C.A. mission to Britain, cleaning up matters hanging over from Britain's E.C.A. days.

Spaak of Belgium Quits as President Protests Policy

Strasbourg, France, Dec. 11—(AP)—Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium quit today as president of the European Assembly in protest against its "timid policy" shortly after the assembly proposed a limited international "political authority" to control the projected European army.

Spaak's letter of resignation made no mention of the plan for army control, the latest in a long series of waterings down of sweeping proposals for European unity. The compromise on the army plan was designed to secure British backing for the European force, even if Britian will not join the army.

Spaak adamantly refused the repeated pleadings of assembly members that he remain at their head and took his seat on the floor as a plain delegate.

"I cannot in coscience approve any longer of the timid policy of this assembly," Spaak wrote. "Therefore I have decided to resign at this critical point and devote myself more actively to the fight for a united Europe."

Has No Power

The assembly has no power to enforce decisions. It can only recommend them to the upper house of the council of Europe—a committee of foreign ministers who then asked their individual governments to carry out decisions.

The assembly's recommendation was based on a Washington declaration of last September. At that time Britain joined France and the United States in favoring creation of a "European continental community" and agreed she wanted to maintain "the closest possible association at all stages of its development."

The assembly's proposal apparently envisaged a positive but limited delegation of power to a central authority, although it did not specifically say so. Participants in the authority then could work out some association with Britain.

The plan stirred no enthusiasm among either Conservative or Labor British delegates and most of them refrained from taking part in the 60 to 10 vote approving the recommendation.

High School Boy Admits Hacking Mother to Death

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 11 (AP)—A 16-year-old high school boy told police he hacked his mother to death because "she bawled me out for playing hookey"—then set her corpse afire "so she wouldn't be found."

Police said Samuel Hutchins orally confessed the hatchet slaying and promised to sign a transcript today. The boy was held without charge pending further questioning.

Sammie was arrested at Grass Valley, where his wealthy father has a summer home, four hours after firemen discovered the body yesterday. Mrs. Evelyn S. Hutchins, 51, had been hacked at least 12 times, examiners said.

Police quoted Sammie as saying his mother surprised him in their basement and "bawled me out for playing hookey." He said the boy added:

"I got mad and started swinging a hatchet I was holding. I hit her several times. She had a bundle of papers under her arm and I took them and covered her with them. I poured kerosene over them and set fire to them. I figured that way she wouldn't be found."

Smoke from the burning home led to the discovery.

Egypt's Premier Calling Meeting To Oust British

Cairo, Dec. 11 (Reuters) — Premier Mustafa El Nahas Pashas urged Egyptians today to press the struggle to oust the "tyrannous and aggressive" Britons from their country.

The premier told the country in a radio broadcast that Egypt "will not stand idle in the face of Britain's aggression."

Later today Nahas will call his cabinet together to study a move to break off diplomatic relations with Britain—the latest move in the month-old struggle for control of the Suez canal zone.

"Islam calls for sacrifice and self-denial as well as the perishing of the individual—for the cause of groups," he said.

He urged the people to follow the example of the prophet's struggle, declaring that British aggression should not break up the country's will.

Details Demolition

He detailed the demolition Saturday of houses near Suez, carried out by British troops to make way for a new road to a vital water purifying plant. He said Egypt will not stand idle in the face of such aggression.

"The matter has surpassed all limits and this tyranny will have far-reaching consequences which will put an end to their tragedies and brutality which has no precedent in the 20th century," he said.

Briton's gave no concern to rendering 300 families homeless in cold weather when they destroyed the huts, he said.

Some observers thought today's cabinet meetings would not only decide whether to sever diplomatic relations with Britain in retaliation for Saturday's demonstrations but might also consider breaking off commercial relations.

Egyptian newspapers stepped up their demands for harsh action in retaliation for the demolitions.

Union Refused Certification By Labor Board

Halifax, Dec. 11 (CP)—Sharp union protests were expected today to a precedent-setting ruling by the Nova Scotia Labor Relations Board, refusing certification of a shipyard union because of communist leadership.

The board, in a decision made public yesterday, said it refused to certify the Maritime Marine Workers Federation (CCL) as bargaining agent for some 500 workers in Dartmouth, Lunenburg, Pictou and Liverpool, because its secretary-treasurer, J. K. Bell, was a communist.

Mr. Bell said the union's executive to meet immediately to decide whether to appeal to the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, the next legal step.

The board's decision said: "To certify as bargaining agent a union while its dominant leadership and direction is provided by a member of the communist party would be incompatible with promotion of good faith, collective bargaining and would confer legal powers to affect vital interests of employees and employer upon persons who would inevitably use those powers primarily to advance communist aims and policies. . ."

The board did not quote a precedent but it was recalled the federal government several years ago revoked bargaining powers of the Canadian Seamen's Union allegedly under communist control.

Egypt Protests Destruction Of Mud Village

Paris, Dec. 11 (AP) —Egypt protested to the United Nations today against the destruction of an Egyptian village in the Suez area by British forces.

British army engineers during the weekend destroyed a 100-house village near Suez in building a new road between a military garrison and a water filtration plant. British authorities contended the by-pass through the village was necessary because military convoys encountered Egyptian terrorists snipers along the old route.

A British military spokesman in the Suez area said that "actual compensations have been worked out" for the villages. He did not say what amounts would be paid. He added that most of the houses were made of mud but there were 10-solidly-constructed residences of two and three stories.

Care of Cut Flowers

Christmas is the time when potted plants and cut flowers are frequently given as gifts. Here are some tips from Dr. A. P. Chan, chief of the greenhouses at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, on how to prolong the life of cut flowers.

When buying flowers ask for some flower preservative. This can be supplied by most good florists. Used according to directions it will increase the life of the flowers. It does this by slowing down the bacterial growth in the water which clogs up the stems and prevents the flowers from getting sufficient moisture. And as it also prevents slime from forming, frequent changes of water are unnecessary—just add more.

Cut the stems of flowers at a slant to provide a wide, fresh entrance for the water to penetrate. If the flowers have a big woody stem, smash the end of the stem up about two inches to allow for a freer intake of water. If flowers are wilted or show signs of wilting soon after arrival, they can be revived by cutting the stem ends and immersing the flowers right up to, but not covering the blooms, and placing them in a cool dark location for six to twelve hours.

Cut flowers are susceptible to drafts and excessive heat and will last longer if these conditions can be avoided. Close to windows and immediately above hot water pipes or hot air registers are not suitable places for flowers. Actually the average living, or dining-room is generally too warm and it is always advisable to move flowers at night to the coolest place in the house. Forty degrees is ideal, but even ten degrees lower than ordinary room temperature would be beneficial.

KEEPING UP WITH JONESES

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 11 — (AP) — Communist delegates drove to the Panmunjom truce conference today in chromium-trimmed sedans instead of military jeeps. It was a case of keeping up with the Joneses.

Today Chinese Maj.-Gen. Hsieh Fang rode in an American made 1949 Ford, with the horn honking. Then came North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Song Cho in a Russian Pobjeda (victory).

Industrial Arts, Crafts Teachers Hold Meeting

An important meeting of the teachers of Industrial Arts and Crafts of this district, was held on Saturday last, at Queen Victoria School shop. The president of the Industrial Arts and Crafts section of the Ontario Education Association, Mr. F. H. Cottee, of Kingston, was in the chair. After a brief welcoming address, the president called on Mr. J. Spry, of the staff of O.C.E., Toronto, to inform the meeting of modern trends in industrial arts work.

A lengthy discussion period followed in which Mr. Spry answered many questions pertinent to this phase of educational work. Mr. Jack Doran, of the St. Michael's Academy staff, was then called upon to explain the work done by the Belleville teachers in curriculum revision. Since the local teachers were the first to undertake this work, a keen interest was shown in it, by all present. Copies of this report were presented to the members from the other districts represented.

Mr. D. W. Gordon, Industrial Arts and Crafts inspector for the province, was asked to conduct the election of officers for the coming year. The results were as follows: president, Mr. J. C. McKague, Warkworth high school; vice president, Mr. C. R. Sutherland, Picton collegiate; secretary-treasurer, Mr. E. J. Lanigan, Cathedral school, Kingston.

District chairmen — Belleville—Mr. J. J. Doran, St. Michael's; Stirling and Madoc—Mr. C. A. Wells, Stirling high school; Kingston—Mr. E. Moses, Frontenac school; Sydenham—Mr. E. Fulcher, Sydenham high school; Picton—Mr. C. R. Sutherland, Picton collegiate.

Thanked For Honor

Mr. McKague assumed his new position and in a few well chosen words, thanked the teachers for the honor, and assured them that his best efforts would be used in their behalf.

Inspector Gordon then addressed the group and stated his pleasure at meeting the teachers in "the field". He gave many helpful suggestions to the teachers regarding the teaching of arts and crafts in the schools.

A display of students' work from Queen Victoria school shop and St. Michael's Academy shop was presented by Mr. A. J. Kells and Mr. J. J. Doran. The meeting was then adjourned.

Husband-Wife Christmas Party Given by Contact Club of Church

Special guests in the Christ Church parish hall for the Contact Club Husband-Wife Christmas party on Monday night were Canon J. B. Creeggan, Mrs. Creeggan, Rev. Everett Smith and Mrs. Smith.

Jeanne Jackson, Dorothy Halbert and Betty Ling were the charming reception committee which greeted the 64 guests and sped them on their way to a gay evening of friendly companionship.

Les Lennox, radiating good spirit, emceed the entertainment and started the evening's fun in the appropriate Christmas way with the singing of well-loved Christmas carols.

Florence Lennox, Dorothy Sloan and Helen Lennox, with Les and Ray Lennox as helpers, began a series of fun-making games with laughter, even hilarity, for all and prizes for many.

Ivy Poste and Fred Beeby won the so-called intelligence contest. Ten articles passed in the dark were recognized by June Mills, Jeanne Jackson, Canon Creeggan and Ray Lennox. Why couldn't that squashy thing have been a grape instead of a kumquat?

Vic DePaul and Ernie Pugh each guessed the number of hickory nuts in the jar, only one short of being absolutely correct.

The most fun of all for all of the wives was the husbands luggage race. What a gala and laugh-provoking parade those gentlemen made, dressed in the ladies wear contents of those valises!

Winner of Contest

Mary Fletcher was the proud winner of the autograph contest which filled in all spare moments. Mary had a total of 58 lefthanded signatures.

After the conclusion of the games, popular pianist Evelyn Warbam played for a few dances and Les Lennox instructed in the merry intricacies of the Koki-oki until Doreen Mills, convener, Marg Chappee and Ivy Poste invited the guests to the attractively decoroted tearoom where delicious refreshments were served buffet style.

At this time president Jeanne Jackson gave a sincere welcome to all and expressed the hope that both husbands and wives were enjoying themselves.

Eleanor Blaker who happened to be wearing an attractive red dress by tradition within the club, became Mrs. Santa Claus and most graciously distributed all the gifts to the husbands.

After this pleasant recess more dancing followed with a number of spot prizes to delight the fortunate winners and wind up a most happy and successful Husband-Wife Christmas party by the Contact Club.

Ladies' Auxiliary Of Kiwanis Club Presents Cheque

The Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary met at the Kiwanis Centre on Thursday last. The husbands of the members were entertained at a pot luck supper, enjoyed by all.

Mrs. C. Mott presided and conducted the business meeting following. Mrs. H. Craig gave an excellent and complete report of the Ways and Means committee. Mrs. J. Sills and Mrs. H. Craig also conducted a lucky draw.

Mrs. A. Duffy, as Hobbycraft convener, also asked for volunteers to help with the Christmas party for the girls' sewing group. A sum of money was set aside for the candy and other treats and Mrs. J. Thornbury and Mrs. L. Fozard were appointed.

Mr. J. Wood mentioned that if the members would help with the lunch for the Christmas party for the old people from the home it would be greatly appreciated.

The sum of $25 was voted to the Children's Aid Society.

Mrs. C. Mott introduced the new president, Mrs. Vic White and the seven directors namely, Mrs. R. Clapp, Mrs. H. Craig, Mrs. A. Duffy, Mrs. L. Fozard, Mrs. H. Murray, Mrs. D. Stanton, Mrs. H. Trepanier.

The highlight of the evening was the welcome presentation of a $300 cheque to the Kiwanis Club's president, Mr. E. Fairman, to be used for their welfare work.

Mrs. R. Pryke and Mrs. L. McDougall were in charge of the dancing and cards to complete a very happy occasion.

Women's Activities

WESLEY W.A.

The annual business meeting of the Wesley United Church Woman's Association was held at the home of Mrs. H. Rutter recently, with a splendid turnout.

The president, Mrs. W. Saylor, occupied the chair and conducted the regular business which consisted mainly of winding up the business of the year and mapping out the program for 1952. Mrs. E. Fox conducted the devotional period which consisted in Scripture reading, a hymn and The Lord's Prayer in unison.

The treasurer, Mrs. J. L. Stewart submitted the financial statement which indicated a year of activity and was considered one of the best years in association's history, thanks to the diligence of every member.

The visiting committees made several calls, particularly on new comers to the district. A number of new suggestions were considered for the coming year. A motion was made and carried to buy a new piano for the church.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the retiring officers.

The report of the nominating committee was then presented as follows: past president, Mrs. W. Saylor; president, Mrs. H. Rutter; vice president, Mrs. W. Denyes; secretary, Mrs. H. Wright; treasurer, Mrs. J. Stewart; press reporter, Mrs. E. Genereaux.

The Rev. A. C. McCallum duly installed the officers and commended the ladies upon the splendid accomplishments during the past year.

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess and delicious refreshments were served.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Advice is wasted on reckless young people

Two letters which come to me from the same area, deal with the same general theme, though not with the same individuals.

One is from a mother who is deeply distressed because her oldest daughter, a girl of 23, has made a headstrong and apparently very reckless marriage. The other is from a woman who wants to know how her niece can be deterred from making the same mistaken kind of marriage.

In the first case, the mother tells me that when her daughter met the young man she insisted on marrying, who is a year younger than she is, he not only had no job, but neither prospects of one nor ambition to find any.

She made $50 a week as a telephone operator, and he made nothing. She supported him and paid his rent and for his food.

"When she told me they were going to get married, and I told her she had better think it over, she said to me. 'Mind your own business, it's my life.' My husband finally ordered him out of the house because he tried to tell us what to do, so my girl went with him. A few days later, they were married, and she paid for the church, the ring and everything else. He is so lazy, he won't go to work. He took her money for about four months, and then they went to California, where she said they would start from scratch.

Much Worried

"He is just no good, and I am sick over it because I can't help her. He has turned her against her own family that has loved her so much, and I am worried about the hard life she will have with him. They are far away, and I don't think he is even in love with her."

The story the aunt tells is about a young woman 11 years older than this girl.

The man this 34-year-old niece of hers wants to marry is 51, has been divorced three times and has a son of 28 and a daughter 25.

"My niece claims she loves him, and taunts her mother with the boast that she will marry him, although her mother has been telling her that there must be something wrong, with a man's character if three wives have divorced him, and his children do not care to bother with him, as is the case. He is a convincing talker and a flatterer, has tried to make her believe that she is misunderstood and mistreated by her mother and family, and promises her a house and a new car.

"What do you think of this situation?"

What I thing about this situation is exactly what I think about the situation described in the first letter, and that is that both these foolish and headstrong young women will obviously have to gain wisdom through bitter experience. There is not a thing in the world that mother, aunt, or other relatives can do for them at this time. All of them have spoken their pieces. They have pleaded, begged, and warned. There is nothing more they can do. Hard as it is, they will now have to keep still and await developments.

Warning Not Heeded

For the heart-breaking fact is, that when young people are determined to make reckless marriages, the more their elders protest, the more set they become in their own way. It is almost impossible not to cry out a warning when a person sees a loved one rushing toward the brink of disaster. Yet it almost never does any good to scream the warning. The young man or woman who is immature enough to want to make such a marriage is too immature to be willing to listen to reason. So parents and relatives might just as well save their breath.

All they can do, if they are tolerant enough, and understanding enough to do it, is to be ready to hold out a helping hand when the almost inevitable disaster comes. Then, if they can keep back reproaches and, "I told you so's", there is a chance they may be able to do something constructive, and eventually may help the young person acquire judgment and maturity. Until then, however, they had better hold their peace.

NO CONSTIPATION SINCE 1919!

"Way back in 1919 . . . I was troubled with chronic constipation. Then I started eating ALL-BRAN every day. I've been regular ever since!" Harold Hall, 113 Somerset St., St. John, N.B. Just one of many unsolicited letters from ALL-BRAN users. If you are troubled with constipation due to lack of dietary bulk, do as this man does. Eat an ounce of tasty Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily, and drink plenty of water. If not completely satisfied after 10 days, return empty carton to Kellogg's, London, Ont. Get DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

Food for Thought

Be Versatile With Vegetables

By Mary Moore

(Save this. There may be a vegetable dish here you will want for your Christmas dinner.)

"So you're Mary Moore. Well, you're just the gal I want to see. What are some substitutes for vegetables?"

That was the introduction to herself that one of the girls on the editorial staff gave me.

There is no substitute for vegetables, is there? If so I don't want the ersatz stuff.

It seems this girl was left to do the cooking for the family while her mother was on a trip. Very innocently she decided to have cauliflower for dinner. But bingo! —a little one about 5 inches in diameter was priced at 59 cents. She said "On your salary kid, for you it's cabbage!"

But what's the matter with cabbage!"

But what's the matter with cabbage?—especially when you make

GOLDEN CABBAGE

Shred cabbage as finely as possible with very sharp knife until you have 8 cups. Cook in about 3-4 cup boiling water, turning over 3 times, until tender, but still a little crisp. Drain. Beat 1 egg. and stir this into the hot cabbage with 2 tablespoons butter and 1 tablespoon lemon juice and generous sprinkling of salt and black pepper. Stir over low heat for about 1 or 2 minutes. Serve in preheated vegetable dish.

EMEM'S BRUSSELS SPROUTS

For 1 quart of sprouts make this cream sauce: Warm 1 1-2 cups whole milk or 1 cup whole milk and 1-2 cup cream. Stir together 3 tablespoons soft or melted butter 2 3-4 tablespoons flour. When milk is hot stir this paste into it, until it thickens and is smooth. Add salt and pepper and a shake of freshly grated nutmeg. For special occasions add 1-4 cup shredded toasted almonds. Pour this sauce over the hot sprouts in pre-heated vegetable dish.

SHREDDED BEETS, HARVARD STYLE

Shred beets on finest shredder until you have 5 cups. (If you want to keep your hands out of the juice these could be put through food chopper.) They must be washed and pared first though so your hands are in for it anyway. To them in top of double boiler add 1 cup boiling water and 1 teaspoon salt. Cook, covered, over boiling water, until barely tender. Stir together 2 tablespoons floor, 2 tablespoons sugar, dash of pepper and 1-3 cup vinegar. Stir this into the barely cooked beets, until the juice thickens. Be sure it is well heated through.

TURNIP CASSEROLE

Pare and cut an ordinary yellow turnip into 1-inch strips and boil in enough salted water to cover until tender. Drain but save the liquid. Mash well until smooth and free from all lumps. Add 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 well beaten egg, 1 cup whole milk, 2 tablespoons brown sugar and enough of the reserved liquid to make this very moist. Turn into a greased baking dish and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Delicious with chicken or turkey.

'Santa Corners' in London Shops Places of Enchantment

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — Toys for Junior's Christmas stockings are more expensive, but London's department stores have elaborate Santa corners — and the gift sack still holds many interesting gadgets costing as little as 3s. and under.

Energetic youngsters daily drag wearied parents around such places as a Santa Claus college, complete with classroom and life-like working models, in a store close to the heart of London's business centre. A Punch and Judy show performs at the entrance and gifts are delivered at a "lucky-dip" counter.

A Kensington store provides an "enchanted forest," and close-by another store has a Peter Pan railway that last year carried 70,000 children and their escorts through tunnels of red, blue and silver.

On busy Oxford Street, a store with an elaborate outside display of fairy lights and Christmas trees has hordes of Walt Disney characters through which excited children run in search of Santa and his helper, Uncle Holly.

In Kilburn, a London suburb, the shopper finds another enchanted wood, this time with real deer, monkeys and birds. In its centre is Santa's workshop where presents come shooting down the chimney.

And for the starry-eyed youngsters, Santa's sack holds everything from dolls costing £25 10s. to watches on long chains priced at 2s. and useful for teaching the time. As the hour hand turns a disc on the face changes to give different scenes for each hour.

Costing under £1 there are space ships with jet engines and jet-propelled cars, forts with soldiers, ranches and farms. A child might be equally happy with the electrically-operated freight train costing nearly £6 or the cute little booklet with a story of Pit-A-Pat, priced at 9d. Pit-A-Pat is a sweet-faced kitten with rose-trimmed hat tied with big net bow, pink jumper and posy of violets — and she's a kitten who can't do anything right.

Whatever the price, there are myriads of toys children will love — especially the clockwork models costing about 10s.

For the precocious child there are such topical games as "Housing Drive." This involves such phrases as "government subsidies," "licence to build," "labor units" and "power units."

GOOD MANNERS

(By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman)

On their Christmas cards to include greetings from son in overseas service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son is in the service, stationed in Germany. My husband suggested that we might include his greetings with ours on our Christmas cards. Would this be proper? If so, please suggest how.

Mother

A splendid idea for you to include your son's greetings with yours. . .they will be mighty welcome to relatives and to family friends. You might make a real feature of including your son's greetings by writing a round-robin news item. For example, "Bob is stationed in Germany and will be there at Christmas-time—and we know that he would want us to send his greetings with ours to you. (His address is——, and of course he'd be thrilled to receive a postcard from you with news of you and the family. He's always 'starved' for mail!) Dearest greetings to you from the Bradley family. . . two Here and Bob There. . .for a Happy Christmas and for a wonderful New Year!"

Gracious to include husband and wife. . . .on envelope, on Christmas card

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We were married last March, and so this is the first time we are to send Christmas cards together. Two questions puzzle me.

(1) When we send a card to a married couple, is it proper to address it to both the husband and the wife, even though we know only one of them?

(2) When only one of us knows the couple should that one's name be signed, or both our names?

"Us"

(1) It is the way-of-courtesy to address the card to both the husband and the wife, even though you know only one. (Just as a formal invitation is addressed to both husband and wife, even though one might not know both.)

(2) Both of your names should be signed to the card. Addressing cards to both husband and wife, and signing cards by both husband and wife are gracious gestures most "becoming" to the Greetings-of-the-Season!

Charming habit. . . to write thank-you note for dinner-invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have had several dates with a young man whom I met a few weeks ago. Last week he asked me to dinner at his home, and I met his mother, father, and two sisters. Should I write a note of appreciation, or isn't this necessary? If you think I should write, please give me some suggestions as to how to word the note.

R. E.

This thank-you note isn't a must. . . but it is one of the very nicest gestures you can make for such special hospitality. It's a wonderful habit to cultivate . . . always to write a note, if just a sentence or two, to thank for a happy time someone has been so kind as to plan for you. How much hostesses do like these pleasant notes!

For example:

Dear Mrs. Davis,

I had such a happy time with you and your family last Tuesday, and I do want to tell you how much I appreciated your hospitality. Every minute was a joy, and it was a memorable evening. I felt very honored to be asked to be with Joe's so-friendly family!

My friendliest greetings and thanks to you and Mr. Davis, and to your two charming daughters.

Sincerely,

Top Hollywood Model Fits Beauty of Job

That's because Mara will change the color of her hair — or her personality — as the job demands.

Bernard of Hollywood, one of the top glamor photographers here, calls this striking girl the most widely photographed — and most versatile — of all models.

Currently, she is prominently displayed as an aristocratic Spanish senorita on a beer billboard; a red-haired cowgirl on a calendar; a sultry Arabian dancing girl in "Son of Ali Baba," a movie she made with Tony Curtis and a blonde showgirl in still another movie, "Two Tickets to Broadway" with Tony Martin.

She adopted a Latin name for professional reasons and collects rhumba records for a hobby but her ancestry is all Welsh She is the daughter of a chauffeur and unmarried.

But don't write for her phone number. She goes steady with a husky ex-bartender who is in the throes of becoming a cafe owner.

Santa Parade At Deseronto Attracts 4,000

An estimated four thousand spectators, the majority of them excited kiddies, viewed the colorful Santa Claus parade held in Deseronto on Saturday afternoon.

A twenty-five float parade headed by the Belleville Salvation Army Band and the 9th Anti Tank Regimental Pipe Band, also of Belleville, moved from the high school at 1.30 through the main streets of the town.

Spectators lined the pavements and kiddies shouted their pleasure as the floats, the majority of them portraying famous fairy-tale characters such as Red Riding Hood, Three Little Bears, Old Woman in a Shoe, Little Miss Muffit, Ding Dong Bell, and others, passed by in parade.

Then, of course, there was the centre of attraction old Santa Claus himself. Surrounded by shouting jostling children, he gave out presents of candy, toys and candy sticks.

The floats and parade were sponsored by individual merchants of the town, and were said to be the best held in years.

Quebecois Fish For Eels, Smelt In Autumn

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec (CP) — Quebeckers, whose favorite meats are pork and beef, go crazy about fish a few weeks every autumn.

For thousands of Quebec workers, every day-off means a trip to the harbor where, from a pier, smelts can be pulled out of the St. Lawrence River two to six at a time, depending on the number of hooks on a line.

The "Habitant", whose farm extends to the St. Lawrence shore, takes a holiday from farming for a few weeks and traps eels—dark-skinned, snake-like fish that bring him fair profit.

And, during the weeks of fishing activities, everyone seems to be going to or talking about oyster feeds—"banquets aux huitres", as they are called.

Favorite Autumn Fare

So, altogether, more fish is eaten in Quebec in October and November than in all the other months put together. Hardware stores do a good business, selling bamboo rods and equipment.

Except for enthusiasts, who bundle themselves in sweaters and bring hot wine to keep warm in raw November weather, the smelt rush is over.

The eel season is over too and fish establishments are freezing the catch for shipment, chiefly to New York City. Eels are a Christmas delicacy for families of Italian, German and Jewish descent.

The annual trip to New York harbor of a barge, with a perforated bottom and large enough to hold 90,000 pounds of live eels, has been cancelled this year because of high cost.

Instead fish exporters are filling some of the demand for live eels by packing them in water-filled barrels, and shipping them by rail.

Eel Catch Small

This season's catch of 1,000,000 pounds was small in comparison to past years.

Island of Orleans farmers, whose land is surrounded by St. Lawrence River water, say eels enter their weirs mostly on overcast windy nights. Autumn this year was sunny and mild, hence the poor catch.

Eels are not widely eaten in Quebec—except in October among farmer-fishermen — although some still are salted and kept for sale later in rural districts.

RAWDON

Fred Bateman Visits Orange Lodge

Rawdon.—Brother Fred Bateman, Grand Master of Ontario East Orange Lodges, paid his official visit recently to the County of Carleton. A turkey banquet was sponsored by the United Church and the Anglican Church ladies of North Gore and 350 persons enjoyed the appetizing meal.

The guest speaker was Rev. W. Patterson, of Lachine, Quebec, who was ably introduced by Brother J. A. Corrigan, of Ottawa, Immediate Past Grand Master of Ontario East L.O.L.

The other speakers were, Brother James Clancy, Vancouver, B.C.; Grand Master of British North America; Brother Fred Bateman, Stirling, Grand Master Ontario East, who was introduced by the County Master of Carleton, Brother Milton Johnson.

Brief Speeches

Mrs. A. Gillespie, Past Mistress of Ontario East L.O.B.A., spoke briefly; also Brother Denzil Graham, of Smiths Falls, Past Grand Master British America and Orange Young Britons; Brother R. Edwards, Smiths Falls, present Grand Master of Ontario East Loyal Young Britons, and Brother W. Chambers, Ottawa, Deputy Grand Master of Royal Black Preceptory of Ontario East.

Mrs. Bateman accompanied her husband and they were overnight guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Montgomery, North Gore. This was a delightful surprise as their son, Mr. Gerald Montgomery resided in Stirling, while he was assistant agricultural representative.

Brother Fred Bateman also paid his official visit to West Peterborough County last month. He and Mrs. Bateman attended the banquet held in the Orange Hall, Brock Street, Peterborough.

Mr. Bateman was the guest speaker and he was introduced by the County Master of West Peterborough, Brother Gordon Trennum.

Other speakers were: Captain Sharpe, of Peterborough Salvation Army; Brother Arthur Holden, Grand Lecturer of British America, who is also the Past Grand Master of the Royal Black Preceptory of Ontario East; and Brother Morgan Brown, Peterborough, Grand Lecturer of Ontario East.

Brother Bateman has been busy paying his official visits to the various counties. Just recently he was a guest in Prince Edward County.

Stanky-DiMaggio Futures Shade Seven-Player Deal Between Reds, Phils

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

PETERBOROUGHT HERE TONIGHT!

The rambunctious young Hawks go to the junior "B" post here tonight in a tilt with their foemen wearing the three links of the Peterborough Oddfellows. Coach "Red" Doran will be on hand to take the helm of the junior ship, and the crewmen will steer a straight and narrow path or the furry fireworks will probably fly.

They've won four of their six starts todate with one being a tie, their only loss coming at the hands of the potent Lindsay crew up in the Scugog town last Friday night while the big brothers were pinfeathering the Peterborough Eagles.

While they have not been getting too many of the "breaks" of late this Peterborough crew is a big husky out fit that knows a lot of the hockey answers. The Hawks tied them 6-6 in their last meeting in Peterborough and defeated them 5-3 here in their second joust firing home three goals in the dying minutes of the game. The Links are not the group's stepping stones, by any stretch of the imagination and somebody's apple-cart is due to go aglimmering long before the schedule end rolls around. They're overdue for a victory or two and tonight might see them chalk up a win at the Hawklets expense. The locals have other ideas, however, and what should be a neat junior jousting is on tap at Memorial Arena this evening.

Meanwhile the senior Hawks are tuning up for that important tilt against the Peterborough Petes up in Perdueville Wednesday evening. The Doran crew snatched a 6-5 victory up there in Civic Arena the last night the teams clashed, and defeated the Petes 11-3 in the group opener. Doran used "Huck" Reeves and Leo Goyer in a defence-bolstering role last Friday night against Eagles and both came through with creditable performances. Reeves turned in an extra good effort considering it was his first time out in senior company. They'll be used again on Wednesday night in Peterborough.

SHARPSHOOTING DEPT.!

In the senior "B" sniping department there isn't much to choose from, taking it from a team standpoint. In all 147 pucks have rattled the cords with the distribution among the Hawks, Eagles, Petes and Kingston being fairly even. Kingston and Eagles lead the sharpshooting parade with 39 goals, Hawks are next with 37 and the Petes bring up the rear with 32. Hawks lead the receiving end with 39 chalked up against them, next is Kingston with 38, then come the Petes with 36 and Eagles with 34. Milne of the Eagles is the only goalie in the group with a shutout, that being registered in the Hawks 3-0 defeat at the hands of his team. Top score was that 11-3 defeat handed by the Hawks to the Petes in their opening tilt while the Hawks were on the receiving end in the next high-scoring game when Eagles set them back 10-4. Lowest score or rather the closest score was that 3-2 game here last Friday against the Eagles. These figures do not include last night's Kingston at Eagles tilt.

In the junior "B" group the Hawks are away out in front with 47 goals scored as for 26 against. (Nice going, Master Barclay). Lindsay is next with a 34-29 record. Peterborough is third with 28-37 and Kingston Vics bring up the tail end with a record of 29-46.

Two high-scoring games inflated the Hawks sniping list, these being the 11-3 setback of the Vics here and the Lindsay defeat of 12-4. The Hawks average is nearly eight goals per game, not a bad mark in any man's league (But brother you should see that hoosegow record). They have yet to score less than five in any game.

TV TEAMS GET READY

Three Trent Valley Hockey League entries whirled over Memorial ice in stiff practice sessions over the weekend, and from this railbird's impression, there's going to be some close puck-tilting when Marse Art. Duncan's loop hits the schedule trail.

Timmy Williams' Glen Roys, hockey-hungry, swung through a stiff workout although it seemed that at times too many players cluttered up the ice surface. With the league expected to open its schedule somewhere in the vicinity of January 7 or 8, the teams should be narrowing down to actual team play, with the axe falling where it will. Williams will have to cut his squad to meet league requirements very soon in order to fashion his plays and give his squad the team practice all teams need before going to the wire.

Lou Schmidt's Trenton Jewellers tossed a potent looking crew out there with the veterans of last and previous year garnished with some good local talent. Lou had three lines working and all seemed to have fine bursts of speed.

Wellington's "Iron Dukes" also worked out and the village team came up with some smart players although it seems they will need some outside help. It was stated yesterday that the Prince Edward team will be bolstered with some Belleville players who will be waived to them, depending of course on the loop sanction.

We understand the league has a meeting scheduled for Sunday next when the final wrinkles will be ironed out, schedule drawn and players' certificates distributed to the various squads.

Dick Fitzpatrick, well-known city athlete was ordered to hospital yesterday by his physician. "Fitz" is said to be battling an attack of pneumonia. City sportsdom joins this department in wishes for a speedy recovery.

Canuck Driver Wins $126,478 On Sulky Tracks

The 31-year-old reinsman won $333,136 and 118 races, high for both fields. Final figures were announced today by the United States Trotting Association, which is meeting in annual session.

Simpson, general manager of the Hanover Shoe Farms of Hanover, Pa., set a single season record for earnings, surpassing the mark of $306,000 set last year by Delvin Miller of Meadow Lands, Pa.

In ninth place both among the leading money winners and runners-up in races won was Joe O'Brien of New Glasgow, N.S., with $126,478 for victories in 71 races.

Giants' Pepper-Pot Due to Sign 2-Year Contract With Cards; Joe May be Yanks' TV Voice

By JACK HAND

New York, Dec. 11 (AP) — Eddie Stanky is due to sign a two year contract as player-manager of the St. Louis Cardinals today and Joe DiMaggio will announce his future plans.

The Stanky and DiMaggio developments probably will overshadow the seven-player deal completed last night between the Cincinnati Reds and Philadelphia Phils.

In the only official swap of the winter meetings, Cincinnati sent pitcher Howie Fox (9-14), second baseman Connie Ryan (.234) and catcher Forrest Burgess (.257) to the Phils for catcher Andy Seminick (.223), outfield Dick Sisler (287), pitcher Niles Jordan (2-3) and infielder Eddie Pellagrini (.234).

Stanky's deal to St. Louis for pitcher Max Lanier (11-9) and outfielder Chuck Diering (.259) hinges on an agreement between the peppery little second baseman and Fred Saigh, Card owner. That is a foregone conclusion.

Much Talk, No Do

Saigh and Stanky talked on the phone last night and will compromise on a two-year contract at $37,500 when Eddie flies into St. Louis today to meet his new boss.

Although the Giants and Cards didn't announce the players involved in the Stanky deal, it was learned Lanier and Diering are the men. Lanier, 36-year-old veteran left, would bolster the Giant staff and Diering, a good-field, no-hit centre fielder, will provide centre field insurance in case Willie Mays is drafted.

Stanky, who played 145 games last year and hit .247 for the pennant winning Giants, expects to play second base for his Cards.

The DiMaggio announcement will settle the future of the 37-year-old star with the $100,000 salary. Joe told reporters after the World Series he had played his last game but held off positive retirement at the request of the Yanks' owners.

Since Dizzy Dean left the Yanks to take another job, the television job is open. There are strong reports DiMaggio will man the TV-mike at Yankee Stadium for the next three years at $50,000 per.

The Cincinnati-Phillies deal helps both clubs where they need it most.

Manager Eddie Sawyer counts on Ryan, 31-year-old veteran, as his regular second baseman. He played with New York and Boston before he was traded to the Reds for Walker Cooper in May of 1950. Sawyer also gets a regular starting pitcher in Fox, 30, a righthander who may benefit by a change of scenery. Burgess is a young catcher, 24, who came to the Reds from Chicago in a four-man deal after the season.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Dec. 11 (AP) — Joe DiMaggio is supposed to give out today with his decision on whether or not he'll retire. . .if he decides to play another season, the Yankees have wasted a lively persuasion campaign. . . First there was all that trade talk about Ted Williams and others, and then the statement that Joe could have the $50,000 job as television commentator if he wanted it. That would be a big saving to the Yanks, who can't cut him below $75,000 as a player.

Double Kaye

Eddie (Milkovich) Melvin, St. Bonaventure basketball coach, is understandably insistent that his players protect themselves against winter weather (which ain't good up thataway) . . as an added precaution, he decided the other day the entire squad should have "shots" to prevent the recurrence of a virus malady that afflicted last year's team. . . The boys agreed, on condition that Eddie took the first shot, and they even talked the team physician into having one himself. . . Latest lament from Melvin: "You know who are laid up —I and the doc."

End of the Line

Sportscaster Red Barber will be a 'soloist' with the Philharmonic-symphony orchestra . as narrator of "The Story of Ferdinand the Bull" at a children's concert Saturday. . .

Kingston Ties For Top Defeats Eagles 4-3

Kingston swept into a two-way tie for first place in the senior "B" group standing last night when the Essanays defeated the Peterborough Eagles by a 4-3 score in Peterborough in a close hard-fought game.

The winners now share top spot with the Belleville Hawks with a record of four wins and three losses for eight points. The two Peterborough clubs, Petes and Eagles are tied for second place with six points each.

Favor Yankees Over Sweden In Cup Tennis

By GAYLE TALBOT

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 11 (AP) — America's Davis Cup players and the rival Swedes took turns practising today on Kooyong's center court in preparation for the inter-zone tennis final, starting Thursday.

Australian critics remained enormously puzzled at the selection of Ted Schroeder and Tony Trabert to play singles against the European zone champions.

Most of them seemed to think Captain Frank Shields is indulging in some deep strategy designed to confuse the Australian team in advance of the challenge round at Sydney two weeks hence.

For what it's worth, this observer is now inclined to believe the American captain was given instructions to play the veteran Schroeder against the Swede in both singles and doubles before the U.S. team ever left the States.

Ted's ability to lift his game for a single match and his fighting heart still are respected in official American circles. What they want to find out before the challenge round is whether he is still capable at 30 of reaching his oldtime peak.

There's no question that Shields' verdict came as a distinct shock to Dick Savitt and Vic Seixas. Neither of them knew before hand. Both refrained from comment.

The consensus is that Trabert will win his opening match against Sweden's Sven Davidsson Thursday. Tony is playing fine tennis and is brimming with confidence.

Schroeder's tilt with Lennart Bergelin should be a beauty. The Swedish ace will be approaching his top form.

Joe Louis, for his record-breaking reign in boxing, was awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial trophy as the man who did most for the sport 10 years ago today by the Boxing Writers Association of New York. At that time Louis had won 19 straight bouts since capturing the world heavyweight title four years previously from James J. Braddock.

Detroit Tops National League, Team's Snipers Down In List

Montreal, Dec. 11—(CP)—Detroit Red Wings are currently comfortably ensconced atop the National Hockey League but you'd never know it from a look at the individual statistics.

Gordie Howe first Red Wing to show in the statistics, is in fifth place and the second highest is Ted Lindsay who is tied for 10th.

Be that as it may, the Wings have counted 67 times this year, five more than the runner-up Leafs. They've also had the least goals scored against them and that combination leaves them where they are today.

Ted Kennedy of Toronto Leafs paces the pack with 25 points, made up of 10 goals and 16 assists. Montreal Canadiens' Elmer Lach is two points off the pace with six goals and 18 assists, tops in that department for the year.

Rocket Third

Tied for third spot are Canadiens' Maurice Richard and Toronto's Sid Smith with 23 points apiece. Richard's total is made up of 15 goals, high for the year, and eight assists and Smith has a 10-13 mark.

Chicago's Bill Mosienko is one point behind Howe after gathering the highest number of points in a single game last Dec. 2. Mosienko's two goals and three assists in that game brought his point total to 20, one less than Howe. Tied with the Chicagoan is New York's Don Raleigh.

Detroit's 14 victories and seven deadlocks in 25 games give them a total of 35 points, four more than Toronto, Boston follows with 24, while Montreal has 21.

Terry Sawchuk, Detroit goaltender, racked up his fifth shutout last week and has the best goal-against average. In 25 games, he let 44 pucks past him for a 1.76 average, compared to 1.92 for Toronto's Al Rollins.

The leaders:

ELIMINATED AS CONTENDER FOR LIGHTWEIGHT TITLE

Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler, seen above, was ruled out as a contender for lightweight crown by Paddy de Marco, who defeated the New York Negro in an upset split non-title decision in 10 round non-title bout at Madison Square Garden. By defeating the titlist for the second time in three encounters, the "Brooklyn billygoat" established himself as lightweight contender, with a title fight in February looming on the horizon. Saddler, disgusted with the decision and with the officiating, announced in his dressing room after the fight that he would retire and give up the title. —Central Press Canadian.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Because Mrs. Velma Salt thought that boys under 12 would like to play organized hockey as well as their elder brothers, some 80 youngsters now are organized into an atom hockey league in West Toronto.

Mrs. Salt persuaded her husband, amateur sports official E. L. (Red) Salt, to talk Kiwanis clubs and the YMCA into promoting the league. Merchants support the four teams, which play an 18-game schedule.

Only complaint the under-12's have is the 80-feet-by-190-feet ice surface. Said one coach: "Once up the ice, once down, and you put on the substitutes."

Don Gallinger, playing manager of the Kitchener Legionnaires in 1950 Intercounty Baseball League play, last night bought the club for $8,000.

Decision to sell the club to Gallinger and his associates was reached at a general meeting of the Kitchener-Waterloo Canadian Legion branch, which previously held the club franchise.

Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan of Cuba was warned yesterday at Washington his title will be forfeited in 10 days if he doesn't sign to meet the European champion, Charlie Humez of France.

The warning came from the National Boxing Association.

It was "get tough" day for the NBA for, along with the warning to Gavilan, went reminders to heavyweight champion Joe Walcott and light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim.

They were told that, within the next three months, they must make some sort of arrangement for the defence of their titles.

At Providence, R.I., middleweight Robert Villemain of France snapped the 29 bout winning streak of rugged Jimmy Cerello of Hoboken, N.J., last night as he pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision before 2,588 fans. Villemain got a real battle from the up and coming Jersey belter as he notched his 55th victory against five defeats, two to middle-weight king Sugar Ray Robinson.

The New York Giants yesterday sold shortstop Artie Wilson to Seattle of the Pacific Coast Hockey League for an undisclosed sum of cash and an option to buy outfielder Kay Charlton at the end of the 1952 season. Wilson was a big star for Oakland in the P.C.L. until he came up to the Giants last spring. The 29-year-old Negro appeared in only 19 games for the Giants and hit .182 on four hits in 22 tries.

Laufman Leads Junior 'A' Scoring Race

Toronto, December 11—(CP)—Guelph Biltmores' Ken Laufman picked up two goals and three assists in two games this week to hold his lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A scoring race. He has a total of 59 points on 18 goals and 41 assists.

Dave Wharram of Galt Black Hawks is second with 21 goals and 36 assists for 57 points. He has picked up two goals and four assists in his team's last three games.

Bob Murphy of Guelph is in third spot with 53 points while Danny Poland of Toronto Marlboros continues in fourth position with 50. Galt's Pete Conacher is fifth with 49.

Although Johnny Henderson, the Marlboros sub-goalie, is leading the league in goals-against averages, he has appeared in only three games. Don Head, the Marlboros' regular net-minder, has an average of 3.16 in 19 games as against Henderson's 1.67. Head has played 19 contests.

Ed. Chadwick of Toronto St. Michael's is third with a 3.23 average in 22 tilts and Galt's Les Binkley places fourth with a 3.76 average in 21 games.

Leading Scorers:	G	A	Pts

'Teeder' Kennedy Hockey's Greatest Says Smythe

Toronto, Dec. 11 (CP) —The new National Hockey League pace setter, Ted (Teeder) Kennedy of Toronto Maple Leafs, is regarded as the most underrated player in the league everywhere except in Toronto.

"I don't underrate him," snorts Connie Smythe, the Leafs' dynamic general manager. "He's the greatest player in hockey. You can have your Richards, Howes, Schmidts and Abels. I'll take Kennedy."

Kennedy, in his ninth year as a big leaguer, will be 26 years old tomorrow and has much to celebrate. Not the least was the fact that his consistent scoring endeavors had brought him to to the top of the pack individually with 26 points in as many games.

Never picked to the first all-star team, this rugged competitor is finally coming into his own as the top centre in the game, if only because age was catching up with his chief opponents—namely, Milt Schmidt, Elmer Lach, Max Bentley, Edgar Laprade and Sid Abel, all of whom are in their 30s.

The Wheelhorse

Furthermore, Ted is becoming more and more the wheelhorse of the Maple Leaf attack. Bentley, the second centre, seems a full stride slower than in past seasons, and Cal Gardner, No. 3 playmaker, seems more erratic.

Kennedy has played for five Stanley Cup champs and captained two of them.

SUNDAY SPORT VOTED DOWN

Pembroke, Ont., Dec. 11 —(CP) — Sunday sport was voted down by Pembroke ratepayers yesterday by a vote of 2,462 to 1,110. Voters also approved a by-law to extend the term of office for town council from one to two years and re-elected Mayor J. J. Carmody for a third term. He received 2,178 votes against 1,457 for J. M. Forgie.

Glen Roys, Flyers Clash Tonight In Hoop Game

Bill Spafford's Glen Roy A.C. basketball squad takes on the Trenton RCAF Flyers tonight in a scheduled Bay of Quinte Basketball League fixture. The Glens has won one of their first two starts and will be gunning for their second victory on the Flyers' court this evening.

The Peterborough Marines top the loop with two victories while the Picton quintet has split its two games. Flyers have yet to chalk up a victory.

The air lads lost a close game to Picton recently. Going into the last few minutes one point up as they thought, the Flyers "ragged" the ball until the final whistle. A recount of the score revealed Picton had won the tilt by a single point.

Mixed Commercial Bowling League

Many good scores were rolled in the Mixed Commercial Bowling League at the Bowl-O-Drome on Monday night being topped by the fine three-game total of Harold Thrasher with 791. Other leading scores among the men were made by B. Sheffield 758 (316), Frank Post 737, Art Whelan 721, Glenn Rodgers 708 and Rex Young 706.

Pearl Empey set a new mark for the ladies high triple with 781 including a single game of 328. She was followed by Marg Fairbairn 723, Marie Bell 677 (322), Dorothy Mansfield 675, Dorothy Bone 671, Georgina Bell 668, Grace Clapp 624 and Gladys Dafoe with 607.

Standings remained unaltered as both Short Circuits and K. V. A.'s took five points wins from Smasheroos and Live Wires to remain deadlocked in first place. Symons pulled to within four points of the league lead by winning all three games from Jets.

Egg Heads and Sun Rays swept all games from Power Pins and Marketeers as Bombers and Whiz Bangs garnered the odd game and point from High Liners and Hy Rollers.

Leafs, Bruins Win Bantam Games

Maple Leafs and Bruins were the victors in the Saturday morning Bantam Hockey League games played in Memorial Arena. Canadiens and Black Hawks battled to a one-all tie.

John Hagerman, with a fine scoring performance paced the Leafs to victory. He scored three of the five goals and earned assists on two others. Also outstanding was Ryan who accounted for the remaining pair and was credited with two assists. Ferguson also got two assists.

Hull's two unassisted goals were the feature of the Bruins 3-2 victory over the Red Wings. Cornell accounted for the other. Durno and Wannamaker got the Wings pair with Gordy St. Louis assisting in both scores.

Rowbotham got the Canadiens lone marker in their one-all stalemate with the Hawks with Cruji drawing the assist. Gillis scored for the Hawks with McCann getting credit for the assist.

The games were well played and close affairs throughout.

AHL to Discuss New Distribution Of Gate Receipts

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 11 (AP)—Directors of the nine-team American Hockey League met here today to talk over plans for a new method of distribution of gate receipts.

That apparently was the No. 1 item on the agenda for the regular league meeting which is rotated among member cities.

At present the home team retains all gate receipts and proposals have been made that a system be worked out whereby the visiting club would get a share of the money.

League officials also were expected to talk over plans for next spring's playoff.

BISHOP SENTENCED

Hong Kong, Dec. 11 — (Reuters) —Unconfirmed Chinese press reports today said Italian Bishop Lawrence Bianchi, who recently became Bishop of Hong Kong, had been sentenced to six months in jail by communist authorities in South China. The communists have refused to allow him to leave China since he became Bishop of Hong Kong last September.

Stoddard Heads American League Point Parade

New York, Dec. 11 — (CP) — Jack Stoddard, 25-year-old forward of Providence Reds, tops the American Hockey League scoring race for the second straight week.

Stoddard scored only one goal during the week to bring his total to 36 points. Rookie Real Chevrefils of Hershey Bears remained in second place with 34.

This is the first time since the start of the season that any player has held the scoring lead for two weeks in a row.

George Armstrong of Pittsburgh was third with 31 points, followed by Cliff Simpson of St. Louis who had 30, and Steve Wochy of Cleveland and Ray Powell of Providence each with 29.

Armstrong continued to set the pace in goal scoring with 18. His teammate on the Hornets, Frank Mathers, took over the lead in assists with 24.

Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh regained the goaltender lead, replacing Gordie Henry of Hershey. Mayer has permitted 61 goals in 25 games for an average of 2.44, while Henry allowed 60 in 24 games for 2.50.

Hong Kong, Dec. 11 — (AP) — The newspaper Wah Kiu Yat Po today reported that Canton communists sent out the jobless to work 10 hours daily on such heavy tasks as road repairs, cave digging and transporting heavy equipment. The pay is rice. Nobody complains of being unemployed any more.

Champions Bow From Bonspiel

Toronto, Dec. 11 — (CP) — Mrs. T. F. Doughty's Peterborough rink defending champions in the Malcolmson trophy bonspiel, bowed 12-6 from second-round play yesterday at the hands of Mrs. A. McIntosh's Bobcaygeon quartet.

Six rinks remain in the hunt for the trophy put up for annual competition for ladies' rinks from outside of Toronto.

The final round is scheduled today. Rinks still in play are from Bobcaygeon, Hamilton Victorias, Kitchener, Peterborough, Guelph and Hamilton Thistles.

No-trump hounds are stubborn animals. They strain against playing any deals in minor suits. They are off any contract in clubs or diamonds like a dirty shirt.

They might bid a truly biddable minor suit at the beginning. Usually this is done to learn from partner what suits he has. But they steer the contract into no-trump thereafter.

They might bid a phoney minor suit at the start or later. Usually this is done to scare opponents out of a lead in that suit. But they aim for a final no-trump contract, as with this hand:

♠J 2
♥A K Q
♦A 3
♣Q J 10 9 8 7

Your opening bid with this hand is one club. Suppose partner responds at once with a bid of two spades, a one-jump take-out.

Any one-jump is a signal. It shows a hand that now sees enough tricks for a game. It orders partner to help keep the bidding alive to at least a game contract.

You would have bid anyway. But the signal tells you to unlax without fear of the next bid being your last. So, just follow T-A-N and you could not go wrong if you wanted to.

You have not another biddable suit. So you have no takeout to a new suit. But your club suit is rebiddable. So, you should rebid your clubs. Your bid in this spot is three clubs.

A no-trump hound might be inclined to bid three no-trump instead of three clubs. He might fear an assist in clubs by partner. Which would carry the bidding beyond the range of three no-trump.

But that is a stubborn way of figuring. If partner assists in clubs, the safest contract is in clubs. If partner does not assist clubs, there is still time to bid three no-trump.

Bridge is a game of give and take between partners. Do not keep your neck bowed.

Charles W. Cox Again Mayor Of Port Arthur

(By The Canadian Press)

Some new faces will be seen at the next meetings of many Ontario municipal governments as a result of civic elections held yesterday. And many former officials will also be back on the job.

The new mayor of Port Arthur Charles W. Cox, is a little of both. He defeated the incumbent mayor Fred O. Robinson but he is no newcomer to the office. He was mayor of the lakehead city from 1934 to 1948.

In Teck township, which includes city-sized Kirkland Lake, Reeve Ann Shipley, 52, was re-elected for her tenth term. In Coleman township, in the same district, Reeve William Martin, 82, believed to be one of the oldest reeves in Canada, was re-elected by acclamation.

North Bay elected a new mayor, Arthur Beattie, in a two-man race. Goderich re-elected Mayor J. E. Huckins with a comfortable majority of more than 1,500 votes.

In some municipalities voters were asked to decide for or against some local by-law. Cochrane ratepayers voted 314 to 43 in favor of purchasing the town's power supply from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission instead of from the Abitibi Power and Paper Company.

At Pembroke, Mayor J. J. Carmody was re-elected mayor for his third consecutive term. He polled 2,178 votes to 1,457 for his only opponent, J. M. Forgie.

Fort Erie voted 701 to 475 in favor of financial assistance to a hospital and Merritton voted in favor of a fixed assessment for a paper mill.

Many mayors and reeves were elected without a contest but among the mayors who retained their seats in a contested election were F. O. Leeson of Merritton, Michael Starr of Oshawa and Harry Smart of Mattawa.

J. Austin Cook took over the mayoralty of Orillia and A. S. Kimmerly was successful in Napanee.

Convention Will Not Involve Canadian Govt.

Ottawa, Dec. 11 — (CP) — A convention with West Germany on the future of imprisoned German war criminals is under consideration but will not involve Canada, whose only German prisoner is Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer, a government spokesman said yesterday.

Any such convention would be made with the occupying western powers — Britain, the United States and France — if agreement was reached after a final determination of relationships with the West German republic.

However, the spokesman said, so far as Canada is concerned the condition of Meyer's sentence to life imprisonment cannot be changed without consent of this country.

Meyer, sentenced for responsibility in the shooting of Canadian prisoners of war, was recently moved from Canada to a British service prison at Werl, Germany. A disclosure that he recently was allowed a pass to go home to tre Cmmns.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 11—(AP) — Everybody talks about the need for new faces in the movies, but few studios do much about it.

A notable exception by Universal-International. In the last year or so, the studio has developed new personalities in a number disproportionate to the size of its operation. Among the promising newcomers: Peggy Dow, Tony Curtis, Piper Laurie, Joyce Holden, Rock Hudson.

For information I went to the talent coach Sophie Rosenstein, who has spent most of her career developing other people's talents. How does the studio find promising young talent?

"Mostly through agents who bring the talent to the studio. Most of the boys and girls have been found in little theatres in Hollywood, which is our principle showcase of talent. Only a few are brought in from Broadway, and other parts of the country."

How are the youngsters chosen for contracts?

"We try to pick ones who have the potentiality of being able to do leading roles, since we generally don't put character types under contract. The person should be assured and self-confident. Previous training is not necessary, but it helps. If a person has taken part in school plays and so forth, that at least shows he has some of the drive and the desire to be an actor."

After the hopefuls are on the contract list, they begin extensive training. "There is no sitting at home, waiting to be called for a picture," Miss Rosenstein remarked. "They put in a full day at the studio. We give them singing and dancing lessons, teach them how to ride horseback and train them in all phases of acting. They are taught to improvise and to think on their feet; that makes them self-confident and assured."

Kingston Choir To Visit N.Y.

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 11 — (CP) — The 30 boys and 30 men of St. George's Anglican Cathedral choir have accepted an invitation to sing Dec. 30 in the world-famous New York City Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Directed by George N. Maybee, the choir, believed to be the first Canadian church group ever to sing in New York, will take part in the Octave of Christmas. It is the first time a visiting choir has ever been invited to take part in a choral Eucharist at the world's largest Gothic cathedral.

The choir will sing Saturday night evensong at the cathedral Dec. 29 and the Choral Eucharist the next morning. Sunday afternoon it will sing evensong and a program of carols.

DISEASE NOT DECREASING

London, Dec. 11 — (Reuters)— British and European livestock breeders and farmers today were still at the mercy of dread foot and mouth disease outbreaks which since last fall have ravaged cattle and sheep herds in Britain, Denmark, Sweden, Germany and Austria.

In London the ministry of agriculture said the disease, believed carried from the continent of Europe into England by starlings, is not decreasing.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Wednesday, December 12

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Day especially favors matters important to the home, essential travel and business, also necessary changes to better conditions, position. More caution in writings, signing contracts, etc.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Your Venus aspect stresses need for a pleasant disposition and care in home and family relations. Otherwise today is generally auspicious and money interests and work can advance.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—You whose work and other interests require originality of thought, bright ideas, must urge self. Benefic day on whole for useful matters. Faith!

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Your Moon, the Sun and Jupiter all in favorable positions should inspire you to press forward for really big achievement, new type of gains. Be tactful at home and with opposite sex.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Promising for you energetic folks if you make most of every minute. Business, work interests, personal attainment, useful innovations improve. Be cautious in signing agreements.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)— Your Mercury neither helpful nor restraining; suggest you be sharper than usual. In mental work making contracts, etc., take care in details. Accomplishment is for you.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — One admonition this generally benefic day is not to go to extremes in pleasures, eating, drinking included. Moderation always wise, and you can do great good with example. Use Libra logic.

October 24 to November 22 —(Scorpio) — Should have little trouble today getting through schedule if well planned. Even difficult tasks can be handled, if you do your best and waste no time. No strain.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Work for matters of concern to general good rather than for any selfish purpose. All sound business, big and minute propositions, favored.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Best planetary day so far this month. Your Saturn and Mars and Neptune highly favor hard work, laborious trades, mining, activities connected with the sea. Good rays.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Promising for your talents and interests. But day won't brook haphazard effort or disinterest. Alert attentiveness to work and home interests will bring you many happy results.

February 21 to March 20 —(Pisces)—Should be a really big day for advancement in whatever your occupation, In family and general personal affairs. But you cannot idle or dally over nonessentials. You have ability, use it now.

YOU BORN TODAY: Are meditative, likeable in disposition, may often be changeable and slightly combative. Much talent, capability in your sector; shrewd business sense plus farsightedness also inherent. You will be happiest most efficient when constructively, usefully employed. Diligence a natural asset. Important to develop your spiritual side and be choosey about associates. You could be imposed upon through generosity, sympathy. Study, improve constantly.

Birthdate: G. Flaubert, French novelist; John Jay, American statesman.

GENTLEMEN!!-SINCE WE CAN'T GET NEAR TO FOSDICK, WE'LL PERFORM HIS DISMISSAL CEREMONY, BY PROXY!!- WILL HIS COUSIN SEBASTIAN KINDLY STEP FORWARD?
NO, CHIEF!! NOT HE!! NOT THE DISMISSAL CEREMONY!!
BAP!!
HERE'S THE SCISSORS, CHIEF!!
THE C-CUTTING OFF OF THE B-BUTTONS AND BADGES!! - OH, SOB!!
SNIP
STOP CRYING, SEBASTIAN!! BE GRATEFUL THAT YOU AREN'T REALLY FOSDICK!!
AND, NOW - THE GRAND DISMISSAL!
WELL, NOW OUR OLD PAL, FOSDICK, IS MERELY A CIVILIAN - SO WE CAN SHOOT HIM ON SIGHT!!
OH, BOY!! I ALWAYS WANTED TO GET HIM!!

Drying-Out Causes Damage To Frozen Foods

Improperly packaged food products, especially meat, poultry, and fish, are subject to serious desiccation (drying-out) in the freezer. This lessens the food value and "fresh" appearance of the product. In extreme cases freezer-burn results, and the product becomes brown in color and woody in texture. In meat and poultry products the fat underneath the dried out areas becomes oxidized and rancid. The protein becomes permanently dehydrated and the tissue tough and dry.

The underlying cause of desiccation is the humidity of the air in the freezer room, says A. W. Moyls of the Fruit and Vegetable Products Laboratory, Summerland, B.C. Air has a normal moisture-holding capacity; that of warm air being greater than that of cold. The frozen product and the air in close proximity to it, is relatively warmer than the air in surface contact with the freezing coils. Thus, the circulating air absorbs moisture from the frozen product and deposits it on the coils or plates, in the form of frost. This continuous cycle, over a period of months, can result in considerable moisture loss.

Proper packaging can do much to lessen desiccation. A poorly packaged product may lose weight in excess of three per cent over a 12-month storage period at zero. A heavy wax coating on the outer and inner surfaces of the container, or coated cellophane will control moisture loss to one per cent or less.

Desiccation has a more marked effect on some foods than on others. In frozen fruits, especially syrup packs, it is negligible and does not seriously affect quality. Experiments conducted at the Summerland Experimental Station indicate, however, that it is important to pack vegetables in moisture-vapour-proof containers and to fill the containers completely full. This practice reduces moisture loss to a minimum, thus conserving quality and palatability.

Immigrant Total Nearly 150,000 in Current Year

Records dating back to the prosperous 1920s were toppled as immigrants from all parts of the world, including former enemy countries, were admitted to Canada.

The increase of new citizens was partly due to an increase in the number of ships calling at Canadian ports and partly to federal government programs under which immigrants were given financial assistance to come to this country.

A year ago, Immigration Minister Harris estimated that Canada would obtain 150,000 new citizens in 1951. Final figures for the year were expected to show that his estimate was not far off the mark.

In the first nine months of the year, 129,885 immigrants were admitted compared with 54,250 in the corresponding period of 1950. The last time the immigration total passed the 150,000 mark was in 1929 when about 165,000 immigrants came to this country.

Immigrants from the United Kingdom in the first nine months of 1951 totalled 21,935 compared with 9,804 in the corresponding period of 1950, an increase of 124 per cent. The number from northern European countries—45,834 compared with 13,034—was up 252 per cent. From the United States there were 6,015 compared with 5,884, an increase of two per cent.

Other countries sent 56,101 compared with 25,528, an increase of 120 per cent.

All northern European countries, but notably Holland and Germany—the ban on the entry of German nationalists was lifted in 1950—sent 16,427 compared with 3,920 in the first nine months of last year. Holland sent 15,880 compared with 6,348, and France 3,833 compared with 775.

The shortage of skilled workers in many industries led some companies to sponsor the group movement of immigrants, capable of fulfilling their requirements.

But the bulk of the newcomers came on their own or with the assistance of the government.

Assistance Program

In February, the Canadian government launched a program to assist immigrants with the payment of transportation. If an immigrant could put up $30 in the currency of his own country, the Canadian government would lend his the remainder needed to reach his destination in Canada. The loan could be repaid within two years.

Through a special arrangement with the publicly-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines, immigrants can travel almost as cheaply by air as by ship.

Since 1946—the first year following the end of the Second World War—more than 500,000 immigrants have reached Canada and have helped to swell the country's population to approximately 14,000,000. The best of the immediate post-war years was 1948 when arrivals totalled 125,414, a small number compared with some of the years prior to the First World War. In 1913 alone, the number of immigrants totalled almost 500,000.

First Session Of NWT Council At Yellowknife

In this little town, nestling on the north shores of Great Slave Lake, about 600 miles north of Edmonton, three elected members joined with five others appointed by the federal government to open the first session ever held in the territories of the Northwest Territories Council.

It was the first time that a portion of the council had been elected by the people, marking a significant step on the road to self-government for the vast and rugged territories, rich in natural resources and comprising about one-third of all of Canada.

Maj.-Gen. H. A. Young, Territories Commissioner and deputy minister of resources in the federal government, opened the session. He spoke of the process of evolution that has come to the Territories.

He told the council ordinances or bills will be presented for the imposition of new gasoline and poll taxes.

There also will be bills to extend the country's new old - age pension scheme to the Territories 15,000 residents, but the Territories will have to bear part of the financial burden, just as the provinces do.

"One-half the cost of old - age assistance and three-quarters of the cost of the blind pensions will be assumed by the federal government," said Gen. Young, "if the territorial government concludes agreements to finance the remainder of the costs."

A host of other bills will be placed before the new council and its advice will be sought as to whether the federal government, among other things, should amend its laws to create a supreme court of the Northwest Territories, and allow jury service by women in criminal cases.

Pay Night Keeps Provost Men Busy in Hannover Area

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hanover, Germany, Dec. 11 —(CP)—It is pay night for the soldiers. They come into town in the hundreds, many of them seeing the big city of Hannover for the first time, many of them not being used to big cities at all.

Canadian and British military police, teaming up in patrols on foot and in jeeps, roam the streets and clubs of this city of roughly half a million people.

It's quite a job to keep an eye on the night life and conduct of the soldiers but the alliance is working out nicely. Every night the British M. P.'s and the provist men of Maj. George Hodgkiss of London, Ont., are out together, roving through the strategic downtown area where the lights are bright and night clubs numerous.

The orders are that the 27th brigade is going to behave in Germany or else, and the patrols are firm and active, but in no way ruthlers or brutal. In the key Canadian patrol jeep travel Sgt.-Maj. Reg. Linton of Toronto and S/Sgt. Victor Casellani of Winnipeg and a reporter.

It's a six-hour job, 8 p. m. to 2 a. m., but one of the most intriguing character. The downtown of Hannover is alive with lighted shop windows, with smart cafes, restaurants, hotels, an opera house with tram-cars and many German people—and with Canadian soldiers. Nearly all the soldiers have to be in by midnight. Many of the civilians are around at 2 a. m.

Expensive Clubs

Night clubs roll on until 5 a. m. with acts ranging from partial communists. The soldiers try them—some are out of bounds, some aren't—but usally find them pretty expensive.

The movies are in German so the soldiers skip them. They drift down the streets to an ornate former yacht club which is their N. A. A. F. I. recreation centre. They can drink beer there and talk and perhaps dance with the N. A. A. F. I. girls.

Soldiers roam the streets in two and threes. They drink German beer which is stronger than the beer at home and some of them get too much and the provost men pick them up. They meet women in the streets and some of them fall in with them and many don't.

By 10:30 they are starting to drift back to the station where there are trucks for camp. The patrols step up their activity. Outside a restaurant, several dozen Germans watch intently as they pick up a soldier with too much to drink. But 95 per cent of the soldiers have no trouble with the provost men this night.

By midnight, most of the men are gone and patrols are looking for the others. The jeep prowls on, circling, stopping, prowling. All through the night it goes at regular intervals down into the Nordmann Strasse, the strange jumble of ruins and one-storey dwellings which is the red light district. The troops are not allowed in the Nordmann Strasse, but some of them stray that way and the provost men kindly ask them to read the out-of-bounds signs. The soldiers say pleasantly that they are merely looking for the way to the station.

Electron Microscope Records How Viruses Cause Damage

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 11 —(AP)—How does a virus infection cause the damage and misery you feel?

Some clues are coming from pictures of viruses actually doing their dirty work to living body cells.

Cause Many Ills

Viruses cause polio, 'flu, the common cold, smallpox, mumps and other diseases. Certain vague intestinal upsets are often blamed on virus infection.

Glimpses of the action of the three kinds of virus were reported to the National Academy of Sciences to Dr. Joseph Melnick of Yale University. All three seem to have different ways of multiplying inside infected cells, he said.

Viruses of influenza were brought in contact with red blood cells. Some viruses stick to the smooth, outside surface of the red cells. Other cells show a general roughening of the surface. Some had "scars" of the pitted areas, with no virus obvious on the surface.

With these cells the viruses may have gone inside. The sequence of events in the flu attack on cells of the respiratory system still is not certain.

Another virus causes molluscum contagiosum, a chronic skin disease marked by pinhead to pea-sized skin eruptions, yellowish-white or pinkish in color.

Strange Things Happen

The cytoplasm, the inner substance of the cell except for the nucleus or core, is affected. It divides into segments. Tiny little objects form. They shrink or condense into mature viruses. The viruses drop out, leaving holes in the cytoplasm. This part of the cell looks moth-eaten.

Vaccinia virus, related to smallpox virus seems to involve the nucleus of the cell. The earliest new virus particles form near the wall of the nucleus. An object containing viruses forms. It grows larger and larger, then the cell bursts and new viruses are shot out, apparently ready to infect other cells.

Still other viruses may multiply in still different ways, Dr. Melnick said. Learning the different methods of action is a step toward understanding and better control of virus disease.

WEIRD MOLLUSC

The octopus is not a fish, but a mollusc, member of the soft-bodied but hard-shelled specimens of that classification.

15 Years Ago King Succeeded Elder Brother

The King spent the anniversary quietly at Buckingham Palace, still convalescing from his operation two months ago for removal of all or part of a lung.

His brother Edward, now the Duke of Windsor, arrived in New York yesterday for his annual winter visit to the United States. With him was his American born Duchess, for whom he gave up his throne.

Today's anniversary was observed at Portsmouth naval base by the firing of a royal salute amid beflagged warships.

The King will be 56 Friday, when there will be a family party at the palace.

The King, whose continued recovery has gratified his doctors, was reported to be "in training" for a mild bout of game shooting around Sandringham, country home where he traditionally spends Christmas.

He may go out on one or two days but will not do much walking. The beaters would do most of the work, bringing the birds within range of the royal guns.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

Fetterman laughed hysterically. "Come on Clayton! We're almost there!" At the same time he swerved his horse for the wagons, threw his empty rifle in the faces of the oncoming Indians, and drew his saber. In a stirrup locked charge we headed for death.

For the third time that day the Indian forces split open to make a path for us. But this time they got the wedge in their red rears, an unprotected tender quarter. Charging toward us through the opening, rode Fetterman's 30 troopers led by Lieutenant Wands, from the cover of the wagons.

Once inside the wagon circle we learned Wands in his pistol charge had carried through his section of Indians. Looking around for us at the other end of the valley, he could see nothing but hostiles, assumed we were wiped out and headed his command for the wagons. He hadn't suffered a casualty, man or horse, and when he saw us break clear had organized his remarkable charge.

Fetterman was at my side, joining me in peering through a wagon wheel.

"Clayton, I'm writing a dispatch for you to get through to Carrington. Use your own judgment on when and how to leave. You can make it, of course?"

"I'll never know whether I could or not, Captain, because I'm not going to try."

"How's that?". His face was colorless. "Look here man, You saved my life today. I'm not forgetting that. But this is an order. If you're afraid—"

"Yes, Captain, I'm afraid. Also I'm using my head, not losing my hair. And you're suffering shock. better go lie down someplace."

"He's right," young Wands broke in, earnestly. "It would be murder to send a man out now. And he wouldn't get to the fort before Carrington started looking for us."

The obviousness of this made Fetterman furious.

"I believe I'm senior here, Wands. Any question of that?"

"None at all, Captain. Just giving my opinion."

And come they did, wave after wave, with about 50 to the wave, each group dashing a little closer before breaking and washing back, the last bunch breaching our wagon line, 15 or 20 of them riding their squealing ponies into our midst. Had the others followed in, another massacre would have been official.

Of those who got into the wagon circle, one rode his way out, perhaps living to boast of his exploit, but I take leave to doubt it. I might have known more of his fate but for the fact that he rode me down going out. I woke up in Fort Phil Kearney, not much the worse for all the excitement, save a respectable scalp wound which mercifully spared me the jolting details of the ride back in one of Carrington's mule drawn ambulances.

As soon as I could I went to see Carrington. "Colonel, I want to resign," I told him.

"Now, Clayton, slow down. I know Fetterman and you had a little fuss, but—"

"He's a fool," I interrupted.

"He also requests your discharge, which I refused. Now, Clayton, I want you to stay on. I'll back you up when you're right."

"Sure, Colonel. It's fair. But that's neither here nor there."

"Well, what's eating you, man?

"Colonel, it's Ed Geary's opinion, and mine through him, that the whiskey running that goes on out here has more than a little to do with the hostile outbreaks. Not with the attitudes of the big chiefs like Red Cloud and Crazy Horse, you understand. But you know that for every raid led by one of their rank, there's a dozen wagon-train burnings and settler scalpings with which they have nothing to do and which are, in fact, expressly against their orders."

"Well, what of it?" The Colonel's question showed impatience. "You know an Indian will do anything when he's drunk. We can't help that."

"I think you can," I disagreed, "and I'm willing to help you. Back in Kansas City I had a little buck-up against the man who Geary says is the big wheel in these whiskey operations. I know this man. I know he's out here, operating, and I want to go after him. If you'll give me 30 days and a few men, I can—"

"Out of the question, absolutely. I'm sorry."

"No need to be Colonel. I'll ride my trail the way I read its signs, anyway."

"Well I regret your attitude. Though perhaps it's just as well. You've been listening to Geary too hard. He's half Cheyenne. I think you've 'gone injun' on us, Clayton and when a scout gets soft on Indians his usefulness to the army is questionable. If there's anything else I can do for you Clayton—"

I started to say there wasn't when I remembered a forgotten voice. . . "Colonel, my compliments. Should our paths cross again. . ."

I turned to Carrington. "There is something you could do, Colonel. I'd like to know where General Custer is now."

Colonel Carrington thought he knew a George Custer of the Fifth Cavalry, although it had been the Third at Appomattox, and he called an orderly.

An orderly stepped in, saluting.

"Bring me those files on regimental distribution, the new ones. No, have Sergeant Kelly look it up. I want to know where General George A. Custer is. Fifth Cavalry."

"Yes, sir."

While the orderly was gone, Carrington tried drawing me out. I told him it was useless, that the past for me had ceased at Appomattox.

"There's a Lieutenant Colonel Custer in the T.O. of the Seventh sir, would that be him?" The orderly had returned.

"Yes, of course. So Custer's finally been busted back, eh? He had a long ride. Last I heard he was still coasting on his war brevet, two stars, I think. And a new regiment, too. Well, that's the cavalry for you. All the cream, the blue-john's left for the infantry."

"Of course you didn't. Speak up, Simpson. Where is he?"

"Fort Riley, sir. Kansas."

Once out of sight of the fort, I suffered a twinge of that Indian prescience" which was rapidly becoming a part of my frontier character. I turned north, cutting across country for the Tongue valley. I told myself I wanted one last look at that big war camp before heading south.

By nightfall, I was 50 miles north of the fort, five due east of the string of camps along the Tongue. Leaving Hussein tethered in a thick alder copse, I struck out westward on foot, over the Wolf Mountains. I had little fear the horse would wicker even if mounted Indians passed close. Old Hussein was so used to having his nose pinched to keep him from betraying me on scouts into the Union lines, that I constantly expected him to beat me to it, reaching hooves up to grab his own nose when the occasion warranted.

Four hours brought me to a ridge overlooking the lodges of Oglala Sioux. It was now midnight. To the south of the Oglala down river ran the lodges of the Arapahoe and Cheyenne; to the north, up river, those of the Minniconjou, Hunkpapa, and Brule.

The Oglala lodges were pitched in a group of four villages, each village forming a corner of a large, open square. Within this square an enormous bonfire was burning, throwing its light back onto the flanks of the hills in which I hid, a distance of 200 yards.

I had my old draw-tube, pocket scope on the scene.

A dance was in progress, probably had been for two days. This was not what shook me. But in the centre of the ring of crazily wheeling figures was a tall pole, painted a vivid scarlet. From the top of this, sticks radiated in the manner of wheel spokes, a buckskin thong hanging from each of these spokes to within about eight feet of the ground. On each thong dangled a small knotted object which at first lacked definition in the glass. The circling warriors gestured and jabbed at these objects with their lances, making them dance and jump wildly in the blazing firelight. Perhaps it was this motion which delayed me in identifying them, but suddenly my glance froze on one particular thong, drawn by the color of its burden, different from the rest.

It was bright red, not from paint or blood, but from nature, and it had once been the hair of Private James Halloran, troop G, Fourth Cavalry. There were seven others.

In two hours, I learned enough to put a price of 500 ponies on my scalp. The sign language of the plains Indian is simple. I knew enough of it to pick up and translate the pantomime and gestures coming to me through my glass.

There would be war. . . It would begin with the next sun. The warriors societies would all choose new leaders before the moon sank. . . They would move on the fort laying a trap for the pony-soldiers and walk-a-heaps to come out into. . .

I could have learned more but there was no time. The moon, cold and blue as a cake of river ice, was already down; dawn two hours away.

As I was about to pocket the glass, a commotion arose on the outskirts of the dancers. Three lathered ponies dashed through the ranks, scattering squaws and yelping dogs in every direction. The warriors, Ogala Bad Faces, stopped in front of Crazy Horse.

Riding up a valley, east of the Tongue, returning from a scout of the fort, the fresh trail of an iron foot horse. . . Following trail, a pony calls out from the trees. . . He was tethered there, the trail of a toes-out-man leading away. . . This way. . . The horse is an evil one. . . He screams and breaks the rope, lunges at Short Dog. . . Short Dog is dead.

Tactically, my position was interesting. A mounted group was forming below to take the trail. Chance was they would not ride swiftly, knowing their quarry to be afoot, 50 miles from 'home.' My gamble was that Hussein would not abandon me, waiting rather in the vicinity in which he had been left.

I ran the five miles at a slogging dogtrot. Thrusting fingers in mouth, I blasted a whistle in the three high notes of a nighthawk's cry, my call for Hussein. From the north, wild and thrilling, much nearer than I'd hoped, came his answer. The old devil had heard me.

Two hundred yards to my right a bay bombshell burst from the pine timber, spraying snow and ice in every direction.

"Hussein!" Shouting and waving, I leaped into the open meadow between us.

Though dawn was now upon us, the light was not good enough for him to see me yet. Just then a group of 20 gaudily feathered Sioux cascaded out of the timber on his trail. Now, either Hussein saw me or I was done for, for the Sioux spotted us both, coming up-meadow in a joyous, yelping swoop. I ran 30 yards toward Hussein before he saw me and broke into a gallop in my direction. Swinging onto his back, I gave him his head. Behind us, the Sioux burst into renewed howls, the three or four who had muskets firing them haphazardly.

The winter-thin Indian ponies had no chance once Hussein settled into his stride. The snow-sheathed miles fell away beneath his reaching feet like loose white pages flicked into the wind. Halfway to the fort, the Sioux quit, allowing me to slow Hussein first to a hand gallop, finally to his space-eating single-foot.

In this way we came to Phil Kearney that morning. Riding in I levered my rifle into the air in the steady cadence of timed fire.

Carrington had me in to see him at once. Fetterman was with him. I gave my information with out embellishment. The post commander's reaction was logical, Fetterman's typical.

"Fetterman, take every precaution to withstand assault. I want the powder magazine stocked with rations for the women and children. They are to retire there when the attack begins. Mine the magazine so that it may be blown up if the Indians get over the stockade. Hold Phillips in readiness to carry a dispatch to Fort Laramie." (Portugee Phillips was the scout who had replaced me.)

I followed him, listening to him rap out the colonel's order to Sergeants Kelly and Fairchild When they had gone, he turned on me snapping, "well, what do want?"

"I saw another wood train leaving. You forgot to tell Kelly to stop them."

"Clayton, I don't like you. To me you're an Indian lover and a [illegible] scout. You, yourself, reported those Indians 50 miles up the Tongue. Even if they're coming, they won't be on us for 12 hours. I can have that train back in six. And I mean to have that wood."

Scientists Invent Flame Thrower, Anti-Tank Shell

Annual Report of Canadian Defence Department Given

Ottawa, Dec. 11 (CP) — The curtain of secrecy has been lifted just a bit on the men behind the fighting forces—Canada's defence research scientists.

A peek into this usually-secluded world shows they've perfected a new flame thrower and a new anti-tank shell. They're deep in research on such problems as bacteriological warfare, the effects of atomic radiation and guided missiles. And they're vitally concerned with a maze of problems presented by the bleak Canadian Arctic.

This glimpse is provided in the annual report of the defence department,, detailing activities of Canada's fighting forces and related agencies up to March 31, 1951. A section dealing with the defence research board gives guarded references to what the scientists are doing in labs stretching across the land and into the north.

The new flame thrower was developed at the Suffield Experimental Station in southern Alberta where most work is highly secret. The report merely says the new weapon "has been undergoing tests during the past year" and "combining simplicity of construction and improved performance."

The new anti-tank round for 17-pounder and 76-millimetre anti-tank guns is the work of the Canadian armament research and development established at Valcartier, Que. The report cites it as a "great improved" shell which has since been "accepted by both the United Kingdom and the United States."

Stations Across Canada

It's at Valcartier also that the work in guided missiles is going on.

In the telecommunications field Canada now possesses a network of ionospheric research stations "all across Canada and far into the Canadian Arctic" representing one of the largest and important radio propagation organizations in the world.

Because the "auroral belt"—which disturbs radio signals crosses central Canada, these studies are vitally important, the report says. It adds significantly:

Britain to Pay Capital, Interest Due Canada, U.S.

London, Dec. 12 (AP) —Britain has decided to pay in full instalments of capital and interest due on the Canadian and United States loans at the end of the year, an informed government source reported today.

Britain is due to pay Canada $14,000,000 in Canadian money in capital and $23,700,000 in interest on Dec. 31.

The payment due the U.S. is $51,500,000 in capital and $87,000,000 in interest.

Britain could have avoided paying the interest on both loans by invoking waiver clauses which were written into the 1946 agreements. In view of its economic plight, there had been speculation that it would do so.

Britain owes the United States a total of $4,350,000,000— $3,750,000,000 in new money made available under the September 1946 loan pact and $600,000,000 in lend-lease pipeline aid.

Her debt to Canada totals $1,185,000,000.

Political factors clearly influenced Prime Minister Churchill's newly-elected Conservative government in reaching the decision to pay the whole amount due.

Churchill and his colleagues felt a decision to waive the interest payment would damage the country's prestige in the U.S. and would weaken their bargaining power when they meet President Truman in Washington next month for a review of Anglo-American relations.

Dionne Quints Will Attend Winter Carnival

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 12—(AP) —The Dionne quintuplets plan to attend the St. Paul Winter Carnival, Jan. 26 through Feb. 3, it was reported here today.

The 17-year-old sisters, Marie, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Yvonne, will make several public appearances on a float in the carnival's grand parade Jan. 26.

They will travel from Callander, Ont., by private railroad car. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, will accompany them, the report said.

WINS $25,000 PRIZE

New York, Dec. 12 — (AP)—A Vassar graduate who likes to cook won the $25,000 first prize yesterday in the Pillsbury Mills annual baking contest with her chocolate "starlight, double - delight cake." The winner's cheque was presented to Mrs. Samuel P. Weston of La Jolla, Calif. by Margaret Truman.

LOSES PLEA

Los Angeles, Dec. 12 (AP) — Paul J. Donovan, 71, and Irish, yesterday lost his plea to prevent Mrs. George Bernard Shaw's will from being executed by the National Provincial Bank of England. Donovan objected to a provision of the will of the noted playwright's widow which set aside $263,200 to "smooth the rough edges off the Irish."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 12 (CP)—Synopsis: Cold weather tightened its grip over Ontario last night. In the north country the mercury dipped to between zero and 15 below. In southern Ontario the Great Lakes were instrumental in preventing temperatures from falling below the 20 degree mark.

Little change is expected for Thursday's weather. It will continue cold, and snowflurry activity will be confined to the southern half of the province. In many sections of the Lake Huron region the snow will be almost continuous and further accumulations of two to four inches are likely.

SINGLE PROGRAM ORDERED

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—President Truman yesterday ordered the development of a single national blood program to meet the country's requirement for blood. He asked defence mobilization director Charles E. Wilson - to set within his office machinery for co-ordinating such a program.

DANCER ACQUITTED

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 12 (AP)—Stripper Lili St. Cyr, accused of displaying herself too amply in a night club act, was acquitted yesterday of giving an indecent performance. Ten women were on the jury of 12.

SEAWAY PROJECT MAKING PROGRESS IN PARLIAMENT

Chevrier Says It Will Repay Costs in 50 Years

Ottawa, Dec. 12. (CP)—The government's plan for the building of the St. Lawrence Seaway is making slow but steady progress through a cautious House of Commons.

With Liberal and opposition members urging the government also to consider development of natural resources elsewhere in the country, the chamber endorsed the principle of the legislation yesterday and then embarked on detailed clause-by-clause study.

As the debate proceeded, Transport Minister Chevrier and Trade Minister Howe gave the House fresh details on the government's plan for the building of the deep waterway and on prospects for the closely-allied development of rich iron-ore deposits in the Quebec-Labrador region.

1. Mr. Chevrier said the seaway will cost $246,000,000 and will pay for itself in 50 years through the imposition of tolls on ships making use of its system of canals.

2. No deadline has been set for the United States to join Canada in the seaway construction, though there naturally will be a point at which it no longer will be possible for the U.S. to participate.

3. Mr. Howe said a firm market is assured for at least 50 per cent of the annual production of 20,000,000 tons from the Quebec-Labrador iron-ore deposits.

On the question of a deadline for U.S. participation, Mr. Chevrier said he could point only to a statement by President Truman that if the U.S. Congress does not act at an early date he will support the all-Canadian seaway as the next best thing.

Breakdown of Costs

Mr. Chevrier gave this breakdown of the cost of works necessary to complete the seaway:

In the Lachine Canal, $98,229,000; Soulanges Canal, $37,216,000; Lake St. Francis, $2,513,000; International section of the St. Lawrence, $106,833,000; Welland Ship Canal, $1,302,000.

MAY REMOVE CARTILEGE

Guelph, Dec. 12 (CP) —Andy Bathgate, Guelph Biltmores forward, may be lost to the Junior A Ontario Hockey Association club for some time as a result of an injury aggravated in Tuesday night's game with Kitchener, Biltmore officials said today.

Bathgate, bothered by a trick knee, suffered a recurrence of the injury and was taken to hospital after the first period. The former Winnipegger may have to undergo surgery for a misplaced cartilege.

European Defence System Cannot Count on German Troops For At Least Two Years

Bonn, Germany, Dec. 12—(AP) —Allied officials forecast today that—even if things go according to their fondest plans—it will take two years to plug gaps in the European defence system with battle-ready German troops.

June of next year is considered the earliest possible date to start recruiting German manpower for the western world's defence against communism.

A full year will be needed to create the first cadres of a new German fighting force once recruiting begins.

Although most military planners agree that no realistic defence of western Europe is possible without German troops, these allied officials said even the 1954 timetable for effective German military help is threatened by the uncertainty over the creation of a European army.

Rejection of the controversial European army plan in the French parliament—considered a distinct possiblity here — would force a revision of western plans for German rearmament.

The United States, Britain and France formally have agreed that the Germans may have military forces only as a part of a six-country European army. They have linked plans to make western Germany almost a free country with the European army proposal.

If the European army plan is scuttled by France, the allied officials said, months of new negotiations will be needed to work out a new approach to use of German troops.

Former French Permier Paul Reynaud said in Strasbourg recently that Britain's refusal to join the proposed European army means its defeat in the French parliament. He predicted that the consequence would be that the United States would form a new German national army.

Meeting In Strasbourg

The foreign ministers of the six European countries—France, italy, West Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands, and Luxembourg—are meeting in Strasbourg in a final try to get the continental army under way.

French officials want to start recruiting a 43-division force in April—provided the French parliament approves the plan.

But allied officials in close contact with conditions in Germany said French and western military experts generally have underestimated the difficult political and technical problems facing Germans in rearming.

The Germans west of the iron curtain are by no means united on the proposition they should contribute troops to the western world's defence. Powerful political and church elements here have vowed to fight to the end against rearming.

Even if these obstacles are overcome there remains the time-consuming preliminary problems. They include:

1. Parliamentary action to set the rates of pay for the army and the method of recruiting; 2. Registration of manpower; 3. Creation of draft boards or recruiting agencies.

In a military sense, allied officials said there is no reservoir of trained manpower in Germany today. The country has a surplus of aristocratic generals but the cream of the once powerful army's junior and non-commissioned officers died on Hitler's battlefields.

Entire School Board Resigns 14 Hours After Being Elected; Chairman's Defeat Said Reason

North Bay, Dec. 12—(CP) — William Gedden, West Ferris township clerk-treasurer, announced today an election will be held to replace the township school board.

The entire 1951 board resigned Tuesday less than 14 hours after the municipal elections.

In a statement, the board said it had resigned because it considered the defeat of chairman William G. Vanmeer in the elections a vote of non-confidence. He had been a member for 12 years.

Mr. Vanmeer, running for re-election on a platform of a $156,000 addition to the Tweedsmuir school, was badly defeated by Mrs. Myrtle McEwen. She campaigned for a much less elaborate structure or a new school at or near Sunset Park.

Creates Precedent

Resignation of a school board immediately after election is believed to have created a precedent in Ontario.

Board secretary George Coombes said 1951 members interpreted the defeat of Mr. Vanmeer as a repudiation of its plan to make the $156,000 addition to the school.

Members who resigned were Mr. Coombes, Mrs. R. Kennedy and A. C. Elmitt. Mrs. Kennedy and Mr. Elmitt had a year to serve on their two-year terms of office.

Mr. Gedden said Mr. Coombes cannot resign until after Jan. 1 when the newly-elected members —Mrs. McEwen and Harold Pellow—hold a formal meeting.

But there is a possibility that the board then will be only Mrs. McEwen. Mr. Pellow, out of town for a week, ran on a platform supporting the proposed $156,000 addition.

Observers expect he will resign in sympathy.

Sees Extravagance

Mrs. McEwen, 30-year-old wife of a machinist foreman and mother of a 13-year-old daughter, said:

"They were trying to hand us a limousine when what we needed was a bicycle."

The board had planned the addition to contain four classrooms, an auditorium, showers and washrooms, a new principal's office, a nurse's room and a small kitchen.

"We need the classrooms but we don't need the frills," Mrs. McEwen said. "We don't need the auditorium and we already have showers. The nurse isn't there every day and she can use the library. The principal's office is small but adequate."

Texas Defies Louisiana to Separate Whooping Lovebirds, Jo and Crip

Corpus Christie, Tex., Dec. 12 —(AP)—The gulf coast is all worked up about birds. Texas is defying Louisiana to separate those whooping lovebirds, Jo and Crip.

Louisiana wants back a whooping crane it loaned to Texas.

Besides, point out Texas fowl fanciers, the Louisiana whooping crane is a mate of the Texas bird and it would be breaking up a family to separate them.

Also, Joe and Crip might produce a baby whooper. That would bring joy to naturalists. For there are only 28 whooping cranes known to exist and naturalists fear the birds will become extinct unless some little whoopers come along.

Jo, the female crane, or Crip, the male, was borrowed from New Orleans' Audubon Park Zoo as a mate for the bird at the United States wildlife refuge in Austwell, Tex. They've been mates five years and produced one offspring. The young crane was lost, probably to a predatory animal.

Yesterday the Audubon Zoo's superintendent, George Douglass, said he planned to come to Texas, claim his bird—he says it's Crip, the male—and return with it to Louisiana Saturday.

Immediately naturalist Julian Howard, Austwell refuge manager, said Douglass couldn't get Jo or Crip without a fight.

He said he would ask his bosses in the U. S. Wildlife Service in Washington "what the score is."

And, he says, he has no idea of giving up Crip, even if Douglass should get Jo. This statement was brought forth by a remark by Douglass that he could breed whoopers in captivity.

As far as he knows, Howard said, the zoo has no mate of its own. It would have to take a male, probably Crip, from the refuge to carry out the captivity breeding plan.

The whoopers, which once blotted out the sun as they flew in great flocks, now are reduced to 28. Each fall they fly to the Texas refuge. When spring comes they soar to the far north, where no one has ever found their summer home.

Drastic Action Expected Soon In Tax Scandals

Washington, Dec. 12 — (AP) — A White House official indicated today that President Truman will soon make a drastic move in the corruption-in-government picture.

Asked by reporters if "any drastic action" was coming from the president today in connection with the internal revenue and justice department tax disclosures, Joseph Short, the president's press secretary, replied:

"I just wouldn't want to make a prediction of when it will be — today, tomorrow or the next day."

Frank E. McKinney, Democratic national chairman, said after a conference with Truman yesterday that the executive was "angry at being sold down the river by some disloyal employees" and was about to take "drastic action."

Member Fined $100 and Costs

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 12 (CP)—Harry Lyons, Progressive Conservative member-elect of the Ontario legislature for Sault Ste. Marie, today was fined $100 and costs and his driving privileges in Michigan were forfeited for three months.

Through counsel, Lyons in municipal court here Tuesday pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving.

He was arrested Monday by police officers trailing a car which forced a United States army jeep off the road.

Lyon's sentence was Michigan's maximum penalty for the offence.

Churchill Will Broadcast Dec. 22

London, Dec. 12 — (Reuters)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill will broadcast a political speech to the nation on the evening of Dec. 22. He leaves for the United States seven days later.

TRUMAN ORDERS DETAILED WORKING LIST FOR TALKS

Will be Prepared When Churchill Arrives

Washington, Dec. 12—(AP)—President Truman has ordered detailed preparations made for his talks with Prime Minister Churchill here next month despite Churchill's reluctance to propose a list of problems for discussion.

American officials said today the United States side of the two-power meeting is being worked up on the assumption that Churchill will want to go into the whole range of policies governing relations between the two big western powers and Russia as well as specific Anglo-American issues.

Churchill sent word about two weeks ago that he did not plan to draw up an agenda for his series of meetings with the president, beginning Jan. 3. The American Embassy in London has been directed nevertheless to seek the fullest possible information on what the prime minister has in mind in coming here.

Washington authorities believe that unless some specific information about Churchill's concept of the talks is forthcoming in advance, the results may not be as profitable as they could be. Even at best, it is expected that several disagreements will develop over such issues as the Churchill proposal for a meeting with Generalissimo Stalin of Russia, the organization of western European defences and Anglo-American differences of policy in the Far East.

Present indications are that Truman will bear down heavily on all three of these questions.

The president has said repeatedly that he does not look forward to a meeting with Stalin unless the Soviet premier comes to Washington—something everyone considers a practical impossibility.

Recent Churchill statements bearing on the defence build-up in western Europe are described by administration leaders here as disappointing. Churchill has said that he does not consider the danger of war with Russia as great now as it was at the time of the Berlin crisis three years ago. American officials are apprehensive that this means he believes there is less urgency than they see in getting on with the task of rearmament; they believe the danger of an aggressive Russian move is greater now than it was three years ago.

The difference between the two countries in the Far East revolves around their basic attitudes toward Red China. Britain recognizes the communist regime while the United tSates holds to its recognition of the Chinese nationalist government on Formosa.

PRISONER CAPTURED

Ottawa, Dec. 12 (CP) —Alphonse Plante, 43-year-old escaped convict who police had described as "dangerous and mean" was captured last night under a bed. He broke out of Hull jail last Wednesday by twisting loose an iron bar in his window. He had been convicted the same day of stealing 90 cases of beer and was sentenced to two years less one day.

Coventry, One of The Most Blitzed Cities, Has Become a Boom Town

It has jobs and good wages for everyone — and houses for no one. Housing is so scarce that the mayor has asked people to stop coming to the city, but it is impossible to stop them.

Coventry's factories — the ones that attracted wave after wave of German bombers during the Second World War — pay the highest wages in Britain. Thousands of workers are earning up to £17 for a five-day week.

Some areas of Coventry have the appearance of old-time western gold rush settlements with prefabricated houses and wooden shanties springing up where buildings were knocked down by the German air force.

Millions of pounds worth of rearmament contracts — planes, tractors and machine tools — are responsible for the boom.

But the town has many headaches.

You can never be sure that the baker, the milkman, the plumber or the grocer will be there tomorrow.

The story is told of a bus driver driving a full load of passengers, who passed a notice announcing "men wanted" outside a factory. He pulled to the side of the road and dashed inside to get himself a job which paid more money than driving a bus.

Yet even busmen get higher wages in Coventry than anywhere else in Britain. Drivers get more than conductors, but the conductors with a basic wage of £5 19s. can collect nearly £9 a week with overtime—and there is plenty of overtime.

Everywhere there are workers with money to burn. The taverns are always full and there are queues at the local dog racing tracks.

Yet scores of these men go home to sleep with their families in one room. A house is the one thing all their money cannot buy. Some 14,000 persons are on the waiting list for homes and it takes three years to get on the list.

With the jump in wages, the cost-of-living has also risen. Housewives say that they find it cheaper to pay bus or train fares to towns 15 and 20 miles away to do their shopping.

Britain and Egypt Near Break Over Canal Zone Dispute

Egyptian Cabinet Will Recall Ambassador to Cairo

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 12 (Reuters) —Egypt today struck three blows in the battle with Britain for control of the Suez Canal zone.

An emergency meeting of the cabinet decided on these moves, a government spokesman said:

1. The Egyptian ambassador will be withdrawn from London.

2. Egyptians who co-operate with British troops in the canal zone will be punished.

3. The government will "allow the free arming of the population" against Britain.

The withdrawal of Ambassador Abdel Fattah Amr Pasha does not mean a complete rupture in diplomatic relations between the two countries. But a full statement on the overnight cabinet meeting is expected later today.

Punishments Not Specified

The spokesman did not specify what punishments would be levelled against citizenry who collaborated with the British. Newspapers have been demanding "death to the traitors."

The spokesman refused details on the move to arm the population. There has been widespread agitation among extremist groups here for the government to hand out guns to the people to enable them to oust the British troops by force. Present laws require that citizens must get special permission to carry arms.

The semi-official newspaper, Al Misri, said the new law would allow citizens to carry arms without these permits. But the government would still have to be informed.

The British embassy here refused to comment on the crisis today. A spokesman said official notification had not yet been received from the Egyptians.

If the recall of the ambassador grows into a full diplomatic break with Britain, then Britain will be compelled to recall her ambassador here, Sir Ralph Stevenson.

Charges Aggression

The Egyptian cabinet met for 2½ hours to plan action in retaliation for the demolition of 50 Egyptian houses in a village near the city of Suez last Saturday. British troops bulldozed the settlement to make a safe road through to a water purification plant.

Premier Nahas Pasha said in a broadcast last night before he met the cabinet that Egypt would not stand idle in the face of this new "aggression."

The cabinet also had before it a note from Britain contending the demolitions were carried out only to prevent loss of life through ambushes.

Both ambassadors, Stevenson in Cairo and Amr Pasha in London, have played important roles in negotiations to curb the strife between the two countries which broke out two months ago when Egypt scrapped the treaty allowing the British military control of the canal.

Western Powers Given Ultimatum By Mossadegh

Tehran, Dec. 12—(AP)—Strife-ridden Iran today handed the west this ultimatum: buy our oil or we will sell it to "any would-be buyer."

The ultimatum, giving the west until Dec. 22 to agree, was delivered in the form of letters to 12 embassies and 24 legations in Tehran. Observers said the ultimatum was evidence of the deepening financial crisis caused by the loss of revenues from oil after nationalization of British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company properties.

While the government of Mohammed Mossadegh was delivering the threat, 15 opposition deputies and 15 opposition newspaper editors remained holed up in the Majlis (parliament) building. A spokesman accused Mossadegh's followers of "trying to smoke us into the open, where we could be killed by government gangsters."

More than 30 Moslem mullahs (priests) pitched camp inside a nearby mosque, announcing that they, too, were refugees from "Mossadegh terrorists."

The opposition deputies announced they will stay in the Majlis building—traditional refugee place in Iran—until their personal safety is guaranteed or the Mossadegh government falls. The editors are sitting in as a protest against destruction of nine newspaper offices and plants in rioting last Thursday.

Yesterday about 1,000 frenzied nationalists, yelling for the blood of Mossadegh's political opponents, were kept from storming into the Majlis only by the bayonets of Iranian troops.

Non-Confidence Motion by P-C's Lost by 128-45

Ottawa, Dec. 12—(CP)—The Commons voted 128 to 45 today against a Progressive Conservative motion calling for an expression of non-confidence in the government because of its taxation policies.

The motion sponsored by John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), asked the house to express regret that the government has continued to collect "unnecessarily high taxes beyond requirements" and has "failed at the present session to relieve the people of Canada from unjust and burdensome taxation."

In the division, the Progressive Conservatives were supported by the C. C. F. and Social Credit parties and by Dr. Raoul Poulin (Ind.—Beauce). The Liberals opposed the motion, one of several moved during debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Junior Nursing Class Visits Dairy Plant

A look of surprise and consternation crossed the face of driver Ralph Thompson this morning as the East Hill bus which he was driving pulled to a stop at the corner of Dufferin and Dundas, just at nine o'clock.

Twenty-six passengers filed onto the bus and each one requested a transfer. It seems that a junior nursing class, under the supervision of Miss Madeline Millard and Miss Helen Derry, were on their way to Roblin's Dairy to make a tour of the plant and study particularly the method of pasteurization used, as part of their student training.

Everyone, including the bus driver, laughed heartily when they reached the downtown intersection and found that transfers were unnecessary.

The class was shown through the dairy plant by Ray Roblin.

Edgar W. Jones, Tweed, Suffers Fractured Pelvis

Edgar W. Jones, 56, Tweed garage operator, suffered a fractured pelvis and lacerated left leg Tuesday when the car which he was driving was in collision with a truck north of the city on No. 37 highway.

The accident occurred during the height of Tuesday's snowstorm, the northbound vehicle driven by Jones colliding with a southbound truck owned by Frontenac Packers of Kingston. William Kirkpatrick was driver of the truck. The accident took place on a sharp curve about one half mile north of the city limits.

Jones was taken to hospital in Bush's Ambulance where it is expected he will be confined for several weeks. Both the car and the truck involved in the accident were badly damaged. Provincial Constable Howard Tasker investigated.

Legion Branch Re-elects Madden As President

Leroy G. Madden was re-elected president of Branch 99 Canadian Legion at the December meeting held on Tuesday evening. Other officers for 1952 are: 1st vice-president, Wm. Bailey; second vice, Walter Bent; treasurer, Chris Leggat; sergeant-at-arms, G. C. Nicholson; executive committee, Max Matthews, Ed. Turner, Everett Liddle, W. J. Slater, Charles Bolton and C. Revell.

The secretary will be appointed by the incoming executive, as will the auditors.

During the business session the meeting endorsed a motion requesting the city parks board to have the war memorial cleaned, and repaired, and a suitable flag pole erected near it.

The branch also decided to donate a trophy to be set up for annual competition for the Peewee Hockey League branch of the Belleville Hockey Association.

It was announced that the ladies' auxiliary of the branch will hold a Christmas party next week. Members having children 12 years and under are requested to forward particulars to Mrs. Frame telephone 4161-W not later than Dec. 14th. Legion members and their wives and sweethearts will hold a Christmas party at 8.30 p.m. the same date.

Reports of the branch's activities were read and adopted.

Board Decides To Purchase Regular Curtain

Bancroft—At the regular meeting for December, North Hastings High School Board decided to purchase a regular curtain for the stage of the auditorium. This will be welcome news for both the student body and the community organizations who use the building, as to date stage productions have been hampered by make-shift equipment.

The board also decided to lend their new projector to Bancroft Lions club who are providing free shows for the children in connection with their annual Santa Claus parade on the 15th.

Seven BCI Students Awarded Certificates After Completing Long Driver-Training Course

Driving tests were conducted by Russell Buyers, general manager of the Ontario Safety League while certificates to the successful students were presented by Col. L. F. Selby, regional supervisor of the Ontario Motor League.

Driver training courses at secondary schools have done much to reduce the accident rate among teen age drivers in localities where such courses have been conducted, according to Col. Selby.

Idea From U.S.

The idea was originated in the United States some years ago in an effort to combat the increasing motor accident rate among young drivers. Meeting with success the idea has now caught on in Canada with seven collegiates across Canada instituting the course. Belleville was the third centre in Ontario to offer the course and since then several other collegiates have followed suit.

The driver-training course at Belleville Collegiate was started last spring after motor mechanics instructor Ardell Wilson volunteered to act as instructor. Bateman Motors Ltd., supplied a dual control auto for use in training the students taking the course.

20 Students Started

Twenty students in the Upper School grades at Belleville Collegiate entered the course last spring but unfortunately there was not sufficient time for them to complete their driving course before they graduated from the school. The seven students receiving their certificates today are those who returned to school after the holidays.

This year 30 students have entered the driver training course and the scheme is expected to pay off in more careful and safer drivers.

Obituary

JOHN ROBERT CUMMINGS

In ill health for some time, John Robert Cummings, 39 Holloway Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital early this Wednesday morning. He was born in Consecon, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Cummings. He came to Belleville, 25 years ago and was the former manager of the Prudential Life Insurance Company branch here for some years. His sunny smile and fine disposition made him many friends, who will sincerely regret his death.

He was a member of Holloway Street United Church and surviving are his wife, the former Nellie C. Moag, a niece, Mrs. John Guger of Toronto and a nephew, Lyn Matthews of Texas, U.S.A.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Ford Pickets Try To Prevent Removal of Moulds

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 12 — (CP) — Striking members of the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) last night tried to prevent Sheriff B. A. E. Close from leaving the Ford Motor Company of Canada plant with tractor moulds required by the parent United States Ford firm.

Two hundred pickets, led by a yelling group of less than a dozen men, surged around the Essex county sheriff as he moved out of the plant property. With him were several union and company officials who had gone to supervise removal of the moulds, as ordered by the Ontario Supreme Court on application of the U. S. company.

Jack Taylor, president of the U. A. W.'s local 200, and other union officials persuaded the pickets to disperse.

One of two Windsor Daily Star reporters who had gone to cover the first crossing of a picket line since the strike over contract demands started Dec. 3 was manhandled by the picketing automotive workers. As one worker grasped him by the arms, another shouted:

"Like me knock his glasses off."

The newspaper men said the jostling was done by a small group of men who egged on the pickets.

The union made no comment on a request from the American Federation of Labor for admission to the plant of 300 A.F.L. construction men who were building an addition to the Ford powerhouse when the strike of 9,000 production workers closed the plant. The strike also made idle an additional 2,500 persons, who are Ford office workers and employees of Ford feeder plants.

The U. A. W. seeks a 30-cent-an-hour increase over the present basic hourly rate of $1.32. The strike, climax of a six-month dispute, was touched off by the firing of 26 men blamed for causing wildcat work stoppages and by the company's refusal to reinstate them.

LEAVES HOSPITAL

President-Elect Carruthers Speaks On '52 Projects

The meeting of the Kiwanis Club, following their weekly luncheon in the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday, took the form of a general business session.

President Everett Fairman turned the meeting over to president-elect Harold Carruthers, who spoke at length in support of several measures for 1952.

Abe Mazer, chairman of the 1952 ways and means committee, also introduced some new ideas pertaining to various methods of raising funds for welfare work. Following a lengthy discussion by the club members, these proposals were voted on and either approved or turned down.

President Everett Fairman expressed appreciation to all of the Kiwanians, who had participated in the Santa Claus party which took place in the armouries on Saturday.

It was announced that Jack Wood was chairman in charge of the Christmas party for the men from the County Home for the Aged. The party is scheduled for Thursday, December 20.

George Currie was thanked for being guest speaker at the Key Club meeting on Monday during which Everett Fairman installed eight new members.

Prior to the business session, Charles Cawker entertained the Kiwanians with a piano medley which was very much appreciated.

The meeting of December 20, will be a special Christmas banquet under the direction of Herb Honeychurch and Sid Larman; members will be feted with a turkey dinner and full trimmings. There will be no regular meeting on the following week but a roundtable discussion will be held on December 26.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 12 (CP) —Early afternoon stock market prices turned downward again today after a forenoon rally checked opening losses.

Banks and miscellaneous industrials drew most support to post a scattering list of fractional advances. Papers, constructions, foods and refining oils slipped steadily.

Donalda was a feature as it added pennies while more than 110,000 shares changed hands during the first three hours.

Consolidated Smelters and International Nickel strengthened among base metal leaders. Cassiar, Mindamar, East Sullivan, Normetal and Osisko pushed higher while Ascot, Coast Copper, Quebec Copper and Steep Rock Eased.

PRODUCE MARKET

The egg market opened quiet here today.

Graded eggs, cases free, delivered Toronto, Grade A large 47-48, A medium 42-43, A small 40-41, Grade B 43-44, Grade C 40-42.

Butter solids: first grade 66½-67 (nominal); no price on second; western 67-67½ (asked).

Dr. H. G. Carleton Installs Officers

Moneymore—The annual meeting of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 838 was held on the regular lodge night, a goodly number of members was present. Visiting brethren from Halloway, Elliott's and Lime Lake were also present.

The recent extension to the hall being completed, the lodge is now in a comfortable condition.

At the close of the regular business of the evening officers were elected and duly installed by W. Bro. Dr. H. G. Carleton, who drove down from Peterborough for the meeting. I.P.M. Bro. G. Carleton; W.M., Bro. W. N. Coulter; D.M., Bro. F. J. Coulter; Chap., Bro. W. E. Coulter; Rec. Sec., Bro. R. C. Carleton; Sec. Treas., Bro. F. C. Coulter; Mar., Bro. P. Vance; sec., Bro. J. W. Coulter and Bro. E. Alexander; Committee, Bro's. J. Vance, C. Shaw, F. Coulter, S. Coulter, S. Robinson. Addresses were given by the newly elected officers, W. Bro. W. E. Coulter, County Master; W. Bro. Dr. H. G. Carleton and visiting brethren.

A vote of appreciation was extended to the visiting brethren.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Trading was dull at the Ontario stockyards today with prices $1 lower or more on all grades. Receipts: cattle 120, calves 50, hogs 280, sheep and lamb 80. The leftover from Tuesday was 1,200 cattle.

A few medium weighty steers sold $32-$35. Common to medium light steers and heifers brought $23-$31. A few cows sold from $21-$23.50 while fed yearlings sold $32-$34.50 according to quality. Good stock calves made $34-$35 with common stockers bringing $26-$29.

Veal calves were steady at $36-$38 for choice quality and from $26-$35 for common to medium.

Lmbs were steady at $32.25 for good ewes and wethers with bucks selling at $1 discount. Medium to good light sheep brought mostly $16-$22.

FAME IS FLEETING

London (CP)—Even for polar bears, fame is a fleeting thing. Two years ago a polar cub named Brumas, looking exactly like a nursery teddy bear, was the top attraction at London zoo. Now she is just another bad-tempered adult, and only a few visitors pause at her cage.

Tallulah Bankhead Excluded From Court in Forgery Case

Judge Harold E. Stevens ordered all witnesses cleared from the courtroom at the opening of the third day of the trial of her former personal secretary and maid, Mrs. Evyleen R. Cronin, 59, charged with forgery and grand larceny from the star.

Miss Bankhead, expected to testify for the prosecution, was the only person to leave. The judge said he issued the order on "the court's own motion."

Defence lawyer Fred G. Morritt yesterday accused Miss Bankhead of making "facial remarks" and asked the court to make her "shut up."

Morritt said her attitude interfered with his opening remarks, in which he said the missing money went to buy cocaine, booze and sex for Miss Bankhead.

"At least, I can smoke now", Miss Bankhead commented after leaving the courtroom.

She went to a witness' waiting room and complained about the heat. The windows were opened. Later, an attendant came in and closed them.

Miss Bankhead screamed:

"I asked that those windows be opened, darling."

The real-life drama involving the 48-year-old actress attracted 150 spectators. Flashbulbs and motion picture lights outside the courtroom gave a theatrical touch to the proceedings. No cameras were allowed inside.

Capping a courtroom performance yesterday that ranged from tears to coughs, Miss Bankhead angrily left the trial for 20 minutes after defence counsel asked the judge to make her "keep her mouth shut."

She said she walked out because she was "disgusted with the tactics" used by Morritt.

Morritt twice complained of Miss Bankhead's "sounds and facial expressions". He said these alleged actions "might be all right on a radio program" but not in a courtroom.

The stage-screen-radio-television star, obviously angry, listened to Morritt make these statements to an all-male jury:

"Reluctantly, we shall prove that the lady (Miss Bankhead) was rarely sober. Champagne, dope, booze—she lived on that scale."

"My client took care of Miss Bankhead's gigolos (she had "three lovers within three months that we know of")—that was the money for sex."

"Tallulah Bankhead taught Mrs. Cronin how to roll marijuana cigarets. . . . .I want to shield the names of those who smoked them, whom she paid and the parties." (He challenged the state to ask Mrs. Cronin the names.)

"When Mrs. Cronin used to go to her for money ,she used to beat her unmercifully."

Miss Bankhead and the state prosecutor claimed these statements were part of a plot to threaten her into not pressing the case against Mrs. Cronin.

Miss Bankhead told reporters afterwards: "I never had (Mrs. Cronin) buy dope for me in my life, and she never bought sex for me. Nor did I ever buy any of them for myself."

SAFECRACKERS NET $250

It was the second minor safecracking reported to police in less than 24 hours. Approximately $125 was taken by yeggs who smashed open a company safe at the Northern Electric store Monday.

HAVE TO WASH DISHES

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP) — Some justice department lawyers have to wash dishes in restaurants at night to eke out their salaries, Attorney General Howard McGrath said yesterday. It's impossible to staff the department with competent men on present pay scales if outside activities are banned, he said.

Commissioner Will Control Proposed Unified Force

Strasbourg, France. Dec. 12. — (AP)—Foreign minister of the six European army countries agreed today on how the proposed unified defence force will be controlled—by a high commissioner, the six foreign ministers and an international parliament.

The six home governments—of France, West Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg and Italy—still must ratify the ministers' decisions.

The foreign and finance ministers of the six powers will meet in Paris Dec. 27 to draw up a common budget to finance the army. They hope to have all their plans ready for submission to the North Atlantic Council meeting in Lisbon, Feb. 2.

The ministers hope their latest plan for ultimate control of the army by foreign ministers and parliamentary representatives of the countries involved will receive British support. Britain refused previous plans which called for delegation of sovereignty to an international body.

The new plan for army control closely paralleled a resolution adopted earlier yesterday by the council of Europe's Consultative Assembly. It called for such joint agencies as the projected army and the Schuman coal-steel pool to be directed by high commissioners appointed by the Council's Upper House, the 15-member committee ministers.

Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France said the foreign ministers of the six countries would name a high commissioner for the army. He would be responsible to a joint assembly, similar to the present European assembly here and with a membership drawn from the individual parliaments. The foreign ministers would remain responsible to their legislative bodies at home.

Other details of the plan's operation will not be published until the six governments approved it, a communique said.

HOT DOG CONTROL BOARD

At one time, hot dogs used to sell for five cents. Then they went up to ten cents. Not long ago in Toronto they were selling for twenty cents. Just recently, a price cutter brought the Toronto price down to fifteen cents.

If some government agency doesn't do something about it, another price cutter is liable to open up shop and start vending them at two for a quarter. If that happens, it will be only a matter of time until this cut-throat competition spreads to the smaller communities.

If there is no government agency at present which has the time, the talent and the authority required to control, direct and supervise the hot dog business, let us have, without delay, a Hot Dog Control Board. A chairman drawing $10,000 a year plus expenses, along with four members drawing $5,000 a year plus expenses, should be about right. Of course, special legislation might have to be passed to give the Hot Dog Control Board authority to fine or imprison the price cutters, but that can be looked after.

One thing is certain — if there is to be no resale price maintenance in the hot dog business, Our Way of Life is going to be endangered. No one can predict where it will all end. There may be Economic Chaos. We may even find ourselves inside a Vicious Circle, or Behind The Eight Ball.

TIMES WILL CHANGE AGAIN

Here is some advice given to British investors December 21, 1912, by the Market Mail and Throgmorton Street Journal, which called itself "London's leading financial weekly:

"Canada is the slaughterhouse for the capitalist of the empire. Those who hold the land and timber stocks and the rest should sell and keep on selling. The colony is an unhappy investment proposition.

"Canada has been the sport of financialdom for years. Millions of British capital has been swallowed in land and city loans and waterlogged enterprises and now the maple leaf shows signs of withering through loose finance, wildcat offers, overspeculation and overgrowth.

"Emigrants have left Britain to drift gradually to Vancouver, the last stand of the remittance man, the ne'er do well and the bamboozled immigrant.

"The Dominion is merely a name to conjure with and the financial offers are not made because of a desire to help the country but to collect the crumbs that fall to the lot of the issuing house. In truth the public would be well advised to keep its money out of Canada. There will be unlimited trouble. Canada's day is over."

It is known that conditions were not very good in Canada four decades ago, just as they are highly unsatisfactory in many respects today. Canada's history has not been one of unbroken and continuous progress. There have been recessions and depressions. But each of these has been followed by a period of expansion. So great has that expansion been in recent times that Canada is now the world's third or fourth exporter, and a large proportion of those exports is finished material.

All of which goes to prove that it is not safe to predict that a country is "finished" just because it has suffered a series of reverses.

PRICE-CUTTERS UNDER FIRE

Not long ago, the Toronto branch of the Ontario Barbers Association held a meeting at which its members were discussing what they were going to do with those un-cooperative barbers who had been selling haircuts for less than one dollar, the price established last February by the barber association.

One of the barbers, A. F. Bentley by name, was quoted as saying: "The barber who cuts prices doesn't consider how he'll fare in the long run. Price-cutting catches up with us all, and the only beneficiary is John Q. Public."

Mr. Bentley was right. Price-cutting does not benefit anyone except John Q. Public.

CANADIAN DOLLAR UP

A Canadian Press dispatch from New York enlightens us that the Canadian dollar has increased in value on the United States market to 98¼ cents "the highest point since it was set free a year ago to find its own level on the world market."

Maybe the Canadian dollar would have been at par on the American market all along if it had been left to its own devices.

MORE MONEY, SHORTER HOURS

At its annual meeting in Ottawa last Friday night, the Civil Service Federation decided to ask the government for a minimum salary increase of $28 a month or $336 a year, plus a maximum working week of five days, totalling 37½ hours.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Coypright, 1951, Edgar A. Guest)

SHEPHERD FAITH

The angels having news to bring,
Sought only those who might believe.
They chose their anthem glad to sing
To shepherds that first Christmas Eve.

To shepherds watching in a field
The angels sang of peace on earth,
And unto them that night revealed
The story of the Savior's birth.

Not to the powerful and the great,
Not to the rich and worldly wise,
But shepherds trusted to relate
What they had witnessed in the skies.

Oh, are the angels searching still
For those who will the word receive
Of peace on earth to men good will
And, as the shepherds did—believe?

OFF THE RECORD

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 12th., 1931

Mr. James Bankier of this city was presented with a handsome fountain pen desk set by Judge Evan McLean of Picton on behalf of the Picton branch of the Canadian Legion as a slight token of their appreciation of his services as soloist at the Canadian Legion banquet at Picton on Armistice Day. The presentation took place at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club here.

Judge Deroche is presiding at court in Kingston today.

Dr. A. T. Embury, M. P., Bancroft, was in town today.

Police Magistrate Walter Wiggins of Bancroft was in town today.

Mr. W. E. Tummon, M. P., Tweed, was in town today en-route to Ottawa.

Miss Gussie Hill has accepted a position on the staff of the Bank of Montreal here.

30 YEARS AGO

Dec. 12th., 1921

A canning factory is being built in Frankford to replace the one destroyed by fire last summer.

The County Council has received a communication from a provincial officer stating that it is advisable that the governor and turnkey of the county gaol should be properly uniformed and half the cost to be paid by the provincial government. The matter was referred to the committee on ways and means.

Miss Myra H. Smith, social worker in the service of this city, reports that the demand for fuel and food is increasing and that relief work will be heavy here this winter owing to the critical unemployment situation.

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 12th., 1911

Mr. James G. Lindsay, city engineer, has recommended to the city council that debentures be issued to cover the cost of extensions to the water works system done this year, instead of saddling the cost on the present ratepayers. About $14,000. was expended on water works development this year. He states that 169 services have been laid this year which is double that of any other year.

Mr. W. H. Nugent, Reeve of Wollaston township, is spending a few days in town.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Faulkner are spending a few days in Toronto.

50 YEARS AGO

Dec. 12th., 1901

The Rev. T. J. Thompson, minister of John Street Presbyterian Church, will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Merton Gordon will be the soloist.

The oil boring operations at Melrose are proceeding satisfactorily. The drill has reached a depth of 759 feet and has passed through a dark colored rock much harder than any previous formation. This is considered an encouraging sign.

The store windows on Front Street are looking wonderfully attractive with Christmas goods. Belleville is a good place to shop.

Mrs. E. E. Orr of Oak Lake, Manitoba, is here on a visit to her father, Mr. W. G. Curry.

Mr. Lindsay Elliott, who has been engaged in ranching near Calgary for the past two years, is visiting friends here.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

An acquaintance of mine, with whom I had lunch, is the owner of houses which he rents.

"Well," he said, as we got up from the table, "I've got to go home and change my clothes. I have to collect rents this afternoon."

"Change clothes?" I checked, for he looked very presentable.

"Oh, yes," he explained. "I always put on my old clothes to collect rents. My tenants aren't too well off, you know. So I don't upset them by calling for the rent all dressed up. I leave my car around the corner, too, out of sight. No use distressing people any more than they are already."

I thought this was a pretty cold-blooded piece of deception, and my thoughts must have shown in my face.

"Now, look," he said. "I don't set the rents. The market does. Whatever I owe to society, I don't owe a few individuals a personal handout of ten or fifteen dollars a month off their rent, do I? Out of my own pocket? Nobody else reduces prices just because they are high. Everybody, including my tenants, take all that the traffic will bear. So must I. Or, do you hold the view that landlords are a bunch of pirates whose consciences ought to smite them? I should pay everybody else's high prices and high wages, and give my twenty tenants a nice little personal bonus each month, eh?"

"It's the least I can do," said my friend. "I know rents are high. I feel sorry for the poor souls who have to pay me. The least I can do is consider their feelings. So when I call at their door, I'm just as plain as I can be. I spare their blood pressure. I save them from feeling more outraged than they already feel, when they hand over the dough."

I let him pay the lunch check.

Township Council Trying to Help Negro Family

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 12—(CP)—Suburban Stamford township council is trying to help a Negro family which claims to have been denied work because of alleged racial discrimination.

The council Monday night passed a motion directing the township clerk to write to the unemployment Insurance Commission office here and to all industries in the area protesting the reported discrimination. It took the action after receiving a desperate appeal from the mother.

The woman, who asked that her name not be made public, said that neither her two sons, both of whom helped their collegiate institute win a Canadian track and field championship last year, nor her three daughters can obtain work. All five are in good health and have above-average educations.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

HENRY IS OKAY

A tender-hearted reader in Comox named Eleanor Marks is worried about Henry Pludge, a character who crops up here from time to time.

"I have followed Henry's adventures now for some years." Mrs. Marks writes. "Cheered him when he ran away to go native in Mexico, when he eloped with Ingrid Bergman and when he won the ten-million-dollar jackpot question on that quiz show.

"Imagine my surprise and horror, then, to discover that you had killed off one of my favorite characters.

"When Henry leaped into the river rather than throw the kittens in, I felt as if I'd lost an old friend. Is there no way you can bring him back to life?"

Believe me, Mrs. Marks, Henry was never in danger. He'd hardly hit the water before he was swimming for the shore, strong as a beaver.

You recall Alf Boyle's advice to me about building a nest with a false bottom so that my White Leghorns would keep laying endlessly? Well, sir, I was half-considering trying it out until a communication reached me from West Summerland (one of the finer places in the world) written by B. A. Tingley.

"That story told you by Alf Boyle about the bottomless nests promoting egg-laying is only too true," Mr. Tingley writes, "but I wish to warn you against using it. You will understand why when I tell you of my experience.

"In 1928 when eggs were 50 cents a dozen I had a hen that laid six eggs a week and rested on the Sabbath. Then an old Indian chief told me of this 'hole in the nest' scheme so I tried it and with some success.

"My hen would now lay up to 10 eggs at one sitting before becoming discouraged at not being able to find one. She would then leave the nest and, after walking around the yard with a frustrated expression on her face, go back to the nest and try again.

"Soon my hen started bringing the neighbors' hens to her nest to try their luck and my egg production jumped to 500 a day. Elated with my good fortune, I built 50 extra nests and, with hens coming for miles for the novelty of laying invisible eggs, I was soon getting 25,000 eggs every day. I had to buy nine trucks to take my produce to market.

"To shorten the story, this overproduction broke the egg market and the price slumped to seven cents a dozen. This affected other markets and finally reached the stock market, causing the crash of 1929 and the depression that followed."

Several interesting letters commenting on the notes here about the testimonial advertising of the day and one in particular from a Mrs. Winnifred Daly that the agency boys ought to think about.

"None of these advertisements annoys me more than the one for that certain brand of margarine in which society beauties and the wives of highly successful men claim they buy it in preference to butter. Who's fooling who? Margarine is bought only by those of us who can't afford the real thing and everybody knows it. I register my own personal protest against this hypocrisy by not buying that particular brand."

A member of the B.C. Peace Council has sent us one of that group's pamphlets objecting to the movie, "The Desert Fox" which is, they say, a glorification of Field Marshal Rommel. "We protest every attempt to make heroes out of Nazi murderers," the pamphlet reads.

I haven't seen the film, as yet, but from what I've read it seems to me the pamphlet is justified.

Bosley Crowther, the film reviewer for the New York Times and a writer I respect, has this to say about the picture:

"It violated moral judgment and good taste. . . showed great sympathy, respect and even idolization for a general who fought under Hitler. If, nine years ago, somebody had forecast this film we would have thought the person was crazy — or that the allies were going to lose the war."

Incidentally, Twentieth Century-Fox have had so many protests on the film that they've announced the filming of a picture to be story of the British 8th Army called "The Desert Rats," the campaign. Presumably this will make everything square—or how crazy can you get?

* * *

In a column the other day I wondered aloud why all photographers of politicians before the First World War showed them with a grim visage—and deduced that it was simply a fear of the camera, a relatively new instrument.

Not so, writes a correspondent.

"The lesson to be learned is a lesson in photography," he writes. "Before 1910 lenses were slow and negative emulsions were slower. Exposures lasted many seconds and even minutes. No one could possibly keep a smile on his face that long—not even a politician."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

OUR PARISH

A friend said to me recently, "Don't you think every Christian believer is a preacher, more or less, and that every man has his own parish?"

Precisely. If our religion does not shine through our daily acts and make better the home, neighborhood, and community in which we live, then all devotion in the sanctuary on Sunday is vain. The church at large has great mission fields to which it sends workers, and to that program you and I as Christians must give our allegiance. But our personal mission field is much nearer than Asia or Africa. Every one of us stands at the centre of a parish. We are the priest therein, either mediating God to to someone or unworthily standing in the way of someone who is seeking light.

St. Paul, writing to the Corinthians, said, "Ye are our epistle, written in our hearts, known and read of all men; being made manifest that ye are an epistle of Christ." So every true Christian is a Gospel and a church, and a preacher. We all stand in the midst of a parish which is distinctively ours.

When Jesus sent out the disciples He said, "As ye go, preach." His instructions to us are the same. We preach more effectively by what we are and what we do than by what we say.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THIS CITY IS YOURS

How would you feel if this city of yours were noted as the cleanest and most progressive of its size in the country, with honest officials, free of vice—no fixers—and one of beautiful homes, parks, schools, well paved streets, churches that people flocked to, a free zoo for the kiddies, and a general atmosphere that put pride into every inhabitant?

You know that your own home city would grow by leaps and bounds if all this were to be so, wouldn't you? We all would. Well, it is up to all of us, no matter what city may be our home abode. We are the separate links to its ideal reputation. It's the people who live in a city who make it what it is.

With graft and corruption going on among those elected to high responsibility in a city's government, the effect is to poison the whole body of a city. And what damage a small group can accomplish! More and more the city's importance in a great nation grows, as the rural communities migrate to it from all directions. Thus does its opportunity for good face every citizen within its borders.

In the city where I live there are signs in all prominent places that read thus: "This is your city and mine. Keep it clean." There are people who treat their city as they would not think of treating their own home or grounds. They throw papers and rubbish into the street, and even steal waste baskets from their city's streets! What a row they would raise if a neighbor treated their home grounds in like manner.

Yes, this city where you live belongs to you, as it does to every one of its inhabitants. Make it a clean, decent place for all, whether rich or poor. Take pride in it. Vote at every election and support those who are intelligent and progressive. Resent and fight against every abuse and all crookedness. Make this city of yours one to which you will always love to return, and tell others about. What is the dream you have for your city ten years from now?

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

PAMPERED OVERPRIVILEGED CHILDREN

Among the countless things that annoy me—they assure me it is difficult to tell from my appearance, attitude and behavior just when I am not annoyed at anything—is the use of such words as "definitely," "rather," "amazing" and the like, because they sound impressive. Take the word "definitely," for example. In a cigarette sales talk or a "scientific" contribution, you know the author is trying to mislead you when he qualifies his declaration with "definitely". It would be as convincing or as funny to say "well, anyway, there was our dog and another dog in the fight."

When Lady Bountiful or her trained husband on the collection committee of the lunch club makes a touching plea for the fund for 'underprivileged" children—in case any surplus remains after the drive managers and other agencies have been paid for their services—I am seized with the impulse to scuff the toes of my shoes or mar the furniture.

Underprivileged my eye. Is this America? The attempt to pin this humiliating adjective on the victims of your own cheating, prejudice, racial, social or religious discrimination is a mockery of freedom.

When you get right down to the facts all "underprivileged" means is that some kids or their parents haven't as much money as we have.

Back in the halcyon days when the Brady family on Chapel Street in Canandaigua—parents, four kids and usually one or two grandmothers—lived on a budget of a little less than $7 a week, were we "underprivileged"? If so, we were never permitted to realize it, though no doubt our parents had plenty to worry about. Nobody had better food than we did. No kids could have a happier childhood than we had. Education was free, wasn't it? In all America there was no better school than Canandaigua Union School and High School (now bearing the fancy name of Academy).

Honestly I don't know what "underprivileged" means, if it means anything a decent citizen shouldn't be ashamed of.

I do not know what overprivileged means. It is the plight of millions of children of parents of weak character and bad education. I'm sticking my neck out to talk about it at all, for my teachings about this do not jibe with the teachings of the interests that profit on overprivileged children. Not that they call me to the door in the middle of the night and spirit me off to a concentration camp. But how can I teach people anything if I get kicked out of town for saying something counter to what the interests want people to believe?

Growing children who are permitted to buy and drink this or that kind of pop whenever they wish are overprivileged by parents or bad education or weak character or both. This is just one instance. I'll try to explain in words or one syllable how the pop habit leads to malnutrition in childhood and youth.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Inverted Bicycle Riding

In the bicycle riding exercise for varicose veins do you mean one should lie flat on the back and work the feet as in riding a bicycle? (H. V. M.)

Answer—Not the feet, but the legs, as illustrated on p. 26 of booklet The 7 Keys to Vite. For pamphet on Varicose Veins and Varicose Ulcer send stamped, self-addressed envelope. If you want the booklet inclose 25c for it.

Aspirin Habit

Man, 68, has had a bad cough for fifteen years. He takes four or five aspirins every day. Will this do any harm? (Mrs. C. E.)

Answer—I'd be afraid to take aspirin in that way. I believe it is the least dangerous pain-killer one can take when ache or pain is unendurable, but I don't believe it has any remedial value aside from the temporary relief of ache or pain. Some of the cough remedies given in the booklet Call it Crl (for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope) may be beneficial.

What! The Children Have Croup?

Croup may not happen in your neck of the woods but our two children sometimes scare us with what we call croup. (Mrs. W. P.)

Answer—And one of my bowling cronies is laid up from time to time with what he insists is the gout. If I live long enough maybe I'll see a human being with ra-bi-es. For pamphlet on Croup send stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Gadget Prevents Airplane Gas Tank Explosions

London, Dec. 12—(Reuters) — British Air Force experts today took the wraps off a gadget about one-half the size of a grapefruit which prevents airplane gas tanks from exploding even under direct hits by tracer bullets. Called a suppressor gas bomb, it is fitted inside the tanks.

The principle is the same as in old-fashioned hand-pump fire extinguishers. The bomb contains the same chemical—carbon tetrahcloride. But it is rigged to spray the chemical in a mist inside the tank within a one-thousandth of a second after a hit.

The British Society of Aircraft Constructors, an association of big British manufacturers, said the bomb provides a cheap, efficient substitute for a heavy, costly method developed during the Second World War. Under the old system inert nitrogen gas was pumped into the tank to fill the air space above the gasoline, thus preventing the gas vapor which causes explosions.

NAVIGATION HALTED

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 12—(CP)—A blinding snow storm and a northwest wind yesterday held navigation at a standstill through the Soo canal and St. Mary's river between Lakes Superior and Huron.

Canal officials said they expect traffic to move again today but fear lower temperatures may cause ice in the river, delaying 33 Canadian and four United States ships still due to move to the lower lakes. The ships carry their final grain loads of the season.

CHARGED WITH SPYING

London, Dec. 12 (Reuters) — Romania yesterday charged the United States with parachuting two "spies and diversionists" into Romania from an American aircraft which allegedly flew over the country from Athens, Greece, Oct. 18.

Two Typhoons Closing In On Philippines

Manila, Dec. 12—(AP)— Two typhons closed in on the Philippines today as the death toll from Monday's storm sky-rocketed to 209.

The Red Cross reported :39 dead on Leyte Island alone.

The weather bureau said Monday's storm, which blew across the islands from the east, turned on itself in the China Sea today and headed back toward the islands. It was reported 230 miles southwest of Manila and whirling toward the city.

A second storm was reported less than 450 miles east and headed toward the central Philippines.

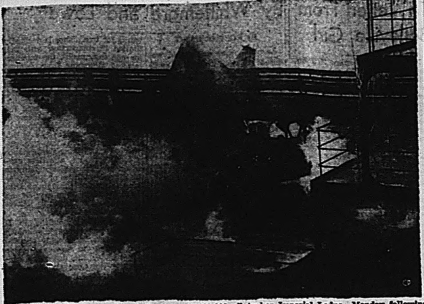
ARMY ENTERS TIBET

San Francisco, Dec. 12 (AP)—Peiping radio said yesterday a second Chinese red army had entered Lhasa, capital of Tibet Dec. 1 and "joined hands" with communist forces that had arrived in that mountainous land in October. The red broadcast, heard in San Francisco, said a "liberation" army completed an arduous march from northwest China "marked by thousands of kilometres of mountain climbing and steppe-crossing." The first red forces entered Lhasa Oct. 26 Peiping announced previously.

BENEFACTORS HELP

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 12—A blind man hitchhiking to Bloomington from Newton, Ia., arrived yesterday sooner than expected, thanks to benefactors along the way. Clinton W. Arbold, 47, told of walking at the roadside with his white cane—he estimated he walked 35 miles at least—and of rides given him. A deputy sheriff took him to a bus station at Kewanee, Ill. Persons in the station took up a collection and bought him a bus ticket for the remainder of his trip.

Tanker On Fire



Firemen fight flames aboard the huge $4,000,000 oil tanker Imperial Leduc Monday following two explosions as the ship lay tied up at the Imperial Oil Company dock at Sarnia, Ont. Three men were taken to hospital with injuries suffered in the blasts and fire which followed. Workmen were cleaning the Leduc tanks in preparation for its sailing to Toronto with a load of fuel oil.—(CP Photo)

ZEBRA'S TOUGH PLIGHT

Luton, England (CP)—A zebra in the zoo may have to go about permanently in a plaster cast. The animal dislocated her neck, the bone cannot be set, and surgeons are considering whether a plaster cast would do the trick.

LOVED CANADIAN SCENES

London (CP)—Princess Elizabeth was so delighted with Canadian scenery during the Royal tour that she may have Christmas cards made showing Canadian landscapes, a London newspaper reports.

CLIMAXED CAREER

Moose Jaw, Sask. (CP)—J. J. (Jack) Henze, engineer of the Royal train from Broadview to Moose Jaw during the visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, now has retired after 47 years' service.

Fog Puts Air Traffic In Terrible Muddle

London, Dec. 12—(Reuters) — Fog over London airport last night put air traffic into the worst confusion for months and caused hundreds of air passengers to be diverted to airfields elsewhere in southern England.

Visibility on the runways was 60 yards at Northolt and between 350 and 700 yards at London airport.

The one passenger waiting room at Blackbushe, one of London's main diversion airfields, was at one time crowded with more than 200 persons—it has accommodation for 40.

Some fog was reported particularly in the east and southeast this morning but British Overseas Airways planes were operating normally at London airport.

Meanwhile frozen snow continued to block roads in northern England and Scotland as Britain's first cold spell of the winter continued.

HARVEST COMPLETED

St. Thomas, Dec. 12—(CP) — The sugar beet harvest in this district has been completed with the last freight car loaded with beets moved out of the new shipping depot at Middlemarch, five miles west of here. This year's crop in the local production areas represented more than 150 freight carloads.

WEDDINGS

MOHER—GAULIN

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, November 24, at ten a.m., when Margaret Jane, daughter of Mrs. George Gaulin, Belleville, and the late Mr. Gaulin, became the bride of Robert Joseph Moher, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Moher, of this city. The Very Rev. Dean L. B. Garvin, officiated and said the Nuptial Mass.

Miss Helen Grant, soloist, sang "Panis Angelicus", "Ave Maria", and during the signing of the register "O Sacred Heart". Mr. Ted Morin, of Ottawa, cousin of the groom, sang "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother". Miss Dorothy Grant presided at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, was radiant in a floor-length gown of Brussels lace over satin, with fitted lace jacket, featuring mandarin neckline and fitted lily-point sleeves. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a satin poke bonnet, trimmed with Brussels lace and seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. E. R. Stiver, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing American Beauty taffeta with cape and mitts. She wore a matching pillbox and carried a nosegay of white pom 'mums.

Miss Catherine Moher, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, wearing nile green taffeta fashioned on identical lines to that of the matron of honor. She carried a nosegay of yellow pom 'mums.

The groomsman was Mr. Owen Moher, brother of the groom. Mr. Jack Hart, Point Anne, and Mr. Frank Corrigan, Kingston, acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Golden Acres Inn, where the mother of the bride received, wearing twilight blue French lace with corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore navy sheer with corsage of red roses.

For a motor trip through the States, and Northern Ontario, the bride donned a red wool crepe dress with grey kidskin coat and navy accessories.

Out-of-town guests were present from Ottawa, Point Anne, Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, Napanee and North Bay.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Moher will reside in Belleville.

ROLLINS—MATTHEWS

Tall standards of white chrysanthemums formed the background for a pretty wedding in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, December 8, at 2 p.m., when Marilyn Jean, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Garfield Matthews, became the bride of Maurice Houston Rollins, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Harry Rollins.

The wedding was solemnized by Canon J. B. Creeggan, rector of the church, and the music was provided by Mrs. Grace Calvert, organist, and Mrs. William Burgoyne, soloist, who sang, "The Lord's Prayer", before the ceremony and "Love's Coronation", during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in her wedding gown of organdy and lace, featuring a hooped skirt of pleated organdy with an overskirt of heavy bridal lace. Bands of the lace were inserted in the short-sleeved bodice with which she wore lace mitts ending in points at the wrist. The low square neckline was edged with an organdy ruffle. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was banded with lace and caught to a coronet of seed pearls and rhinestones. She carried a nosegay of red roses and green ivy tied with a lover's knot of white satin.

Miss June Matthews, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing an attractive gown of apple green taffeta. Her headdress was a braided coronet and she wore mitts to match her gown and carried bronze chrysanthemums tied with bronze tulle.

Miss Carolyn Rollins, Stirling, cousin of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, gowned in apple green taffeta similar to the maid of honor, and Miss Donna Marie Matthews, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, gowned in daffodil yellow. Both carried bronze chrysanthemums tied with bronze tulle.

Mr. Robert Lyall was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Jack Matthews, brother of the bride, Mr. John Rollins, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. John Miller.

The reception was held in the parish hall, which was decorated with tall standards of white chrysanthemums. The bride's table was adorned with a three-tier wedding cake surrounded by white tulle.

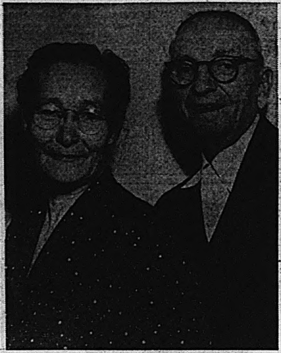
The bride's mother received the guests, gowned in American Beauty crepe with black accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a copper taffeta gown with a turquoise blue hat and corsage of Talisman roses.

For travelling to Niagara Falls, Lake Placid, New York City and western points, the bride chose a grey flannel suit trimmed with black velvet, black velvet accessories and a grey topcoat. Her corsage was red roses.

Out-of-town guests were presetn from Stirling, Trenton, Frankford, London, Kingston and Toronto.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Rollins will reside in Belleville.

Those who entertained for the bride-to-be prior to the wedding were Mrs. Dorland Houston, who was hostess at a kitchen shower; the girls of the Belleville Utilities office staff, who had a cup and saucer shower at the home of Miss Beth Robertson; and a presentation which took place at the home of Mrs. A. Matthews. The Utilities staff also had a presentation when the bride received an electric kettle.



Mr. and Mrs. Willard Reid, Thurlow, Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Residents of Hastings for practically all their lives and having lived in Belleville and district for the past 30 years, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Reid, of Thurlow township on the Kingston Road, Tuesday celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

The occasion was marked by a family dinner at their spacious farm home east of the city when all members of their family were present for the anniversary. The couple have seven children, 20 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

It was just 50 years ago on December 11th, when the bride and groom of half a century exchanged vows at the home of the bride's parents in Rawdon township. Mrs. Reid was the former Annie Ruth Sine, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sine.

"It was a beautiful moonlight night and there was no snow, Mr. Reid said, recalling that he and Mrs. Reid were married in the evening. They took a short wedding trip to Madoc driving a horse and buggy and then took up residence on a farm at Ivanhoe.

Farmed Most of Life

Farmers for most of their lives, Mr. Reid had one break from tilling the soil. For six years he operated a butcher shop on McAnnany Street opposite the police station. The couple farmed at Frankford, at Whitby, and also on the Thurlow township farm now operated by their son Clifford.

During the past few years Mr. Reid has been forced to "take things easy" because of a heart condition, but Mrs. Reid enjoys good health and for the most time is "on the go" helping one of her five daughters. Mr. Reid is in his 75th year while Mrs. Reid will be 69 in January.

Driving his car is one activity in which Mr. Reid takes a lot of pleasure. "It serves to kill time" he says, "and I am able to get about wherever I want to go."

Mr. and Mrs. Reid are members of the Free Methodist Church.

ACTING PRESIDENT

Tel Aviv, Israel, Dec. 12 — (Reuters)—Yosef Sprinzak, speaker of the Israeli parliament, yesterday was appointed acting president in place of President Chaim Weizmann, who is ill. Weizmann's doctors said he will be unable to resume his duties for a time, though his condition after a heart attack Thursday followed by pneumonia, was reported to be continuing to improve.

Rev. B.W. Harrigan Discusses Solving Of P.T.A. Problems

Rev. B. W. Harrigan, of Aldershot, was guest speaker at the December, meeting of St. Michael's and Holy Rosary Parent-Teacher Association.

Father Harrigan, spiritual director of the Parent-Teacher Associations of Ontario, was introduced by Rev. J. Buckley, and is well qualified to explain the workings and intricacies of a parent-teacher association.

He discussed the problems which might be solved by the cooperation of different groups, whose main object is the education and upbringing of the child. He also stressed the fact that the P.T.A. can help the School Board, and vice-versa, as well as the teaching staff, in meeting problems that may arise in the course of a year.

Entertainment was provided by the Quintones, who are members of the S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. Inc., who rendered several selections which were favorably received, and which called for encores.

It was decided that a Christmas treat would be provided for the children of both schools. Parent attendance plaques were won by Miss Murphy's class at St. Michael's and Sister M. Cyrilla's class at Holy Rosary.

Refreshments were served by mothers of Grade 1.

Club Activities

AMELIASBURG GIRLS' CLUB

The third meeting of the Merry Makers, working with wool, was held at the home of Margaret Corfield, Ameliasburg, last Thursday evening. The meeting was opened with roll call which the girls answered promptly — naming one wool material and its weave.

Mrs. Donald Jones gave a demonstration on how to shrink wool material and Mrs. Harold Motley showed how to lay a pattern on material and to cut it out.

The girls then fitted their own patterns to see that they were the right size.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Marilyn Fritz, on Thursday evening, Dec. 13.

Refreshments were served.

Princess Replies To Letter From Belleville Girl

Miss Marjorie Stapley, 28 Johnson Street, recently received a reply to a letter which she sent to Princess Elizabeth following the Princess's recent visit to this country.

Miss Stapley, in her letter, told the Princess of having collected pictures of the Royal Family for many years and of being thrilled at seeing her and the Duke of Edinburgh on their recent visit to Belleville. She also told the Princess of being hospitalized at the same time as the King and in conclusion wished the Princess and Duke a safe return to England.

Dear Miss Stapley,

Princess Elizabeth has asked me to write to thank you most sincerely for your letter, which her Royal Highness was very glad to receive.

The Princess was so sorry to hear that you have been ill, and hopes very much that you are now completely well again.

The letter was signed by Martin Charters, private secretary to the Princess Elizabeth.

Impressive Vesper Service Held By C.G.I.T.-Explorers

At Bridge Street Church on Sunday evening, an impressive Vesper service was conducted by the Canadian Girls in Training from the city churches.

Over 100 C.G.I.T. girls and Explorers participated, reverently repeating the responses and singing the familiar Christmas hymns.

The processional hymn "Joy to the World the Lord is Come", was sung as the girls in their C.G.I.T. uniforms took their places in the choir loft and centre pews of the church.

Musical Accompaniment

At the organ, Mr. S. Alec Gordon provided the musical accompaniment for the hymns and for the choir of 25 C.G.I.T. girls who sang three numbers.

The leader was Jean Cornish, who also led in the responsive reading.

The first reader, Barbara Helm, supplied the setting for the service which was in three parts—"God sends a baby into the world" "God call the worshippers", and "God gives the light of the world".

Nan Elvins, the second reader, read the Scripture lessons.

A lovely Christmas story, "The First Christmas Rose", was told by Shirley Fox.

The offering was received by members of the C.G.I.T. groups, who presented it at the altar for dedication by Rev. Duncan McTavish.

Candle-lighting Ceremony

A beautiful candle-lighting ceremony followed.

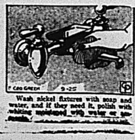
The first candle-lighter, Jacqueline Avery, lighted a tall white taper in symbolic memory of God's "Let there be Light", at the time of creation; the second tall candle was lighted by Ronna Fordyce in symbolic memory of Jesus, who said, "I am the Light of the World", and the third candle-lighter, Faye Ferguson, lighted the third tall candle in symbolic memory of the Light within each one of us for Jesus said, "Ye are the Light of the World".

From these three central candles, the candle lighters lighted their own candles and then the light was passed from one to another till each girl held a lighted candle. With the candles' rays lighting their earnest faces they repeated in unison the C.G.I.T. Purpose.

"As a Canadian Girl in Training under the leadership of Jesus,

"It is my purpose to cherish health; seek truth; know God, and to serve others."

Mr. McTavish pronounced the benediction. As the recessional hymn, "The First Noel" was sung the girls formed a circle with their lighted candles about the darkened church. The reverent sing of "Taps", brought to a close a very beautiful service of worship.



Wash nickel fixtures with soap and water, and if they need it, polish with whiting moistened with water or ammonia.

Outstanding Performance Given By Whittemore and Lowe

By EUGENE LANG

As usual, a record crowd was present in the Collegiate auditorium for the second concert of the 1951-52 Community Concert Association series of programs when last evening the artists featured were the outstanding piano team of Arthur Whittemore and Jack Lowe who made their second appearance here before local and district music lovers. Known on the concert stage today as one of the really fine duo-planists of this or any other continent this pair of young piano aritists have shone out like a double meteor of eye-blinding brilliance wherever they are concertized. Being of such a celebrated calibre they have proven their worth in whichever media they have chosen to appear, either in radio or television appearances, as soloists with major orchestras, as recording personalities or as straight duo-pianists in joint recitals.

They proved behind a doubt to all who heard them that they justly possess the secret of duo-piano playing in that they sound as one single artist and not as two. There were no breaks, no unevenness of approach, or separate attacks in their renditions and they combined complete technical unison with equally complete artistic freedom, no easy task in itself, to such an extent that if one closed one's eyes, the result to the ear was that of a single pair of hands in the place of two pairs emanating from two bodies.

Although the repertoire of works for two pianos is decidedly limited in comparison with that for one instrument, the numbers selected stemming from original sources were chosen with the utmost care and thought. Three items of this type were performed, one familiar and two unfamiliar. The well-known opus was the Brahms Variations on a theme of Haydn (probably better known in its orchestral version) and in this great composition the two artists gave a sterling performance of tonal splendor, effortless execution and personal sympathy to the diverse qualities of the variations (crammed throughout with fierce complexities of rhythm and tempos) that could not be bettered or improved upon.

The Schubert Rondeau in D Op. 138, was, although unknown to most ears, impeccably phrased and seemed to flowingly glide along under the endearing caresses of the twenty fingers that molded it into a thing of shimmering delicacy that flowed complacently to its denouement. Another orchestral favorite, "La Valse" of Ravel was to many the highlight of the recital, in that Whittemore and Lowe are the only duo-piano team that feature this highly impressionistic number on their programs. Their interpretation of this highly imaginative and sensuously saturated composition of Ravel's conception of the waltz was one that seemed to put the audience into a hypnotic mesmerism of fantastically conceived somnambulisms of swaying and swirling emotions that vaporized from the subconscious mind into realities of vibrating sureness and sensitivity. In this work, as in all others, the tremendous technical barriers were overcome with facility that bespoke the true artist over the vapid ramblings of the virtuoso.

The arrangements that were utilized were those of most refined and carefully considered taste, whether they were that of the pianists themselves or that from the pen of another. Space forbids going into detail and comment on each and every one, but mention must be made of at least three of them. The two numbers of Fritz Kreisler were well known and beautifully bisected between the two Baldwin pianos in such a way that only praise can be given to the highly polished sheen of these cameo-like creations.

In the modern idiom, rhythm of pulsating beats predominated in the Third Street Rhumba of Clifford Shaw (an original piece) the "Guaracha" of Morton Gould and a condensed version for two pianos of Ravel's "Bolero". In the latter two added effects were featured by slapping and drumming with the hands on the non-playable portions of the pianos, piling percussive sounds with precision of performance. The fiery and excitable Roumanian Rhapsody of Enescos (No. 1) was very cleverly conceived by the two pianists in an arrangement of originality close to the composer's intent, yet bristling with power and brilliance of gypsy-like furor and wild abandon.

To the continued applause of the ardently appreciative listeners Messrs. Whittemore and Lowe responded generously with five encores, all enthusiastically acclaimed. The co-ordination and co-operation between minds, hands and keyboards was of a perfection not to be seen or heard in Belleville for many a long day to come.

Derogatory comments on the artists—none; On the audience—common courtesy and politeness to the recitalists should be shown by remaining in your respective seats until the last encore is given, and not rushing to exits before the house lights come on. They give their best attention to you—you should do likewise to them.

GOOD MANNERS

(By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman)

Give a lilt to your Christmas card signatures!

Have fun making your signature-and-message on your Christmas cards sing a bit of a Christmas song. So much more imaginative than just signing your name on your cards. For example: "Hi! It's Christmas! And here come John and Polly to sing to you 'May your Christmas be merry and bright'!" Or: "Here are the Grahams to greet you. . .John and Mary, and Tommy and Timmy, too!" Or: "Happy, happy Christmas to the Three Mitchells . . . Mary and Martin and Margaret. . . from the five Fosters —Frank and Frances, and Florence and Fred and young Frank." Or: "Your loving friends here—The Thompsons Two—are singing 'Happy Christmas' greetings to our beloved Frances and Phil." Or: "Happy Christmas and Happy New Year from the Millers. . . John and Mary, and Anne and Dorothy. And 'Lassie' adds a joyous wag to say 'Me too, please'!" Or: "With a song in our hearts for you two dear friends at Christmas-time. . . . from David and Rosemary."

To invite her only sister to be matron of honor?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to be married soon. When my only sister was married, I was her maid of honor at the small wedding. However, since her marriage a few years ago we have not been so close as we were, and my best friends is much closer to me than she is. Is it compulsory that I have my sister as my matron of honor, or would it be better to have my friend, which would make me very happy?

M.

It isn't "compulsory" that you have your sister as your matron of honor, but I do urge you not to do anything that you will later regret, that may deeply hurt your sister, your only sister. She gave you such a special honor that it would be natural that she would expect a similar honor. Why not ask your sister to be your matron of honor and your friend to be a bridesmaid, or perhaps even have two honor attendants, your sister as matron of honor and official witness (to walk directly before you and your father in the processional), and your friend as maid of honor, to walk alone, preceding your sister?

How to address Christmas card to Judge and his wife

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of ours has recently been made a judge. How should a Christmas card be addressed to him and his wife?

B. R.

The Honorable and Mrs. John Whaley.

Food for Thought

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

(I have such a stack of letters from you to answer I must use any known means to whittle it down. This menu will answer three enquiries. One was "Will you please tell me how to prepare a chicken? So that it will be tender and well browned?". Mrs. G.A.C. wants "A good recipe for Sago Pudding" and another would like ". . .a recipe for cooked salad dressing that is not too sweet nor too sour". So I worked all three of these desirable dishes into today's special-purpose menu.)

Roast Chicken (see notes)
Mixed Vegetables (peas, carrots, limas—see notes)
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Cabbage and Green Pepper Slaw with Boiled Dressing (see notes)
Old-fashioned Sago Pudding (see notes)
Coffee

ROAST CHICKEN

If you are not an old hand at dressing a chicken it is best to have your butcher do this for you. Wash the chicken in cold water, using a scrubbing brush with a little baking soda on it to brush the skin to make it very clean. If the chicken has hairs on it these should be singed over a flame while chicken is still dry. When washing inside the chicken be sure to remove the lungs and kidneys. Sprinkle inside lightly with salt after it drains.

Fill with stuffing: 3 1-2 to 4 cups fresh breadcrumbs (fairly well packed in cup), 3 1-2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, 1 1-2 teaspoons summer savory or thyme, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 1-2 tablespoons chopped parsley.'

Add crumbs to melted butter then stir in remaining ingredients with fork. If moist dressing is liked, add 2 or 4 tablesoons hot milk. A pleasant variation is to add 1-2 cup finely chopped celery (or chopped celery and blanched almonds) to the butter and saute them very gently just before adding the butter to the breadcrumbs.

After chicken is stuffed truss it by turning tips of wings under back; press legs close back against body and tie tightly in place with strong string. Place chicken on its back in roasting pan, and over breast place strips of bacon or spread with paste of 3 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons flour. Place in hot oven to start the cooking quickly, then reduce heat. Baste every ten minutes with fat in pan or with 2 tablespoons drippings melted in 2-3 cup boiling water or if you bake the chicken in covered roaster it will not require basting. Turn chicken to lie on both sides during baking to brown it evenly. For a tender young chicken roast 15 minutes to the pound and 20 minutes extra. To brown chicken at last remove cover or turn on top oven.

BOILED DRESSING

Mix together in top of double boiler 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon mustard, shake of cayenne, 1 tablespoon each sugar and flour, and the yolks of 2 eggs well beaten in 1-2 cup milk. Stir very well to remove any lumps, then add 1-4 cup vinegar and cook over boiling water until thick. Remove from heat and stir in 1 tablespoon butter. Keep covered and cold.

FRUIT SAGO PUDDING

Wash 1-4 cup sago and soak 1 hour in cold water to cover. Drain. Add 1 3-4 cups juice (1 cup pineapple juice and 3-4 cup orange juice) or any desired fruit juice such as peach or pear but orange is necessary and lemon is good in small proportion. Cook over boiling water until clear. Add 1-4 cup sugar and stir until dissolved. Remove from heat and when warm fold in two stiffly beaten egg whites. Add 1-4 cup shredded pineapple or sliced peaches or orange sections. Serve cold in tall-stemmed glasses.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Divorced, they want to start over again

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been divorced for three years from the father of my three boys. We married very young, when he was 15 and I was 14.

Everything went all right until he joined the Navy. We went with him everywhere he was stationed until he was sent overseas, when we came back to our little apartment. Then his family started writing terrible things about me to him, which were not true. When he came back, he didn't even want to see us. I went to his family's home to try and see him, but they acted so awful to me that I took my babies and never went back.

A couple of weeks ago, I got a letter from court telling me I was divorced, and that was all.

After all this, he has been coming to see us and telling me that he made a big mistake, that he found out he still loved me very much. He wanted to start all over again.

Do you think I should give him another try as I feel the same way? He has saved a little money and so have I, and he wants us to make a down payment on a house, so we can get married again with all our family together. I am 22 and he is 23. Please tell us what is right.

A. D. C.

Dear A.D.C.:

If your husband wants to start all over again with you, and you feel the same way about it, then I think you certainly ought to try. Before you remarry, however, it would be wise for you both to make sure you fully understand each other, so that you will really start afresh. If, for example, there were any truth at all in what his relatives may have told him about you, then you should be honest enough to admit it. You don't want to try and start a new life until you have thoroughly cleared up the old one; otherwise, something might come up in the future to cause trouble.

On the other hand, if he was foolish enough to listen to idle gossip that actually has no basis in fact, then he should be honest enough to realize where he was wrong.

I hope you will be able to make a go of your second attempt at marriage, and that you will be happier now than you ever were before.

If you must rush into marriage, there's something wrong

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My boy friend and I would like to know in which state we can get married in one day.

Rene

Dear Rene:

There are a number of states, most of them at some distance from where you live, where there is no waiting time required either for a marriage licence, or for a marriage ceremony, after the license is obtained. I am certainly not going to tell you which they are, however.

If everything is on the up-and-up in a marriage, there is no reason at all why two people should feel they have to get married in such a hurry. On the other hand, if there is reason why they feel they have to hurry, then something is wrong.

I advise you to reconsider, and see if you cannot make your marriage plans in a more orderly way. I wouldn't think of helping you do something impulsively which you might later deeply regret.

BEAUTY

Be careful with lighting arrangements.

It just isn't fair for a hostess to invite women to a party, and then have them spotlighted, as it were. Perhaps this has happened to you! You have done your best to look your best, and have had to spend an evening in a room too highly lighted. You glance in a mirror. Is it possible that that woman is you? Helen of Troy couldn't stand it, or any famous beauty. Your make-up is accented. Your eyes hurt. You hurt all over. You want to go home.

The smart hostess will so arrange the candles on her dining table that even the chins of her guests are in shadow. That arrangement makes for coziness and charm. Ladies present feel that whatever good-looks defects they possess are not played up to the limit, but shadowed. They feel comfortable and at ease.

Strong lights have the same depressing effect upon lovely fabrics as on faces and figures. White lamp shades are no help to appearance, while soft tints cast a light that is flattering. It is said that mauve shades bring out the glow of golden hair like nobody's business, while opal favors the brunette of fair skin and raven locks.

Pink and light blue are regarded as bedroom colors, are seldom selected for the living room. Green shades will make the inhabitants look slightly bilious, so an expert says. Coral serves satisfactorily and there are pleasing betwixt and between shades like cream, apricot, pinkish beige and ashes of roses. Also there are tea-rose tints that are harmonious with draperies, rugs and furnishings of almost any color.

Because of a chance of being exposed to too much light, it is safer for the invited guest to soft pedal on make-up, using a rachelle or pink powder, whisking faint-colored rouge over her eyelids if she does not use shadows, keeping the lipstick within color-reason.

The smart hostess will not use bright lighting

If you are a home-builder and have come to the problem of decorating, do consider what the walls will do to appearance. Avoid strong colors. Red walls are fairly suffocating, death to the beauty of blondes and redheads. Dark greens are not so bad. Faint pastel greens are restful, make a room look larger than when the walls are dark. Blues are definitely for bedrooms and should be of faint, delicate tones.

Lovely women should have lively backgrounds. And lovely women are never so attractive as in the setting of homes that express good taste.

RAWDON

River Valley W.I. Christmas Meeting

Rawdon—On Thursday, December 6th Mrs. Gerald Brooks was hostess for the Christmas meeting of River Valley Women's Institute. The rooms were decorated with wreaths, festoons, pine cones, and a lighted Christmas tree which gave a distinctive seasonal air to the meeting. There were over thirty members and several visitors in attendance and these included Mrs. Kenneth Green and Mrs. M. Pulver, Rednersville, and Mrs. Gordon Green, Bethel Rawdon, also a dozen or more children under school age. The president Mrs. Don Donohoe conducted the opening devotional with Mrs. Ralph Utman presiding at the piano. Mrs. J. L. Donohoe gave a full financial report of the receipts and expenditures of the recent dance and card party and the finances are in good shape for this term.

Letters were read from the Provincial Director Miss Anna P. Lewis and a booklet of interest was displayed. Mrs. Ed Heasman reported for the committee. Mrs. J. L. Donohoe and Mrs. Percy Utman were appointed to price chairs and find out where the best purchase could be made. Plans were made for another euchre party at the school and a receptacle for coffee making will be purchased.

Mrs. Ed. Kent reminded the ladies that Blue Cross dues should be paid at the bank immediately. Mrs. Roy Bush was appointed to order the magazine "The Country Women of the World". This will be studied in preparation for the 1953 convention in Canada. Mrs. Kenneth Green, president Rednersville W.I. in Prince Edward county brought greetings. Mrs. Ross Bush read correspondence from CJBQ, and spoke of the social evening to be held in February. Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Mrs. S. McIntosh were appointed a committee to carry out some work in January.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Claude Tucker. The guest speaker will be Mr. Frank Stone, assistant agricultural representative and the subject will be "Up to Date Gardening News." Any folks interested in Trenton Memorial Hospital are asked to bring a jar of home-canned food to this meeting.

The Christmas program was in charge of Mrs. Jack Donohoe and several Christmas carols led by Mrs. George Heasman interspersed the readings. Mrs. Hugh Jones read "Christmas Spirit that Lasts all Through the Year." Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh read "The Christmas on a Dime", which pointed out that Christmas never fails those who believe in it. Mrs. Ernest Carr, "The Day After Christmas" and a humorous number by Mrs. Bob Philp "Learning to Drive." Miss Cheryl Utman sang "Bring Back My Kitty to Me." The rendition of "Jingle Bells" ushered in the children's tiny tree, planted in a tub and surrounded with gifts. As the names were called each child drew a gift and the parcels revealed coloring books, balloons, toys, etc.

Mrs. Ed Heasman was in charge of the adult Christmas "pie" and arranged the gifts beneath the lighted tree behind a red and white background. As the membership roll was called the members drew their gifts and then the visitors had their turn. There were lovely glass bowls, pyrex dishes, fancy soap, aprons, stationery and a host of lovely articles. Mrs. Harold Morgan extended thanks for hospitality, program and refreshments. After collection the National anthem was sung.

The refreshments consisted of sandwiches, pickles, celery, olives, a variety of cookies, imported grapes, homemade candy, salted nuts and coffee.

WINTER PANSIES

Fort Erie, Ont. — (CP) — Enjoying the comparatively warm spell of early December Mrs. John Baker picked a couple of pansies blooming in her backyard as the temperature hovered around 60 degrees.

Women's Activities

ST. PETER'S PRESBYTERIAN W.M.S.

The annual meeting of the society was held at the home of Mrs. Walter Brett, Madoc, on Thursday afternoon with a good attendance and the president presiding. After the singing of the Christmas hymn "Hark The Herald Angels Sing" the Christmas story as found in Luke 2nd chapter was read by Mrs. Sharpe followed with prayer by Mrs. Allan. Mrs. Allan Johnston gave a brief resume on some articles in the Glad Tidings and read some verses on "Prayer" and "Old Keldonan."

The reports for the year were read, the secretary reporting a very active year in this society and several members attending in other places. The treasurer's report showed a very successful year financially, the 65th anniversary proved both a spiritual and financial success. Several telegrams and messages that came too late for the anniversary were read. A letter from Mrs. H. S. Graham was also read. Communications from the Home Helpers and Welcome and Welfare secretaries were read asking for more promptness in sending in of reports. It was decided to give a junior life membership to a Mission Band member.

The slate of officers for 1952 was given by Mrs. McCaffrey: President, Mrs. Field Allan; 1st. vice president, Mrs. Spencer; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Heslip; 3rd vice president, Miss Vankleek; 4th vice president, Mrs. A. Johnston; secretary, Mrs. Dave Blakely; treasurer, Mrs. Fred Curry; Glad Tidings sec., Mrs. George West; Home Helpers sec., Mrs. Allan Johnston; Press sec., Mrs. Frank Sharpe; Supply sec., Mrs. Donahue; assistant sec., Mrs. John Armstrong; Welcome and Welfare, Mrs. Ben Miller; assistants, Mrs. Kernahan and Mrs. C. Kilpatrick; pianist, Mrs. Johnston.

Rev. M. W. Heslip was called upon to install the officers. He addressed the members on dedicating of self and offered a dedicatory prayer. Plans were made for the January meeting. Hymn "While Shepherds Watched" and benedictions concluded a very fine meeting. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. John Bailey during the social half hour.

TRINITY W.M.S.

Trinity United Church Women's Missionary Society, Madoc was hospitality entertained at the home of Mrs. Albert Empey for their annual Christmas meeting on Wednesday evening. Members and visitors attending were 25. Miss A. Holmes the president opened with a prayer and conducted the business receiving the treasurer's report and minutes of previous meeting. Mrs. F. Fleming reported on sick calls and thank you cards received. Mrs. E. Burnside reported on the Book Shelf department. Mrs. E. Devolin announced a special meeting of the Baby Band to be held on Sunday evening. Mrs. Albert Empey took charge of the worship service and read the Christmas story as told in St. Luke's Gospel. Following the program as in the Missionary Monthly, Mrs. Empey read quotations interspersed by the singing of the Christmas hymn "Angels From the Realms of Glory." Mrs. Carmen conducted the candlelight service assisted by Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Nayler, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Burnside and Miss Holmes. Mrs. Adams sang an English carol, and throughout the candlelight service Christmas carols and hymns were sung. Mrs. Carmen concluded the service with a story of "Christmas Aboard the Thomas Crosby 4", the church missionary boat on the Pacific Coast. Mrs. Lane closed a very impressive and fine meeting with prayer. A pleasant social hour followed with a gift shower, all members taking part and refreshments being served by the hostess assisted by Mesdames Nayler, Reid, Tanner and Hayton.

MISSION BAND, BABY BAND

Madoc Trinity United Church Mission Band and Baby Band held a union Christmas meeting in the school room of the church on Sunday evening with a fine attendance of members, parents and interested visitors. The school room was decorated with lighted Christmas trees and the lighting was colored candles giving an atmosphere of the approaching Christmas season.

Miss Annie Holmes on behalf of the W.M.S. and the bands spoke words of appreciation to those who were in attendance. Mrs. Adams was in charge of the singing of children's hymns. Elizabeth Johnson Mission Band president had charge of the program with Doug McGowan assisting and telling the children's story of Christmas. The remainder of the program consisted of songs and recitations by Mission Bands members and two special vocal numbers by the junior choir under the direction of Mrs. B. McCoy. Mrs. D. Carmen gave a reading "Jimmie's Christmas". A gift shower to be sent to the port of Halifax to be distributed by church workers in charge, for the children of displaced persons was abundantly responded to. A few words from Mrs. Lane and prayer closed the service.

A vote of thanks extended to the leaders Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Devolin and all who took part in the service was given by Mrs. J. McGowan.

FOXBORO PRESBYTERIAN W.M.S.

Mrs. James Chappelle opened her home on Wednesday, Dec. 5, for the last meeting of the year, of the Foxboro Presbyterian Church W.M.S. A special Christmas program was prepared by Miss Watt, and her helpers. Christmas hymns were sung, and each member gave a Christmas number. A resume of the year's work was given, some of the highlights were: in January, had charge of the devotional exercises for Kingston Presbyterial held in St. Andrew's church, Belleville; in June, entertained all of the Kingston Presbyterial to dinner, serving 100 guests; in August, the death of the president, Mrs. Charles Bailey, was reported; in September, a program in her memory as a memorial service was carried out; in October, presented two Life membership certificates to two of the members. There are 14 paid members, seven active and seven home helpers. Eleven meetings were held during the year with an average attendance of seven; Sent out 36 cards in the community; seven baskets of fruit to the sick, and one basket of flowers and three sprays to bereaved families in the congregation. For the year, $106 was realized.

The Ladies' Guild at this time reported a very good year, with 13 of a membership, and Miss Watt as president; Mrs. Earl Ketcheson, secretary and Mrs. R. B. Hamilton, treasurer. Eleven meetings were held with an average attendance of seven. Money raised during the year amounted to $363.

Sorry to report at this time one of the members sick in the Belleville General Hospital and all sincerely wish her a speedy recovery.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. Chappelle served dainty refreshments and a social time was enjoyed by all.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. R. B. Hamilton.

Scholarship Set Up For Young Designers

London, (CP)—Young men and women with rosy dreams of becoming a Norman Hartnell or a Schiaparelli eagerly greet a new British scholarship.

In memory of Bianca Mosca, one of London's most brilliant designers who died last year, a trust fund for an open fashion scholarship, first of its kind, has been set up. An award of £400 will be given each year to the person whose sketches, photographs and written program for a year's travel study show most promise for a future career in fashion.

The award may be spent in travel in one or more countries and the trust committee will arrange for the winner to join a fashion house in London, Paris, Italy or New York.

First to be told of the new scholarship were the schools. So many applications have already been received that the committee extended the date of entry to Jan. 1. Age range for applicants is 17 to 25.

SEAWAY PROJECT

Mr. Chevrier turned down requests that the scope of the new seaway agency be enlarged to enable it to develop projects in other parts of Canada. It was being set up to handle a "specific project".

He said fears that the seaway will harm the Manitoba Port of Churchill are groundless, and scoffed at opposition suggestions that valuable iron-ore deposits would be shipped to American steel mills.

The government was as concerned as anyone about the development of natural resources and would bend "every effort" to get the maximum advantage for Canada out of the deposits.

Mr. Howe said six American steel companies have contracted to take approximately 50 per cent of the estimated annual production, with the remaining 50 per cent being available for Canadian consumption and export.

He reiterated that Canadian steel mills now have under way a program for a 33-1-3 per cent increase in productive capacity, and Mr. Chevrier added that this program totals $122,000,000 of which it is hoped $68,000,000 will be spent this year.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, wanted assurance that the maximum possible use of iron ore would be made in this country. The government should encourage the construction of additional mills to use the ore when it became available.

He said also that the Maritimes wanted assurance that the government would encourage industrialization of those provinces and see that the ore reached Maritime smelting plants.

Replies to Critics

Mr. Chevrier, replying to critics of his bill, described the seaway development as an "All-Canada project and one that will develop wealth."

"What greater Canadian project could there be than to build the seaway?" he asked.

General approval of the seaway scheme, coupled with urgings that other natural resources be developed, came during the day from members from several provinces.

Rodney Adamson (PC—York West) said the development of every power resource that can be developed is the responsibility of the federal government. It should seek new power sites in the Maritimes, the Prairies, the Arctic and elsewhere.

He felt that the seaway might widen markets for Maritime coal and suggested it would bring a big expansion in shipbuilding on the Great Lakes.

J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West), whose riding abuts the seaway route, said he favors the seaway enthusiastically but urged that it be viewed as part of a general natural-resources plan.

The government should look towards exploiting the South Saskatchewan scheme and the Passamaquoddy and Chignecto projects as well as others in the Maritimes

He hoped, too, that the predicted development of Labrador iron ore resources resulting from the seaway would stimulate the establishment of new steel mills for Canada. The government should take this up with the provincial administrations.

John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) said the Social Credit party will support the seaway. It was necessary for defence.

SCIENTISTS

"We cannot leave it to other countries since Russia is in a position to make the observations that can be made in Canada. A thorough knowledge of radio propagation conditions in the north is an absolute essential to conducting even the simplest operations of war there, since the armed forces are more and more coming to depend on radio waves. . ."

Perfect New Clothing

Other Arctic studies include the effect of cold on the body, perfection of new clothing, measures to deal with biting insects and development of cold-weather fuels and oils.

Naval research is concentrated on anti-submarine devices, including "new types of naval craft which would have high speed and other special characteristics."

Scientists working in Ottawa laboratories are digging into the mysteries of the "defensive aspects of chemical and biological warfare." Special attention is being given the problems of chemical warfare in the Arctic.

In a Kingston, Ont., laboratory other scientists are conducting research "on some of the basic problems of defence against bacteriological warfare."

Nowhere does the report mention atomic weapons. In fact the word "atomic" is entirely missing. Closest approach to that word "atomic" is entirely missing. "radiation" is one of the projects on which the board's medical scientists are working.

Tone Apologizes For Misconduct

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Franchot Tone pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of battery upon columnist Florabel Muir—she said he spat on her—and publicly apologized before a court room containing about 70 persons.

He was given a suspended 45-day jail sentence, placed on probation for one year and fined $400.

Tone pleaded guilty to charges that he kicked Miss Muir's feet and ankles, spat in her face, grabbed her by a pearl necklace and choked her.

A writer for the New York Daily News and the Los Angeles Mirror, she made a citizen's arrest of the actor at Ciro's night club

Miss Muir claimed that Tone approached her as she sat at a table with her husband and told her he was so angry with her he felt like spitting in her face. She said he never did tell her what he was angry about.

She commented in her column about Tone's romance with actress Barbara Payton and his brawl with actor Tom Neal, who sent him to a hospital with a broken nose.

"I feel it was wrong to lose my sense and good conduct as I did.

"I must say publicly that I am very sorry for what happened, and try to apologize to the complainant as best I can."

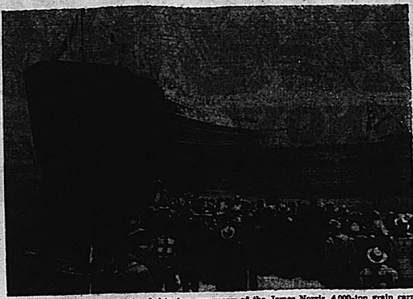
4,000-Ton Grain Carrier Launched at Midland



Spot of comedy entered into christening ceremony of the James Norris, 4,000-ton grain carrier, when Mrs. Norris, wife of the Chicago grain magnate for whom ship is named, attempted to swing the traditional bottle of champagne against the bow, but missed when it slipped. Some 10,000 persons at Midland, Ont., watched launching of vessel, largest grain carrier to be built in Midland shipyards. She measures 664 feet long and 35 feet deep, drawing 24 feet of water at full load. — Central Press Canadian.

Wasps Win Battle Against Science

Wellington, N.Z. (CP)—Wasps have won a seven-year battle against all the resources of modern science in New Zealand. After trying by every means to eradicate them the government has admitted defeat and given up its campaign to prevent their establishment in the country.

The German wasp first appeared at an air station in 1944 and it is thought it may have been imported from England in a consignment of aircraft parts. Since then it has spread over the whole of the North Island and has appeared in the South Island. It is the only country in the southern hemisphere where this wasp has established itself.

The government battled the invader for several years. The area infested was fairly small at first. A bounty of threepence each was paid for queen wasps collected and small boys made a lot of money hunting them down. But the wasps continued to spread. Scientists tried many methods of extermination and supplies of D.D.T. powder were supplied free for destroying nests. Posters were displayed throughout the country telling people how to kill the pests.

But the wasps won. The Minister of Agriculture, K. J. Holyoake, says no effective way of preventing the spread of the wasps has been found. The government has abandoned its efforts at extermination.

Henceforth the efforts of government scientists will be concentrated on how best to prevent the wasps robbing beehives in the autumn. This is the most serious damage they cause. They also destroy ripe fruit in home gardens but in commercial orchards where fruit is picked just before it is ripe much less damage is done.

QUEEN'S GET BEQUEST

New York, Dec. 12—(CP)— A bequest amounting to $17,591.25 to Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., was listed in the will of James Alexander Polson of New York who died Nov. 3, 1950, according to an estate tax appraisal filed yesterday.

His net estate was $274,931.21. The bequest to the university was made to finance a room or rooms for students in appreciation of Polson's education at Queen's University.

Bandit Settles For Two Packs Of Cigarets

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 12. (CP)—A nattily-dressed holdup man settled for two packs of cigarets early Tuesday and then sat down with the man he had robbed for a cup of coffee.

Maurice Safran, owner of Maurice's Delicatessen, said he had pocketed the money from his cash register when a tall young man entered and said "This is a stickup."

"Are you kidding?" Safran said.

"Open up your register or I'll drill you," the holdup man said.

Safran opened the till. It was empty.

"Okay, give me two packs of cigarets," the holdup man said.

Then he accepted a cup of coffee and left.

U.S. Loses Over 900 Planes In Korean War

Washington, Dec. 12. (AP)—American forces have lost more than 900 planes in the Korean war.

This figure, which includes some non-combat losses, compares with a claimed destruction of about 300 communist planes in actual air or ground action.

Air forces and navy officials said today they do not view this as disproportionate for these reasons:

1. American planes have been in continuous action since the start of the war in June, 1950, while red planes have appeared in significant numbers only during last nine months.

BATS IN BELFRY?

Montreal — (CP) — McGill scholars may not have "bats in belfry" but they certainly have them in the Redpath library. Coeds squealed as a bat swooped around the heads of scores of students but escaped capture.

GUILTY OF THEFT

Toronto, Dec. 12—(CP)—Calvin Gamble, alias George Crisp, yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing truck tires from the tire firm for which he worked. He was sent to jail for a year.

Investigators estimated that Gamble, who was arrested in Cornwall, Ont., was responsible for the theft of about $9,000 worth of tires from his company and made about $2,000 by selling them. They said the tires eventually fell into the hands of "grey market" tire dealers.

Frank Amato of Toronto was charged a week ago with receiving some of the stolen tires. He will appear in court next week.

Sergeant Says Prayer Helped Van Doos Survive Heavy Shelling During Epic Stand

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, Dec. 12. (CP)—The sergeant says he prayed. And that it helped.

Shells were pouring on the position, a slender strip of ridgetop, heavier than Canadians had ever before experienced in Korea—perhaps anywhere. The troops were of the 2nd Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment and the shelling took place during their epic Nov. 22-26 stand.

From tanks, self-propelled guns, artillery field pieces and mortars they fell at an estimated 300 rounds every two minutes—9,000 an hour. The sergeant's company commander said later that it was worse even than the concentrations he endured in the Hochwald Forest during the Second World War.

But for the sergeant it was his "first time ever" under anything like it. It was his first all-out battle, although he had been in action before with the 2nd Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment in Korea.

It was cold, dark, and his men were deep in mud.

They were guarding the most vulnerable approach to the Canadians' stout perimeter on the ridgetop.

There were gully-approaches to their left and right. Directly ahead was Mount Kowang, abandoned by United Nations troops after a half-hour bombardment and attack by communist forces now poised up there to swoop down again, as they had done seven times already.

Sit and Take It

Stretched out behind, along the crest, was the rest of the company—or what was left of it—clinging firm despite the shelling, despite Chinese a bare 150 yards away atop the peak at that end, and despite the brief loss of part of its position, later recaptured.

The job was simple. Sit and take it. Beat them back if they come. But hold at all costs.

"I knew we had to," the sergeant said later. "I heard the lieutenant ask the major when 355 (Mount Kowang) was gone what our line of withdrawal would be. The major said there would be no retreat.

"We had no sleep for the whole five days. We got so tired we mumbled songs to ourselves to keep awake. We said our prayers.

"And then the shelling. You mustn't let it get you. You get afraid, of course you do, but you talk it off. If you keep everything to yourself you go crazy. You talk and joke if you can. And you say your prayers, and that helps.

The section held its fire so as not to give away its location, then let loose with grenades as the Chinese assaulted. There were 30 in the first wave and the sergeant estimated 25 were blown to death by the flying shrapnel. Following communists fell back to regroup and retired right into mortar concentrations called down by the lieutenant.

The company's stand was a repetition of the sergeant's story on the whole platoon front. And still the Chinese kept coming.

Praise Enemy Bravery

Individually and together the sergeant, his lieutenant and his major praised the bravery of the enemy.

"They just kept on coming," they would say. And the sergeant: "they must have a mentality completely differen from ours. Nobody in his right mind would advance like that. At night they even give notice by firing flares and yelling as though to announce to us that they were coming."

Direct of eye, and every inch a soldier, the sergeant is 26-year-old Denis Lapierre of Quebec.

He allotted himself the trench he occupied during the battle. right in the middle of the men guarding that approach. They, incidentally, were Cpl. Raymond Dunbury of Ville La Salle, Que.; Pte. Fernand Guerrette, of Cabano, Que.; Pte. Noel Pelletier, Montreal; Pte. J. P. Charrette, Pte. Claire, Que.; Pte. J. L. Bougie, Valleyfield, Que., and Cheh Sang Sup, a Korean "rice-burner" who with Bougie primed the grenades the others catapulted like exploding hailstones among the approaching enemy.

Firm Market For Steel Assured Says C.D. Howe

Ottawa, Dec. 12—(CP)—A firm market for at least 50 per cent of the annual production of iron-ore mines in Quebec-Labrador now is assured. Production Minister Howe said last night in the Commons.

Six steel companies in the United States have contracted to take approximately 50 per cent of the estimated annual production 20,000,000 tons of iron ore. The remaining 50 per cent will be available for sale on markets of the world and Canadian mills will probably use a good part of it.

Mr. Howe spoke during clause-by-clause study of legislation to establish a crown company to construct the St. Lawrence seaway with or without United States co-operation.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver—Quandra) had asked what percentage of the iron ore would go to the United States.

Mr. Howe said it was difficult to answer because different types of steel required different types of ore. At present, ore mined in the Great Lakes area was put into a pool from which companies in Canada and the United States withdrew their needs.

Canada was not self-sufficient in ore. The steel mills used more than was mined here.

He reiterated that Canadian steel mills now have underway a program for 33 1/3 increase in production facilities.

Move in 1954

Transport Minister Chevrier said iron ore is not expected to start moving out of Quebec-Labrador until 1954. The seaway will not be built at that time. As a result some of the ore will be shipped to Atlantic ports and some will move to St. Lawrence points for shipment by rail to the Great Lakes area.

Mr. Chevrier also replied to opposition criticism that the government, through the building of the seaway, would allow Canada's rich heritage of valuable Labrador-Quebec iron-ore deposits to be shipped to mid-western American steel mills.

The government, he said, yielded to no one in its concern over Canada's natural resources. But in Labrador and Quebec this country would have a surplus of iron ore over and above her maximum requirements "for generations to come."

The position was the same as that of wheat and base metals. Canada used what she could and exported the surplus.

"We will bend every effort," he promised, "to get the maximum advantage for Canada out of our iron-ore deposits."

Sorority Branch Presents Wheel Chair to Hospital Pediatrics Ward

Shortage of Steel Mill Cranes Hurt Expansion Plan

New York, Dec. 12—(CP)—The Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, says today a shortage of steel mill cranes already has hurt the steel expansion program and vitally-needed ingot production has been lost.

Crane manufacturers, the publication says, are hopeful of getting a better rating from the national production authority to permit them to obtain more materials, including steel.

Meanwhile, it continued, "lack of a stripper crane has delayed full utilization of new capacity by a big steel producer. This same producer will lose all or part of the production of four new open hearth furnaces that will be ready to produce next March. The necessary cranes are scheduled for delivery next June—and about six weeks are required for installation. Possible production loss: 400,000 to 600,000 tons of steel."

Steelmaking operations were placed this week at 104 per cent of rated capacity, but the trade weekly says labor and scrap trouble are threatening to curb the record production pace.

AMALGAMATED JAN. 1

Port Colborne, Dec. 12—(CP)—the formal marriage of Port Colborne and Humberstone will take place on Jan. 1, when a ribbon will be cut, keys turned over and the town and village made one. The amalgamation has already been approved by the municipal board.

Pediatrics Ward of Hospital Presented With Wheel Chair By Alpha Lambba Chapter

Transportation problems of the little fellows and girls, patients of the Pediatrics Ward of Belleville General Hospital have been greatly facilitated with the gift of a handsome wheel chair.

The chair, the gift of the Belleville Alpha Lambba Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, was presented to the ward the other day in a simple ceremony by officials of the chapter.

The presentation was made by the chapter president, Mrs. Jack Volkman to Nurse Violet Tompkins, in charge of the ward. Other members of the chapter present were Mrs. William McCutcheon a director, and Mrs. E. E. Follwell, social sponsor.

Many Activities

Nurses Doris Smith and Linda McKee of the Pediatrics Ward staff were also present along with the small but proud patients. These include little Peter Ramsey, "the sweetheart of the ward"; Geraldine Jackson, Sharon Tooley, John McFaul, Phillip De Carlo and John Morton.

The presentation of the wheel chair, which fills a long-needed want of the Pediatrics Ward, is another link in the chain of hospital activities, adopted by the chapter in its capacity as junior women's auxiliary.

For some time now the chapter has operated a free lending library for all hospital patients under the supervision of Mrs. John Lennox. On Tuesday and Friday evenings members of the chapter operate the library from seven to nine o'clock visiting the various wards and seeing to it that the reading needs of patients are looked after,

In addition, the chapter maintains a "Samaritan Cupboard". This provides layettes and other necessities of babies for indigent patients. Members make nightgowns, do necessary sewing and the many other activities necessary in connection with the maintenance of the cupboard.

FINAL ORE CARGOES

Cleveland, Dec. 12 —(AP)—Two Pittsburgh steamship company vessels churned across Lake Superior last night with the final iron ore cargoes of the biggest peacetime ore-shipping season in history.

The D. M. Clemson and the Thomas F. Lynch are due to lock through the Soo Wednesday and Friday will unload 22,000 tons of ore at Lake Conneaut, O.

The Lake Superior Iron Ore Association reported yesterday that ore carriers this season brought 89,069,817 gross tons down the lakes. Last season 78,205,592 tons of ore were moved.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Hamilton, Dec. 12—(CP)— A charge of manslaughter yesterday was laid against Jean Robinson, 18, in connection with the discovery of the body of an infant boy in a a box of garbage in a vacant lot. She appeared in court Monday on a charge of neglect of a child and concealment of birth and was remanded on $2,000 bail.

Pensions Changes Topped Ottawa's Legislation in 1951; Next Year Health Insurance

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

Ottawa, Dec. 12. (CP)—Parliament made major changes in Canada's old-age security program in 1951 and set its sights on a 1952 study of a national health-insurance plan.

At spring and fall sessions, old-age security measures highlighted the legislative program.

In the spring, the government obtained authority to share on a 50-50 basis with the provinces the cost of $40-a-month pensions to needy persons between 65 and 70. The payments will start in January in those provinces which have concluded agreements with the federal government. An estimated 145,000 Canadians will be eligible.

In the fall, parliament approved payment of $40-a-month pensions to Canadians 70 and over, regardless of means, provided they have lived in Canada for at least 20 years. These pensions, with payments to start in January, will be administered solely by the federal government and will be financed through special, earmarked taxes. About 700,000 Canadians will be covered.

Formula Proposed

The new acts replaced legislation under which pensions of $40 a month were paid to needy persons 70 and over who had lived in Canada for at least 20 years. The federal government paid 75 per cent of the cost and the provinces the remainder.

Expected to cost about $400,000,000 a year, the new pensions for all 70 and over will be financed under what has become known as the "2-2-2" formula. It will consist of a two-per-cent levey on personal incomes, a two-per-cent tax on corporation profits and a two-per-cent sales tax.

Contributions through personal income tax will be limited to $60 a year. No increase was made in the existing sales tax of 10 per cent. The pension act simply earmarked one-fifth of the sales tax for pension fund purposes.

Improvements also were made in pensions for the blind.

To Study Insurance

Demands were made for a national health-insurance plan to round out the federal government's social security program. Health Minister Martin promised to establish a committee at the 1952 session to study national health insurance. But before any national plan can be introduced in Canada, the unanimous consent of the provinces will have to be obtained.

Other legislation covered such things as military commitments abroad, construction of the St. Lawrence seaway, equalization of freight rates across the country, financial assistance to the publicly-owned CBC, aid to universities, and amendments to the Criminal Code, the Canadian Citizenship Act, and the Indian Act.

Parliament approved the dispatch of an army brigade to serve under Gen. Eisenhower in Europe. Provision was made to extend to Canada's brigade in Korea the benefits granted to veterans after the Second World War.

The seaway legislation marked a concrete step by Canada to undertake the multi-million project without assistance of the United States. However, the door was left open for the United States to join in the project before the work actually starts.

Protracted Drive

The freight-rate legislation was based on recommendations of the Royal Commission on Transportation which studied Canada's transportation problems for two years. The drive to equalize rates is expected to take years.

The government, acting on a recommendation of the Massey Commission on Arts and Science, decided to provide an annual parliamentary grant of $6,250,000 to the CBC for five years. It also voted $7,000,000 in aid to Canadian universities.

The Criminal Code was amended to tighten laws covering drunken driving, sex perverts and bookmakers. The Canadian Citizenship Act was amended to prevent retention of Canadian Citizenship by persons who have renounced allegiance or shown by their conduct that they are not loyal to Canada.

CAMPBELLFORD

H&S. Assoc. Presents Christmas Concert

Campbellford — The annual Christmas concert of the Campbellford Home and School Association was held in the high school auditorium here on Wednesday and played to a packed house. Santa Claus was on hand at 7:30 to greet the children, a large number of whom were present.

Mr. T. B. Rout, local high school teacher from New Zealand, acted as master of ceremonies and kept the program moving at a lively pace. Mrs. Lorne Watson and Mrs. Don Rutherford were pianists for the evening.

Carol singing was the highlight of the evening, with the audience taking part in singing many of the old favorites. A group of carol singers also kept the audience entertained with their group singing.

Flag Drill

Pupils from the public school put on a patrotic flag drill and boys from the high school gave a display of gymnastics and tumbling.

Miss Betty Redner gave an interesting reading on how the Christmas tree originated. The first Christmas tree was a gift from Prince Albert to Queen Victoria on the Christmas after their mariage. In Germany the Christmas tree is used extensively. An old legend has it that the tree is supposed to blossom each Christmas day in honor of the Christ Child, and the rich and poor alike decorate their homes with the trees. The trees were decorated with all manner of ornaments, developing finally into the tinsel and colored lights and balls used in modern times.

Two solos and a tap dance routine were presented by Gaele Meyers. These were the "Skater's Waltz" and "Winter Wonderland." Both numbers were well received by the audience.

The group enjoyed a square dance, called by Ross Jewell and accompanied by Arthur Petherick.

A trio of carollers, consisting of Mrs. C. A. Bright, Mrs. Hector MacMillan and Mrs. W. C. Tatham, presented a number of carols that delighted the audience. Jill MacMillan also gave a musical recitation, "The Night Before Christmas."

Mrs. H. S. Staples rendered a solo, "Calm Neath the Sky."

Comedy Skit

To round off the evening, a comedy skit was presented entitled, "And the Lamp Went Out." The heroine of this was Betty Peake. Mrs. John McKibbin was her mother and Francis Frederick was the capable hero. Harry Bennett was the villain while the affair was narrated by Vera Newman, with sound effects by Helen Robertson. This skit was well received by the audience.

At the close of the evening, Mrs. Newman thanked the program conveners, Mrs. Hector MacMillan and Mrs. Ross Jewell for the delightful program they had arranged. She also thanked the firm of Garneau and Dunsmoor for loaning a sound system and installing it for the evening. The firm also supplied recordings.

It is hoped to continue classes in sewing, nursing and other work in the coming year. These were well attended last year, and some of those who took the nursing course helped out occasionally at the Campbellford hospital. Plans for these new classes will be discussed at the January meeting. A class in square dancing may also be added to the 1952 season activities, this by request of a number of the members.

TWEED

Legion Decides To Operate Arena

Tweed — At a meeting of the Tweed Branch of the Canadian Legion it was decided to operate the Tweed arena this season. A committee headed by Jack Winfield was appointed to investigate the advisability of such an undertaking. The committee felt that no decision could be reached until something definite was known regarding the operation of a senior hockey team in Tweed this winter.

But after much discussion it was finally decided to operate the arena. It is hoped the weather will turn cold enough soon to start making ice, as the Legion is anxious to have activities start as soon as possible.

Committee Formed

A management committee was formed of the following: Thomas Beatty, chairman; Jack Winfield, Terrance Rashotte, Oscar Thurston and Harvey Spencer. This committee will have full control of the arena, but will not operate the hockey team.

At a meeting held in Tamworth, Sunday, December 2nd., it was decided to operate the Hastings Addington hockey league again this season with the following teams entering the league, Tamworth, Tweed, Madoc and Bancroft. Art Coyle and Len Taylor attended the meeting as delegates from Tweed.

Personals

Among those attending the annual meeting of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, last week, were S. R. Curry and Len Taylor, Tweed. Mr. Taylor represented the Canadian Legion which will sponsor boys' hockey in Tweed this winter. Mr.Curry was elected to the 7-man executive of the association.

Mr. S. A. McCarey owner and manager of Tweed Creamery, attended the annual convention of Ontario creamery operators in Toronto during the past week.

Mrs. R. L. McGowan has returned to her home in Ottawa after visiting for a few days with Mrs. John McGowan.

Little Beverly McCulloch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCulloch, is convalescing at her home after undergoing a tonsillectomy in Belleville General Hospital last week.

Mr. Glenn Connor, of Toronto, was a weekend guest with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Connor.

ON WAY TO LOCKS

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 1[illegible] — (CP) — Some 20 Canadian and four United States ships carrying their last grain cargoes of the season were reported Mon. night to be on their way to the Soo lock en route to lower lake ports. Four or five more Canadian boats are racing time to head up through the locks here, reach Fort William and depart again with a load of grain before the shipping season ends.

MADOC

Madoc—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wellington, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Wellington Jr., of New York were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. West recently.

Mrs. C. F. Aylesworth leaves this week to spend the winter with her sister Mrs. Cluffe in Ottawa.

O.E.S. members of Madoc Chapter No. 148 attending the Marmora Chapter O.E.S. No. 267 on Saturday afternoon and evening were Mr. and Mrs. Newel Broad, Mrs. Esie Franks, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Nayler, Mrs. Alma Kernahan, Mrs. Jesse Reed, Mrs. Mary Barton, Mrs. Margaret Derry, Mrs. Margaret Whytock, Mrs. Bertha Love, Mrs. Minnie Miller, Mrs. Grace Tumelty, Mrs. Sadie Miller, Mrs.; Helena Whytock.

Mr. W. H. Sayers, of Campbellford, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton Sayers and family of Campbellford, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods.

MARMORA

Mrs. Ed. Reilly and daughter, Maureen of New York City returned home on Monday after an extended visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cook.

Miss Jean Cook of Codrington spent the weekend at her home here.

Mr. Earl Leonard of Peterborough spent the weekend at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Neath and daughters Shirley and Sandra spent last week in Toronto.

Mrs. Russell Long has been visiting relatives in Toronto.

A miscellaneous shower was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Borden Bell (nee Helen Nayler) in the Town Hall on Friday evening. A large number of friends were in attendance. Dancing was enjoyed and the newlyweds received many useful and attractive gifts.

David Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Reynolds underwent an operation in Belleville General Hospital on Sunday.

BLOOMFIELD

Bloomfield—A splendid audience enjoyed the address in the United Church on Sunday evening given by Dr. S. Gilchrist, a missionary home on furlough from Angola, Africa. Colored fims were shown of the country, the people and of various aspects of the missionary work being carried on there.

Mr. Gerald Spencer, of Brampton, spent the weekend with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Spencer and on Sunday all attended the funeral of little Jacqueline Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Spencer in Trenton.

ASK TAMBLYN'S

CONFUSED BRIDE: "I have never cooked a turkey. Could you give me simple instructions in your column? My turkey will arrive a few days before Christmas. Should it be cleaned before storing in the refrigerator? What is a good recipe for stuffing? When should it be stuffed?"

Clean your turkey before storing it in the refrigerator; stuff it the night before Christmas. For a 10-12 pound turkey (drawn weight) use the following stuffing. Cook ⅓ cup onion in 1 cup hot fat till tender. Add 2½ teaspoons salt, dash of pepper, 4½ quarts day old bread (about 10 cups), ⅓ cup finely chopped celery, 1½ teaspoons poultry dressing, 1½ teaspoons ginger (this will prevent dressing from repeating). Blend well. Stuff crop and body of turkey lightly then sew or skewer openings. Roll the turkey in brown paper oiled on inside, leaving ends open. Place breast up on rack in open roasting pan. Bake in a 300 deg. F. oven allowing 20 minutes to the pound. Do not add water, turn or baste bird.

WORRIED BEST MAN: "My boy friend has to be best man at his friend's wedding in December. He knows all the duties he has to perform but when it comes to a speech he is absolutely speechless. Will you please tell him what to say when replying to the groom's toast to the bridesmaids?"

Easy enough for any best man to answer a toast to the bridesmaids for on that great day they all look so charming. And that essentially is all he needs to say. "In replying to the toast to the bridesmaids I count myself a lucky man. Here am I, unmarried but not apt to stay in that state for any length of time after gazing on this feast of pulchritude, this bevy of beauties. As a matter of fact just looking at them has befuddled me so completely that all I want to do is sit down among them. So on behalf of the bridesmaids, thank you."

Glen Roys Trim RCAF Flyers 44-21 For Second Straight Basketball Win

By DON DOLAN

The Glen Roy A. C. basketball team moved into a tie for first place in the Bay of Quinte Senior League last night by trouncing the Trenton R. C. A. F. Flyers 44-21 on the latter's home court.

Last evening's encounter, which did not produce the best basketball that has ever been seen, was marred by a couple of injuries, both serious. In the pre-game warmup, Doug Soule, the Glens ace sniper to date, turned his ankle and was unable to see much action in the game. A most serious and unfortunate injury to "Red" Hudson of the Flyers occurred early in the second half. The redhead suffered a badly dislocated knee and had to leave the playing floor on a stretcher.

The locals had absolutely no trouble in coasting to their victory. They were never behind nor was their lead ever threatened. At quarter time, Belleville held an 11-2 lead, at the half it was Glen Roy 24, R. C. A. F. 8 and as the third quarter ended the Glens had increased their lead to 32-14.

Batchelor Stars

It was centre night at the R. C. A. F. gym last night because the centre players did most of the scoring. John Batchelor, the number one pivot man for the Glen Roy team came up with a dazzling two way performance in leading his team to victory. John dumped in fourteen points and played his usual brilliant defensive game. Big Ed McClay, the second string centre was next high point getter for the winners. McClay, a towering 6 foot, 5 inch boy, scored eleven points and was a tremendous asset to his team because of the way he grabbed rebounds from both baskets. Bill Muirhead was next in line for scoring honors with a five point contribution.

The centre for the Flyers, O'Hara, tied with teammate Dube for leading scorer recognition. Each player hooped six points.

Both teams were very poor on foul shots. The Glen Roy quintet made only 2 of 14 tries while the losers hit 5 times out of 19 tries from the charity stripe.

This marks the final game of the regular schedule, before the new year. However, the Glen Roy management has been negotiating with some of the top teams in the province and it is hoped that some exhibition games will be forthcoming in the very near future.

Lineups::

Glen Roy A. C., 44—Hayman 4, Muirhead 5, Summers 4, Soule 2, Batchelor 14, McClay 11, Ketcheson 2, Garrow, Watson, Lockyer 2.

Trenton Flyers, 21—Watson 2, O'Hara 6, Stadel, Dube 6, Campbell 4, Horne 2, Harriss, Evans, Craig 1, Oliver, Kennedy, Hudson.

Officials — Don Ross, Bill Wright.

Areas Win Opener In Northern Loop

Area G defeated Machine Shop by a score of 6 to 3 in the opening game of the Northern Electric Inter-department hockey league at the Memorial Arena last night.

Doug Bone led the winners, scoring three goals and assisting on another. Jones netted a pair and drew one assist while Moore tallied the other counter. Cornell also drew an assist.

Lupinette fired all three scores for the Machine Shop, picking up one in each period.

Area G: Carr, LeClair, Thornton, Murphy, Bone, Cornell, Moore, Jones.

Machine Shop: Weeks, Clark, McCoy, Rosetti, Lupinette, Wetherall, Arnold, Skinkle, Guthrie, MacDonald, Andrews and Clark.

Referees: Jones and Barrett.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

BILL EZINICKI of Boston who scored two goals — including the clincher — and assisted in another as the Bruins downed New York Rangers 4-2.

Guays' Bowlers Set New Record

What is believed to be a seasonal record for the district if not Central Ontario was established by the Trenton Guays bowling entry in the Central Ontario Bowling League when it racked up an aggregate score of 3997.

The top score was made in a regular league session against the Trenton Bowl-O-Drome team which rolled an imposing 3402. In the other games bracket Belleville Dromes, paced by Cee Hardwick with an 844, took five points from Belleville Recreation with a fine 3400. The Rec's had a 3152. Guay's took seven points in their win.

High scorer was Trenton Guays' C. Niddery with an 868 (317). Other good counts were, C. Hardwick 844 (333), E. Moore 798 (300), C, Tyler 709; H. Ormshaw 780, G. Myles 675, E. Whitney 685, Walter Moore 688, "Toots" Holway 703, Joe Legault 711 (322)

Guay's record aggregate was made up of game scores of 1436, also believed to be a record; 1295 and 1266.

AMONG KEY PLAYERS IN TRADE BETWEEN REDS, PHILLIES

ANDY SEMINICK

DICK SISLER

Among key figures in seven-man swap which Cincinnati Reds and Philadelphia Phillies transacted in New York, where managers Luke Sewell of Reds and Eddie Sawyer of Phillies are attending Major league ball meeting, were Dick Sisler and Andy Seminick. Sisler, son of former big leaguer George Sisler, slumped to .287 last season and so spent considerable time on the bench. It was in marked contrast to his 1950 showing when his homer on the last day of the season helped the Phils win the National league flag. As in most deals, each side said it got what it wanted. With Reds getting four for three, Sewell was particularly pleased by addition of Seminick to team, who he thought "will be the answer to our catching prayers."—Central Press Canadian Photos.

Providence Reds Nip Mohawks 3-2

(By The Associated Press)

The Cincinnati Mohawks aren't making any headway in their quest to reach second place in the western division of the American Hockey League. The Mohawks absorbed their fourth straight defeat last night as the Providence Reds edged them, 3-2, in the only game played.

The setback dropped Cincinnati farther back into fourth place. The Mohawks trail the third place Cleveland Barons by three points and are six points behind the St. Louis Flyers in second.

Ray Powell's first period goal gave Providence a lead that stood up throughout the game. The Reds retained their advantage with a pair of second period tallies. Barry Sullivan assisted on all three Providence goals.

Boyce's Trim Bonn's 7-4 In Owl League Game

Led by Cook and Cannon with two goals each, Boyce's Garage defeated Bonn Motors 7-4 in a scheduled Owl League game in Memorial Arena last night.

Boyce's took over in the first period scoring four goals to Bonn's one. The teams battled evenly in the second and final period each scoring three times in a fast hard-fought game.

Cook and Cannon with two each and Lucas, Burkholder and Dodson were the winners sharpshooters with Coulter, Farmer, Hamilton and Halo hitting the hemp for the losers.

Trudeau's and Weston's play tonight in another Owl League game. Westons lead the league with an undefeated record.

KILLED IN STORM

Napanee, Ont., Dec. 12 (CP)—Edna Cranston, a 32-year-old department store clerk, was killed last night in an automobile accident six miles east of here during a snowstorm. Police said an automobile driven by her uncle, John Craven skidded out of control into the path of a transport truck operated by Harry Norton, of Toronto.

NEW DEPUTY SECURED

Toronto, Dec. 12—Toronto's new deputy medical officer of health probably will be Dr. O. Boyd, 46, of Kingston, Ont., it was learned yesterday.

The appointment of Dr. Boyd, now M.O.H. at Kingston, was approved informally by civic authorities and will be recommended to board of control later.

Dr. Boyd will replace Dr. L. A. Pequegnat, who became medical officer of health here when Dr. Gordon Jackson died this summer.

Joe DiMaggio, Famous 'Yankee Clipper' Hangs Up Glove, Spikes For Good

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

CLOSE ONE

It could be that the junior Hawklets shed their style and dash with their Icelane belligerence. Last night in that tilt with the Peterborough Triple Links they looked like anything but a good junior "B" team, but their hoosegow record was the best hung up this season. They emerged on the long end of a 6-5 score to rack up their fifth victory and retain the group leadership but they can give Old Lady Luck a few assists on that one, and another assist to Hector Lalonde for a picture goal that proved the victory margin.

It is doubtful if any of the fans present rushed home to write the folks back in Punkin Centre about the game. Both squads played sporadic hockey and for two periods neither team could get untracked. The Hawks passing was "passing" but not clicking. The Links definitely had a better style of team play and the Hawks can chalk that victory up to not a little luck. True they missed several close-in chances but the Links snipers hit the goalposts three times with Barclay out of position.

Both squads played the puck rather than the man and consequently Referees Don Barrett and Vern Geyer had a comparatively easy time with the whistles. It was a see-saw game at that, with first the Hawks taking the lead and the Links tying it up. As was said before Hector Lalonde's picture goal when he dipsy-doodled through the hard-hitting Petes defence and hoisted a shoulder-high angle shot past Wasson, was the feature of a somewhat lacklustre pastime. Billy Strahan and George Jacklin came through with a production performance but the remainder outside of Barclay were just hockey players.

The Hawklets clung to their slim one-point lead in the group race since the Lindsay Kinsmen defeated the Kingston Vics 7-2 in Lindsay to tighten their grip on the second slot.

TWO IN A ROW!

Apparently striking their stride Bill Spafford's Glen Roys basketball squad won their second straight victory in the Bay of Quinte senior basketball loop last night with a 44-21 win over the Trenton RCAF Flyers. The victory puts the Glens in second place in the league standing behind the Peterborough Marines. The Spafford crew came up with a fine exhibition and were never headed once they grabbed an early-game lead. They do not play again until the New Year, but hope to get some exhibition games to keep themselves in shape.

QUITE A BREEZE!

While perhaps it is not good newspaper ethics to continue to refer to the suspension of the Kingston Nylons, we can't help commenting on the fact that the team now representing Roddenville is just as effective if not quite as polished as the laddybucks now doing their puckchasing from the sidelines.

While the impact of the news of the suspension left Kingston hockey authorities thunderstruck, the immediate reaction was "What shall we do for a team this season?" Application was made to the OHA for a flock of imports, well over the number laid down in the OHA bible, for, the authorities thought, that was the only way they could gather a squad which would be strong enough for senior "B" competition. In addition they went afield, not too far, perhaps but within more or less shooting distance.

The word got around that the gallant Kingston "pick-up" team would stagger along with what it could gather come hell-or-high-water. So far they've staggered rather well, so well, in fact that if they regain an even keel and start walking, the trail ahead will be extremely tough for the Petes, Eagles and Hawks.

Not only has the newly-formed squad, tabbed the S. and A.'s since the Nylon Company refused to have its name associated with the squad in an advertising capacity, mushroomed forth into an extremely potent aggregation, but it would seem that the suspension of the 1950 squad could come under the heading of "It's an ill wind . . ." etc.

At least some kind of a hockey breeze has blown a fairly powerful crew plumb into the laps of the Kingston authorities and Coach Stan Scrutton, Wally Elmer et al of the Essanays, are now wearing broad smiles. For haven't their "pickup" puckists knocked the slats from under every other team in the group, with their best performance being the pin-feathering of the Peterborough Eagles Monday night in their own aerie.

They started off with the two-bucks-and-a-kick style that had their early season foemen the Peterborough Eagles and the Belleville Hawks in a hockey tizzy. Twas a trifle uncouth perhaps but very effective. In fact the Essanays had the Eagles feathers stretched to the limit before they bowed 7-5 in Peterborough in their group debut. Came the Hawks to Kingston and the Birds of the Moira, who had inflicted a crushing 11-3 defeat on the proud Petes in their curtain-raiser, were disorganized, nearly demoralized and shaken by the rushing shinny-like tactics of this new Kingston squad. In fact they were a pair of goals down with four or five minutes to go before they blazed a sudden three-goal offensive that pulled the pastime out of the fire.

Since then the Kingston squad has reached high and wide They have improved with every game and with the acquisition of two or three seasoned players, are making matters extremely warm for the rest of the group. They have won three of their last four starts and have given notice, but plenty, that they are a force to be reckoned with. At the moment they are tied for top perch of the group ladder.

Calgary Stamps Trim Seattle

(By The Canadian Press)

Second place Seattle Ironmen were trounced 7-3 last night by the cellar - dwelling Calgary Stampeders of the Pacific Coast Hockey League. It was the second straight victory for Calgary over the Ironmen.

Cy Thomas, Bob Goodacre, Bill Moe, George Agar, Frank Ashworth, Jim Bedard and Archi Scott were the goal - getters. Seattle scorers were George Homenuke, Dan Sprout and Bill Richardson.

The other P.C.H.L. contest, between Vancouver Canucks and Victoria Cougars, was a 2-2 tie. The deadlock lifted Canucks into sole possession of sixth place, one point up on the idle Edmonton Flyers. Canuck scorers were Vic Lofvendahl and Ray Manson, while Jack McIntyre and Andy Hebenton counted for Cougars.

'Played Last Game of Ball' Says Veteran Baseball Star, Expected to Take TV Position

New York, Dec. 12. (AP)—Joe DiMaggio, veteran New York Yankee outfielder, has announced he would not play baseball again.

He gave no immediate indication as to his plans for the future. It had been expected that the outfielder, who collected $704,323 during 13 years playing with the club, would take the post of TV commentator of the Yankees' home baseball games.

DiMaggio handed the following mimeographed statement to newspaper men:

"I told you fellows last spring I thought this would be my last year. I only wish I could have had a better year, but even if I had hit .350 this would have been the last year for me.

Had Share of Injuries

"You all know I have had more than my share of physical injuries and setbacks during my career. In recent years these have been much too frequent to laugh off. When baseball no longer is fun, it is no longer a game.

"And so, I've played my last game of ball."

DiMaggio, one of the greatest bargains in baseball history came to the Yankees from San Francisco for $25,000 in cash and five players.

A knee injury while playing on the coast, not only had reduced DiMaggio's value in the open market by something like a $100,000, but had scared 15 big league clubs away from him. That was in 1936.

What DiMaggio did in the next 16 years is history. When he batted .263 last season, it marked only the second time in 13 active years with the Yankees that DiMag dipped below .300.

DiMaggio holds numerous batting and fielding records but the one he prizes the most is the consecutive game hitting record of 56 he set in 1941. No other player ever has come close to that mark. Joe won the American League batting title twice, in 1939-40, led the circuit in homers in 1937 and '48, runs batted in in 1941 and '48.

Played Ten World Series

A graceful, flawless fielder, he topped all outfielders in percentage in 1947 and consistently led the flychasers in putouts and assists. Named to the All-star team virtually every year, Joe won the coveted most valuable player award three times, in 1939, '41 and '47. He holds the record for his playing in 10 world series and on nine world champions.

DiMaggio enjoyed his most productive year in 1937 when he batted .346, poled 46 homers, drove in 167 runs and scored 151 others, but the one year he is proudest of is 1949. That was the year he was sidelined for half the campaign with a pair of throbbing heels.

Not many believed that DiMaggio, then nearing 35, would ever play again. But Joe returned to the lineup on June 30 and thrilled the baseball world by personally accounting for three straight Yankee victories over the Red Sox in Boston with four mighty home runs. He went on to compile a .346 batting mark in 76 games and help the Yankees win the first of three straight pennants.

Two-Year Term For Stanky As Cards' Manager

St. Louis, Dec. 12—(AP)—Edward Raymond Stanky steps gingerly into his new role as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals today on his own team?

It's definite, says the former New York Giants second baseman, that he will serve as a playing manager. However, the "ifs, buts and maybes" begin to pile up when he's asked where he will insert himself in the Redbird line-up.

After signing a two-year contract with owner Fred Saigh around supper time yesterday, Stanky says he isn't ready to make that decision yet. Or any others for that matter.

The deal that brought Stanky to the Cardinals to replace, the ousted Marty Marion as manager has been kicked around for a few months now. Yet it took almost 3 hours of actual conference between Eddie and Saigh to agree to terms.

Saigh held out for a one-year term, two years at the maximum. Eddie originally wanted a three-year contract.

For giving up their peppery second baseman, the National League pennant-winners received veteran pitcher Max Lanier and outfielder Chuck Diering from the Cards.

As for the price tab Saigh placed on Stanky's services, it's anybody's guess. But the baseball men who say they know about such things place it at about $32,500 a year.

Ezzard Charles 1-3 Favorite Over Joey Maxim

San Francisco, Dec. 12—(AP)—Ezzard Charles, who confidently expects to regain the heavyweight crown next year, is a 1-to-3 favorite to defeat light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim in a 12 round fight tonight.

The charity exhibition, in the Cow Palace, will be televised, excluding this area, and broadcast at 10 p.m. EST.

It will be the fifth meeting of the pair. Charles won all four previous bouts by decision, including a 15-round defence of his title before Jersey Joe Walcott knocked him out this year.

Both fighters are at peak condition. Maxim, who trained at nearby Santa Rosa, looked impressive against heavier sparemates. He is a master boxer and lacks only a real kayo punch to become a menace in the heavyweight ranks.

Charles, who drilled here before capacity gymnasium crowds, is a good boxer, but has discarded this style in favor of a two fisted attack.

He changed his ring tactics in his first match after losing the title to Walcott and scored an 11th-round knockout over burly Rex Layne of Utah. Layne had defeated Walcott before Jersey Joe won the crown.

Maxim recently successfully defended his 175-pound crown against Irish Bob Murphy. If he can hang up a decisive win tonight he is expected to start campaigning in the heavyweight division.

Charles is expected to scale around 188 pounds and Maxim 177.

The fight is expected to gross about $100,000 from a near capacity crowd of 15,000. TV rights will add another $25,000.

Charles will get 35 per cent of the net and Maxim 27½ per cent.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Nels Stewart, one of hockey's greatest centres, ended a brief retirement 12 years ago tonight by scoring a goal for New York Americans against Chicago Black Hawks 15 seconds after stepping on the ice. It was his 318th N.H.L. goal, and before retiring in 1940 he had set the league record of 323 goals, a mark now within reaching distance of Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens.

Biltmores Edge Dutchies 2-1; Regain Top Slot

(By The Canadian Press)

Those pesky Guelph Biltmores aren't content with a back seat in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race. They won't even settle for second place.

Last night the New York Ranger farmhands delighted their home town fans by edging fifth-place Kitchener Greenshirts 2-1 to move back into a tie with Toronto Marlboros atop the ten-team standings. The Marlies however, still have two games in hand.

In senior OHA play, Hamilton Tigers continued their fight to get back into the thick of things with a thrilling 3-2 victory in overtime against Sarnia Sailors. The win moved Hamilton back into second place, a single point ahead of the idle Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Up north, the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds continued their winning ways in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A race with a 7-4 win over North Bay Black Hawks.

The victory shot the league-leading Greyhounds eight points up on second-place Sudbury Miners while the loss was North Bay's tenth in 13 NOHA outings.

At Guelph it was Ron Murphy and Andy Bathgate who tallied in the first period to give the Bilts their winning edge. Orv Tessier spoiled Guelph goalie Doug Lessor's shutout in the dying minutes of the final session for Kitchener's lone goal.

The victory may have been a costly one for the Bilts however. Andy Bathgate, one of the club's star forwards, aggravated an old knee injury in the second period and had to be helped from the ice. He failed to return.

Dobbs Seeks College Ivory For Sasky Riders

Montreal, Dec. 12. (CP)—Glenn Dobbs, the Texan footballer with Saskatchewan Rough Riders, is riding herd on eastern campuses.

Dobbs, who huddled with his friend Coach Vic Obeck of McGill, let it be known today he is interested in such players as George Bossy, Dawson Tilley, Gene Robillard and Bob MacLellan of the Redmen. They will graduate this term.

"When I leave here I plan to move on to Queens at Kingston," said Dobbs. "Maybe I'll find something there too."

Dobbs said he will also have a chat with some coaches of the Quebec Rugby Football Union, in hope of getting a line on some top-grade intermediate material.

Dobbs is primarily interested in getting a "a good two-way back—a fellow who can play the offence as well as the defence, or vice-versa if you like".

"He wants good Canadian players to give his club depth.

"That's what we lacked in the Grey Cup final against Ottawa when injuries hit us. We had to improvise and use left end at right and so on. As a result our entire play patterns had to be readjusted at the last moment."

Ezinicki's Tee Shots Deadly, Sinks Two Aces for Boston As Bruins Trim Rangers 4-2

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Bill Ezinicki, the Winnipeg strong boy whose main claim to fame are his bulging muscles, a bad-man reputation on the ice and a tendency the last couple of years to prolong his golfing into the National Hockey League season, emerged today as something of a deadeye sharpshooter.

Ezzie showed last night he could shoot as well as drive when Boston Bruins defeated New York Rangers 4-2 before a slim crowd of 5,494 at Boston. He scored two goals and was credited with an assist, almost equalling the two-goals-two-assists record he had compiled in 14 previous games this season.

What's more, Bill was a perfect gentleman. He didn't draw a penalty.

His first goal, scored midway through the second period, wiped out a 2-1 Ranger lead and his second, at 8.22 of the final stanza, broke the deadlock.

Golf Training Good

Ezinicki, one of the few N. H. L. players who can be spotted by fans without consulting the numbers on the program, added to his hockey reputation the last two seasons by showing an early preference for golf.

Last year, he was found on a Winnipeg golf course while Toronto Maple Leafs were training and when he did report he was shuffled off to Pittsburgh, the Leafs' American Hockey League farm club. After 13 games he was traded to Boston.

He pulled the same stunt this year. The Bruins had already started N. H. L. season while Ezzie confined his shooting to golf. He eventually figured perhaps that the winter golf circuit was too tough and he came to terms with the Bruin management.

Right up there with Ezinicki were captain Milt Schmidt and Ed Sandford, playing left wing for the first time in his career. This trio looked after all the Boston scoring.

Schmidt got the first Boston goal on assists from Ezinicki and Bill Quackenbush. New York went ahead on goals by Wally Hergesheimer and Nick Mickowski in the second period, and Ezinicki, on an assist from Schmidt, tied it up.

Sandford received the assist on Ezinicki's second goal and the new left winger made sure of the victory with only 15 seconds remaining and goalkeeper Chuck Rayner pulled out of the Ranger nets. Schmidt set this one up after he beat Edgar Laprade to a face-off in the Boston end and passed to Sandford.

Neil Colville Western Scout For NY Rangers

New York, Dec. 12 (CP)—Neil Colville, who retired last week as coach of New York Rangers, will be retained by the National Hockey League Club in the capacity of a general overseer of Ranger interests in Western Canada.

Manager Frank Boucher said today Colville will remain on the payroll to "oversee scouting" in the west, look over some of the players in which the Rangers have an interest, and generally act as a "goodwill ambassador".

Colville, replaced as coach by Bill Cook, is still in New York. He plans to leave in a few days for Edmonton and other cities in the west.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Directors of the American Hockey League were unanimous yesterday in favor of giving visiting clubs a share of the game gate receipts but it will be next June before they figure out how to do it. At present, home clubs retain all gate receipts at American League games.

Maurice Podoloff, league president, said after an all-night meeting at Cincinnati that he had been authorized to make a comprehensive study of attendance figures over the last 12 years, analyze them and then report to the league's annual session in June.

Art Chapman, general manager at Buffalo, said he thought television is hurting hockey game attendance.

"Boxing shows through the week and the Sunday night programs are keeping the fans away," he said.

"We are going to try Sunday afternoon games—four of them beginning Dec. 30—to see if we can get more people at the games."

Eddie Shore, one of the all-time hockey greats, said women and children are the answer.

"If management will stress the woman fan angle—get them interested, attendance will increase."

Illinois State Athletic Commission has suspended the trainer of welterweight champion Kid Gavilan a month for "unwarranted exhibition of unsportsman like conduct" after Gavilan's draw with Johnny Bratton here Nov. 28. Raymond Mondito Medina was cited by the commission for cursing referee Bill Doty and threatening to hit him with a water bottle.

Hamilton Thistles yesterday defeated Hamilton Victorias 9-2 to win the Malcolmson Trophy, main award of the two-day bonspiel conducted here by the ladies of the Toronto Curling Club. The trophy, won last year by Mrs. T. S. Doughty of Peterborough was claimed by a rink skipped by Mrs. K. McLaren. She defeated one skipped by Mrs. Gooch of Victorias in the final round to win the trophy.

Sherbrooke Athletics will return to Quebec Provincial Baseball League action in 1953, it was announced last night following a directors' meeting. The club decided to retain its franchise although activities have been suspended for next season because its home stadium was lost in a fire last Sept. 18. Now, with the promise of a concrete structure by 1953, the club will only skip one year.

Montreal Golden Glove champions last night won three of five boxing bouts from a Camp Edwards, Boston, team of the United States Army and Air Force.

Four of the five U.S. battlers are Korean war veterans.

Isaac Sauls, Boston heavyweight, scored a five-round decision over Bob Edgett of Montreal in a slow final bout.

Harness Racing World Records List Changes

Columbus, O., Dec. 12 (AP)—Harness Racing's world record table today listed 46 changes made in 1951, the largest ever made in a single year.

Don R. Millar, vice-president of the United States Trotting Association, announced the new marks.

Changes involved 19 horses and 14 drivers with Star's Pride, a four-year-old trotter, and veteran driver Harr Pownall of Goshen, N.Y., sharing top honors.

Star's Pride, owned by E. Roland Harriman, of Goshen and Lawrence B. Sheppard of Hanover, Pa., cracked seven world standards during the campaign. The two most prominent were a half-mile-track mile in 2.00 3-5 and a 3.06 1-5 clocking for the mile and a half distance.

Ownall led all other drivers by posting 10 records. With 21 world records to his credit, he trails 72-year-old Sep Palin in that category. Palin has 31.

STRIKE OFF A WEEK

London, Ont., Dec. 12. (CP)—Threat of a strike on the city-owned London Street Railway Company is off for at least a week. Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer, Ontario Department of Labor, Monday set Dec. 18 as tentative date for further talks between company and union officials. A dispute over what the union charges is a contract violation has kept the city-owned line on the edge of strike action for a week.

Junior Hawks Eke Out Win Over Peterborough Links 6-5 To Retain Group Leadership

By MAURICE REID

A goal scored by Hector Lalonde with less than five minutes of play remaining in the game proved to be the winner as the Belleville Junior Hawks eked out a 6-5 win over the Peterborough Oddfellows in a see-saw battle at the Memorial Arena last night.

The goal was easily the outstanding one of the night, not only from the point that it won the game, but it featured a masterful bit of stickhandling by Lalonde. He took the puck from centre around one defenceman, outmanoeuvred another defender, and took lots of time to pick up the upper righthand corner of the net with a shot that had Masson beaten all the way.

Only five penalties were served by the two squads and all for minor offences. At no time during the game did it look as though anyone would start a ruckus. Two referees were used to good effect.

The first line of the Hawks, which includes Hec Lalonde, Billy Strahan and George Jacklin was its most effective one. Lalonde and Strahan each added four points to their already sizeable totals while Jacklin garnered an assist.

Peterborough's front line of Robinson, Buckton and Ferguson gave the homesters trouble throughout the entire game, particularly Robinson who also played as the fourth forward on the ice on several occasions. He assisted on three of the visitors goals and hit the goalpost once although not scoring.

The game threatened to become a wide open affair as both teams tallied before three-quarters of a minute had sped by; play levelled off, however, and the only other score was a goal by Houle to give the homesters the lead at the end of the first period.

The Triplelinks bounced back at the beginning of the second on scores by Coyle and Ferguson but a pair of goals by Billy Strahan, his second and third of the night, regained the lead for the local Junior B's. The tying point was the result of a persistent attack with four men up and finally after the second rebound, Billy lifted the puck into the net. A two-man breakaway with one man back netted the other goal as Lalonde drew the defenceman aside and passed to Strahan who made sure of it.

The teams left the ice deadlocked as the result of Heffernan's score from a pile up in front of the Hawk net.

Scores by Lalonde and Hayfield, the latter's a soft lob from the blue-line that was screened all the way in, set the stage for Lalonde to bang in the winning marker.

Robinson, Coyle, Buckton and Armstrong were the stars of the visiting crew. Armstrong, a defenceman, threatened on several occasions with a driving shot from inside the blue line.

Johnny Munroe looked outstanding on defence, playing a heady two-way game and breaking up several rushes that threatened. The whole defence corps appeared to be playing better, cleaner hockey than in previous games.

Annual Meeting of The Canadian Bank of Commerce

"PREPAREDNESS FOR PEACE IS OUR MAIN CONCERN"

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

- The over-riding concern of the Canadian people is preparedness for peace.
- Our present task is to mesh a preparedness program with a civilian economy in such a manner that our resources are efficiently and effectively utilized, and waste is minimized.
- Canadian agriculture is producing at a very high level with a smaller working force.
- A continuing review of inventory position will be a necessary policy for every business in the months ahead.
- Indirect methods of controlling inflation—such as monetary and credit restrictions, together with some restrictions on capital expansion and taxation measures—though lacking in glamour—are sounder in an economy neither at peace nor at war, than price and wage controls, rationing and subsidies.
- Monetary and fiscal measures can be made stringent enough to halt inflation abruptly but only at the cost of serious disturbance and for this reason care—not dramatic action—should be the watchword.
- Stability, not rigidity, in our economic affairs is a primary objective and its achievement is as much a personal as a governmental responsibility.

Stanley M. Wedd, President, addressing the Annual Meeting of The Canadian Bank of Commerce in Toronto, said in part:

Events of the past year are gradually bringing about a change in the pattern of the Canadian economy, and our present over-riding concern, if it could be expressed in a few words, is preparedness for peace.

Our present task is to mesh a preparedness program with a civilian economy in such a manner that our resources are efficiently and effectively utilized, that waste whether in business or government, is minimized, and that in our free-market society we develop our productive potentialities.

General Economic Conditions

Indicating the over-all health of the economy, the Gross National Product—the value in current dollars of goods and services produced—shows a sizable gain over preceding years. The estimate for 1951 is $21,000 millions, compared with $17,800 millions in 1950 and $11,800 millions in 1945. While the rising cost of imports of essential materials, as well as our domestic inflationary pressures, is reflected in the estimate, there is, nevertheless, an underlying hard core of industrial progress which is heartening since the need for military preparedness again faces our economy.

Since the end of open warfare in 1945 the continued investment of government and business has been over 20 per cent of the National Income each year. This year investment by all agencies is now estimated at some $4,500 millions, indicating a trend of continued expansion and a relatively high rate of capital formation.

It is evident that expenditures of all governing bodies have been rising at an unprecedented rate and, while the present tax revenues are exceeding anticipated returns to the point where surpluses are being recorded, nevertheless, and particularly with mounting defence requirements ahead of us, it is a time for the exercise of every economy possible.

Agriculture

Canadian agriculture is producing at a very high level with a considerably smaller working force and not much more acreage under cultivation than in pre-war times. This is a fact full of meaning in view of the manpower that has been released for industrial and defence production. The continued strength in agriculture is due in a large measure to the family-size farm and the great percentage of family ownership. Whether its products go into the export trade or into domestic consumption, agriculture will undoubtedly continue to be basic to our economy.

Manufacturing

On the whole, the volume of industrial production has been exceeding the aggregate level established during 1950. However, an uneven industrial record during the past year bears out the shift in emphasis brought about by world political conditions and by the decisions of Government in respect to defence expenditures. Shortages of raw materials or components, credit restrictions imposed by the Government, and the postponable nature of some demands have all influenced consumption and production in some branches of manufacturing. There are at present a number of such factors and it is therefore difficult to suggest a common underlying cause of the variations which are now appearing. One thing is obvious, however, and that is that a continuing review of inventory position will be necessary business policy for the months ahead.

Resource Development

There has been much solid accomplishment in resource development during the past year. While it reaches into practically every field, it is perhaps best exemplified in the preparations for working the iron ore deposits in the Ungava district and further development at the Steep Rock Mines and the Michipicoten area in Ontario; in the oil and natural gas industry in Alberta and Saskatchewan; and in the aluminum project now under way in British Columbia with its associated water power development.

Inflation and Fiscal Policy

Since the beginning of the Korean conflict prices have steadily spiralled upwards. For this condition it is hard to pin-point a specific cause; rather a number of factors are involved, for example over-buying of goods by business and by individuals; the unprecedented capital expansion; and plans for heavy government spending for defence and other purposes. As against this we have failed to offset rising costs by increased productivity, we have exported heavily by necessity and we have been forced to divert raw materials to the defence effort. These are basic ingredients of a rising price spiral.

It would appear that the indirect methods of monetary and credit restrictions, together with some restrictions on capital expansion, and taxation measures, though lacking in glamour, are sounder than price controls, wage controls, rationing, punitive taxation, subsidies to encourage production and compulsory saving. All these measures—necessarily used in combination during the past war—are a less appealing alternative and could lead to economic regimentation. Monetary and fiscal measures can be made stringent enough to halt inflation abruptly but only at the cost of serious disturbance and for this reason care—not dramatic action—should be the watchword in order to preserve existing balances.

The Outlook

As we stand at the threshold of the new year the challenges to our adaptability grow apace. We are preparing, and our preparations must be both for peace and for defence. This, of necessity, means the altering of emphasis on the requirements of an agricultural-industrial economy. In so doing we must all be agreed that stability, not rigidity, in our economic affairs is a primary objective and its achievement is as much a personal as a governmental responsibility.

Our defence program is fast developing side by side with an expanding domestic economy. Even though the coming year undoubtedly will see additional military demands on our resources, on the record our capacities are equal to the tasks ahead.

●

James Stewart, Vice-President and General Manager, after reviewing the balance sheet, highlights of which are given below, said in part:

During the year fiscal and monetary policies have had their influence in shaping the course of business and commercial activity.

An over-all reduction in the Bank's portfolio of securities is in part reflected in the increase in commercial loans. These increased loans were necessitated chiefly by rising production costs and higher-priced inventories, to the point in many instances of only caring for the same volume of business this year as in 1950, and also by increased financial requirements for military production, or for defence projects leading up to military production.

Faced with the task of preparedness for defence and recognizing the upward trend of prices that had been under way since the Korean outbreak, the Government suggested and the chartered banks agreed that steps should be taken to restrict the volume of credit as one measure of a national anti-inflationary policy. In the past nine months there has been a general endeavour to confine the extension of credit to productive channels.

I would venture to suggest that if restrictions had not been put into operation the cost-of-living index would have been higher than it is today. Likewise, our dollars allocated to defence spending would not have gone as far in acquiring military plant and equipment.

Staff

It is difficult to avoid apparent repetition in expressing my thanks to the members of the staff for their loyal co-operation throughout the year; my sincerity is nonetheless real. The understanding of the men and women of the staff who are in daily contact with the people of their communities has aided materially in achieving the present level of successful operations. I know that I express this appreciation on behalf of the shareholders as well as personally at this time.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 12. (AP)—Television viewers will be seeing Bing Crosby on their home screens. But not right away.

The old groaner, who has never had a reputation as a chatterbox, is actually voluble on the subject of TV. He likes to talk about the new medium and his participation in it, but points out that his debut will not be in the near future.

"I'm too darned busy with other things right now," he said, "and I haven't decided exactly what I'd like to do on television. I'll get into it some day, but not until I figure out a workable formula."

The crooner said he carefully eyes the triumphs and errors of the performers.

"It's a tough go," said Bing, commenting on one well-known comic. "He can have a couple of swell shows and the next week come up with a cruller. It's hard for him to keep up that pace.

"I think the only show that has found a fool-proof formula is the Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz show. They seem to come up with a lot of laughs every time and the production is terrific. A lot of the other shows hit a few good weeks and then start floundering."

The Ball-Arnaz show is on film and it is probable that Bing's show would be, too. It is doubtful if he would do a live telecast.

A perfectionist, he pioneered the use of transcribed shows on the radio networks. He pointed out the value of building a library of TV shows for reissue purposes.

Bing emphasized that he would not do a weekly TV show.

Many stars are giving up radio for TV, and I asked Bing if he would be following the trend.

His only comment:

"I don't think so."

Justice Wells Finds Paper In Contempt

Toronto, Dec. 12 — (CP) — The Globe and Mail yesterday was found in contempt of court in publishing an editorial which criticized the sentences given four youths convicted Nov. 6 of raping a 16-year-old girl in west - end Willowdale Park May 15.

Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells held that the morning paper was in contempt because it published the editorial during the hearing of a similar charge against a fifth youth who had been granted a similar trial.

The jury disagreed late yesterday at the trial of the fifth youth, Robert Thomas, 16. He will be tried again next month.

Defence counsel R. C. G. Wilson objected that publication of the editorial might prejudice a jury against a fair trial.

Mr. Justice Wells said in his judgment that he was not able to say, after reading the editorial, that it would not prejudice the giving of a fair trial.

"In view of all the circumstances, I am not prepared to impose any penalty on them (the Globe and Mail) for the contempt I have found save that which has been imposed in many such cases, that of making the proprietors of the Globe and Mail liable for the costs of this motion. There is no other penalty."

He fixed the costs of the motion at $60.

Futile to Remain In Red China Say Catholic Nuns

San Francisco, Dec. 12—(AP)—Two Roman Catholic nuns who arrived here yesterday from communist China said it would have been futile for them to remain in the red-occupied country.

"We could do nothing by remaining in communist China. Our work was forbidden. We could no longer administer to the Christians who remain," Sister Angela Marie told a reporter.

She and a companion, Sister Marie Ignatia, arrived aboard the liner President Cleveland from Hong Kong. They are en route to the headquarters of their order in Maryknoll, N.Y.

The two nuns said the reds were imprisoning both priests and nuns. They said they had applied for exit permits when it was easier than now to get out of China. They said eight nuns and several priests remain.

Sister Angela, a nurse for many years, was at Kwangsi. Her family name is Covery, of Chatham, Ont. Sister Marie Ignatia was stationed at Kwangtung. Her family name is McNally, of Dover, N.H.

Film Portrays Danger of V.D.

Along with the press and radio, motion pictures have become a prime educational medium in national life. In the work of health education in this country, the Health League of Canada has made it a duty to keep the people informed about the great social diseases, their cause, prevention and cure.

Now, under its auspices, comes a new and important educational film to Canada, which every parent and young adult should see and understand. It is entitled "No Greater Sin," and deals with one of the greatest health problems of society, venereal disease.

The picture has been improved by health authorities in Canada and the United States, and should meet with the support of religious and other organizations in Canada in the object that it strives after, that is to educate the public concerning the deadly danger of social disease.

Syphilis is responsible for more deaths in the world than any other infection, and its byproducts include some of the most violent forms of insanity and general paralysis of the insane.

Medical science has made great strides in conquering such diseases, but medical science is helpless without an informed and intelligent public knowledge to co-operate with it. The control of venereal disease depends greatly upon public education calculated to inform people as to its seriousness and to the fact that it is highly communicable; also that it may be cured by regular treatment, especially if that treatment is instituted early.

The picture "No Greater Sin" accomplishes that education in a very effective and dramatic manner.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

by SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge players itch with desires to take chances. Singly and in pairs, they stab at bids beyond their depth. One of their great weaknesses is gambling for slams before knowing the safety thereof.

Guessing at slams was an old uncivilized custom. It is outdated stuff and outmoded nonsense. A convention is the modern practice for revealing the subtle needs for safe slams.

Before a player reaches out for a slam, he should know some very important things about the partnership hands. Particularly, he should have discovered three certain things.

First, he should know what will be trump. Second, he should have discovered at least 12 tricks in the partnership hands. Third, he must have in his own hand two aces and a king, or better.

If he has not two aces and a king, he should not reach for slam. If he does not know what will be trump, he should not reach for slam. If he has not seen 12 tricks, he should not reach for slam.

It is not necessary to first announce what the trump suit may be. It is only necessary to know what can be trump. If he knows that; has seen 12 tricks; has two aces and a king, he can be slam bent.

In that case, he bids four no-trump. Which is a convention signal. That says the hand has discovered the three needed items. It asks partner to show how many aces and kings he has As when you have this north hand:

♠A Q 4 3
♥ 5
♦K 10 4
♣A K 4 3

Your south partner has opened with one club. Your first response is two spades. Partner then bids three clubs. You now see enough to bid four no-trump as the signal.

Partner has shown six tricks. You have six. So you see 12 tricks. You have support for clubs. So you know what can be trump. And you have two aces and a king, or better.

You thus have all the three requirements for trying to reach a slam. Probe for it.

BELIEVE ME, JENNIFER, EDNA IS NO FRIEND OF YOURS!
HOW DO YOU KNOW?
SHE TRIED TO START NASTY GOSSIP ABOUT YOU TODAY.
REALLY?
WHAT DID SHE SAY?
WELL SHE ASKED ME TO TELL HER—
EXACTLY WHAT I REALLY THINK OF YOU.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, December 13

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Inescapable daily duties may be boresome, even annoying, but you are better off than many, so be grateful. Don't blame others and you'll fare very well.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Day so-so. Avoid making odious comparisons. Conditions generally different for each of us. Study, realize your kind of competition and you will understand better how to solve your problems.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Looks a little like an uninteresting day. However Gemini can always make for himself more breaks, so go out, and do. There are always fertile fields, have fresh hope daily.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Take it easy and thus make it easier. Things not too inviting, especially for chance moves, action without sufficient study. Work amiably with associates, be ready to take sound advice.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Generous aspects for all who will give as well as take. Do your work and favors with sincerity and no red tape. Be calm about the unexpected; avoid self-satisfied attitude.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Special legal or economic conditions may arise. Be composed; consult expert advice if in doubt. Keep head high. Use clever ideas to enhance important issues.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Concede when you should, hold out if you honestly should. But don't be either unwisely conciliatory or stubborn. Day's affairs are intertwined; you need them, they you.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)—Aspects indicated considerable action in the air. How you fare will greatly depend upon your thinking and action. Business, financial and professional matters demand careful management.

November 23 to December 23 — Sagittarius—Separate your tasks into two categories: The Firsts take First. Be sure you are right before acting; influences can be very helpful when you know what you are about. Don't guess.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)— Won't be able to pull solutions "out of a hat"—nor advance by luck. It will take sound, hard work. But there may be assistance from loved ones, those near you.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Same outlook as for Capricorn now. Be sensibly consistent, and don't just take things as they come; create, think up better ideas, means. It can be done when you try.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)— Planetary outlook excellent on whole for worthy efforts. Combine resources, have the will and you can make commendable gains. Romances favored, and most personal affairs.

YOU BORN TODAY: are bright and among the clever, versatile ones of the Zodiac. But that doesn't mean you are all set, without daily diligence. Study, seek higher education, watch disposition. You are wont to speak too frankly at times. This can stymie best efforts. Use your enterprising ability to best advantage. Cultivate high-type associates. Avoid unwise speculation, gambling. Hold to your inborn honesty always. Bright days ahead with certain reservations that you control.

Pole Painted Like Candy Cane To be Dropped

Fairbanks, Alaska, Dec. 12 — (AP)Sometime early today the slumbers of Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus—presuming it is true that they live at the north pole—were to be rudely interrupted by a swoosh and a clunk.

The "swoosh" was the sound of 5,000 "Dear Santa" letters being delivered to the traditional occupant of that spot on the earth's surface. The "clunk" was mankind's delayed installation of a device designed to take the misnomer out of "north pole."

The plane bearing this cargo was due to drop those items about 2 a. m. PST (5 a. m. EST) after a 1,300-mile flight over land and ice from Pt. Barrow, Alaska.

The specially-fitted four-engined commercial airlines plane left here yesterday afternoon on the first leg of the trip, landing at Pt. Barrow three hours later for refueling. The plane was dubbed the "Polar Express" and was the outgrowth of plans sponsored by two Alaskans—neither of whom was allowed to accompany the six crew members aboard the plane.

The nine-foot steel north pole, painted like a candy cane, was fathered by Stan Garson, former worker at the navy's Pt. Barrow oil reserve. The project was expanded by Mrs. Audree Vance, otherwise known as "North Pole Nellie," originator of the idea to have children send along their Christmas requests to Santa Claus for doorstep delivery. Santa will have a mighty efficient staff to handle those letters—he has only 12 days left until he starts his Christmas Eve trip southward. That's more than 400 letters a day to read and fill.

The navy wouldn't let Mrs. Vance land at Pt. Barrow—it has a rule against women at that farthest north Alaskan point. Garson was ruled out by airline and civil aeronautics administration rules that permit only crew members aboard the plane. (Mrs. Vance has been signed on as stewardess).

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District.—The annual meeting of the Bayside Woman's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. W. A. Jeffery on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance of members and visitors. The president, Mrs. Clifton Rush, presided over a worthwhile Christmas meeting which included a carol service. She was assisted in the responsive readings by Mrs. McKenzie, Mrs. Bowers, Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. Rutter, Mrs. Mooney and Mrs. Young. Mrs. Rush gave a talk on "Peace and Love".

Mrs. Floyd Dudley gave a talk on "Happy Christmas Memories in Our Own Land". Christmas should be for children. She remembered especially the Christmas lights and how happy she was on Christmas morning, when her presents were taken from the Christmas stocking. She emphasized that Santa Claus does exist. The spirit of giving is always bright at Christmas. The Nativity is taught in schools. Christmas poems are extensively used at this season, especially "Twas the Night Before Christmas". The carols are sung and loved by all at Christmas. She told how "Silent Night" was composed by a minister in Germany. This carol was then played by Mrs. Frank Sandercock.

Donated articles brought in $7.55. The Baby Band leader, Mrs. Meyers, reported givings for the year, $8.81. Sunbeam Mission Band leader, Mrs. Young, reported $21.52 with the mite boxes and December meeting still to be reported. The systematic givings were $12.20. The dollar donations were handed in.

The Rev. A. C. McCallum took charge of the election of officers for 1952—president, January to June, Mrs. Glen Meyers; July to December, Mrs. Walter Jones; 1st vice-president, January to June, Mrs. H. J. Mooney; July to December, Mrs. Clifton Rush; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson; treasurer, Mrs. Lorne Hunt; secretary, Mrs. Frank Leach; Baby Band, Mrs. Frank Sanderdock; Mission Band, Mrs. Frank Leach, Miss E. Rushhorn, Mrs. Leonard Young, Mrs. Harold Campbell.

All other officers were returned by acclamation.

Centenary W.A. Bazaar

The ladies of White's, Wesley and Aikens W.A.'s were guests of Centenary W.A. at the church on Thursday afternoon, when a bazaar and tea was held. A worship service by several ladies of the W.A. opened the afternoon program. Those taking part were Mrs. R. Thrasher, Mrs. G. Woods, Mrs. W. Slavin, and Mrs. E. Hart. Mrs. H. Hancock was pianist.

The guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. H. Honeychurch of the Salvation Army of Belleville. She gave a fine talk on the Spirit of Christmas. She urged that we all start our day with happiness by worshipping the King, Jesus, thus, as we go through the day, we may lead others to Jesus by our way of living.

The visiting societies each contributed a number to the program. Mrs. C. B. Bonisteel of White's, gave a fine reading, followed by a solo by Mrs. Ross Marshall, accompanied by Mrs. H. Hamilton of Aikens. Mrs. Genereaux of Wesley gave two short but thought-provoking readings. On behalf of Centenary, Mrs. F. Aikens thanked the guest speaker and those who had helped to make the afternoon a successful one.

Mrs. Honeychurch was presented with a basket of White Gifts which had been taken in at the morning church services the Sunday previous to this occasion. A large amount of gifts was given along with a sum of money. Mrs. Honeychurch thanked the members for their thoughtfulness and said that last year she packed bags for three days and through the help of just such donations, every family on their list was taken care of.

Two bazaar tables were almost completely sold out along with an amount of home-cooking.

The ladies served tea, sandwiches and cookies which brought to a close a most successful afternoon. Mrs. C. McMullen, Aikens, and Mrs. F. Dudley, White's, spoke on behalf of their societies for a pleasant time spent.

BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT THIS PROVEN WAY

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 35c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

By Will Henry

At this point Carrington stepped out of his office, wanting to know what the verbal firing was about. Fetterman told him.

"Fetterman, take a big detail. Forty mounted, 40 foot. Go out and get that wood train. And, Fetterman! Don't go beyond Lodge Trail Ridge. I don't give a hoot what happens, you're not to go beyond Lodge Trail Ridge. I just want that wood train brought in. Is that clear?"

"Right!" shouted Fetterman.

Within minutes the stockade gates swung open and Capt. W. J. Fetterman rode out at the head of his 80 men to keep his date with destruction.

He disobeyed his orders before he was out of sight of the fort. Ten Indian decoys showed themselves in the brush along Big Piney Creek. They were so close to the fort Carrington actually threw a couple of cannonshots at them. Feigning panic the decoys cut and ran for the hills to the north—away from the wood train. Fetterman swung his command after them.

That was the last any white man, myself excepted, saw of Fetterman and his troopers, alive.

Seeing him make this idiotic move (he had refused pointblank to have me scout for him) I ran to Carrington. For once the colonel was ahead of me. "Clayton" he called, as I came up, "a relief column is going out at once. Fetterman may get into real trouble. Capt. Ten Eyck will go after him with the rest of the infantry. I want you to go with him.

When I started up the east fork of Peno Creek to try and head Fetterman, I ran into a literal wasp's nest of hostiles. The woods were alive with them. Only the fact some of the warriors were chanting a last-minute war prayer, saved me from blundering into their arms. I grabbed Hussein's nose, tied it tight with a piggin' string, snubbed him short up in a dense clump of birch, began snaking down creek on my belly for a view of the ridge.

Far down the ridge, almost to the bottom, rode Fetterman with his 40 pony soldiers. Behind him halfway down, came the remaining group of walk-a-heaps, the whole command being already deep within the jaws of the waiting trap. I had time to see the decoys riding back and forth down on the creek flats, still drawing Fetterman's fire, before both sides of the ridge seemed to erupt Indians. They came rabbiting out of every conceivable cover, armed to the teeth.

A fierce cry echoed from 2,000 red throats, the Indian horsemen surging like a flood up the ridge, engulfing the blue coats on every front.

The Minniconjou, under Thunder Hawk, struck the mounted troops first, driving them back through the foot soldiers and up the ridge behind them. Here the pony soldiers dug in. Below them, the walk-a-heaps took to a cluster of small rocks on the otherwise naked ridge. Their muzzle loaders began a serrated, hopeless volley.

Arrows filled the air like swarming locusts. Suddenly a lone Minniconjou warrior drove his pony clear through the pitiful group, bursting out the far side of it, sliding his pony on its haunches, wheeling, splitting the air with the Sioux cry "Hopo! Let's go!" His feat had breeched the dam of soldier invincibility; his command loosed a flood of death through it. Directly into the muzzles of the 40 rifles, the Sioux charged their frantic ponies. There were moments then of furious action with knife and war club and ax. A scattering of the high screams of dying men.

And then an utter silence on the lower ridge.

The action could not have exceeded 15 minutes so far. Now, the warriors released by the massacre of the infantry went whooping up the hill to join their allies. Apparently at command, every bluecoat in the ranks released his horse. The animals broke back for the fort with a rush. For a moment my heart leaped. If the Indians went after the horses the troops might reach the top of the ridge, where a circle of waist-high boulders offered some chance to stand off the attackers. The ruse worked and I cheered Fetterman, silently.

The whole pack of savages went yelling off after the big, valuable horses of the white men. With minutes of respite thus gained, Fetterman worked his command up into the boulders atop the ridge. At this point the Indians came racing back, the attack resuming, full fury.

If Fetterman had found a place to make a stand, he had also found one from which there was no escape. The ridge at this spot was no more than 50 feet wide, falling away in dizzy ice-patched slopes in three directions, with a gently rising slope behind. This slope was covered with savages, while at the bottoms of the other three declines waited the remainder of the horde. My own position was in the exact middle of the left wing of the attackers.

One branch-crack or audible movement would have brought me swift and vicious death.

The Indians, forced to hesitiate by the breech-loading carbines of the pony soldiers, contented themselves momentarily with firing showers of arrows into Fetterman's position. But all the while they were working up closer and closer under the rim of the ridge.

I now heard them calling back and forth to one another over the heads of Fetterman's men.

Like lightning then, a Minniconjou chief, Long Fox, leaped from cover, exposing himself to the rifles of the soldiers, shouting exultantly "Hopo! Let's go."

Go they went, like released red arrows, flying in among the high boulders, stabbing, braining, lancing their enemies at hand's length.

The last white man to die was an officer, whom I believed to be Fetterman, who broke clear of the slaughter, backing up the ridge, swinging his carbine and firing crazily, shouting aloud as he went. White Bull rode him down, driving a war arrow through his chest.

Then there was no sound except that of the Indians quarreling over the trophies among the dead.

I buried my face in the frozen mud and snow where I lay.

I was aroused by the far-off clarion of an army bugle. A few minutes and Captain Ten Eyck appeared at the top of a high hill overlooking the battlefield. He had taken over an hour to arrive. Fetterman did not need his relief.

I believe the lives of this new command were spared by one of those weather changes which scourge the northern plains. In 15 minutes the temperature plummeted 20 degrees; a bitter wind full of icy snow rode swiftly in to blanket the dead with a merciful sheet of white. The Indians picked up their own dead, departed for the war camp on the tongue. Their medicine men had promised them 100 white men slain. They had slain 100. It was time to go.

Sickened by the carnage on the hill, frozen to the marrow by the intense cold, stiff from not moving for an hour, half a mile from my horse, surrounded by battle-drunk hostiles, I found myself in but temporarily better position than my dead fellows.

A single file of mounted warriors loomed out of the swirling snows on my left. In the lead came a dozen braves, then a string of led ponies bearing the corpses of the fallen.

It would be hard to say which force was the more surprised but I got in my introductions first. The right-hand revolver opened for me. I missed one of them, but five were down before the fight started. Just as the others rushed me, I thought I saw a new figure join their ranks, a bolt upright chief in black wolfskin, riding a black horse. My thought was "Crazy Horse. Where did he come from. . . ?" Then a stone ax crashed into the side of my skull and I knew no more.

The phantom face would come and go, as lovely and luminous as a dawn star on a misty morning. At first it was just the face, the kind of unreasonably beautiful face which haunts a dream. When it came to me out of the black east om unconsciousness, it brought light. For a brief spell it would hover somewhere over me, seeming to offer guidance in a darkness which was endless. Then the interminable blackness would descend again.

Presently, these stygian nights became shorter. The star face shone with greater clarity, remained longer in its gentle orbit.

I would remember that face and that fragrance as long as breath stirred in me, and then forever after. Yet, when I awoke it was sgone.

I was alive because I had shown great courage and a mighty power to hurt. Also because we were tahunsa, cousins. My mind was still not functioning with normal clarity, but I could gather that Ed Gearys nonsense with Dull Knife about my being a great chief had become accepted by these people. I knew that frequently in their own battles among tribes, if a warrior of the enemy showed extreme courage, being subsequently taken alive, he was carried off to the lodges of the conquerors, feted and served in every way, in no sense a captive but an honored guest.

As I sat there, feeling of my wounds, trying to make some pattern of my predicament. I was aware of a figure standing inside the tipi's entrance flap. It had not been there a moment before, yet I had seen no one enter. I looked up, seeing an Indian of medium size, straight as a lodge-pole garbed with simplicity, wearing no ornament or insignia of rank other than a single spotted eagle feather in his thick black braids. No second glance would be needed among any multitude of warriors, to place this one.

"Welcome to my tipi," said Crazy Horse.

"Woyuonihan," I said, pointing to myself, then him, indicating I was full of respect for so great a chief.

He nodded and came silently to me, leaning over and touching me lightly on the chest with his right hand. Then, placing the same hand palm-flat on his own breast, he uttered the single word "Tahunsa."

Crazq Horse and I were cousins.

In this simple way began my 10 years as an Oglala Sioux; blood brother of the bad face band, full chief in the Oyate Okiyu, the supreme council of the Seven Sioux tribes; protege and son by ceremony of the great Tashunka Witko.

13 MIGs Downed In Greatest Jet Victory in History

World's Foremost Jet Ace Accounts for Four Craft

U.S. Fifth Air Force, Korea, Dec. 13—(AP)—American Sabre jet pilots shot down 13 red MIGs today, probably shot down two others and damaged one.

It was the greatest jet victory in history.

Major George A. Davis, Jr., of Lubbock, Tex., the world's foremost jet ace shot down four MIG-15s. That ran his total kill over MIG alley in northwest Korea to 12 planes, including nine MIGs.

The day's big bag was run up in two battles.

Not a single Sabre was lost, the Fifth Air Force said.

In the morning Sabres of the crack Fourth Fighter-Interceptor wing shot down four MIGs and damaged one. In the afternoon they knocked off nine more and reported two probables.

Davis got two in each fight.

'Copter Rescues Pilot

One Sabre jet burst into flames from lack of fuel and crashed, a Fifth Air Force briefing official said. A helicopter rescued the pilot.

The day's fighting pitted 64 Sabres against 145 MIGs.

Only two other all-fighter battles in the Korean war approached today's spectacular totals.

On Oct. 16 Sabres shot down eight MIGs and damaged five, then in a second engagement ran the kills up to nine.

The other battle, Nov. 30, included three types of planes destroyed — MIGs, and propellor driven TU-2 bombers and LA-9 fighters. On that day one MIG, eight TU-2s and three LA-9s were reported downed.

R.C.A.F. Hunts Missing Plane Near Windsor

Trenton, (Special) — The coordination centre of the R.C.A.F. search and rescue reported today that Selfridge base had requested aid in the search for a twin Cessna aircraft with two men aboard believed down in a flight from Canton, Ohio, to Detroit last night. The plane left Canton at 6.36 p.m. and was due at Detroit at 7.55 p.m.

When the plane failed to show up at Detroit and no signals were heard from it along the route U.S. authorities figured that the machine crossed the lake and went down somewhere in the Windsor district.

The R.C.A.F. at Centralia dispatched a Dakota and an Expiditer aircraft to the scene this morning.

Pilot of the aircraft is a Mr. Lasker and the passenger is a Mr. Broughton, both of Canton, Ohio.

French Assembly Votes to Ratify Schuman Plan

Paris, Dec. 13. (AP) — The French National Assembly voted today to ratify the Schuman plan to pool the $4,000,000,000 coal and steel industries of six west European countries.

The bill now goes to the Upper House—the council of the Republic—where rejection could only delay the ratification by sending it back to the assembly for a second approval.

The Netherlands is the only country so far to ratify the plan. The four other governments which agreed to the plan are West Germany, Italy, Belgium Luxembourg.

Communists and the right-wing followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle voted today against ratification, which was approved by votes of 377 to 235, and 364 to 234.

Premier Rene Pleven made today's two ballots both votes of confidence in his government. Had he lost, he would have had to resign and make way for a new premier to wade through France's touchy political tangle in search of a cabinet.

STAY DOWN IN MINE

Paris, Dec. 13 — (Reuters) — Seventy miners have stayed down in a Metz coal pit for four days—without working — to back their demand for a $28 Christmas bonus and higher piece rates. Eighteen thousand men in the Lorraine coalfield in eastern France are on strike for similar claims, the French coal board said yesterday. The communist-led trade union confederation put the number at 25,000. The strike has been on for six days.

THE WEATHER

Toronto. Dec. 13. (CP)—Synopsis—This morning's weather map shows the reason for winter' tight grip on most of Canada. A vast mass of Arctice air extends from the Maritimes in east to Reckies in the west and from Yukon in the north to the Great Lakes in the south. One of the coldest areas in the country is Northern Ontario where White River, traditional cold spot, reported 25-below at 7:30 a.m. this morning. Kapuskasing and Porquis Junction near Timmins, both came close with 23 and 22 below respectively. In southwestern Ontario the moderating effect of the lakes prevented the mercury from dropping below 16-above.

Snowflurries of varying intensity continue to plague the southwestern Ontario snow belt and considerable drifting has been reported. Elsewhere either skies are clear or cloud patches are producing scattered flurries of little consequence.

Little change is expected in this picture for today or Friday.

Refining Plant To Close Down After Next March

Petrolia, Ont., Dec. 13 (CP)—Some 150 employees at the Canadian Oil Companies Ltd. refining plant were told today that the factory will stop operation "some time after next March 1."

W. H. Rea, C.O.C. president, said refining probably would start next April at the company's new $18,000,000 plant at Froomefield, 17 miles west of Petrolia, which is a suburb of Sarnia.

"It will require men having special skills which were not necessarily required at Petrolia", he told the men.

Construction at the Froomefield project now is half completed. When in full operation it is expected to employ some 250 persons including technicians and to have a production capacity of 20,000 barrels daily compared with the 5,000 barrels now turned out at Petrolia.

The new plant will be "almost petro-chemical" in nature which means this refinery will concentrate chiefly on by-products of petroleum, such as are used in chemical plants.

CROWN AGENCY SET UP TO BUILD SEAWAY PROJECT

Agreement Also Signed Between Govt., Ontario

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP) — The long-debated, long-awaited St. Lawrence Seaway is another step closer to reality.

The Commons yesterday approved a government bill setting up a Crown agency to construct the $246,000,000 deep waterway with or without the co-operation of the United States.

With the seaway bill, the chamber adopted a companion measure ratifying an agreement between the governments of Canada and Ontario to permit Ontario to develop power in the international section of the St. Lawrence.

Before turning to the seaways legislation, the House polished off the lingering throne-speech debate after opposition members threw a series of non-confidence motions at the government and forced five formal divisions as the debate came to a close.

A batch of smaller bills was given first reading as the chamber drove towards a pre-Christmas prorogation which may come this weekend or early next week. It approved a government motion to sit this Saturday.

The chamber later studied a government bill providing annual grants of $6,250,000 to the CBC for five years and heard Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) criticize the corporation's television policy.

He urged that TV licences be granted to private interests which have expressed willingness to risk their money in a television station. It was regrettable that Canadians were being denied television.

Pay By Toll System

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said he is sure the people would rather wait for government operated TV than undergo the "punishment" of commercial TV suffered by American viewers.

Under the seaway legislation, the waterway will pay for itself in 50 years through a system of tolls to be charged ships using its network of canals from Montreal up through to the Great Lakes system.

Good News For Junior

London, Dec. 13 (Reuters)—Whenever you dish up junior's spinach feeling proud of the good you're doing him and whenever he eats it to be like Popeye, you're both living in a fool's paradise. The stuff is useless for strength.

Dr. Charles Hill, a junior minister in the food ministry, told the Royal Society of Arts yesterday: "There is no scientific reason why spinach should give anyone, even Popeye, strength."

The doctor said spinach contains not only iron but oxalic acid which, it is thought, probably combines with the iron and prevents it being absorbed by the body.

Murder Committed 1,600 Years Ago Discovered In Vancouver Museum

Vancouver, Dec. 13 (CP) — A murder committed more than 1,600 years ago in Egypt has been uncovered in the Vancouver Museum.

The body of the victim, a 10-year-old boy, has been on display at the museum for more than 30 years.

It is highly unlikely, museum president Noel Robinson commented wryly Wednesday, that the murderer will ever be found. He related this story:

In 1920, the late Dr. George Kidd of Vancouver brought back from Egypt the well preserved mummified form of a boy. It had been exhumed at the site of ancient Thebes where the pharoahs and nobles of Egypt were interred.

Until six months ago the mummy was believed that of a girl. Then it was X-rayed and embarrassed museum directors announced it was a boy.

The skin had been partially torn away from the skull. The left eye had been knocked out of its socket. The upper lip was split nearly its whole length. One knee was dislocated and both thigh bones were broken. But the arms and fingers were unmarked.

It was obvious the boy had been murdered, probably by being swung by the arms and smashed on some hard surface. Had he died by accident the arms would have been hurt.

The X-rays were forwarded to Dr. T. C. Skeat of the British museum. He confirmed the Vancouver museum findings and added that an inscription on the breast wrappings showed the boy's name was Panechates, son of Haires. Burial had probably taken place in the third century A.D.

Mr. Robinson said the boy was undoubtedly of noble birth and possibly might have stood in the way of succession to the throne by an older and more powerful claimant, who decided to do away with him.

The murderer apparently fooled the Egyptian police of those days, making the killing look like an accident.

Defence Denied Mistrial Motion in Trial of Tallulah Bankhead's Former Secretary

New York Dec. 13—(AP)—A neck-craning crowd of about 150 waited for actress Tallulah Bankhead to arrive at the trial of her former maid-secretary today—but Tallulah didn't show up.

Most of them wandered off after court attendants made known that the actress would not appear until she is summoned as a witness.

Inside the packed court room, the fourth day of the trial of Mrs. Evyleen R. Cronin, 59, the ex-secretary, got under way. She is charged with grand larceny and forgery. She is said to have raised sums on Miss Bankhead's cheques amounting to thousands of dollars.

Her lawyer moved unsuccessfully yesterday, and again today, for a mistrial. He also sought to get a contempt show-cause order against Miss Bankhead's lawyer at the start of today's session, but failed.

Defence Counsel Fred G. Moritt claimed that Miss Bankhead's lawyer, Donald Seawell, last night discussed the case on a TV program in a manner prejudicial to Mrs. Cronin.

He said Seawell asserted on the program: " 'It is a shame the way the defence is smearing Tallulah Bankhead's name.' " This, Moritt said, "might persuade public opinion against Mrs. Cronin".

The prosecution called Bernard Dolgin, an accountant in the district attorney's office, to the stand. He said he helped in the investigation that led to Mrs. Cronin's indictment.

The 48-year-old actress charges that a defence effort to link her private life with "booze, cocaine and sex" was part of a blackmail plot to keep the case from going to trial.

Yesterday, the third day of the trial, the white-haired Mrs. Cronin's attorney, New York State senator Fred G. Moritt, asked for a mistrial on grounds that there were "two trials going on in this courtroom."

One trial, Moritt contended, was being run "according to the rules" while the other was being conducted by the complaining witness . . ."

When Moritt made his move, Miss Bankhead was not in the courtroom. Judge Harold L. Stevens—"on the court's own motion" —had ordered the courtroom cleared of all witnesses.

In denying the mistrial motion Judge Stevens said Miss Bankhead's asserted "misconduct" during the opening day of the trial had not "prejudiced the rights" of the defendant.

Moritt had complained that the actress made "facial and audible remarks" detrimental to his own statements and he demanded that the court make her "shut up."

The trial had packed the courtroom. Among the spectators have been many fans of the star of stage, screen and radio.

The third-day prosecution witness was Benjamin Nadel, certified public accountant formerly employed by Miss Bankhead.

Nadel was cross-examined by Moritt, who brought up the name of actor William Langford, who played leading man opposite Miss Bankhead in the stage production of Noel Coward's "Private Lives."

Moritt asked, "Do you know the man named William Langford, known as Bill?"

"No," Nadel replied.

"Would your book (record of Miss Bankhead's bank account) cover items given to him?"

"If cheques were drawn to him they would be listed," said Nadel.

"Was some money given to Bill Langford?"

"I have a recollection of a savings account in his name and deposits made for him," said the witness.

Asked who made the deposits, Nadel said he could not recall.

Langford had appeared in court with Miss Bankhead the first two days of the trial.

Moritt also asked the accountant about four other purported male acquaintances of the actress. Nadel said he did not know them. The men were listed as Blake Johnson, Larry Washburn, Dickie Wells and Sydney Bechet.

They were not further identified in court.

Continued Drastic Action Promised by Truman to Clean House in Government Offices

He indicated he will set up a special agency to fight corruption, possibly tomorrow or Saturday.

Allowing himself to be quoted directly at one point on the scandals in the tax collecting and some other agencies, Truman told a press conference:

"Wrongdoers have no house . . . with me no matter who they are or how big they are."

In response to questions, the President said he has no plans to fire Attorney-General J. Howard McGrath or the Democratic national chairman, Frank McKinney.

Several Republican members of Congress have demanded the dismissal of McGrath as a result of disclosures in the House investigation of tax scandals.

Caudle Fired

Chairman Cecil R. King (Dem. Calif.) of the House of Representatives group has said he believes T. Lamar Caudle, assistant attorney-general in charge of the tax division, was unfaithful to his public trust.

Truman fired Caudle last month.

Caudle has come under fire because of the disclosure that he made a $68,000 profit on a $1,000 investment in a tractor firm headed by a man whose wartime contracts were sharply criticized by Truman, then a senator.

The President said public officials recently fired — including Caudle — were being investigated by the executive branch of the government before their named turned up in congressional investigations.

Truman declined to say what sort of special agency he might set. He said the action he plans will be designed to clear up the situation, to show that the vast majority of government employees do their duty, and to see that honest employees are not smeared by the actions of the others.

Child Suffering From Disease Goes to Arizona

Toronto, Dec. 13 — (CP) — A five-year-old girl, suffering from what doctors regard as an incurable disease, left Toronto today with her family for Arizona—and what her parents hope may be a healthy life.

Leslie Ann Hull, ill with a pancreas ailment that inhibits the functioning of stomach and lungs, has had the disease since birth, unknown to her parents or doctors until recently.

Mr. Hull, a carpenter, sold his unfinished house and with another $200 the family left this morning by air for Tucson.

A nine-months-old sister accompanied the father and mother and the stricken girl. Mr. Hull, with no job or accommodation waiting for him in Tucson, said he hoped persons there would help him.

Most of the family's savings have been used in an attempt to cure the child.

Mr. Hull decided to try Arizona after he learned that a Toronto child seemed to have made some recovery there from the same disease.

Concentrate Search

Detroit, Dec. 13 (CP) —An air-land search over western Lake Erie for an aircraft missing since Wednesday night was concentrated today on a small area of the lake's western shore.

A Medina, O., farmer told police he heard a plane flying low along the shore near his home during the night.

The twin-engined Cessna aircraft was scheduled to land here on a flight from Akron, O. It was piloted by Raymond W. Lasker of Akron who carried a passenger identified only as "Bougher."

SOUTH AFRICAN DELEGATE ASKED TO RETURN HOME

Question of Trusteeship Will be Discussed

Paris, Dec. 13—(CP) — South Africa today ordered its head United Nations delegate home for consultations over the question of trusteeship for southwest Africa.

And while Interior Minister T. E. Donges, who plans to leave for Capetown within a few days, is away, his delegation will not attend general assemby sessions. However, South Africa will continue to be represented on all U.N. committees except the trusteeship committee.

South Africa has boycotted the trusteeship committee for three weeks claiming the question of Southwest Africa's future is not under U.N. jurisdiction.

A South African delegation spokesman emphasized the moves does not mean the union is walking out of the U.N.

In Capetown today Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan said he had recalled Donges for "more careful and, if needs be, more drastic action" on the trusteeship question.

Malan said he was withdrawing representation from the U.N. Assembly meetings pending a possible hearing and satisfactory consideration of South Africa's side of the dispute over the future of the territory—once a League of Nations mandate.

Some Etiquette Advice for Santa

This was the tone of a leaflet attached today to six Santa Claus suits which may be borrowed from the Montclair recreation department.

The department's etiquette rules for Santas include:

"Do not use rouge or lipstick. Do not laugh and talk in a bellowing tone.

"Call children by their first names whenever possible. Be brief in your appearance. Don't drink intoxicants before appearing in this suit.

"Don't attempt to kiss or handle children unless they volunteer to 'shake'; meeting Santa is a new experience for many of the tiny tots."

"Dont' make promises that you'll bring them everything under the sun."

Three Killed in Crash

Three Rivers, Que., Dec. 13 (CP) —Three persons were killed and one injured today when a Canadian Pacific Montreal-Quebec passenger train struck a car near Maskinonge Station.

Names of the victims — a man a woman and a boy—were not immediately known.

Egyptian Govt. Recalls Envoy From London

British Army Truck Driver Killed Near Ismailia

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 13 — (Reuters) — Premier Nahas Pasha tonight announced the government's decision to recall Ambassador Amr Pasha from London.

Cairo, Egypt — (Reuters) — Fresh shooting incidents in the Suez Canal zone were reported today. A British army truck driver was shot and killed near Ismailia last night. Earlier shots were fired and a bomb was tossed at a British army vehicle, but there were no casualties.

Cairo newspapers continued to predict the imminent recall of the Egyptian ambassador to Britain. The Arabic paper Al Ahram said: "Responsible circles assure us the decision will be announced today in spite of rumors circulating to the contrary."

United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery today called on Acting Foreign Minister Ibrahim Farag Pasha for the second time in two days.

Caffery told reporters afterwards they discussed Middle East questions, including Anglo-Egyptian relations.

British Deny Reports

Egyptian newspapers meanwhile reported that British troops are planning to destroy a second village in the Canal Zone, this time near Ismailia. A British spokesman denied the reports "categorcically."

Egyptian snipers are continuing terrorist attacks by night, a British official said. He reported that a British military truck driver was shot and killed near Nefista while returning northward to camp Moascar last night.

Cairo's two big morning newspapers, Al Abram and Al Misri, said a British force inspected the village of Fanarat El Maghar, adjoining a British military water filtering plant. The accounts said the British offered to pay compensation for houses to be destroyed.

Al Misri said this was a "second great crime.' It reported that the purpose of the razing was to build a new road and bridge "to facilitate traffic."

Referring to the possible recall of the Egyptian Ambassador from London, the pro-government Al Misri said: "The considerations which existed the day before yesterday still exist today and make it necessary for the cabinet to continue study of the question."

Noise Proved To be Burglars

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP)—The noises, they thought, were just street cars passing, so Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Turner slept on. This morning they awoke to find a 250-pound safe missing.

Thieves forced the front door of the sub-post office operated by Turner, then dragged out the safe. The loot was estimated at $2,000.

C. E. McKenzie Of Stouffville Unhurt in Crash

Trenton (Special) — Clark E. McKenzie of Stouffville, Ontario, had a narrow escape on Tuesday night when his car left Dundas Street west and turned upside down on Allan Vanderwater's lawn.

When the driver lost control, police said, the car mounted the south curb, broke off a telephone pole and plunged down a steep six-foot embankment.

When first spectators arrived the car was resting on its roof with all four wheels sticking up in the air. The driver, unhurt, had crawled ou tof the upturned machine by this time.

Most of the damage was to the front and roof of the car.

It is believed a front tire went flat, causing the driver to lose control on the slippery hill. The accident happened near the corner of Film Street just before 6.00 p.m.

Treasurer Says Excess Profits Tax Should be Imposed

Nokomis, Sask., Dec. 13 — (CP) — Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines of Saskatchewan last night accused the Liberal government at Ottawa of financing the war effort by letting the dollar run wild. He said an excess profits tax should be imposed to curb inflation.

Mr. Fines spoke at a public meeting here. Nokomis is 75 miles southeast of Saskatoon.

He said that $60,000 is added to the provincial budget each time the cost of living index rises one point.

Mr. Fines also said that the insurance underwriters of Canada are spending millions of dollars this year to defeat the C.C.F. government so that the cheapest form of insurance in Canada — that of Saskatchewan — will be eliminated.

Half Pint Inside

Elk City, Okla., Dec. 13 — (AP) — Clyde Brewer, on trial for possessing liquor in this dry state, was held in contempt of court yesterday after he admitted swiping a half pint of "exhibit A" and drinking it during a court recess.

"Everyone in the court said it was mine," the 35-year-old defendant said. "It had my name on it. So I drank it."

Judge R. L. Minton ordered him to jail for 10 days. Then the jury found him guilty of possessing 8½ pints of whisky, including the half pint inside his stomach. The court deferred sentence.

CONSTRUCTION CONSIDERED

Quebec, Dec. 13—CP—Premier Duplessis said today a project for construction of two ships of more than 20,000 tons each at shipyards at Lauzon, Que., is under consideration.

The premier gave the news to a delegation representing 28 Quebec City suburbs before him to discuss problems of municipal finance.

House Members Not Likely to Agree To Shorten Speeches to 30 Minutes

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP) —Members of the Commons soon will be asked to shorten their speeches. Indications are they will not agree.

A select committee, headed by Speaker Ross Macdonald, recommended today that, as an experiment during the 1952 session, the speeches of private members be limited to a half-hour.

The limit now is 40 minutes.

The report also recommended other changes in rules to expedite the business of the House.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, indicated his opposition to some of the proposals by declining to agree to waive the rules so that the report of the committee could be considered tomorrow. The report likely will not be debated until next week.

Recommendations of the committee will not take effect without unanimous consent of all members.

The committee report recommended that the sitting hours, tried on an experimental basis at this session, be adopted permanently at the next session, with one slight change.

Before the House started a pre-adjournment drive yesterday, it met from 2.30 p.m. to 6.15 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. On Wednesdays it met from 2.30 p.m. to 6.15 p.m. and on Fridays from 2 p.m. to 6.15 p.m.

The committee recommended that the starting hours be left unchanged but that the adjournment hour be 6 p.m. instead of 6.15. This would give members a two-hour dinner recess on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursday and Fridays.

The present time limit on speeches does not apply to the prime minister, leader of the opposition, a minister moving a government order, a member speaking in reply immediately after such minister, a member moving a motion of non-confidence in the government, or a minister replying to such a motion.

BELIEVE BLAZE STARTED FROM STOVE

Fire believed to have started from a stove in the rear living quarters caused small damage at the Star cafe on Front Street during the noon hour today. The small blaze scorched and blackened a partition and part of the ceiling before it was extinguished. Firemen were called to extinguish the fire.

Dogs in Pound

A black female spaniel puppy and a male collie, dark brown in color, were reported today by city pound keeper Charles Thorn to be in the city pound.

Talk on Prestressed Concrete Given Institute

The principle of prestressed concrete was outlined to members of the Belleville branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada at their December meeting held this week at the Hotel Quinte.

Speaker for the evening was R. A. Crysler, of the technical staff of the Canada Cement Company.

Contrary to the general belief, Mr. Crysler said the idea of prestressed concrete was not new, but that the first patents dated back to 1886 in Germany. The fundamental basis was the rigidity of the barrel, with its staves and hoops, the origin of which was lost in antiquity.

The basic principle of prepressed concrete was that by putting initial compression into the material greater than that of tensile load encountered, about half the amount of concrete is required for the same strength.

Mr. Crysler said that in European countries where material costs are high research and development along these lines had been stimulated.

He emphasized that "reinforced" and "prestressed" concrete are two different things.

Colored sound pictures of the construction of the Walnut Lane Bridge in Philadelphia, built of prestressed concrete were shown.

Branch officers were brought up to strength and will continue in office until the annual meeting in April. Chairman is E. G. Gurnett with G. A. Bradford as vice-chairman and S. Sillitoe as councillor. Committee members include W. L. Langlois, J. E. Buchan, A. O Drysdale, C. R. Whittemore, J. C. R. Punchard and A. E. Argue.

Queen's Principal Advocates More Emphasis on Reading, Writing in Public Schools

Increased emphasis on reading and writing enabling children to be taught to write plainly and speak clearly without waste of words was advocated for public schools curriculum at the Queen Elizabeth school here Wednesday evening.

Speaking at the official opening of the new public school Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, Principal and Vice-Chancellor of Queen's University, said that the lack of the ability to read so as to understand and comprehend the meaning was one of the shortcomings of many children leaving school.

"Many children have difficulty of extracting thought from the written paragraph and yet this must be the basis of education," he said.

"I would not have teachers give less time to music, art, and manual training in our schools, yet at the same time I hope there is a consistent effort to teach the pupil the ability to read and write."

Board, City Complimented

The speaker complimented the Belleville Board of Education and the city on their new public school and said he expected the new building was indicative of the rapid growth in the city and was also indicative of a concern for education.

He realized there was government direction in architecture, but also there was a local interest and concern in schools "and that is what counts," he said."

He contrasted local interest in Ontario in education with the centralized control in much of Australia where he had visited recently. "There," he said "due to a widely scattered population outside the main centres, there is a lack of local initiative in education. The result was that education was more or less centralized in direction."

Notes Improvements

Dr. Mackintosh referred to the improvement in Ontario schools since his own public school days in Madoc, noting there had undoubtedly been improvement in physical surroundings.

He admitted progress in education sometimes breaks out in new buildings but warned that, more than new buildings were needed. "The teacher is also important," he emphasized.

One of the things among many which a good teacher could do was to lead children in learning and appreciating standards. Children learn to know what is right and proper and can see that their new school is "right".

This unfortunately was not true in many instances and students have failed to get the benefit of education if they have not learned to make their own judgment of fact and are prepared to stand by them.

Give Teacher Own Initiative

Dr. Mackintosh advocated giving a good teacher his or her own initiative with less laying down of rigid rules from central departments.

"Children are different," he said, "and can be best helped by a good teacher using her own initiative than by officials in a central department who think only in general lines."

"We all know that a child is not general, but individual cases need individual training. A standard curriculum cannot meet all the required points."

A higher status of education would be regained with teachers using greater imagination in carrying out their work."

Auditorium Filled

The auditorium of the new school was filled to capacity as the opening ceremonies commenced shortly after eight o'clock.

Chairman was A. C. Campbell, chairman of the Board of Education. He compared the fine new Queen Elizabeth school with the school he had attended in the Stirling area. There had been no running water, no artificial lighting and instead of taps in each room there had been one "community pump" with an attached tin cup for all to drink from.

"My impression when I first went to that school was that I was going to jail," Mr. Campbell said.

In contrast he referred to the clean and bright rooms of the new school and said that pupils attending the school would have a brighter outlook on life.

Much Time, Effort

Lawrence A. Kells, public school inspector and administrator for the Belleville Board of Education congratulated the board and the City of Belleville on the fine new school. "The building had meant much time and effort on the part of those in charge," he said.

He paid tribute to board chairman A. C. Campbell who in his capacity as head of the board spent hours in looking after details leading to the construction of the school, and also to Harold C. Seldon, chairman of the board's building committee who had likewise put much effort into his job.

Mr. Kells said the new school was designed for a purpose—that of serving the educational needs of a community.

Represents Mayor

Alderman Chas. L. Hyde, representing Mayor R. T. Potter, said he was happy to see the new building completed and congratulated the Board of Education and the contractor on the fine structure.

There was an official transfer of the building with Major C. St. Hurlbut, representing the St. Lawrence Construction Company, turning the key over to architect W. A. Watson. In turn Mr. Watson handed the key to Harold C. Seldon, representing the Board of Education. School principal W. Gordon Anderson then received the key from Mr. Seldon.

Mr. Watson said the new Queen Elizabeth school had been planned as a community structure, serving not only the children but also the community after 4 o'clock. The auditorium section of the building could be used for evening meetings with the balance of the school blocked off, while to the same purpose, washroom facilities were available at vestibule entrances for use of children using school playgrounds following school hours.

Proud of New Schools

Mr. Seldon said he felt proud of the two new school additions in Belleville in the past year. Last year the Prince Charles school had been opened and now the Queen Elizabeth school. As chairman of the board's building committee he had had a personal interest in the construction of both buildings.

He gave financing details of raising the money for the new school noting that the completed school with equipment had cost approximately $300,000. With 13 rooms, the cost per classroom of $19,230, making it one of the most economical of the new schools in the province. He said at present rates the city would recover 24 per cent of the cost of the structure in government grants.

Outlines Features

Mr. Seldon went over the main construction features of the new school, referring to the unplastered haydite block walls, the prefabricated concrete roof; special features of the heating system and the glass block in the upper windows of classrooms which directed and diffused sunlight making for even classroom illumination.

Tribute was paid by Mr. Seldon to administrator, L. A. Kells. Mr. Seldon said Mr. Kells' efficiency had saved the board "thousands of dollars."

Mr. Seldon expressed regret at the dissolution of the Belleville Board of Education as result of the formation of the Bay of Quine District High School Association and noted some of the present members would no longer have any official duties in connection with the public schools.

He also referred to the home and school association at the new school and trusted a keen and alive executive would be elected. The association would prove a valuable link between the school and the parents, he assured.

Flag Presented

One of the highlights of the evening program was the presentation of a flag and framed pictures of the King and Queen to the school by the St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. Making the presentation were Mrs. F. M. Carscallen, Regent, and Mrs. Eva Doolittle, with Stuart Robb accepting the flag and pictures on behalf of the board. Mr. Robb in turn handed them over to school principal Anderson.

Entertainment included two vocal numbers by a combined 54-voice public school choir under the direction of Miss Phyllis May, music teacher, and cornet solos by Davey Branscombe with Clifford Templer at piano. Guest speaker Dr. Mackintosh was introduced by Mr. A. C. Wilkin with Fred Symons expressing appreciation.

Introduction of guests on the platform was by Mr. G. B. Hyde.

Following the opening ceremonies invited guests met Dr. Mackintosh and were served tea in the school kindergarten room.

Members of the teaching staff were presented to the audience by Principal Anderson. They are: Mr. W. Roblin, B.A., Mr. Jack Carswell, Miss Lillian Hart, Miss Daisy Young, Miss Olive Elson, Miss Frances Sullivan, Miss Dorothy Boyce, Miss Mabel Chapman, Miss Bernice Blue, Miss Jean Price and Miss Dora Osborne.

COULD NOT BEAT COLLECTOR

Ottawa, Dec. 13—(CP)—A 72-year-old Alberta Scot, who says he beat the horses for $17,863 in five years, found today he couldn't beat the tax collector. William S. (Lucky) Walker of Winterburn was ordered by the Exchequer Court to pay income tax on the sum. The court overthrew a ruling of the income tax appeal board.

Picton—Tracks in the snow and fingerprints are clues being followed by local police in an attempt to apprehend the person responsible for breaking into Carter Bros. store early yesterday morning. Fingerprints were left on a window and tracks in the newly fallen snow froze as the temperature dropped.

The thief went to a lot of trouble to secure around $8 in cash and a small quantity of merchandise from the hardware store. Failing to force a rear door, he climbed upon a roof, tore off a wire netting above the skylight, smashed a large pane of glass and then dropped 12 feet to the main floor, crashing through a pain of glass en route. Exit was made by a rear door.

Police are also searching for thieves who stole 15 hens and a rooster from a hen house at the farm of William McSteven, Johnson Street. When the owner went to feed them, he found that the entire flock had been taken during the night.

CANNOT ENTER BRAZIL

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, Dec. 12 — (AP) — Pietro Nenni, leader of the pro-communist wing of the Socialists in Italy, will be refused permission to enter Brazil for a "peace congress" in January, a foreign ministry source said yesterday. Reports from Rome said Nenni had expressed the intention of taking part in the so-called "American Continental Peace Congress" to be staged here. The Brazilian press says it is communist sponsored.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP)—Stock market prices eased today in irregular early afternoon dealings.

Papers formed the market's strongest section with a scattered list of fractional advances. Steels, liquors and refining oils weakened. Agricultures and foods dipped sharply.

The year's heaviest ex-dividend posting restricted trading. Leading industrials changed hands slowly while a broadening list of penny golds attracted speculative interest.

Consolidated Smelters, Hudson Bay of Quemont climbed pennies. Chromium, Anacon Lead, Barvue, Quebec Labrador and Torbrit added pennies. Cassiar, East Sullivan, United Keno Hill, Waite Amulet and Quebec Copper eased.

Western oils posted a majority of gains. Central Explorers, Calvan Consolidated, Federated Petroleum, General Petroleum, National Petroleum and Model Oil showed gains ranging to about 35 cents. Devon-Leduc, Pacific Petroleum, North Canadian and Western Leaseholds weakened.

Hollinger and Malartic strengthened in the senior gold list. Secondary issues made little headway.

Butter Stocks Much Higher Than Year Ago

Ottawa, Dec. 13 — (CP) — There should be no butter shortage this winter, the agriculture department said today.

In a statement, the department noted that stocks at Dec. 1 totalled 57,774,000 pounds compared with 52,835,000 pounds on the same date last year, despite the fact that stocks last May 1 were 18,256,000 pounds lower than a year before.

The improvement is credited to the fact that production during the last seven months, from May to November, inclusive, was 205,792,000 pounds or two per cent higher than in the same months of 1950, while consumption declined 2.8 per cent in the same period, or by 4,790,000 pounds.

In addition, Canada has imported 12,500,000 pounds of butter, including 4,000,000 pounds imported by the trade. The Agricultural Products Board has taken delivery of 8,500,000 pounds and will take an additional 1,500,000 pounds early in the new year.

New School Incorporates Many Modern Ideas in Construction

Representing a new idea in school construction, the new Queen Elizabeth public school on MacDonald Ave., in the east end of the city, has been formally turned over to the Board of Education.

Work on the one-storey concrete block and brick structure was commenced in the late summer of 1950 by the St. Lawrence Construction Company and the nearly completed structure was occupied by classes at the commencement of the school term last September. Since that time finishing touches have been put on the building.

Designed by William A. Watson, local architect, the new school building contains many of the evidences of the present trend in public school construction. The 13-room structure has considerable floor space but in spite of this the design has secured compactness of services and convenience of location for the school staff.

Cost $300,000

Cost of the completed structure with equipment was roughly $300,000 and is considered by the department to be low for a building with rigid fireproof construction containing 13 classrooms, fully equipped playroom, health and staff rooms, kitchen and generous auxiliary space.

A departure from customary construction was followed by the planner. There are no plastered walls in the new school. Wall construction is concrete blocks with special insulating qualities. These blocks are painted to provide the interior wall surface. Lower wainscotting is provided with plywood finish.

No Ceiling Plaster

Roof of the structure is also unusual in that it was laid with prefabricated concrete. There is no plaster on the interior ceilings, here again the painted concrete providing the ceiling.

Fittings and equipment in the school include such standard items as terrazzo corridors, marboleum tile for classroom floors, movable chairs, desks, green chalk boards with spot-light lighting and windows a combination of directional glass block and full sash.

As is customary with a well equipped modern school a complete public address system is being installed. Lighting is good quality semi-direct of an attractive design. Unusual installations include a vacuum type steam heating system and generous provisions for classroom supplies and general storage.

Designed to operate as a junior school, planning was for community use. The auditorium or "play room" has a seating capacity of from 400 to 500 persons with an adequate stage. The auditorium can be used for community meetings with the balance of the school blocked off by special iron grill work that can be recessed into the corridor walls during school hours.

Another item lending itself to after school use is the positioning of additional washrooms with entrance off the vestibules. Children using the grounds after hours will have access to the washrooms without entering the school proper.

Plans Approved in '50

Construction of the new school was first considered by the Board of Education in September 1949. Final plans were approved in February, 1950 and the general contract was awarded the following September.

Local sub-contractors doing work at the school included Hibbard Electric, electrical work; Follwell Supply Company, glass; Ame Plumbing and Heating, plumbing and heating work; Central Bridge, structural steel; The Houston Company, cabinet work; Hugh Muncy Ltd., concrete; Foley Foundry and Machine, miscellaneous iron and steel; Lightfoot Brothers, excavating; H. S. Edwards, brickwork.

Local suppliers include drapes by McIntosh Brothers; furniture by T. E. Schwab and Stan Martin Radio, public address system.

TWO CHILDREN SAVED

'No Progress of Any Sort' On Exchange of Prisoners Reported by Sub-Committee

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 13—(AP)—The Allies today demanded the communists guarantee there would be no "death march" of Allied prisoners in Korea.

"No progress of any sort" was reported by a truce sub-committee on prisoners, but spokesmen for both sides indicated another sub-committee might soon break a 17-day deadlock on how to police an armistice. They didn't get anywhere today.

An official U. N. command spokesman said the reds may hold many prisoners in camps far to the east of Panmunjom, where the communists want to trade prisoners.

"We don't want our prisoners to have to walk hundreds of miles," said Lt.-Col. Howard S. Levie. "We don't want a (Bataan) death march in reverse."

An American admiral told the reds there would be no "blind payment" on prisoner exchange until the communists gave assurances of the safety of Allied fighting men they hold.

Levie said statements of Rear-Admiral R. E. Libby implied "the communists have some sinister reason for withholding information."

Levie said the United Nations wants the communists' prisoner lists now because "if we get the names of five, 10 or 15,000 we will know that we will get at least that number back. If we get a figure we consider completely out of line with our estimates, there is going to be quite a bit of discussion before we come to agreement."

The two sub-committees will meet in Panmunjom again at 11 a. m. Friday (9 p. m. EST Thursday).

Chinese Maj.-Gen. Hseih Fang opened Thursday's truce supervision session with a 45-minute tirade against the latest U. N proposal. Then he expressed confidence a solution could be found if both sides searched for one.

Maj.-Gen. Howard M. Turner said Allied negotiators were ready to discuss any reasonable proposal.

The U. N. negotiators said the deadlock would be broken if the reds accepted the seven-point U. N. proposal submitted Wednesday. The reds said they didn't like it but they have not turned it down.

In the prisoner session Libby told the communists the Allies "will not be duped by your obstinate refusal to give us the real reason why you are afraid to exchange prisoner-of-war information now."

Wednesday the U. N. command expressed fear that the reds may not deliver all the Allied prisoners-of-war they hold. That is one reason the U. N. will not agree to a wholesale trade of prisoners as the reds demand.

Even though no progress was reported by either sub-committee Thursday, many observers at UN advance headquarters said it is possible that an armistice can be signed before the cease-fire line agreement expires Dec. 27. If no agreement is reached before the deadline, the line must be redrawn just before an armistice is signed.

EXPECT APPOINTMENT

Toronto, Dec. 13 — (CP) — The Telegram in a newspage story today says Queen's Park soon will announce the appointment of Col. Hedley Basher, 59, as deputy minister of public institutions and prison reform. Reforms Minister Foote was not available for comment.

Col. Hedley is superintendent of Guelph Reformatory.

Four Killed, Heavy Damage When Water Tank Collapses

Tucumcari, N.M., Dec. 13 (AP)—Collapse of a 3,000,000-gallon water tank early today killed four persons and caused millions of dollars damage today.

Several hours later witness told of seeing a "fireball," or apparent meteor, hit the tank in pre-dawn darkness. He said it toppled moments afterward.

A meteor expert said, however that such a phenomenon would have left a huge crater rather than merely smashing the tank.

Lorenzo Gutierrez, whose home is across the street from where the water tower stood, said he saw the fireball.

"I saw the light streak across the sky and land close to the tank," he said. "It hit with a roar, and then there was the sound of the tank breaking open."

Investigators are checking the possibility of sabotage city manager J. A. Fleming said. He said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been asked to help.

Giving way with a deep rumble, the tank loosed a flood through the business district about 4:10 a. m. MST, (6:10 a. m. EST). The cause was not determined.

Water up to waist deep spread devastation over an area three blocks wide and, in a lessening degree as the distance grew, one-quarter of a mile long. The scene was compared with that of a bomb strike.

Two business places, the city warehouse and about 15 homes—mostly of adobe (mud brick) — were laid waste. Pieces of three-eighths-inch thick steel from the tank were scattered over a city block.

Rescuers, including quickly-mobilized National Guardsmen, recovered four bodies. There were no reports of any persons missing. The last to be found, a boy three or four years old, was under a 250-foot section of the tank.

Damage was centred in a section containing homes of Spanish-American families and some business houses.

Henry Folkes, working about 400 yards away said:

"I heard a slight rumble, but no loud explosion. I walked toward the noise and saw everything in God's creation floating down main street."

The collapse left the town without water. There was also a brief power failure.

Engineers said the tank did not explode and definitely was not overloaded or under excessive pressure. Several persons in the vicinity told of seeing a blue flame flash along the ground seconds before the collapse. The engineers said this might have been an indication of escaping gas.

"It sounded like a jet plane going over the house," said Mrs. Claude Moncus, wife of the sheriff.

ALBERTA DOING ALL RIGHT

The recent publication of Alberta's public accounts for the last fiscal year shows that the Foothills Province is in pretty fair financial condition. The province's surplus during the last two years was $102,892,000; its total funded debt is $100,596,000.

Because much of Alberta's borrowing was done under the debenture system, by which the borrower agrees to pay off the debt in annual payments, spread over a long period of years, the funded debt cannot be paid off immediately. The province has also some smaller obligations which must be met.

Alberta's Premier E. G. Manning, usually extremely cautious in his remarks, says that Alberta will "some day" be debt free and that, if the present rate of developing natural resources continues, will also be free from provincial taxes. In addition to his big surpluses, Mr. Manning has some $80,000,000 salted away as a reserve fund.

All of which seems extremely funny to those who are old enough to recall the gloomy prophecies which were made about Alberta's future when the government which Mr. Manning now heads first took control of Alberta's affairs. Far from flooding their province with "funny money," as their critics predicted they would do, the Social Crediters have been giving stable government in spite of prosperity that is equalled in few places and probably surpassed in none.

An important factor in Alberta's development during the last decade of course has been the investment of large amounts of eastern and American capital in that province.

BIG COURT CASE

In October, 1950, government auditors found that an employer of labor in Manitoba owed the Unemployment Insurance Commission $5.76. He was ordered, by letter, to pay this amount in 24 hours. He did so.

Several months later, he was haled into court for having failed to pay the $5.76, which had been levied against him in the beginning for failure to buy enough unemployment insurance stamps. The magistrate dismissed the case.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission then took the case to the county court. Here it was dismissed a second time. The Unemployment Insurance Commission then took the case to the court of appeal. The court of appeal again dismissed it.

Commenting on this affair, the Winnipeg Tribune says: "The cost of pushing a trivial charge through three courts does not seem to have bothered them (the head men of the Unemployment Insurance Commission) at all. Small wonder that the cost of administration this year will amount to $24,500,000 — almost as much as the government's contribution to the unemployment insurance fund.

"What we would like to know and what a lot of people would like to know is how much these three trials cost the commission in court costs and lawyers' fees."

FEDERAL ELECTION NEAR?

Hon. Douglas Abbott, the minister of finance, announced in Ottawa on Monday that the civil service, the armed forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were all going to get pay boosts soon.

Mr. Abbott did not say anything about an election coming soon, but various other persons have declared they see evidence that the government is planning to hold one within the next few months.

Among those who think an election is near are Hon. Edouard Rinfret, the postmaster general. Since he is a member of the government, Mr. Rinfret should know something about such matters.

Mr. Rinfret was the speaker at a meeting held in Montreal on Tuesday night to honor Guy Roleau, who had only a short time previously been elected national president of the Young Liberal Association. Mr. Rinfret was quoted by the Montreal Gazette as predicting a federal election "within less than three months."

SUPPOSE

If you were in your easy chair
And someone came in and stroked your hair,
Remarking in a casual way:
"I saw a magic set today
With all the tricks I'd like to do."
Would that mean anything to you?

Suppose at table as you sat
A little girl should tell you that
The speaking dolls this year can say:
"Hi Grampa!" in a pretty way,
And also "Please and thank you," too,
Would that mean anything to you?

If someone came and stroked your cheek
And casually began to speak
Of horns and drums and other things
Which Santa Claus for Christmas brings,
Would you be deaf and dumb and blind
To what those youngsters had in mind?

Hamilton Mayor Back in Office

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton's mayor Lloyd Jackson last night was swept back into office with more votes than both his opponents combined. Hamilton was one of several Ontario municipalities holding civic elections yesterday.

Mrs. John Ferrier in Kapuskasing piled up something of a politics. Winning a council seat. record in her fling at municipal she received more votes (874) than the total cast in last year's election (725).

The town of Timmins has a new mayor, J. W. Spooner, a former alderman. Fifty percent of the town's eligible voters turned out in below-zero weather to cast their ballots. Phillip Fay, 1951 mayor, did not contest the election.

Voters at Hamilton decided by a 50-percent majority to approve a $1,300,000 road building scheme offering easier access to the heavily-populated "mountain" area.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

A DOUBLE SALE

The doc is dead now—he died while we were away on that trip last year — and that is why I haven't written about him these past months. But hardly a week goes by that something doesn't bring him back into my memory. He was a man you never forget.

There was a cartoon in the New Yorker magazine a week or two ago that reminded me of a story that's characteristic of the kind of person he was.

The cartoon shows a salesman of the Elite Carpet Co., approaching a duplex whose front doors are adjoining.

The salesman puts down a doormat with the word "Welcome" on it at one door and rings the bell of the next. The housewife there, seeing that her neighbor has a nice new mat, buys one herself.

The salesman then rings the bell of the first door, lifting the mat he has placed there. When the second housewife sees that her neighbor has a new mat the salesman promptly completes his second sale.

It was this sort of artful double persuasion, slightly unethical but accomplishing its end, that figured in the story I have to tell now about the Doc.

* * *

The Doc was a man who had a great many young friends, some of them young enough to be his sons and daughters. I think he was attracted to younger people because, being a life-long bachelor, he had a paternal side that was never satisfied. This he would have vehemently denied.

Young people liked him around. He had a bluff, rather sardonic manner that never hid his genuiness and, while I feel the word is often misused, he was a lovable man.

I never knew him once to meddle in anyone's affairs but he was a wise man and often his younger friends turned to him for advice as, indeed, my wife and I did many times. "Let's ask the Doc," we'd say when a problem looked too big to lick.

* * *

Among the Doc's younger friends were the couple I'll call Jim and Sally. Jim was —and is —a young radio executive, an artistic, somewhat temperamental man but a good Joe, as the saying goes. Sally, too, was a rather high-strung creature and while they were suited to each other, and in love, the first years of their marriage were more chaotic than most.

Their periodic quarrels and not-talking-to-each-other interludes were a kind of joke with most of us who knew them (and had our own small flare-ups), but one day we heard that it was no longer a laughing matter.

Sally had left Jim and in the classic manner, had gone home to mama. Even this we could have shrugged aside except that it had gone on for a week and the news from both sides was that they'd decided on a divorce.

More than this, Sally was pregnant. And this, of course, caused all their friends to rally about and try to arrange a reconciliation. It was hopeless. Both were filled with too much silly pride to admit a mistake. Their minds were made up, they said.

* * *

One summer afternoon a bunch of us were sitting out in our back yard having a few beers. The Doc was there, stretched out under a tree and, as he sometimes put it, "Learning about the foibles of youth."

The talk turned naturally to Jim and Sally, not merely as gossip but because we were all genuinely concerned about the mess they were in. We talked of various ways to get them together. but none sounded workable. The conversation began to sag a bit and then we were all looking expectantly at the Doc.

"You've gotta do something about this one Doc," someone said. "These kids don't know their own minds."

The Doc grinned.

"Well," he said, "I'll fix it up tomorrow. Now if somebody will get me another beer I'll work out the details."

* * *

Afterward it sounded so simple we wondered why we hadn't thought of it ourselves. He'd done it with two telegrams and I can remember almost their exact wording.

The first went to Sally at her mother's place. It read like this:

"Darling can't live without you. Been a terrible fool. Please forgive me. waiting for you now at home. Please come right away. Miss you every minute. Love you, Jim."

The second telegram went to Jim at his office. It read like this:

"Darling can't live without you. Been a terrible fool. Please forgive me. Leaving now for home. Please come right away. Miss you every minute. Love you. Sally."

It must have been quite a pleasant afternoon. Of course they soon discovered they'd been tricked, but by that time it didn't make much difference.

COUNTERFEIT COINS AND CHARACTERS

Some time ago a counterfeit quarter came into my posession. A quick look at the coin would not have revealed the fact that it was counterfeit. But it did not ring true, it was light, it was not so shiny as it should have been, and it did not have upon it the right image.

I was struck by the fact that counterfeit quarters and counterfeit characters are very much alike. Neither rings true. Throw them down on something hard and the result is not a sharp ringing sound, but a sort of dull thud.

Then again counterfeit characters, like counterfeit quarters, are too light. They may seen at first to be as heavy and worth while as the real article, but carefully weighed they are found very decidedly to be wanting.

My counterfeit quarter was dull. It lacked the bright shine of a new, well-minted coin. I was reminded of the dull and leaden stupidity of anything counterfeit.

But worst of all, this counterfeit quarter did not have upon it the right image. A close inspection of the image on the coin showed it had been made by a bungling hand.

Then I remembered that the hand of the great Creator, Himself, had made man after his own image, and that it was when men tried to fashion their lives after their own sinful desires that the image of God was supplanted by another image that indicated the bungling hand of a counterfeiter.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HEADLINES

In this age of speed and time saving the headlines in our daily newspaper become significant. The headline writer must be an artist at his job. He must try to tell a story in a few words. Once we looked for these bold headlines as only the equipment of "yellow journalism"—but no more. They save the time of one's reading, and often tell a complete story.

If a reader wants the elaborate story he can read everything. He has his choice. Brevity is the soul of a good many things. Take the telephone for example. Valuable time is saved by brief talks over this remarkable convenience. The long talker over the telephone is never a welcomed one.

I recall the instance of a missionary who wanted to condense a cable dispatch from China to America, to save expense, so he merely sent the one word—"love". That one word embodied more than a score of words could!

Often the headline writer of a newspaper makes his headline so striking that the following story might never have been read at all. Many a headline is a stroke of genius. The headline to an advertisement often tells more than all the rest of the copy. Also, it may be so written as to intrigue the reader though he might not be interested at all in the object for sale. The "bait", however, might be so good as to completely sell the reader.

I once read that Marshall Field, the elder, who founded the great Chicago store that bears his name, was a man of few words. So was Henry Ford and Thomas Edison —but people pondered over their briefest statements. The very first line in the Bible is this: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." There is a great intriguing story in that one line. People reading that line will want to learn what happened after that!

The headliner speaker is that one who has something to say and who says it in the briefest and most interesting manner. In a very broad sense we can all be expert headliner personalities!

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

REAL AND SPURIOUS STOMACH ULCER

In the booklet So You Have Indigestion? (for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope) I recommend for excessive stomach acidity a combination of the antacid, calcium carbonate, with the adsorbent (not absorbent), magnesium trisilicate.

Calcium carbonate neutralizes acid with less disturbance of the acid-base balance in the blood than is likely to occur when sodium bicarbonate is used for this purpose.

Excluding the innumerable cases of "ulcer" in popular parlance — it seems to be fashionable now to get an "ulcer" in circumstances which formerly brought on only "headache" or "nervous exhaustion" — physicians are well aware that spurious peptic (stomach or duodenum) ulcer is a fairly common ailment. By spurious ulcer we mean the patient presents all the signs and symptoms of gastric or duodenal ulcer except the X-ray picture. Not that the X-ray evidence is always conclusive.

In a study of 44 cases of presumptive gastric ulcer by Drs. Schindler and Templeton the ulcer was seen with the gastroscope although not evident in the X-ray films in four cases, and in seven cases the X-ray evidence indicated ulcer but no ulcer was visible with the gastroscope.

In this column, long, long, ago, when you and I were young, Maggie, well, anyway a few years ago when newsprint was not so short, I cited Dr. Irving Gray's report of an impressive series of cases of phantom or spurious "ulcer" in heavy smokers. These tobacco addicts (we can't call 'em hogs because the quadrupeds are as clean as other animals if properly cared for) had all the "ulcer" signs and symptoms, except the X-ray evidence, and generally they got rid of the spurious "ulcer" after they quit smoking — not in a few days but in a few months.

Victims of the tobacco habit should get this through their heads: Even if all the "nicotine" is "out of the system" in a few days after smoking is discontinued, it still takes weeks or more likely months to regenerate cells destroyed and restore functions impaired by the carbon monoxide or whatever other poisons you get in tobacco smoke. So just "cutting down" on smoking is of little avail. A real test of the question of pathological effects of smoking — stomach, duodenal, arterial, heart, partial blindness, partial color blindness, cough—necessitates not less than three months without smoking, that is, if regeneration of damaged cells is still possible.

In addition to those who have real ulcer and the many who suffer from spurious ulcer there are, I believe, millions of poor geeks with Yankee stomach, and for these, as I explain in the pamphlet Yankee Stomach (mailed on request if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope), the simple suggestions concerning hygiene and right eating should be the right medicine.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Treatment Worse Than Disease?

Eight months ago I took that awful dose for non-surgical drainage of the gall-bladder as described in your booklet. It was well worth it — I haven't had any gall-bladder pain or disturbance since — hurrah — hurrah! Now if your Iodin Ration will restore a little color to my graying hair I'll be a new woman . . . (M. E. L.)

Answer — No apology for the taste of the concoction for non-surgical drainage of gall-bladder —instruction in booklet So You Have Indigestion? for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope. Numerous correspondents have assured me that the Iodin Ration, pamphlet available on request if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope, has restored some of the original color to their graying hair. All I can promise is that it can do no harm in any case and may improve general health and spirits in many cases, whether the hair is turning gray or not.

Salesmen canvassing this community say that food cooked in ware other than (the kind the salesmen sell) is apt to be poisonous and may cause ulcer or cancer . . . (R. J.)

Answer — At our house we have used aluminum kitchen ware since Topsy was a colt and we keep pretty well, thank you. The hired girl (my first wife) has taken a fancy to pretty copper cooking vessels in recent years. Then there are a few iron pots and pans and eke some battered old enamel kettles. Report the salesmen who hand out that line to your Better Business Bureau.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Employing the technique of sweet reasonableness, I was arguing a political matter with an old and cagey friend, when he suddenly put an end to the discussion:

"You are trying," he accused, "to remove one of my prejudices. I would sooner lose a tooth than a prejudice!"

And when you come to think of it, most of us would. Our prejudices are usually carefully collected. Some of them we have had for a long time. Some were handed down to us, as family heirlooms. Like old hats or old boots, a few of them are pretty battered, and there is little excuse for us hanging onto them. About the only thing we can say is, we like them: they are comfortable.

The dictionary gives two rather diverse definitions of prejudice. The first is: an unfavorable opinion or feeling formed beforehand, or without knowledge, thought or reason. The second is: any preconceived opinion, favorable or unfavorable.

Both definitions suggest that the opinion in a prejudice is instinctive, ready-made, unstudied. At that rate, the world should be full of prejudice, and reasonably so. There was a time, maybe up until a couple of hundred years ago, when prejudice could be condemned. Those were the days when education was so limited, books so few, and facts and information therefore so available to anybody who cared to have an opinion, that there was little excuse for prejudice in anybody's mind.

Today, due to the enormous clouds of books and education, information and so-called facts which rain, snow, sleet and pelt us all, from one year's end to the other, it would be impossible not to form, or to accept, preconceived opinions, without knowledge, thought or reason, and whether favorable or unfavorable. Popular education, it was thought, would eliminate prejudice. Mechanically, it couldn't help but do the opposite. The more there is to be known, the less we can know.

APPROVE MAXIMUM PRICE

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP) — The Ontario Milk Control Board today approved a maximum price of 22 cents a quart for standard bottled milk in the Huntsville, Gravenhurst and Bracebridge markets. The order becomes effective Dec. 15.

As in Toronto, milk in cardboard containers will cost 23 cents.

In the Milton market, standard milk prices will be 21 cents a quart bottled, 22 cents in containers, pints will be 12 and 13 cents.

Maximum prices for the Bloomfield market were set at 18 cents a quart and 10 cents. No cardboard containers are used there.

Phil Carr, Stirling, Advocates Cheese Factory Amalgamation To Hoist Workers' Incomes

Further amalgamation of cheese factories to provide larger manufacturing units and thus enable cheese makers to work all year at their trade, was advocated at the annual meeting of the Hastings County Cheese Producers' Association held Tuesday at Stirling.

In advancing the suggestion, Phil Carr of Stirling stated that insufficient milk was being sent to cheese factories, with the result that makers were uable to earn enough money during the making season. As a result, they were forced to accept "off-season" employment to augment their incomes.

Mr. Carr also said that cheese factories should demand that patrons remain with the factory throughout the entire making season instead of starting when they like and breaking off whenever they saw an opportunity of realizing more for their milk on a market other than cheese.

He said that refusal to accept the milk of a late starting patron should be the penalty for producers who otherwise had sufficient milk to send when the factory opened.

The meeting was well attended but was not quite as enthusiastic as that of last year when the provincial producers' association came in for considerable criticism due to the 1950 cheese contract with Great Britain.

On the other hand this year there was a unanimous vote of commendation to the marketing board for its marketing scheme during 1951.

Charles E. Harkness, provincial president of the producers' association, reviewed the year's program while Secretary Charles N. Heath also spoke on the marketing board.

E. M. Biggs, dairy commissioner for Ontario, attended the meeting, the first producers' meeting since his appointment. He spoke in favor of milk pooling and said this would come in Ontario. "It might be two years or it might be 10 years but it will eventually come" he said.

He felt that pooling of milk was a good thing and said "it was the only fair way."

W. E. Bateman, president of the county producers, also referred to the direction of milk. He said the producers' association was unable at this date to give producers any accurate estimate of what next year's price for cheese might be. He said the marketing board lacked information as to the possible cheese production for next year and thus were unable to estimate what the exportable surplus might be.

Other speakers at the meeting included Roscoe Robson, M.L.A. for Hastings East; and cheese instructors, George Pollard, Stirling; J. M. Wilkinson, Tweed, and William Moore, Campbellford.

W. E. Bateman was re-elected as president of the county association with J. Nickle of Madoc being returned as vice-president. Bert Finkle resigned as secretary and Berson Mitts of Holloway was appointed as his successor. George McCullough is auditor.

Township directors are: Sidney, Sam Nicolson; Thurlow, Cecil Ketcheson; Tyendinaga Earl K. Whiteman; Rawdon, J. W. Morrison; Huntingdon, Morley Haggerty; Hungerford, Harry Coulter; Marmora, John A. Bell; Madoc, Allan Ketcheson; Elzevir, Jas. A. Moore.

Hennigan Rush, of Stoco, was named representative to the Hastings County Agricultural Committee.

WALLBRIDGE

W. M. S. and W. A. Hold Combined Candlelight Service

Wallbridge — W.A. and W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. W. Neelands. Mrs. J. Sine, president, opened the W.A. meeting. Mr. Harry Phillips read the scripture from Matthew 1:1-11.

A beautiful Christmas reading was then given and a poem was read, "What if Nobody Gave and Nobody Cared." "Silent Night" was sung closing the meeting.

The W.M.S. meeting followed, Mrs. Sam Nicolson presided with Mrs. Edgar Lane at the piano. Quiet music was played. The meeting took the form of a carol service with the president as leader.

Candles Lighted

The hymns of different nations were sung, the first carol being a Jewish carol with Mrs. James Sine lighting the candles of goodwill and friendship for the Jews of Canada, the race of which Christ was born. Mrs. B. Harnman lighted the candles during the singing of "Twas in the Moon of Winter-time" for the friendship and goodwill for the Indians throughout Canada. Then the French carol was sung "O Come All Ye Faithful", with Mrs. Hudson Ketcheson lighting the candles for the French in Canada. Mrs. Cecil lighted the candles while singing the German carol "Away in a Manger." A Polish carol "Infant Holy, Infant Lowly", was sung and Mrs. Harry Phillips lighted the candles for all Polish people across Canada.

The last carol, a Canadian carol, "Gentle Mary Laid Her Child", was sung and Mrs. Neelands lighted a tall candle for Canada speaking these words, I light the candle of, Christian Love. "To obey the command of Jesus, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. This truly is to keep Christmas. Love can speak a language all nationalities can understand."

Mrs. S. Nicolson read scripture lesson, Luke 2.29-32; after all repeated the "Ten Commandments" in unison, the president closed this part of the meeting.

During the business meeting it was decided to hold an afternoon tea in the church hall, also the travelling apron will be sent in, patches removed and money counted. Rev. W. Neelands closed the meeting.

WOLF SHOT NEAR OSHAWA

Oshawa, Dec. 13 (CP)—A 60-pound wolf, first seen in the Oshawa area in 35 years, was bagged near here Tuerday by Bill Nemis, district farmer.

W. M. S. Elects 1952 Officers

The Christmas meeting of the W.M.S. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. L. W. Scott, on Thursday last with 29 adults and three children in attendance. Mrs. D. Hinchey presided at the piano.

The president welcomed the guests and members, expressing pleasure at the number present; especially those associate members. She also thanked the officers and group leaders for their fine work through the year.

Letters of thanks were read from Mrs. Fred Melborne for the card she received during her stay in Belleville hospital, and Mrs. Walter Morden at the time of her sister's death. Mrs. Sam Elliott expressed her thanks for the card received at her brother's death.

The treasurer's report showed $90 sent in with $109 on hand and $243.13 raised during 1951. Several donations of cash were thankfully received. Mrs. Russel Wescott reported for the card fund a balance of cash totalling $8.97. Both of these reports are not complete for the year until the receipts are added. Mrs. Everett Stratton reported for the nominating committee and read the list of officers.

Mrs. Frank Doxtator, group leader, then took charge of the Christmas program. The beautiful carol and candle lighting service as given in the Missionary Monthly was followed: Mrs. Gammon lit the first candle for the Jews of Canada, the race into which Christ was born. Mrs. Scott sang a solo, an "Indian Christmas Carol", which was followed by the friendship candle for the Canadian Indians, lit by Mrs. Arthur Houston.

After a Christmas hymn was sung, Mrs. Earle Thompson lit a candle with good-will and friendship for the French Canadians, and the hymn "Away in a Manger", was sung in unison. Mrs. Damon Hinchey then lit the candle for the people of Europe who have come to Canada. This was followed by Mrs. Scott rendering another solo, "Infant Holy". Mrs. Orval Stratton lit a candle for the Dutch, Polish and many nationalities who are newcomers to Canada. The largest candle, that of Christian love was then lit by Mrs. Everett Stratton, who also read a poem "Love Came Down at Christmas".

A poster with pictures at the back of a small table formed a fine background for the lighted candles which were left burning as they served for seasonal decorations.

The Rev. L. W. Scott dismissed the meeting, following which, refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, and a social time enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Stanley MacDonald, on January 3rd.

The following officers will hold office for 1952: president, Mrs. L. W. Scott; 1st vice-president, Mrs. C. Wood; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. F. Doxtator; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. W. Houston; treasurer, Mrs. E. Stratton; pianist, Mrs. D. Hinchey; recording and corresponding secretary and press secretary, Mrs. W. D. Robertson; Missionary Monthly secretary, Miss Sara Stickney; supply secretary, Mrs. D. Hinchey; associate helpers and community secretary, Mrs. S. Elliott; temperance secretary, Mrs. J. F. McFarlane; flower committee: Mrs. R. Wescott and Mrs. K. R. Vivian; Mission Band leaders: Mrs. Stanley MacDonald, Mrs. Earle Thompson and Mrs Archie Greatrix; Baby Band leaders, Mrs. D. Hinchey, Mrs. J. Hinchey; group leaders, Mrs. Charles Wood, Mrs. K. R. Vivian, Mrs. F. Doxtator, Mrs. Earle Thompson and Mrs. Gerald Stratton.

WEDDINGS

CLARKE—FOX

Grace United Church parsonage, Trenton, beautifully decorated with yellow and white 'mums was the setting for the double-ring wedding ceremony on Saturday, December 1st., between Dorothy Olive, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Fox, Wooler Road, and Robert Norman Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Clarke, of Belleville. Officiating clergyman was the Rev. G. A. Puttenham.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her ballerina length gown of azure blue silk velvet, fashioned with bracelet length sleeves, fitted bodice with self-toned buttons from neckline to waist, and Peter Pan collar, matching hat with blue veil falling in soft folds to the back hairline, azure mittens, navy suede and gabardine shoes. Her corsage was of two mauve orchids with silver hearts and lace. A double strand of pearls and single pearl earrings completed the ensemble. She carried a white Bible with white marker.

Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Pearl Fox, in a matching gown of royal blue silk velvet with grey accessories and corsage of cream roses. She wore a single strand of pearls and single pearl earrings.

Mr. Eugene Carswell of Trenton, was groomsman.

Fifty-four guests assembled at the Golden Acre Inn, Belleville, where the reception was held. The bride's mother in British blue romaine crepe with navy accessories, corsage of red roses and feathered carnations, received the guests. Assisting her were the groom's mother, gowned in black net with moon gold accessories, and corsage of red roses, and the bride's only aunt, Mrs. E. Slingerland of Frankford, who wore cocoa brown tissue faille, with brown accessories and corsage of yellow pom-pom 'mums and roses.

After a delicious turkey dinner was enjoyed by the guests, the three-tier wedding cake was cut. Between each tier of the cake mirrors on plastic ornamental stands and an ornament with roses and ferns on top made a beautiful picture. Toasts were given to the bride by Mr. Clarke, Sr., to the groom by Mr. R. Ashman, to the mothers by Mr. John Clarke, of Toronto, and to the bridesmaid by Mr. E. A. Carswell. Mr. Ted Slingerland replied for the mothers.

Guests from out-of-town were from North Bay, Toronto, Ottawa, Havelock, Swan River, Manitoba, Belleville and Trenton.

'Mrs. Santa Claus' Is Toronto Woman Mrs. Albert Pancott

Toronto — (CP) — Mrs. Santa Claus is a cheerful 63-year-old Toronto woman who will begin working on toys for Christmas, 1952, the minute Christmas, 1951, is over.

She is Mrs. Albert Pancott, who has been making children happy with dolls and candy ever since the 1890's. This year 500 needy children will receive her output, begun the day after last Christmas.

Mrs. Pancott started her life's work when she was eight, and living in Buffalo. Her brother, Mason Brayman, one day brought home a batch of empty cigar boxes.

"He started to make some children's toys with these boxes," says Mrs. Pancott. "It was wonderful to see how the kids loved to get them under the tree — that started me and I helped him."

Mason died in 1895 but Mrs. Santa Claus has been keeping up his good work ever since.

Months before Christmas she is sewing and glueing, cooking and wrapping. Before the first snow her home is crammed with gifts.

Mr., Mrs. P.B. Hamilton Celebrate Their 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Hamilton, of Mountain View, were recently "at home" to their relatives and friends on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

The spacious home was most attractive with golden carnations, white azaleas, wedding bells and streamers, while a gaily be-ribboned umbrella lent a festive air and added a silent welcome.

Receiving the guests with Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, was their daughter, Miss Pearl Hamilton, while the little granddaughter, Elizabeth Hamilton was in charge of the guest book.

In the den, amid a beautiful display of gifts, was a doll dressed in exact replica of the bride of 50 years ago, while Miss Dorothy Hamilton, of Napanee, modelled the wedding gown worn by her grandmother at her wedding.

Those assisting in the dining room during the afternoon and evening were, Mrs. Ed. Blake, Mrs. Stanley Barber, Mrs. Clarke Sprung, Mrs. Bill Stanton, Miss Dorothy Hamilton, Mrs. William Hamilton and Mrs. Walter Hamilton.

Among the more than 100 guests who came to offer congratulations and to extend to Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton their best wishes, were, Mrs. Fred Faulkner, of Stirling, formerly Miss Sarah Eggleton, and Mr. Clarke Brintnell of Latta, who were the bridal attendants at the wedding ceremony at Eggleton Methodist Church.

Following their wedding there, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton made their home in Prince Edward County, residing in Massassaga and later moving to Mountain View, where they have lived for the past 35 years.

They have two daughters, Mrs. Ed. (Mary) Henline, of Coutts, Alberta, and Miss Pearl Hamilton, of Mountain View. Four sons: Messrs. Frank of Falun, Alberta; Bill, of Napanee; Walter, of Belleville, and Seymour at home. They have 11 grandchildren.

The community extend to Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton sincere wishes for many more years of happiness together.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society met on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. H. Mantle in the chair. The Christmas Spirit prevailed in the singing and in the Scripture reading which was given by Mrs. Beavis.

This meeting was a check-up on the year's activities and all reports were read. Mrs. Parsons started with the secretary's annual report showing ten meetings, with two executive meetings.

Plants, flowers and cards were sent to shut-ins during the year. A tea was held at the home of Mrs. Pigden; toys for the bale as well as clothing; a cheque for a student, were received, also cakes and ice cream were donated for entertaining the O.S.D. children.

Over 110 visits were made. The Glad Tidings secretary has 78 members and would like many more. The C.G.I.T. gave a most interesting and varied report.

The allocation will be met. The installation of officers was observed and dedicated by Mrs. Hornsby. All are most thankful to be in a position to help with this work and hope next year's meeting will bring along with it Peace on Earth.

WOOLER W.M.S.

On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Bert McColl opened her home, for the December meeting of the Afternoon Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society, Wooler. Thirty-two ladies motored out to Mrs. McColl's home to enjoy her hospitality and the Christmas program.

The president, Mrs. E. McMaster, opened the meeting with prayer and conducted the business. Mrs. D. Jenners invited the auxiliary to her home for the January meeting when reports will be given and officers installed. Mrs. R. Putnam and Mrs. F. A. Dorland offered to provide the refreshments while Mrs. J. J. Way will be in charge of the study book. Collection and birth day money were collected.

Mrs. S. L. Terrill was in charge of the candle-lighting service. Candles were lit by Mrs. Fred Peister, Mrs. D. Jenners, Mrs. C. McMaster, Mrs. M. Waite, Mrs. C. D. Cole and Mrs. J. J. Way. Vocal duets were rendered by Mrs. B. Vansicklin and Mrs. D. Jenners, also by Mrs. A. G. Austin and Mrs. Fletcher, while Mrs. Redcliffe sang "O Little Town of Bethlehem", in closing.

While refreshments were being prepared by Mrs. A. G. Austin, Mrs. E. McMaster, Mrs. J. J. Way and the hostess, the ladies visited the bazaar table which was in charge of Mrs. H. Gainforth and Mrs. L. Bryant.

Canon J.B. Creeggan Presents Officers With Gifts

The ladies of St. George's Guild served supper to their members and three guests at their closing meeting yesterday.

The head table was centred with 'mum and candles.

After supper Canon J. B. Creeggan presented gifts to the officers, Mrs. Welch, Mrs. Rowbotham and Mrs. Markle on behalf of the members.

Mrs. Welch made a short speech, thanking the ladies for their support and hoped that they would carry on in the same manner in the new year.

Canon J. B. Creeggan gave an inspiring address and closed the meeting.

Numbers were drawn and each person received a small gift. There were a few contests won by Mrs. Galpin, Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Button and Mrs. Gazely.

Euchre was enjoyed for the rest of the evening, the winners being: Mrs. Collyer, Mrs. Gazely and Mrs. Collins.

There were ten tables at the weekly euchre at St. George's Hall, Station Street on Monday. Winners were, ladies', Mrs. Collyer, Mrs. Markle and Mrs. Collyer; lone hands, men, Mr. R. Fozard, Mr. M. [illegible] and Mr. W. MacKay. Lucky chair prize went to Miss M. Dean.

Kinettes to Obtain 200 Blood Donors

A truly Christmas spirit prevailed at the regular monthly meeting of the Kinette Club held at St. Thomas' Parish House, last Monday.

It was a gala evening with beautiful Christmas decorations, Kinette entertainment, a fireplace and Santa himself with a gift for each Kinette and the ladies of St. Thomas' Guild, who are so appreciated by the Kinettes.

Sergeant-at-Arms was Lee Beare and song leaders and entertainers, Gertrude Gourley, Margaret Hallam and Eve Yanover.

Six guests were present and Kinette Agnes Walker introduced three of these as prospective members.

Mr. Len Fozard was introduced by Kinette Marion Harden as an outstanding performer of black magic and Kinette Ruth Follwell in thanking him stated that he certainly proved to one and all that the hand is quicker than the eye.

During the evening, Mr. Ted Follwell on behalf of the Red Cross Blood Donors' Clinic, introduced Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson and Mrs. A. S. Lewis. Mrs. Ketcheson asked if the Kinettes would be responsible in securing 200 names every two months as blood donors to the clinic. The Kinette Club unanimously agreed to undertake this important work.

PATIENTS NOT ALARMED

Oshawa, Dec. 13 (CP) — A fire in the basement of the Oshawa General Hospital sent up clouds of smoke but firemen made sure patients weren't unduly alarmed. The firemen shut off their siren a few blocks from the hospital, worked quietly and left the same way.

British Children Have Strong Ideas On Movie Types

Brighton, England — (CP) — Children have pretty definite ideas on what "Mum" and "Dad" should look like in films, says Mary Field, Britain's expert on children's movies.

Film fathers should be "six feet tall, handsome, under 30 and good at everything," while Mum is young and pretty — "but not glamorious or soppy-looking."

Miss Field, addressing an audience of teachers, said that what children most dislike is middle-age. Their ideal screen grown-ups must be young, virile and competent — or genuinely elderly and endearing.

Another definite ideal is their screen policeman. He must never be comic or ridiculous. They prefer young, daring types.

Tuberculosis Turned to Account By Indian Girl

Gravenhurst, Ont. — (CP) — Jane Mark, 24, an Indian girl, gained hope for the future when she contracted tuberculosis.

Jane was working as a domestic at Moose Factory when she became ill. She was brought to the Muskoka Hospital here for treatment.

After a few months' rest she began to seek something concrete to do. She began studying, completed her public school education and took a stenographer's course.

Now she works as a part-time secretary for Dr. G. D. Richardson, one of the hospital's doctors and keeps school records for the more than 200 patients studying at the hospital.

Jane has not yet decided whether she will stay on to work at the hospital or go elsewhere Whatever she does, her future now is wider and brighter for the training she has received.

ELECTED PRESIDENT

Bern, Switzerland Dec. 13 — (Reuters) —Karl Kobelt was today elected president of Switzerland for 1952. Kobelt, who succeeds Eduard Von Steiger, will assume office Jan. 1.

INDEPENDENCE PROCLAIMED

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 13 — (AP)— The independence of Libya will be proclaimed next Saturday, the Arab news agency reported yesterday from Benghazi. The dispatch received here said Dec. 15 was announced officially as the date for the formal transformation of the former Italian colony in North Africa into an independent country. Libya's independence was decided by a vote of the United Nations which specified it should reach that status by January 19.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Shall she leave her husband after 20 years?

Twenty years is a long time to let an unpleasant situation ride without doing anything decisive to try and better it. Especially when the factor that's making the situation unpleasant is a husband with whom a wife is in constant friction.

Unfortunately, of course, many women with what they consider "problem husbands" apparently think they are doing something when they scold and nag and quarrel in an attempt to shove the man forcibly into mending his annoying ways. But scolding is rarely effective and hardly ever settles anything. Nor do tears and pleading often get a person anywhere. All such things usually do little but make the husband angry and resentful—and so, more difficult than ever. Some sort of definite action, taken in an adult way without childish hysterics, is almost invariably necessary to solve a knotty marital problem.

Such action does not necessarily mean leaving the difficult husband. Sometimes it simply means that the wife should revise her own program and adopt a new one. I think the dissatisfied wife who writes me that she has been married for 20 years and in all that time she and her husband have never agreed on much of anything, needs to decide which course of action—to leave him or to revise her own program—would be most likely to solve her problem. And it's too bad that 20 years have come and gone without her seeing the wisdom of making such a decision.

Not a Happy Atmosphere

Constant bickering over everything, both small and large matters, certainly does not produce an atmosphere in which a happy marriage can live and flourish. And yet this wife must get some sort of satisfaction out of her marriage, for while she says she thinks she would be happier without her husband, she evidently can't quite bring herself to leave him. In fact, she seems to be desperately casting about for some alternative that would make leaving him unnecessary. This I read into the final sentence of her letter, which says: "I don't think I should continue would like to have your opinion." living with my husband, but I

Now if this woman's mind is as made up as it seems to be when she declares flatly that she doesn't think she ought to stay with her husband, then all she wants from me, I suppose, is an opinion which would back up the decision she has already made. In other words, she would like me to say something that would justify her, in her own eyes, in abandoning him. Then she could walk off with a clear conscience. But if, as may be the case when she seeks another opinion before walking out, she is secretly hoping for some suggestion that might possibly show her how to work things out between the two of them, it's another story. If the latter is true, then my idea would be that she might consider what I have already mentioned above—reconstructing her own program of living to see if that might help.

For what it may be worth to her, this is my idea of any experimental program for herself. She might set a time limit—say six months or even a year—to carry it out and determine whether or not it was accomplishing anything.

Outside Activities

During that period, instead of concentrating on her troubles, and keeping herself and her husband in an emotional dither about them, she should interest herself in activities outside her home. She might even take some sort of job which would keep her away from home enough so that she could get completely outside the problem for a certain number of hours every day; that would give her something different to think about and talk about. She says she is a "nervous wreck", but it might well be that, if she took on some interesting work, it would help her nervous condition very much, since undoubtedly a good deal of it is due to intense preoccupation with her troubles.

Any woman who genuinely wants to change her mode of life, and her ways of thought, can usually do so. No matter how small the town in which she lives, there are things she can do with and for those around her that will make her life rich and full. Let her open her eyes to the opportunities, use her head, her heart and her imagination, and she will find that she grows gradually happier in spite of herself. Which may prove the most effectual thing that could happen to turn the trend of her home life.

Fashion Flashes

WE DON'T know if it indicates a trend, but at several high-level showings we have noted suits with fitted jackets that are almost of tunic length. Many are made with a one-button closing and are worked on strictly tailored lines.

JUST RIGHT under brown furs are those new resort-style suits fashioned of fine woollens, silky gabardines and very soft tweeds in such shades as rose or coral pink, mauve or lilac, lemon yellow or gold. Perfect, come Spring!

A NEW TWIST in accessories is the scarf-veil. It consists of a face veil with two 18-inch scarfs attached to the back. Some are plain, but others are appliqued with tiny motifs in rhinestones, pearls and velvet, and come in several colors. Should show up in stores later on.

WORTH WORKING for a slim figure, so that one can wear the princess line, a silhouette that is youthful and charming. Yellow printed silk twill is the fabric of a new resort dress. The short-sleeved bodice is draped to a rounded line on either side of a deep V which flows into the slim midriff. The back is also draped and falls into soft folds to the high waist. The skirt, flaring from the midriff, is moderately full.

Christmas Cookies

By Mary Moore

(With apologies to my charming reader-friends who help me out in a dozen different ways. Anyway, I don't mean a word of it—well—maybe one word.)

You wrecked my plans. Both of my heads ache. (If I had only one head I don't see how it could hurt so much.)

I feel as if I have pleaded with you to let me know early what recipes you were likely to want and if you wanted quick replies to send self-addressed envelopes. The only thing you didn't do was to send your requests to me early enough. Remember—I have to have room to get my two cents' worth in somewhere here, and I wanted to give you nifty ways of handling the same old vegetables to make them flavorful and beautiful enough even for Christmas dinner.

But you want cookies, and "the customer is always right." Who thought of that in the first place anyway?

There—one of my headaches is better.

Pete says these are the best cookies ever invented. I didn't invent them so it is no credit to me—although I must modestly admit I think this recipe is an improvement on the original one I worked from.

LEBKUCHEN

One lb. strained honey, 2 cups brown sugar, 1-4 cup water, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1-2 lb. blanched and shredded almonds, about 8 cups flour, 1-4 lb. mixed lemon and orange peel shredded, 1-4 teaspoon each ground cloves and nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 eggs.

Boil together the honey and sugar for 5 minutes, not too hard. Cool. Sift the flour with the soda and spices, add them to the honey mixture, stir in, then add the eggs, almonds and peels and work into a loaf. Cover well and let stand 3 days to ripen in a cold place. Work it again, add a little flour if you think it is too soft to handle. Roll out on floured board to one-quarter inch thickness and cut into bars 1 x 3 inches. Bake on greased cookie sheet at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes. When baked and cold cover with transparent icing made by mixing 1 cup icing sugar with 5 teaspoons boiling water and 1-4 teaspoon lemon extract. These keep perfectly for weeks and weeks.

SCOTCH SHORTBREAD
(Genuine Recipe)

Three-quarters lb. butter, 8 ounces powdered sugar, 1 pound bread flour. Cream the butter, and add gradually while beating constantly the sugar, then work in the flour, using the hands. Now either press into small shortbread pans or roll out on lightly floured board and cut out into leaves, ovals, squares, Christmas trees, etc., to make cookies about one- quarter inch thick. Bake on ungreased sheets at 300 deg. Fahr. These do not brown—nor rise. They are done when you can make a scratching sound on the top when you touch them with your finger nail.

KIPFERL

One-half cup butter or margarine, 3-4 cup powdered sugar, 3 egg yolks, 3-4 cup ground blanched almonds, 2 1-4 cups sifted flour, 1-8 teaspoon salt. Work the shortening until creamy then gradually beat in the sugar until both are very light and airy. Beat in yolks. Add almonds, flour and salt and mix well. Shape small pieces of the dough into crescents the size of a pencil but only 2 1-2 inches long, tapered at the end. Bake on buttered cookie sheet at 375 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes. Keep well if kept cold.

SWEDISH COOKIES

One cup butter, 1-2 cup sugar, 2 egg yolks slightly beaten, 2 cups flour, 2 unbeaten egg whites, 1 1-2 cup ground nuts—either almonds, walnuts or black walnuts. Cream the butter, then cream the sugar into it well. Add yolks, beat well, then stir in flour. Form this dough into 3-4 inch balls in the buttered palms, drop into the unbeaten whites, then drop into the bowful of ground nuts. Lift these balls out onto greased cookie sheet, press to 1-4 inch thickness with bottom of a tumbler. Bake 5 minutes at 300 deg. Fahr. then remove from oven to make a depression in centre of each cookie with your big finger or a thimble. Bake about 15 minutes longer but do not let these brown. Fill depression with wild raspberry jam—about 1-2 teaspoon, or other choice jam or jelly. These keep well too, but must be cool.

Now my face is red. I have just been looking over some of last month's copy and find I promised you "more cookie recipes during December". Even if I am an old grouch they are wonderful cookies.

GOOD MANNERS

(By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman)

Gifts for shut-ins. . .to be given with the real spirit of Christmas

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have several relatives and friends who are shut-ins . This year, instead of sending presents to the ones who live in town, my husband and I have decided that it would show more thoughtfulness if we take our presents (via our car) to them on Christmas Day. Have you some suggestions for gifts we could take?

Roberta M.

A deep bow to you and your husband for this good thought . . . .bless you! A delight to a shut-in is a sea-garden in a glass aquarium; you can get artistically-arranged ones in various sizes. Or a gold-fish aquarium, to "sparkle" vividly. Or a lovely framed picture or print of a subject you know is a favorite with your relatives or friend. Records (perhaps one a Christmas hymn) are a enchanting gift. Or a white glass vase, or pottery container, filled with branches of glistening lily leaves, so popular now, for they thrive for months.

A lingerie pillow. . . a pillow-rest . . .warm bed-socks . . .a quilted robe or bed-jacket, are all comforting gifts. A newspaper-or-book stand. Or take a card registering a subscription to a newspaper or magazine, or to a book club. Or Christmas foods; a jar or box or basket of home-made cookies, dates or figs, plain or stuffed, a fruit cake or pudding, various kinds of jams or jellies. A festive bunch of glistening holly with other Christmas greens. A long-lasting Christmas candle—white or red or green, plain or decorated. Or, very welcome, an attractive and sturdy bag, to be hung on a chair or bed, convenient to hold book, handkerchief, glasses-case and the like. May Good Fortune shine on your Christmas Pilgrimages to the homes of these shut-ins who so much need your gentle thoughts for their happiness.

Fiance's parents generally give fiancee engagement gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son's engagement is to be announced soon, at a dinner to be given by the parents of his fiancee. I have been told that I must give an engagement gift to the girl, and that I also have to send flowers. Is that so?

Mother

Although it is not absolutely necessary for you to give an engagement present to your son's fiancee, it is quite customary for the fiance's parents to make this pleasant and generous gesture. This present is something personal for the engaged girl, perhaps an article for her personal trousseau. In other words, it is something for her, not, like the wedding present, something for 'their' new home. You may also send the girl flowers on the occasion of the dinner, but this isn't a must or even customary. (Your son would undoubtedly plan to send a corsage to his fiancee for her to wear on this important occasion of the engagement-announcement.)

How to address Christmas cards to minister and wife

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How should I address the envelope of our Christmas card to our minister and his wife? (He's a "Dr.")

Grace B.

Address the envelope to:
The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. John Goode
(Important Note: Be sure to write "The" before "Rev.".)

Gifted Violinist Started as Child On Music Career

Toronto. (CP) —Betty-Jean Hagen has fudge-brown hair with matching eyes. And she can't remember when music wasn't "a part of my life".

At 21, this tall—she's five feet 7 1-2 inches—Edmonton-born violinist has behind her more successful concerts than many a musician twice her age. Now she is starting a two-month tour of Europe.

This isn't her first visit overseas. In London and Paris she is due to play in halls where she has appeared before. Paris she particularly remembers because it was there last June that she won the coveted Pathe Marconi prize for 1951. She was the first Canadian to do so.

"The entrants came from all over the world and there were 15 or so judges," she said in a recent interview. "Competition was very keen and French audiences are quick to show whether or not they like the performer."

How does a musician get started? At 3, Betty-Jean was hiding behind the swing-doors in the family living-room imitating her older brother as he practised his singing.

"I couldn't speak very well but I got the rhythm," she recalled.

Concentrated on Violin

A couple of years later she was winning prizes at Alberta Music festivals—for her singing. But by the time she was 10 she began to find studies which included piano and violin lessons a little too strenuous. She gave up the piano and turned her attention to the violin.

Betty-Jean has all kinds of regrets—for the things she would like to do but hasn't been able to find the time.

She likes dancing and confesses she was never interested in jazz music until she learned to "understand" it in modern dancing.

She likes to paint but there has only been time for that when illness has prevented her from playing.

"When I used to be laid up with chicken-pox or something as horrible I would get out my brush and paints and go to it," she said. "I was in my hey-day."

Riding is a favorite sport and she's looking forward to some of that perhaps next summer, engagement-book permitting.

Cooking and sewing? She has not had much time for the former but has found it "lots of fun" when she has tried it. She prefers to leave any sewing to her mother although she likes designing clothes.

As for marriage, that will have to wait.

"Oh yes, I have thought of it," she admits. "But there's still lots of time and I am still very young—and there is so much to do."

Women's Activities

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

The Christmas meeting of Marsh Hill W.M.S., was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Campbell with ten members and four visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Grace Bartindale, opened the meeting with the call to worship.

Mrs. Frank Finkle gave the report of the nominating committee which was as follows, president to be appointed later; 1st vice-president, Miss Mae Currie; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Allyn Finkle: treasurer, Mrs. Walter Lindenfield; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. Finkle; recording secretary, Mrs. L. Finkle; stewardship, Mrs. B. R. Searles; community friendship, Mrs. A. Tanner; supply secretary, Mrs. David Hollinger; associate members' secretary, Mrs. B. Mitts; literature secretary, Miss May Currie; Christian citizenship, Mrs. F. Campbell; Baby Band leader, Mrs. G. Bartindale; pianist, Mrs. B. Mitts.

Mrs. Fred Campbell, program convener, was in charge of the program, which opened with quiet music by Mrs. B. Mitts.

Mrs. H. Giffin presented the flannelgraph story of the "Birth of Christ" interspersed with scripture readings by Mrs. Bartindale, Mrs. Lindenfield and Mrs. L. Finkle and Christmas carols.

"I Want to Learn to Plow", and "The Fun of Being a Missionary", by Dr. S. Gilchrist, a missionary in Africa, were read by Mrs. Giffin.

Mrs. Denton, of Belleville, Christian Stewardship secretary, of the Belleville Presbyterial, was present and was called upon to speak to the W.M.S. Mrs. Denton asked, "Are we wasting our talents or are we using them for God's work? Are we giving to God's work as we should. All things are God's and only lent to us to use for Him but are we willing to give Him what is His own to help them."

The carol service from the Monthly was followed with Mrs. F. Finkle, Mrs. A. Tanner, Mrs. L. Finkle, Mrs. B. P. Searles, Mrs. B. Mitts, Mrs. E. B. Finkle assisting the leader, Mrs. Campbell.

Following the benediction, the hostess served refreshments.

WEST HUNTINGDON W.M.S. AND W.A.

The West Huntingdon United Church W.M.S. and W.A., held their Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. Elmer Post, on Thursday last.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. William Grant. Call to Worship—poem read by Mrs. W. Grant, entitled, "If Christ Had Not Been Born on Christmas Day".

Business was taken care of by the president.

The Scripture reading was taken from St. Luke 2:7-20, followed by carol singing including, "O Little Town of Bethlehem", "Away in a Manger", "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night", "Infant Holy, Infant Lowly".

A story was read by Mrs. John Jeffrey, "Christmas Vision", and one read by Mrs. William Grant, called "And The Bells Shall Ring".

A poem read by Mrs. William Grant entitled "Christmas Day".

Social half hour was spent and refreshments were served by the hostess and her helpers.

STONE CHURCH MISSION BAND

Stone Church Mission Band was held at the Mapleview School, on Friday afternoon, with the president, Francis Tucker, presiding.

The Christmas worship service from the "World Friends", was used to open the meeting after which the offering taken up by Eleanor Neelands and Carl Twiddy, was received and dedicated.

The secretary, Anna Gray, read the minutes of the last meeting and these were accepted as read. The treasurer, Sandra Read, gave a fine report and the Mission Band have $21 to send to Missions. Arrangements were made for the next meeting and a few other business items were discussed.

After the singing of a song by the school, Mrs C. W. Neelands told a Christmas S[illegible] which was enjoyed. Shirley Chisholm sang a solo.

After the meeting was closed, Clayton Benedict distributed the "World Friends".

Choice Fur Fabrics Popular In London

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London. (CP)—Five new materials with definite party appeal are a popular festive choice with London's Christmas shoppers.

They are ermaleen, minkaleen, oceleen, pershnelle and beaverleen— new fur-fabric materials that look so good they are walking advertisements for the skins from which they take their name.

It would be impossible, except at close quarters, to tell whether a toque beret, cravat and muff of white ermaleen, worn with a slim black suit, was not the real thing. Yet this threesome costs only £20 14s., can be bought separately, and has an undeniable Mayfair look.

Moderate Costs

No garment made from these fabrics costs more than £25, and the appearance is striking and glamorous. A lovely contrast to black cocktail and evening gowns is the tuxedo jacket of white ermaleen with wide, tight-cuffed bell sleeves and swagger styling. Its close resemblance to ermine is heightened by a fringing of black-tipped tails to the scarf-tie neckline.

A tail-fringed minkaleen stove styled to resemble zilverblu mink will add glamor to that slinky, new cocktail dress with bare neckline—at the moderate cost of £11. And a white ermaleen stole would go well with a black velvet cocktail suit.

A pretty off-set for some of the new royal purples and honey golds is an elegant black, sling-sleeved cape of pershnelle—looking for all the world like black Persian lamb and costing only £18.

Useful for afternoon and evening wear are the waisted, sling-sleeved boleros of silverblu minkaleen, equally effective with wool suit and dresses and sequined, crinolined evening gowns.

For those who like the piquant French look, an oceleen waistcoat muff and beret can be combined with tight-skirted suit having lapel and pocket braiding.

Although fur imitations have been tried many times, the worst offenders being ocelot and leopard fabrics, the latest weaves are the best of their kind yet to hit the market. Finest example is the black pershnelle, and white ermaleen runs an easy second.

The materials are especially useful for linings of travel coats and rainproofs. They mean warmth without excessive price.

Club Activities

CARMEL Y. A. G.

Carmel—Carmel Young Adult Group met in the church on Friday evening, Gladys and Carmen Dafoe were in charge of the program.

The worship service opened with quiet music. The scripture reading was given by Clayton Ritz.

An interesting paper entitled "Christianity at Home" was given by Gladys Dafoe. Coza Ritz read a poem.

The president Clayton Ritz, took charge of the business. A letter of appreciation from Mrs. Fred Barlow and family was read by Iva Horton. It was decided to have a Christmas service on Sunday evening. Mr. J. Churchill, of Foxboro, showed three educational films after which Carmen Dafoe, on behalf of the group, expressed appreciation to Mr. Churchill.

The Adult Group decided to join the film circuit. Mona Robinson gave a reading entitled "Life." Coza Ritz gave a reading, entitled "A Soldier's Prayer Book."

Refreshments were served.

Blind Girls Able To Demonstrate Make-up Skill

Montreal — (CP) — Do you think you could put your make-up on and set your hair in the dark and still be confident of your grooming?

Well, there's a group of young blind women and girls in Montreal who, in effect, do just that and who can put most women who have the advantage of sight to shame when it comes to "putting a new face on."

Recently the group staged a make-up demonstration. Seated in front of little tables covered with all the paraphernalia employed in the subtle art of gilding the human lily, each sightless woman did a perfect job on her own face and hair-do.

The only concession to their lack of sight was the addition of braille labels on the bottles and jars.

The skill of the group is the result of a unique make-up course given them by a beauty salon of a Montreal departmental store.

The salon girls had to prepare themselves to teach the blind, trying various methods on themselves in the dark and in doing so learned a lot about themselves.

They found the best way for a sightless person to apply rouge was as follows: With one finger of each hand take a dab of cream rouge, rub the fingers together to make sure each has an equal amount of color, then apply it first at a point at the top of the cheekbone, directly beneath the centre of the eye and work it out across the cheek.

But they didn't have to teach them to apply lipstick. They found that for some reason the blind women are more adept than they themselves are.

Scottish Girls Want Canadians For Husbands

London — (CP) — Two Scottish sisters want to know how to go about getting a Canadian husband.

The girls, both in their 20s, wrote to officials of Ontario House in London asking for help.

They said they wanted to get in touch with a "nice gentleman" preferably Canadian, with a view to marriage. They expressed a preference for "strong and healthy men, with reasonable intelligence and a sense of humor."

The girls identified themselves as J. Andrew, 21, and W. Andrew, 28, living at House O'Muir, Milton Bridge, Midlothian, Scotland. They said they have blue eyes and fair complexion.

TO CUT PRODUCTION

Washington, Dec. 13 — (AP)— Bicycle manufacturers told the government yesterday they may have to lay off 40,000 workers next year because reduced steel allotments will cut down their output. They said present allotments of steel for the first three months of 1952 will require a 50 per cent reduction of production. This could mean layoffs for about half of the 80,000 workers employed by the industry, the manufacturers said.

Life on Broadway Proves Profitable for Famous Gabors

New York — (AP) — Madame Jolite Gabor had a rude shock three days after she arrived on Broadway.

Her mink coat was stolen in a Times Square picture theatre. It was the only valuable possession which the Russians permitted her to carry away when they occupied her native Budapest.

The celebrated Gabors — Madame Jolie, mother of the three beauties, Magda (who designs jewelry), Eva (who is appearing in Broadway stage and television shows) and Sari (who is appearing in Hollywood movies and west coast television) — all have re-established themselves in the United States entertainment world since they lost their fortune, home and business to the Russians.

The girls and their mother, used to a luxurious life of ease in their native land, arrived on Broadway one by one, determined they had to work for everything they received.

"A person's greatest treasure is self-sufficiency," Mme. Gabor says. "A firm belief in himself and a capacity for hard work is necessary to develop one's talents. All we Gabors found it necessary to learn this after the Russians upset our way of life."

Mme. Gabor and Magda found Eva and Sari already well established here. Eva, acclaimed for her sexy performance in the Broadway comedy, "The Happy Time," was making rapid headway on television dramatic programs. Sister Sari had become the beautiful wife of movie actor George Sanders and was performing on her own video show. She will soon make her film debut in M.G.M.'s "Lovely To Look At."

RefusedAssistance

Mme. Gabor refused to accept any assistance from her well-established daughters. In her flight from Budapest she had learned to rely upon herself.

Once on Broadway she and Magda opened a small jewelry manufacturing shop and to this rendezvous came many noted stage and screen stars who had been guests in their Budapest mansion.

Madeleine Carroll and Gloria Vanderbilt have a collection of the Hungarian jewelry designed by Magda who has a system of her own.

"Using cultured pearls and green gems — some emeralds, others jade, I make my original designs," she explained. "Then I make copies of the imperial crown jewels of the Empress Maria Theresa."

Every afternoon the Gabor salon stops creating promptly at 4 p.m. That is when you can drop in for tea and cocktails. Attending these soirees recently have been Lana Turner, Lauren Bacall, Faye Emerson, Irene Dunn, Elizabeth Taylor and many other stars.

"It is all very nice, the Broadway," Magda said. "I will join my sisters on the stage this fall, but first I must complete all the jewel designs I have sketched. Our shop is so small that when we have more than one customer, they have to form a line."

WOMAN PAYS BILL

Muncie, Ind., Dec. 13 — (AP)— A Muncie laborer worried about his son's hospital bill, found more Christmas spirit than the holiday wreaths in a hospital's corridors yesterday. A well-dressed woman overheard the family trying to work out a way to pay the bill. His seven-year-old son had run up a $100 bill as a diphtheria patient, and was well enough to leave. Without so much as an exchange of names, hospital attendants said, the woman stepped up and paid the $100.

Indians, Eskimos Said Friendlier Than White Folk

Toronto — (CP) — White people can learn much about friendliness and gratitude from Indians and Eskimos, said Ella M. Roulston, matron of the new Indian hospital at Moose Factory, James Bay.

"They always have a smile for you and react happily to any little kindness you show them, especially the children," said Miss Roulston, a recent visitor to Toronto.

They are very devout people, too, she said. "They take their religion seriously, observe Sunday, for instance, far more strictly than do most Christians."

The hospital in the northerly outpost, 700 miles north of Toronto, is one of the most modern of its kind in Canada. It was built primarily for the James Bay and Hudson Bay districts. It is under the department of national health and welfare Indian services and located on an island about three miles from Moosonee.

About 85 per cent of the patients are tubercular. "The death rate among the Indians is very high, so we feel we have a great service to render in this field," Miss Roulston said.

Before going to her present post a year ago last October, she was assistant superintendent at the Scott Memorial Hospital, Seaforth, Ont. Previously she was in charge of rehabilitation at St. Hyacinthe, Que. D.V.A. hospital, also a supervisor at the Royal Edward Laurentian Hotel, St. Agathe des Monts, Que.

LIFE SPAN INCREASES

New York, Dec. 13 — (AP) — Negro and Indian length of life in the United States is increasing faster than the white life - span, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company said yesterday. But the colored races are still seven years short of the white life span. The latest figures, in the Metropolitan statistics give white women an expectation of 71½ years and white men only 65 and nine-tenths years.

Gets Rug, Plus $50 for Bagging Wolf

Bill Nemis of Oshawa, Ont., not only will collect $50 bounty for shooting this timber wolf, but he'll have a rug to present to his wife for Christmas. Bill shot the wolf four miles from the centre of Oshawa after it had been flushed by his hound, Prince. It was the first wolf seen in this industrial area in the memory of residents. —Central Press Canadian.

CAMPBELLFORD

Mishap Disrupts Traffic Lights At Campbellford

Campbellford—Motorists blinked, hardly believing their eyes here on Tuesday afternoon when they approached the intersection of Grand Road and Bridge streets. There were the traffic lights all right, but they were horizontal instead of vertical, and in the middle of the road.

A gravel truck driven by Cecil Hopkins had been parked at the curb, and when it started to pull away, the wheels skidded toward the curb, striking the standard on which the lights were. The iron pole went crashing to the ground, across the roadway with wires dangling, and the lights still working.

Fortunately, the post missed passing vehicles and school children. The driver warned pedestrians away from the live wires and the utilities men arrived to shut off the power.

Carr Creamery Again Captures Butter Honors

Campbellford — The chief creamery inspector for Ontario announced at the Ontario creamery convention that the Trent Valley Creameries of Campbellford, operated by H. N. Carr and Son, had again been successful in winning prizes for butter produced in 1951. Three prizes were won out of a possible four and an honorable mention was received in the fourth competition.

These competitions are based on every churning of butter manufactured during the production year. Every churning of butter manufactured in the year is inspected by the federal graders for flavor, workmanship and purity, and prizes are awarded to those creameries showing the highest standing on the year's production in these classes.

The Trent Valley Creameries received a total of 99.71 out of a possible 100 points.

The creamery began winning prizes for butter in 1927 and has continued to win prizes each year. One year, at the International Dairy Exposition, the Carr Creamery received first prize for the best butter in Ontario, second for Canada and fifth for the American continent.

The buttermakers at Carr's are Carl V. Stephens and Gerald Fitchett.

Louisiana Gets Whooping Cranes

Corpus Christi, Tex. Dec. 13—(AP)—The whooper argument is settled. Texas lost, Louisiana gets the birds.

This means Jo and Crip, those loving mates of the Austwell, Tex., Wildlife Refuge, will set up housekeeping in the New Orleans zoo.

The federal government made the decision last night. It hopes Jo and Crip will settle down and raise little whooping cranes. They haven't been successful in the wilds of the vast refuge.

Texas naturalists staged an uproar Tuesday night when they discovered George Douglas, superintendent of the New Orleans Zoo, was en route to Texas to claim a crane the zoo had loaned the Texas refuge five years ago.

Naturalists hope so. The once great flocks of whooping cranes have dwindled to one flock with 28 members.

Hitler's Barracks Topnotch Quarters For 27th Brigade

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Germany, (CP)—Thanks to Hitler, Canadian soldiers have never lived in better barracks or surroundings than their new quarters in Germany.

The Fuehrer built them after 1933 in line with his prophecy that the Third Reich would live 1,000 years and on the theory that nothing was too good for the forces that would make his dream come true.

Canada has nothing like them. British officers say they haven't either. Canada built her wartime barracks to last for 15 years. Hitler built his to last far longer than that, and he built them superbly.

It is not only the quality of the buildings but the neatness and the character of the grounds themselves that have impressed the 27th Brigade soldiers who have inherited them from British occupation troops.

The buildings are large, handsome, four-storey grey structures of stone and cement with red-tile roofs. The main Canadian base is on the northeastern outskirts of Hannover but officers say the other quarters at various places over a general area of 40 to 50 miles are just as good and just as permanent.

At the Hannover base, where nearly half the 5,500 men will be garrisoned, there are about 25 of these buildings in a barracks area that even in wet, black November is trim and attractive.

Here and at the other places British engineers and German civilians are rushing repairs and improvements which in some cases will only be finished short hours before the Canadians arrive, Allied bombs made this necessary in many cases.

Remained Intact

The Hannover base, however, was relatively untouched. Its buildings stand as part of a pattern of playing fields, parade squares, trees, flower and rock gardens, hedges, paved and cobbled streets and tennis courts. The whole area is rimmed with a fence of stone and wood.

The barracks each hold about 230 men and currently bear the names of such British military luminaries as Wavell, Auchinleck, and Montgomery. The Canadians are thinking of adding some Crerars, McNaughtons and other retired greats of the army of yesterday.

The average room holds six single beds. The bed has three straw "biscuits" for a mattress, several blankets and white sheets. Each soldier gets a locker and has a trunk under his bed.

One of the first Canadians into these quarters was L/Cpl. Donald Daley of Fredericton, an overseas veteran, who came up with the general opinion that the Canadian soldier has never had things better.

Office working quarters are smart and would arouse the envy of officers and other ranks back home. The furniture is good — and includes carpets. Along the red-tiled corridors outside run strips of red carpet to reduce noise.

The camp includes a theatre, a number of N.A.A.F.I. recreation and eating centres much better than veterans remember them, a miniature range, dancing facilities to which the soldiers can bring their girl friends at least once a week and buses go into Hannover nightly.

Patriarch Honored

GORE

The Gore—This community was shocked on Saturday noon when news came over the air that one of the older residents Mr. Sidney Fox had been knocked to the pavement by a car when crossing the street in Belleville and was seriously injured. Mr. Fox is in the Belleville hospital suffering with a double fracture of one leg, multiple bruises and shock. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Keith Redner and son, Allen, Colbourne, spent Saturday evening with her mother, Mrs. Sidney Fox and brother, Gerald.

Mr. and Mrs. Winston Pulver and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Green attended the Federation of Agriculture banquet at the Presbyterian Church hall, Picton, on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Waterhouse and family were Sunday guests of her mother, Mrs. W. J. Hubbs.

Mrs. Harry Sager, Belleville, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Brickman.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Fox, Mrs. D. B. Fox, Mr. Alfred Cairns and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Cronk, Wellington were Sunday callers of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver.

Mr. and Mrs. Beecher Mikel, Consecon, were guests on Sunday of his sister, Mrs. Mac Hubbs and family.

Mr. Melvin Pulver is attending county council in Picton this week.

Centre W.A. met at Mrs. Norman Reid's on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Wessels and Mrs. Burrill were in Hastings on Friday, attending the funeral of their brother, the late Mr. Gordon Fox.

South Koreans Short on Equipment, but Not on Ingenuity

Extremely primitive is the makeshift craft South Korean soldiers use as they stage amphibious landing exercises on an island off Korea's west coast. The boats may resemble something left over from a broken-down fishing fleet, but the troops display ingenuity and courage in adapting their craft to the Korean welfare. — Central Press Canadian.

FRANKFORD

BAND MANAGER

Frankford — At a recent meeting of the Frankford Citizens Band, Mr. Wilmott Rose was elected as manager of the band. Mr. Rose, an old bandsman himself, is keenly interested in the newly-formed group, and under his capable management, the band should do well.

Mr. Rose informs us that the band will give a one hour program between eight and nine o'clock on nomination night, in the auditorium of the Frankford Community Hall. It is indeed hopeful that a large number of citizens of the village will turn out for both the concert, and for the nominations of the citizens who will govern the activities of the village for the next year.

Special Invitation

A special invitation is extended to all bandsmen, who have at one time or another been members of a Frankford band, to be present on nomination night. The village has in the past had some of the finest bands in this district and with the support of the village, the present band could well grow into the best yet. Good luck to Mr. Wilmott Rose and the Frankford Citizens Band!

The First Frankford Boy Scout Troop held their weekly meeting in the Community Memorial Hall, with a fine turnout. Following the opening ceremonies, and flag break, a period of instruction was given on rescue work during the winter season. A brief recreation period was enjoyed, and the boys were dismissed early to allow them to attend the Wooler High School Commencement in the Community Hall. Scout Ian Finnigan passed his Second Class compass test and Scout Eldon Sine completed his Second Class first aid.

Plans were completed for the Christmas party, and a committee appointed to look after preparing the refreshments.

Mr. Raymond Lohnes of Belleville visited relatives in Frankford over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Finnigan and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Jack Finnigan over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cherry and Richard of Belleville spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Slingerland.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth Lockwood have moved into the dwelling formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Bamber at the corner of King and Victoria Streets.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bamber have moved into the dwelling on North King Street formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Powell, who have taken up residence in Smithfield.

The Wooler Commencement, presented by Wooler Continuation School, drew a large audience in the Frankford Community Hall Friday night. Under the leadership of Mrs. Patricia Bennett, and music directress, Mrs. Baker, the school's presentation of the great stage success "Oklahoma" was enthusiastically accepted by the citizens of Frankford. Along with the play, several musical and comedy numbers added to a splendid program.

Rev. and Mrs. Harold Berry and Mrs. Gerald Burtch were special guest speakers at the "Old Home Weekend" held in the Standard Church. Both Rev. Berry and Mrs. Burtch, wife of Rev. Burtch, began their Christian work in the Stockdale Church, and have since been very active in the service of that church. Rev. and Mrs. Albert Smith were also scheduled to speak on the occasion, but due to illness, were unable to attend. Rev. Smith also began his Christian work in the little Stockdale Church.

3RD HILLIER

3rd Hillier — Mrs. Dawson, teacher of Niles Corners and school children are preparing their Christmas concert.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Benway and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Wright, attended the banquet at the parish hall, Picton on Friday.

Entertains Guild

Mrs. Wesley Wright, of Hillier entertained Christ Church Guild on Wednesday as it was the election of officers for the coming year. Rev. C. P. Heaven took charge of the election. Mrs. Herman Weese, president; Mrs. Gordon Foster, secretary; Mrs. Fred Morton, treasurer.

A gift was given to Mrs. L. Jones as she is going to Renfrew to spend the winter months with her sister-in-law Mrs. Jones.

Mrs. Warner McFaul who has been the president for several years, thanked all for their kind co-operation.

Mrs. Wright assisted by Mrs. Weese and Mrs. Gordon Foster served rerfeshments. Mrs. Lyle Leavens on behalf of the Guild thanked Mrs. Wright for opening her home and for a pleasant afternoon.

Mr. Charles Goodmurphy returned on Friday much improved in health from Kingston hospital.

Mrs. Wesley Wright spent Saturday afternoon with her mother Mrs. Will Dainard.

A farewell for Mr. and Mrs. Will Luffman and Russell was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Weir.

Mr. and Mrs. Luffman have moved to Wellington.

The Institute will hold their December meeting at the home of Mrs. F. C. Sherwin of Hillier, on Tuesday, Dec. 11th owing to Christmas and the busy days ahead. Christmas presents will be exchanged, and each member to bring homemade candy for the children of the Shelter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Collier were at Picton on Saturday afternoon.

Friends of Mrs. Tom Smith, of Belleville, formerly of the 3rd are sorry to hear of her illness at Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wood and son spent a recent weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wood.

Lighthouse Keeper Rescued

"Aah! Civilization," were the first words of lighthouse keeper Williard Olson, seen in the front cockpit of a light plane, after he was rescued last Friday by pilot Lee Frankham. Olson was marooned on tiny George Island in Lake Winnipeg when an early freeze-up prevented supply ships from reaching him. Pilot Frankham brought him to Riverton, Man. — (CP Photo.)

CROWN AGENCY

Transport Minister Chevrier, piloting the legislation, told questioners the same tolls will be applied to Canadian and foreign shipping.

He said the proclamation bringing the legislation into force probably will be delayed until the Ontario legislature ratifies the power agreement. In developing the power, Ontario will co-operate with an appropriate United States agency, presumably New York State.

Rodney Adamson (PC-York West), who stressed Ontario's need for more power, asked if Canada intended to go ahead with the project even if she got no co-operation from the United States.

Mr. Chevrier said the United States government will have to authorize some American agency to develop the St. Lawrence power jointly with Ontario. The Canadian government undertook to do all it could to press for the power development.

While it might be undesirable to proceed with one project without the other, the legislation gave the government authority to go ahead alone with the seaway.

Cannot Widen Terms

In several days of often heavy-going debate, members from both the maritimes and elsewhere, and from Liberal and opposition ranks urged the government to give simultaneous attention to other development projects across Canada.

Some suggested that the power of the seaway agency be expanded to permit it to consider irrigation projects for the west and power development programs in the maritimes.

Mr. Chevrier said the government could not widen the terms of the legislation.

He told questioners he could not say what would be the deadline for U.S. participation in the seaway, which long has been cold-shouldered by the U.S. Congress. Naturally, there would come a point where it no longer would be possible for the U.S. to come in.

President Truman has said that if Congress does not take early action he will support an all-Canadian seaway as the next best thing to a joint operation.

SOUTH AFRICAN

Walk Out of Committee

Members of the 60-member trusteeship committee have been urging that Southwest Africa be placed under a U.N. trusteeship. South Africa has contended the U.N. has no jurisdiction in the case since it is an internal matter. The South Africans walked out of the committee when the body decided to invite several Southwest African tribal chiefs to Paris to present their views on the subject.

The disputed territory was annexed by Germany in 1884. After the First World War it was mandated to South Africa by the League of Nations. In 1946 the territory of 317,725 square miles had a population of 360,000, mostly native.

The trusteeship committee passed two resolutions Tuesday, one of them trying to get South Africa to negotiate a settlement and the other urging that the disputed territory be placed under a U.N. trusteeship.

Canada was among the 39 countries that voted for the first resolution which expressed "regret" over South Africa's attitude.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was thinking to myself kind of worried, and I said to pop, G, pop, I guess maybe it's about time I started to save up, to buy Chrissmass presents.

You cant start saving too soon, that's a fact, pop said. Clarker Clarkson, the president of the Northeast Western and South Pacific, started saving when he was 3 years old, the day he learned the rudiments of addition, and by the time he was 9 he had 4 bysickels, 6 puntching bags and a collection of 2000 lollypop sticks, he said, and I said, Oh well, maybe I'll wait a few days before I really actually start.

Well, of course, it's never too late to start, pop said. Jiggby Duster, the ferst man to salvage broken rubber bands by tying the ends together, didn't start saving till he was 82, and a few years later his frends added 20 dollers, and the entire sum was enough to give Jiggby quite a nice funerel. Nuthing gawdy of course, he said, and I said, The trubble is, I've only got 9 cents. I meen if I had more to start with, it would seem like more to add to, I said.

I cant quite follow that reasoning, pop said. All you need is one more cent and you'll have 10 cents, which is a good round figure. At least the zero is a good round figure and the one is a good strate figure, he said, and I said, But aw heck, pop, a dime wont hardly even buy one present any more.

Oh really? pop said. It must have something to do with the high cost of living. Very well, then, I'll contribute one cent and 2 one doller bills. Then you'll have a good round figure, a good strate figure, and 2 good flat figures, he said.

Being the happy end of the subject.

MELROSE

Mrs. R. MacFarlane Heads W.M.S. for 1952

Melrose—The Christmas meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Melrose United Church was recently held at the home of the president, Mrs. Russell MacFarlane, with a large attendance.

Mrs. MacFarlane conducted the worship service. The treasurer's report was a gratifying one.

Mrs. J. Milligan, group leader took charge of the program. Mrs. George Morgan offered prayer, after which Mrs. C. Osborne read a poem, "A Christmas Tryst." Mrs. J. Milligan gave a reading on "Love and Service," a compelling sense of the brotherhood of all of the human race, these are the fruits of the religion which Christ taught, which if followed, will save the world.

Candlelight Service

Mrs. Milligan led in a beautiful candlelight and carol service. Mrs. Morgan lit the first candle for the Jewish race into which Christ was born; Mrs. Weese lit a candle for the Canadian Indians; Mrs. Hines for the French Canadians; Mrs. E. Embury for those Canadians whose homes were originally in Africa or Asia, and Mrs. E. Pascoe for new Canadians from Europe. Mrs. Roy Badgley lit the candle of Christian Love, saying that love can speak a language all nationalities can understand.

Mrs. Bruce Sherman sang a beautiful carol.

The nominating committee presented the following slate of officers for 1952:

President, Mrs. Russell MacFarlane; 1st vice president, Mrs. John English; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Roy Badgley; recording secretary, Miss Beatrice MacFarlane; treasurer, Miss Mary McLaren; press secretary, Mrs. John Milligan; pianists, Mrs. Fred Robinson, Mrs. S. Demill; Christian stewardship, Mrs. E. Badgley; citizenship and temperance, Mrs. William McMechan; community friendship, Mrs. E. Pascoe; literature secretary, Mrs. John Milligan, Missionary Monthly, Mrs. John Weese; supply secretary, Mrs. E. Embury; Mission Band leader, Mrs. Grant McLaren; Baby Band leader, Mrs. John English.

Rev. L. W. Scott conducted the installation of the above officers and closed the meeting.

The hostess served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

MARMORA

Marmora—Patrick and Joseph Jordan, of Roblin, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Flynn on Sunday.

Mrs. Edward Hewitt underwent a serious operation in the Belleville General Hospital on Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lavender visited Provincial Corporal and Mrs. Archie Grayling, in Bancroft, on Sunday.

George Jordan, of Marlbank, visited Mr. and Mrs. Philip Flynn on Friday.

Mr. James Bell is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

The enrollment of 15 new members into the Sodality of the Children of Mary was held in Sacred Heart Church on Sunday evening. The president, Miss Agnes Forestell, read the Act of Consecration and presented the medals. The Rev. J. A. O'Neill addressed the members on the duties of the Sodalist, followed by the Rosary and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1951

Commons Rejects 3 Motions Of Non-Confidence in Govt.; Ends Throne Speech Debate

Ottawa, Dec. 13—(CP)—In a day possibly without precedent in parliamentary records, the Commons yesterday rejected three opposition motions of non-confidence in the government and concluded a drawn-out debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

The climax came shortly after the Progressive Conservatives charged that the government had technically voted itself out of office by accepting an amendment to the address in reply to the throne speech. The government and its supporters laughed off the charge and made no reply.

The incident was only one of many in the throne-speech debate carried on during two days of every week since the session opened Oct. 9.

During the debate, the opposition groups launched six motions of non-confidence in the government. All of them were defeated by wide margins. Three other divisions were held—two of them on an amendment by A. J. Bater (L—The Battlefords) to the address and another on a speaker's ruling.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, sponsored the first of the non-confidence motions. Defeated by a vote of 102 to 39, it called for "adequate steps" to combat inflation and deal effectively with the high cost of living.

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, moved another that was defeated 160 to 19. It called for the introduction of price controls and subsidies to "equalize the sacrifices which the people are asked to make at this time."

Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia) called for increases in war veterans allowances, paid to veterans prematurely aged by war service. His motion was defeated 145 to 55.

Diefenbaker Motion Lost

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), called for an expression of non-confidence in the government because of its taxation policies. He charged that it has continued to collect "unnecessarily high taxes" and has "failed" to relieve the people from "unjust and burdensome taxation". His motion was defeated 128 to 45.

Joseph Noseworthy (CCF—York South) criticized the government for having "failed" to introduce a national health-insurance plan. The motion was defeated 189 to 11.

The sixth non-confidence motion was sponsored by Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) but members never got a chance to vote on its original wording. It read:

"This House regrets, however, that Your Excellency's advisers (the government) have failed to make provision for the immediate payment to producers of 75 per cent of the initial price of farm-stored grain."

Mr. Bater promptly moved an amendment which called for no definite action to help western farmers. It read:

"This House regrets the serious difficulties encountered by the western farmers in harvesting their crops, and commends Your Excellency's advisers for the continuing attention they have given to the problems caused thereby, and is confident that effective measures will continue to be taken to help the farmers in meeting these problems."

Greeted With Laughter

Mr. Bater's amendment was adopted by a vote of 148 to 41. Mr. Argue's motion as amended by Mr. Bater was accepted 134 to 45.

Later members voted 143 to 45 to adopt the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne with the amendment appended by Mr. Bater.

It was this action that led to Progressive Conservative charges that the government had actually voted non-confidence in itself because the throne-speech address traditionally is adopted without amendment. Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) was greeted with laughter from Liberal benches when he said he presumed that the government had no alternative but to resign.

The address simply thanks the governor-general for having read the Speech from the Throne at the opening of parliament.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) set the division bells ringing again when he and his party colleagues forced a vote on the traditional government motion to have the address embossed and sent to the governor-general. The motion carried, 143 to 46.

Mr. Knowles later told reporters the CCF called for a vote "as a protest against the government's trick of taking an opposition motion of non-confidence and turning it into one of confidence in the government.

Employment Cut In Certain Plants Throughout Ont.

Toronto, Dec. 13—(CP)—Curtailed production in some industries has led to short-time employment in certain plants in Toronto, Peterborough, London, Fort Erie, Burlington, Listowel, Cornwall, Port Hope, Ingersoll and Carleton Place, the regional office of the National Employment Service reported yesterday.

Elsewhere in the province, most northern Ontario lumber and logging camps are fully staffed for the winter. Kirkland Lake area camps still require a few pine cutters.

Abitibi Power and Paper Company camps in the Sault Ste. Marie district are filled. A demand continues for cutters in the North Bay and Hawkesbury regions.

Many foundries are on a four-day week. At St. Catharines, 800 foundrymen have been laid off.

A Galt plant has taken on 60 workers and Canadian arsenals are expanding with room for many more skilled metal workers.

Cutbacks in production at Canadian Cottons Limited will mean a layoff of from 100 to 150 workers in Cornwall. Another 1,600 will revert to a four or five-day week. Most Galt area textile plants are already on a short-time work week.

Nearly 100 furniture workers at Kitchener are still out of work and four-day weeks are common at footwear plants here. A glass plant in London and a pump plant in the same city have joined the short-week manufacturers. Kelvinator of Canada, Limited has reduced its work force from 650 to 200 over a period of six months.

Meanwhile, 150 employees at the London plant of General Motors Diesel Ltd., have been let go and the factory is operating on a reduced scale.

House Rejects C. C. F. Demand For Health Plan

Ottawa, Dec. 13—(CP)—The Commons today rejected a C. C. F. demand for a national health plan that would include free hospitalization, medical care and health insurance.

The demand was made in a nin-confidence motion sponsored by Joseph Noseworthy (CCF—York South) during the closing phases of the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. The motion was defeated 189 to 11, with everyone but the C. C. F. voting against it.

Various reasons were given for the opposition.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said his party has long realized the necessity for a plan of health in Canada.

Mr. Drew said it had to be remembered that health matters fall within the jurisdiction of the provinces. No national health plan could be adopted without their consent. The provinces have not yet had an opportunity to approve formally of any plan.

"Nothing," he said, " would be more likely to prevent the implementation of an effective plan than to proceed in a manner which might be regarded by the provinces as an arbitrary attempt to place on record an established plan and then simpy ask for their approval or rejection."

In sponsoring the motion, Mr. Noseworthy said that a national health plan had been promised for 32 years by the Liberal Party.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said he was opposed to the C. C. F. motion because it advocated centralization of health matters in the hands of the federal government.

"I object strongly to having our people mollycoddled constantly and forced into becoming wards of a superstate," said Mr. Low.

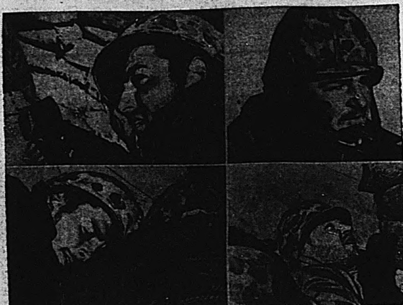
Photographs Catch War's Strain, Fear and Courage



These photos taken in action in Korea show the strain of war on the men in battle. The men are a U.S. naval gunfire support team on the wind-whipped ridges near the east coast of Korea. They were supposed to maintain contact with their battleship while they directed gunfire to silence three North Korean 76-mm. crews on the next ridge. The North Koreans were prepared and fired on the radiomen, not only pinning them down, but causing their radio to fall so that they lost contact with the cruiser. In photo, top left, the men get set as the North Koreans open fire. In photo, right, there is nothing to do but pray as mortars and shells explode near them. In photo below, left, partial contact is established and the frantic message is "We can't contact the ship. Can you get me an air strike?" In photo, right, one of the men looks skyward fearfully at the sound of airplane engines. A moment later he remarked, "Thank God . . . eight planes." And so, from the brink of death these men returned to their fighting units as bombs silenced the enemy guns. — Central Press Canadian.

Vancouver Turns Down Sunday Sport Question

Vancouver, Dec. 13—(CP)—For the second straight year Vancouver voters have said they want no tampering with their traditionally-quiet Sundays.

Although a Vancouver Sunday is quiet, indeed, a civic election plebiscite on the issue was rejected yesterday by a margin of more than 6,000 votes.

The plebiscite asked voters if they were in favor of allowing commercial sports, cultural events and theatre performances between the hours of 2 p. m. and midnight on the Sabbath.

The vote was 24,813 in favor of relaxing Sunday laws and 31,091 against. In any event, the plebiscite was actually no more than an opinion poll to guide city council. Any changes would require approval of the British Columbia legislature.

Besides voting on three plebiscites, citizens elected aldermen and park and school board members. Mayor Fred Hume's term still has one year to go.

Last year, a more strongly-worded Sunday plebiscite was rejected with the vote going 34,571 against to 25,051 in favor.

This plebiscite asked Vancouverites their opinions on a "wide-open" Sunday allowing, among other things, taverns and clubs to do business.

Amateur sports are allowed at present, as long as no admission is charged.

And not all promoters of professional sports are interested in operating on Sundays, although baseball and football interests have spoken in favor of the plebiscite.

Coley Hall, owner of the Pacific Coast Hockey League Vancouver Canucks, said he was "not interested" in operating on Sunday.

"Our attendances are extremely good on week nights," he said, "and I see no reason to change."

It would be impossible to have horse racing on Sundays. The criminal code checks Sunday wagering.

TWO CHILDREN DIE

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Dec. 13 — (AP) — Five youngsters, from five to eight years old, found a roll of movie film yesterday on the street in the western Puerto Rican village of Mayaguez. Then they went into a backyard to "play movies," using a candle for a projection light. The film caught fire. Two children were burned to death, the other three seriously hurt.

4th Contingent Canadian Troops Now in Germany

Rotterdam, The Netherlands, Dec. 13 (CP)— The fourth contingent of Canadian troops for the North Atlantic Treaty organization's defence forces arrived in Europe today.

The group—646 officers and men mostly of the 1st Canadian Highland Battalion — was welcomed by Pierre Dupuy, Canadian ambassador to The Netherlands. Later today they will leave for Hannover, Germany, to join other Canadian troops in Europe.

The Canadians left Quebec Dec. 2 aboard the 13,500-ton liner Canberra which now has made two trips from Canada to Rotterdam with men of the force Canada has placed at the disposal of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's army.

The Highland Battalion, commanded by Lt.-Col. R. L. Rutherford of Winnipeg, is made up of companies of the Black Watch, Montreal; the 48th Highlanders, Toronto; the Seaforth Highlanders, Vancouver; the Canadian Scottish, Victoria, ad the North Nova Scotia Highlanders.

Entertainer Opens Legal Battle Against BBC

London, Dec. 13—(CP)—Hughie Green, Canadian entertainer and former R.C.A.F. pilot, said today he has gone back to ferrying planes to help finance a legal fight agains tthe BBC.

He said writs have been served charging the BBC with "wrongfully and maliciously conspiring" against him in connection with his radio program, "Opportunity Knocks."

Green said in an interview the BBC suddenly took his talent-spotting program off the air in September, 1949, after it had run for 33 weeks.

The BBC declined comment on Green's statement.

Writs also have been served, Green said, on Caroll Levis, his wife, Mina, and brother, Cyril, and two other persons. Levis, of Vancouver and Toronto, conducts a talent-spotting program on the BBC. He said he has no comment on Green's charges as he "wasn't even in the country when Green's program was running."

Green said he and his Montreal-born wife, the former Audrey N. Wilson, expect a long legal fight which may drag on for a year before the final hearing. Green was born in Britain but became a Canadian citizen during his 5½ years of war service. His father lives in Montreal.

The entertainer now is appearing in a stage comedy and ferrying planes to Canada and the United States on a part-time basis.

Could Not Wait Until Christmas For New Bike

Croydon, England, Dec. 13—(Reuters)—A policeman on duty yesterday saw a bicycle being lowered from the roof of a house by a rope. He called for a patrol car.

The bicycle landed and 15-year-old Roy Davies walked out of the house towards it. "Whose bike is that?" the cop asked.

"Mine," replied Roy. "At least it will be in two weeks."

The police confirmed Roy's story. His parents bought the bike as a Christmas present for him and hit it in the attic. Roy found it and just couldn't wait. He planned a secret trial run.

Now the bicycle is back in the attic, but the door is locked and father has the key.

TOOK WRONG BUS

Orillia, Ont., Dec. 13 (CP) — Major F. J. Ney of Toronto, a world traveller who is at home in many countries of the world had trouble getting from here to Toronto. He set out by bus after a speaking engagement — and found himself in Bracebridge, 45 miles north of here. Wrong bus.

Big Three Revises Disarmament Plan to Meet Red Objections, Leaves Unchanged Major Items

Paris, Dec. 13—(AP)—The western big three revised their disarmament plan to meet Russian objections on some secondary points today but left unchanged their major demands for closely supervised, step-by-step arms cuts.

Nor did the United States, Britain and France bow to the Soviet Union's insistence on immediate banning of the atomic bomb.

The general assembly, meanwhile, again deadlocked in voting to choose between American-supported Greece and the Soviet Union's Byelo (white) Russia for the 11th seat on the security council.

Eight ballots last week failed to settle the issue. While seven more today still brought no decision, assembly president Luis Padillo Nervo suspended further voting until next week.

On the 15th ballot Greece had 36 votes, White Russia 23. Forty are required for election.

The western powers planned to submit their disarmament revisions to the assembly's 60-member political committee at the session starting at 3 p. m. (9 a. m. EST) today. The text of the revised draft was not immediately available, but a high western source said that it would make the following concessions:

Concessions Allowed

1. The proposed disarmament commission—to which Russia and the west have agreed—would be directed to report to the U. N. by June 1, 1952, on ways and means of ending the world arms race. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky had objected because the original western plan fixed no date for the committee to report.

2. The proposal for retention by each country of forces "necessary for defence" changes to meet the Russian insistence on different standards for primarily land powers such as the Soviet Union and sea powers such as Britain.

3. The section dealing with the standards to be set up to determine arms levels is given a "more neutral phrasing."

4. The revision defines more specifically what the western powers mean by "countries with substantial armaments," which the Russians have rejected as a vague phrasing.

The modifications were described as being in line with a western policy, announced Tuesday by State Minister Selwyn Lloyd of Britain, of seeking to increase the areas of agreement between the Soviet Union and the west. The changes were based on clarifications of the Soviet and western positions revealed at last week's secret big four disarmament talks.

Vishinsky told the political committee yesterday the importance of broadening such areas of agreement on "relatively secondary" issues should not be underestimated. Vishinsky said he hoped such broadening would eventually lead to east-west agreement on some of the larger issues.

Ford Strikers May Hear New Proposal Friday

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 13 (CP)—Announcement that 9,000 striking Ford Motor Company of Canada production workers will meet Friday has touched off speculation that union officials will place before them a plan for ending the wildcat strike that started Dec. 3.

The meeting was called after leaders of Local 200 of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) met for several hours last night with Walter Reuther, the union's International president.

While they were conferring, Rhys M. Sale, Ford President, charged in an address to the Essex County Medical Society that the strike which has made nearly 12,000 Windsor men idle was caused by "a few hundred bully boys" who have terrorized thousands of persons "by force or threat of force."

He said the Nov. 29 work stoppage for which 26 men were dismissed, thereby touching off the walkout of 9,000 workers, was not spontaneous but was "a vicious and coldly calculated incident set off by a relatively few hoodlums."

The workers, he said, "for the past 18 months, have been the unwilling pawns in a struggle for power by men of mean and selfish intent." They would have "suffered severe reprisals if they did not go along with the designs of the hoodlums."

"You could not get them to talk about it to save their souls, but we have certain knowledge that there are men in our company who have been beaten within an inch of their lives because they would not knuckle down."

Because of the strike, 2,300 Ford salaried employees and an additional 500 workers in Ford feeder plants have been made idle.

Regarded as a major factor leading to the strike was the failure of union-company negotiators, after six months of bargaining, to agree on a 1951 wage contract. The union has been seeking a "package" increase of 30 cents an hour over the basic rate of $1.32.

Foxhole Digging Calls for Speed Reporter Finds

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, (CP)—On a bright, sunshiny noon—and just when Fisheries Minister Mayhew was in the area, too—the Chinese began lobbing hefty medium-calibre shells into a spot that can't be described except to say that in a conventionally-conducted war it isn't normally shelled.

The local barometer rose steadily. Shrapnel went clean through the tent of Capt. Tom Owens of Montreal, just above head level. A truck was thoroughly knocked out by a shellburst five feet in front of it, as was the jeep ambulance parked alongside. Officers who hadn't dug a hole since the Second World War discovered they hadn't lost the knack.

They also found that the prone position, extremely close to the ground, is adopted without thought, without (almost) moving a muscle, when sounds resembling 'phw-w-tt cr-rrump!" close in on the area. One such was Capt. Hugh Hutton of Hamilton who found himself trying with a reporter to force place for two under an upright piano.

Capt. Walt Wheeler of Kingston and Lieut. Don Dingle of Calgary who, seeing space under the piano at such a premium, chorused "let's go to our tent—it's the safest place in camp."

Wheeler ran past the spot. It was dark.

Dingle, panting behind, ventured: "I guess we've passed it. But I thought it was here."

It was—once. Shreds were picked out by the flashlight, hanging in nearby trees. The ground nearby was adrift with feathers from Wheeler's sleeping bag. A shell had gone right through the tent and exploded squarely in its centre.

People looking for Wheeler that night found on the spot a sign saying: "Moved to new location."

"Local Digging"

When shrapnel landed on my jeep trailer local digging was begun.

The boundaries of a hole just barely larger than a camp cot were scratched out at the back of the tent. Two hours, two blistered hands and much sweat later the hole was two feet deep. Complete failure was registered in attempts to devise a one-man technique for filling sandbags and so the spoil was piled high on one side. Barrack boxes and kitbags lined the others.

Excavations continued whenever local events spurred them on, and by the time houseboy Chong returned from a visit to relatives the depth was three feet. Responibility was forthwith transferred.

He must have slaved. The following night saw the camp cot still three feet below ground, barrack boxes and gear piled high behind it.

But gone was the pile of spoil in front. Instead, neatly squared off, the hole was doubled. His cot was in its accustomed spot, but clearly in emergency he was prepared to move it down into his conception of safety. And the sand bags...they were spread out as matting on the ground, as protective mats under the gear, decorative, neat, but hardly protective.

"No good, Chong. Tomorrow fix. I show."

Two holes. Deep. Narrow. Piled around with sandbags.

But meanwhile what a night. As the probing cr-rrumps crisscrossed farther and nearer, backward and forward, not only were the walls now missed, but golly a roof ought to be there, too—and sandbagged.

The situation on the digging front changed sharply next morning. Maj. Colin McDougall of Ottawa persuaded a crew of public relations drivers to reinforce and direct Chong's strong right arm. By nightfall two massive, five-foot-deep, cot-sized sandbagged fortresses lacked only cover for completion.

But they were draped, if you please, with left-over empty sacks lining the walls below ground level.

"No. Chong. Tomorrow find logs. Cover holes. Fill sacks. Put sacks on top."

Church Operates Hospital Boats On West Coast

Vancouver — (CP) — Known for nearly half a century along isolated shores, the Anglican Church's coast mission now has four vessels, including one hospital and a dental clinic, looking after the needs of 225 scattered fishing and logging villages.

The marine medical mission was inspired by Rev. Dr. John Antle, then rector of Trinity Church here, who heard of the hardships of the loggers and homesteaders and set out in 1904 in a 14-foot dinghy with his 12-year-old son Victor to investigate.

He discovered that an upcoast sick person at that time either had to cure himself, row many miles to Vancouver or Victoria or else simply lie out in an open moat trying to attract the attention of a passing vessel.

Dr. Antle immediately founded the Coast Mission and the first hospital ship was launched in 1905. In 1930, just before he retired, he dedicated St. Mary's Hospital, 50 miles north of here.

Greene is Commodore

The present tiny fleet is controlled by Rev. Canon Alan Greene, superintendent of the mission, who himself is skipper or the steamer John Antle. Rev. Rollo Boas is captain of the Rendezvous, and Ernest Christmas, a lay preacher, runs the little Gwa-Yes.

The fourth ship is the 100-foot diesel-powered Columbia, which patrols 200 miles of B. C. coast north of Victoria where there are no doctors or nurses.

The Columbia has a captain, engineer and cook, and a doctor who looks after a two-bed hospital. She averages 1,500 calls a year, covering 15,000 miles. Only the most serious cases are taken to shore hospitals; everything else from tooth-pulling to prenatal care is attended to aboard ship.

Religion has remained the theme of the fleet while its services extended to a scope previously undreamed of. Known to coast old-timers as "God's Little Fleet," they provide spiritual and physical care to 10,000 persons of all denominations.

At one time or another chaplains of these vessels have acted as postmen, stevedores, deckhands, cooks, surveyors, movie operators (each boat carries movie apparatus), assistant lighthouse keepers, loggers, carpenters, plumbers, executors and — at the appropriate times — as Santa Claus himself.

She's in Danger of Developing a Superiority Complex

"Helen Dandy Domino, 1" can afford to look down her nose, for not only did she walk off with female championship at the National Western Polled Hereford show in Denver but, in addition, she sold for all-time record price of $13,000. Showing off his prize is the former owner, Wilford Scott, of Chadron, Nebraska. In background (left) are the purchasers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fowler, of Franklin, Tennessee. — Central Press Canadian.

Briefs From Britain

(By The Canadian Press)

London (CP) — Alexander Usher, Scotland Yard inspector who was attached as a security officer to Princess Elizabeth for four years, has retired.

Hastings, England (CP)—One of the fishing boats that left this Sussex port to catch herring came back instead with a six-foot bottle-nosed shark.

Carshalton, England (CP)—Authorities of this Surrey County town are seeking permission to build houses with ceilings at 7½ feet, or six inches lower than the present minimum, in an effort to increase the rate of construction.

Besford, England (CP)—The historic bells of St. Martin's Church have been restored after 40 years' silence. One of the bells at the Worcestershire county church is dated 1261.

Gravesend, England (CP) — Ever since childhood, 29-year-old Ruth Kingston wanted to nurse lepers. Next year she will do so at a colony in Northern Rhodesia.

Tingersley, England (CP) — Laura Hall went down a country lane searching for her lost handbag. Instead she came across a damaged safe with coins and postal orders, stolen from the post office in this Derbyshire town.

Beckingham, England (CP) — Besides winning first prize in a potato - growing competition, Charles Searson got a bonus. Under one of his prize roots he found a nest of four young rabbits.

Glamorgan, Wales (CP) — Authorities boring for a supposed underground lake to boost water supplies ran into trouble. The drill became wedged and a crowbar was dropped on top of it, and now special equipment is necessary to extricate it.

London (CP)—A baby welfare magazine advised companies making rattles for babies not to fill the tops with lead. It suggested macaroni as a safe substitute to produce the soothing rattle.

Barnsley, England (CP)—Two men in court here claimed ownership of the same dog. The judge tried the names on the dog, which recognized only one, with the result one of the men was fined £10 for theft of the dog.

London (CP)—Margaret Goodfellow, 27, has just received a card for her fifth birthday. Sent 22 years ago by her grandfather, it had been lost in the post.

SALVAGE GERMAN SHIPS

Stockholm, (CP)—Three German troop-carrying ships which foundered in Swedish minefields in the Baltic on July 9, 1941 are to be salvaged. On striking mines the ships went down in a few minutes and some 200 men lost their lives.

If we want more... WE MUST PRODUCE MORE or Face Hazard of Further Inflation ... says Dominion Bank President

81st Annual Meeting of Shareholders THE DOMINION BANK

Impossible to stop Inflation by Price Control ... says Mr. Rae.

Addressing the 81st Annual Meeting of Shareholders, the President, Robert Rae said in part:

The year 1951 has been marked by two new developments; one of them international and external to Canada, the other a domestic change of policy.

The action of the Monetary Fund in Washington on September 28 released all member-governments from one of the most important and, possibly most embarrassing pledges taken at Bretton Woods in 1944. Some day we may recognize it as one of the turning points in financial history.

Importance of Gold Standard

The so-called Bullion Report of 1810 tardily recognized two facts which prior to that date were vigorously contradicted and denied by those in authority: that the monetary policy pursued, in Britain particularly during the Napoleonic Wars, had inevitably led to the discounting of Bank of England notes against gold; and that the need for a stable medium, of international exchange especially, could be met only by setting up a gold standard.

This was done in 1821. Thenceforward, the pound sterling was a gold coin freely bought and sold, the fixed price of which, in Bank of England notes, guided the Bank's credit policy during the remainder of the century until, in August 1914, the link of the pound sterling with gold was again broken.

Of all the great measures of reform which benefitted Western man during the nineteenth century, measures which made possible an all-round improvement without precedent in the standard of comfort enjoyed by mankind, the enactment of a gold standard was one of the most important. The decision of the Monetary Fund is a belated recognition of the same situation in our own time as was recognized in London by the Bullion Report of 1810.

Gold Now to Find Own Price

In effect, it means that gold will now be permitted, like everything else which is the result of human effort, to gradually find its own price in relation to paper money, and plainly suggests that a reform of the domestic monetary policies of Members is required to discourage hoarding.

We may be glad that our thought on currency problems is now moving in the right direction, even though the market price of gold may remain relatively unchanged for sometime.

During 1951 there has been a fundamental change in our domestic policy.

It has already caused a good deal of discomfort both to Canadian business and to the man-in-the-street. I refer to the controls of credit which are now being pursued jointly in Ottawa, by the government and our central banking authorities, with a view to preventing further inflation.

By this time last year, inflation was assuming proportions much more dangerous than was generally realized then, or is realized even now.

Many Canadians regard themselves as victims of inflation, but fail to recognize inflation as destructive of prosperity, and the deadly threat to themselves and their families which it is.

Inflation Destroys Savings

Most earned incomes have been forced up since 1939 faster than the cost of living has increased. The success of large numbers of individuals in quickly raising their own dollar incomes, blinds them to the fact that in printing more and more dollars to finance these enlarged income payments—in thus cheapening the Canadian dollar relatively to goods or to gold—we have been destroying gradually but inevitably the real worth of the savings on which, as individuals, they depend for their future solvency.

Millions of Canadians, undoubtedly more prosperous than in 1939, are destined to leave their widows and children unnecessarily poor because of this gradual destruction of the purchasing power of the dollar.

We are bound to feel encouraged when, none too soon, those in authority take steps to control effectively the creation of new purchasing power.

Some among us mistakenly still think you can stop inflation by means of price controls. You cannot.

Credit Curb Only Remedy

Painful though the process may be, there is no dependable remedy for the disease of inflation except this one of restricting credit. The medicine tastes nasty, but for our own sakes, still more for the sake of dependents we must leave behind, it must be swallowed.

All Western countries during the past twelve or fifteen years have been flirting with and have become entangled in the theory that rates of interest can be manipulated successfully, kept artificially low to conform with certain ultra-modern conceptions of economic planning.

But evidence is accumulating that the manipulation of interest rates must and will, if adopted as a long-term policy, be followed by deplorable consequences.

Is it not time to adopt again the time-honored prescription and undertake our main stand against inflation by means of open-market operations, resolutely pursued on the necessary scale and during the necessary length of time?

These issues are not merely the concern of bankers and business borrowers. The decisions now being carried out affect (or will affect in the near future) the security, peace of mind and living standard of every Canadian family. For, apart from those short-term inflationary dangers which inevitably stem from the Korean War and today's imperative need for rearmament, there are also certain long-term inflationary dangers with which we must cope.

In my view, the long-term hazards are the most menacing. We must realize that the purchasing power of our dollar could be whittled away, gradually, to near nothingness. Indeed, the communists among us earnestly desire just this, and therefore we dare not neglect these dangers.

Not the least of them is a prevalent state of mind. Most people nowadays believe in the Welfare State. Most Canadians demand Full Employment.

But you cannot insist that more and more of the national income be given to persons, however deserving, who neither produce nor save; you cannot keep on creating new jobs continuously, without running headlong into the danger which all of us fear: more inflation.

Produce More to Have More

The fact is that all of us, government and citizens, tax collectors and tax payers alike, must "cut our coats according to our cloth." Otherwise, the continuance of inflation will remain a near certainty.

There is one basic truth which it is perilous to forget. A nation's income for consumption is neither more nor less than what its people can and do produce. We cannot enlarge it by printing paper dollars. If we want more, we must produce more.

Enough of us know this now to make frequent new Canadian production records. But others do not yet realize it.

I am still an optimist. Experience cannot teach all of us, but it does teach most men. As each one convinces himself that Canadians like the rest of mankind, must produce in order to consume, each, I do believe, will take up again his own task, make his own contribution to the collective livelihood, with the determination that is only to be found among free men.

Strong Liquid Position Shown in Statement Presented by General Manager

In presenting the Annual Financial Statement, A. C. Ashforth, general manager, spoke as follows:

I have the honour to submit to you the General Statement of the Bank for the fiscal year ended 31st October, 1951, and shall comment on the more important items. You will observe from the copy placed before you that it is the 81st Annual Balance Sheet which this Bank has issued.

Earnings

The Profit and Loss Statement shows that, despite rising costs of operation, profits have been well maintained and, after making full provision for bad and doubtful debts, amounted to $2,920,446.—an increase of $324,685. from a year ago. The sum of $561,382. was set aside for depreciation of buildings and equipment—an increase of $111,299. over last year—while the sum of $1,190,000. was required for Dominion and Provincial taxes, up $290,000., leaving net profits of $1,169,064. Of this amount $700,000. has been allocated to dividends and provision of $140,000. made for an extra distribution of twenty cents per share—a total distribution to the shareholders of $1.20 per share for the year. The balance of $329,064. has been added to Profit and Loss Account which now stands at $840,447.

It is worthy of note that the total provision of $1,190,000. for taxes is the equivalent of $1.70 per share, or 50c per share more than the total paid to shareholders in dividends, which, in turn, is mostly subject to tax in the hands of the recipients.

Strong Liquid Position

A strong liquid position has been maintained. Total cash assets at $94 millions were $3 millions higher than the previous year and the equivalent of 22.21% of all public liabilities. Quick or readily realizable assets, embracing cash assets, Government of Canada, Provincial, Municipal and other high grade securities, together with call loans totalled $224 millions, equivalent to 52.98% of all liabilities to the public.

This is lower than last year, reflecting a decrease of $54 millions in our holdings of securities and is occasioned principally by the increased demand for loans to finance commerce and industry.

Call and short loans in Canada and elsewhere aggregated $15 millions, practically unchanged from a year ago. Loans of this type are to brokers, bond dealers, etc., and are repayable on call as the name implies. These loans are adequately protected by readily marketable securities.

Current Loans

The increase is due in part to loans made to our customers engaged in defence contracts, and to the greater sums now required to finance general business due to higher prices. Grain loans were higher than a year ago and in all probability will continue at a higher level until the opening of navigation next Spring. You are aware of the unfavourable weather conditions in Western Canada at a time when harvesting of the crop would normally have taken place. Although the number of bushels of grain will compare favourably with previous years, the quality will be lower and delivery to the elevators delayed. Many farmers will be unable to harvest their crops until Spring and, consequently, some will need financial assistance until then. Needless to say help will be given them, but many will not have sufficient funds available to purchase many of the things they contemplated buying this Fall. This, no doubt, will have its effect on trade.

Deposits

Our non-interest bearing deposits were $26 millions less than a year ago. In the preceding year such deposits increased $38 millions and this year's decrease is due to the withdrawal of some of these temporary balances.

A very gratifying increase of $13 millions has taken place in interest bearing deposits and we are glad to record that an increasing number of people are doing their banking business with us, both in the commercial and savings departments. Canadians, on the whole, have in the past been provident people. At no time has the need for practicing this sterling quality been greater than to-day. It is realized, of course, that many people are finding it increasingly difficult to save, confronted as they are with higher taxes and higher living costs, especially pensioners and others whose incomes are fixed. There is, however, no better way for us to do our part in combating inflation than to avoid over-indulgence in spending, and to save as much of our income as we can.

It may be of interest to you to know that at September 29th, 1951, the number of current and savings accounts in Canadian Chartered Banks and payable in Canadian funds was 8,462,024. Eighty-five percent of all accounts carried balances of less than $1,000. The average savings account balance was $622., which compares with $642. at the same date last year.

I am pleased to report that our shareholders now number 2,966—an increase of 131 from a year ago. It is gratifying to see this annual enlargement.

New Branches

We have continued our policy of opening branches in new communities requiring banking facilities and also at other points where expansion has warranted our establishing offices. During the past year, therefore, to serve the needs of our present and future customers we have opened eleven new branches.

Bank Premises account has increased some $640,000. from a year ago. This reflects the continuation of our programme of acquiring new properties and in enlarging and modernizing premises to accommodate expanding business, to which I made reference last year.

Staff

The position which the Bank has attained is due in large measure to the efficiency and hard work of the members of the staff and I extend to them, on your behalf and my own, warmest thanks for the excellent job they have done during the year. Especially would I single out for commendation those officers who have direct contact with the public, for on the friendliness, courtesy and tact displayed in carrying out their duties much of our success depends.

As with most Banks, the turnover of our staff is higher than we care to see. We have endeavoured to make banking attractive to our employees and will continue to do so. We have increased salaries substantially and reduced working hours through the installation of mechanical equipment which has taken much of the labour out of routine operations. The welfare of the staff has our constant consideration. Young people faced with a choice of occupation would do well to give some thought to the banking profession and to the security of employment which it offers.

General Business

In February last certain restrictions on credit were deemed advisable and the result has been reasonably satisfactory, although it has created certain problems. Many manufacturers of civilian goods had geared production to the limit, and many retailers, fearing shortages and increased prices, had over-stocked their shelves. Since the announcement of credit restrictions consumers are pursuing a more cautious buying policy, which is having its effect on trade. Inventories in many lines are still too high and it will take some time yet to work them down to reasonable levels. In the meantime trade liabilities of many merchants and manufacturers are relatively high and any lessening of sales might create a shortage of cash with which to liquidate their payables.

Defence spending has been slower than was anticipated, but the programme is now gaining momentum and no doubt will assist in taking up some of the slack in civilian demand. It is to be hoped that it will have a beneficial effect in giving employment in areas where unemployment presently exists.

By Will Henry

Knowing their great reverence for the dream and any revelation which may come by way of it, I determined to approach him some days later from this blind side on the subject, feeling at the same time great shame at thus taking advantage of his savage fantasy.

"By the dream is all truth known. Is it not so, my brother?" My question was sober.

"It is true."

"While I was walking in the evening I passed within the shadows of Wanagi Yata, the Place Where the Souls Gather. Do you believe this?"

"Even so my brother. I believe it."

"Well then, as the shadows grew darkest over me, I knew a great dream."

"The place is holy."

"Even so," I replied. "And in this dream which was dreamed in this holy place there came to me a face. It was more beautiful than any face." I waited, but he said nothing, only stirring uneasily. "The face did not speak but it smiled to me and it guided me out of the shadows, showing my way by its light." Again, I paused, and again he remained silent.

"This was the face of a woman," I announced, gambling on his Indian respect for the sanctity of another's vision. "And the face called to me, not with words but with a smile saying I must follow it. Saying that as soon as Wakan Tanka returned my strength, I must follow it. Even with her smile she said this."

I watched him closely, seeing he was deeply moved. For a long time he sat motionless staring fixedly into the tipi fire.

"She lives." His tones were heavy. "It is she. It is the Star of the North. Your dream was a true dream, my brother."

"And she is Wiyan Wakan, a holy woman?"

"Of them all, the most holy."

"Her age then? She must not be old."

"Very young, little more than a child."

"And will you show me where this star shines, my brother?" I tried vainly, to keep the anxiety from my voice.

"It must be done," he said, gravely. "For you have dreamed it."

My heart leaped insanely within me. Gone now were all thoughts of Custer and Slatemeyer. That haunting dream face was real. It lived. And I was going to it.

"She cannot be yours, Cetan Mani." For the first time he used my name in Sioux, Walking Hawk.

"She will be mine," I challenged, recklessly. "Or I will be hers. For I cannot live without her."

"Then you will die, my brother," announced Crazy Horse, coming to his feet with easy grace. "For you cannot have her and live."

With that he left me, nor did I call out after him, but for an hour sat staring, motionless, into the fire.

She had been captured as a girl of five or six, by the Oglala, in a raid on a Crow village far to the west and north. She was not a Crow, that tribe in turn having captured her, but where she was taken or what her origins had been, Crazy Horse's people had never been able to determine. There had been a sort of half-story related by an old Crow medicine woman, which said the child had been brought up from Mexico by the Apaches and sold into slavery among the Commanches, from whom the Crows stole her. But Tashunka Witko did not vouch for this.

She was, even then, a child of startling beauty, her peculiar green eyes at once commanding the imaginations of the Oglala, for in their legends the Sioux had all sprung from a common origin, the Earth Mother. The stories handed down by uncounted generations of old village tellers of tales, had dimmed somewhat the details of the Earth Mother's appearance, but on one particular all descriptions agreed her eyes had been green as lake ice.

They built her a great lodge in the heart of their magnificent homeland, the mysterious He Sapa, the Black Hills. Throughout the year she divided her time visisting various of the Seven Sioux Council Fires, living now with this tribe, now with that, carrying always and everywhere her magic power to heal.

Our course led through Pte Ta Tiyopa, the historic "Gateway of the Buffalo" into the Black Hills. We would ride at daybreak, as soon as Wi, the sun, pushed his burning scalplock above the world's edge.

When Crazy Horse had gone, I sat alone in the tipi trying to make some sense of my predicament.

Here was I, J. B. Clayton, ex-colonel of Confederate cavalry, proud by training as well as birth, squatting by an Indian tipi fire in the hostile heart of the Dakotas, clad in doeskin leggings shirt and moccasins, smoking a stone pipe loaded with reeking Kinnikinnick leaves, rocking on my leather-covered heels, staring into a Sioux fire, talking in the Oglala tongue, thinking with an Indian mind, hopelessly in love with an Indian girl I had never seen and could never possess.

When I awakened I was stiff with cold. Above the smoke hole gray dawn paled. Over me stood Crazy Horse, dressed in black wolfskin winter clothes, arms folded, a rare smile on his grim lips.

"It was a good dream, my brother?"

"Truly it was," I answered. "I have seen the Star again. And she told me to hurry to her."

A shadow passed over his dark face. "The ponies are ready," he grunted. "Even now they are ready, standing outside."

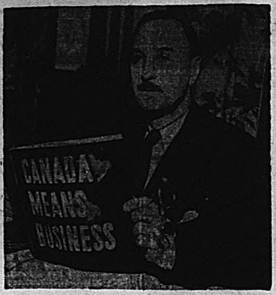
"We shall depart, my brother" I muttered quickly and lost no time donning the gray wolfskin coat he had brought me.

As we passed through the tipi flap, a fierce neigh shattered the morning quiet. I was nearly beaten down by the rearing and hoof-lashings of a gaunted-up bay.

Hussein!

"We found him where you had tethered him. Since none could approach him, I shot his tether through. He ran with us, ever following the travois upon which we bore you. In each camp he stood by your tipi. Nor would he eat, of dried grasses which I ordered brought to him. Surely he would have died but for North Star, who approached him without fear and with her magic made him eat of the grasses."

Hopes for Bigger and Better U.S.-Canada Trade



Bertram C. Butler, Canada's new consul in Detroit, looks hopefully toward more business for Canada in markets in the United States as he takes over his new duties in Detroit. A native of Hamilton, Ontario, Mr. Butler has been in the Canadian foreign service for 25 years. His prime objective will be the stimulation of a larger market in the U.S. for Canadian manufactured goods. — Central Press Canadian.

I tried to reduce this to logic getting no better surmise than that the horse had scented my odor upon her hands, thus allowing Star to touch and feed him.

Regardless, horse and man both owed their lives to her, and it was a debt I meant to see repaid, and with interest.

In the tipi of Many Kills, we were made welcome, his women hurrying to prepare us food.

After the meal, Many Kills brought out his pipe lighting it with a coal from the fire, passing it around the circle until it had been smoked out.

After a suitable interval of compliment exchanging, during which I flatteringly learned my undeserved reputation as a warrior had preceded me, I asked Many Kills if I were free to come and go as I wished. He was local head of the Fox Lodge, the law and order society of the Sioux Nation, the police force, if you will, of the Indian social system.

"Cetan Mani may go." The chief's words were easy, without hint of restraint.

"I would see the realm of Star of the North," was all I said, rising to go and departing, without a backward glance. I was learning to talk Indian fashion; short and to the point.

Outside, I found Crazy Horse had followed me. He gestured toward the climbing sun, then the ground upon which we stood I understood I was to return to this spot "when the sun was in the middle." I nodded swung up on Hussein and started off.

He called after me. "You will not see the Wiyan Wakan yet. She is now in prayer to the morning and will see no one while the sun is above."

"This must be true," I called back. "Surely such a star is best seen in darkness." He looked at me, not answering, leaving me with the uncomfortable feeling I had not said the right thing.

I had covered three-fourths of the distance to the falls before discovering tracks. Hence, a few minutes' trailing brought me close in under the dizzy granite walls from which the water took its rioting plunge into the valley. Here were dense woods of pine, the ground rising sharply under me as I went forward. The sound of the falls was becoming deafening, indicating any moment must bring me to their base.

On the side of the main pool, nearest me, a great flat boulder jutted out. In the surface of this a depression about 10 feet deep and 30 across had been formed by centuries of splashing backspray. This depression was kept full by constant replenishing spray, forming a natural bathing pool.

To the rear of the pool a shelf of granite stood out from the encroaching cover of timber, providing a diving platform for entry into the water. I had scarcely time to note these things when any thought of natural beauty was devastated by the startling appearance of a girl on the diving-rock below.

She stepped quickly out of the darkness of the pines, walked to the edge of the diving rock.

For an instant she poised on the rock's edge, balancing as lightly as a butterfly on a flower petal, then she was gone in an arching, clean dive and a rainbow spray of green water, her slim body cleaving the sun-dappled surface of the pool, a slender arrow of red lancing into a bright shield of blue green.

As she swam, darting, diving, twisting, rolling in the icy waters below, I stood stunned.

This was she. This was my dream. I had found the North Star.

In all she could not have swum more than three minutes before she was back on the rock, her gorgeous body diamond-dewed by a million sun-glancing droplets of green water.

She was gone, then, and my long-held breath expelled itself with an explosive burst.

I do not know what madness then impelled me, for I leapt downward upon the diving rock, lunging on unthinkingly toward the black pines which had closed behind her.

The blind spell passed and my mind cleared, but not before I had burst through the thick cover and stood, dumb-struck, before her.

She froze as she had been at the instant of my entrance, leaning slightly forward to retrieve her garments of white doeskin and wolf fur from the ground where they lay. Her great green eyes widened imperceptibly, the ripe-berry lips falling apart in wonder. Yet no alarm nor least embarrassment marked her movements.

The haunting half-curve smile of my dreams was on her lips as she spoke the words which gained her a slave for eternity and lost me a heart forever.

"You have come to me then. Cetan Mani." Her voice was soft and cool and musical as spring water among moss and smooth stones.

I could say nothing, think nothing, only stand there dumbstruck by her words. I don't know what I expected, if I expected her to speak at all; possibly an angry tirade, a cry of alarm a haughty rebuff.

Around her neck ran a thin strong chain of silver, fitting snugly and high, like the choker ribbons affected by fashionable women in the States. Pendant from this chain in the manner of a locket, was a silver amulet no more than two inches in diameter, heavily worked, and grasping securely in the exact centre of its carvings a perfect cobalt-blue star sapphire of tremendous size and brilliance.

The opalescent fire in the heart of this great gem flashed and burned against the copper-red of the girl's skin.

The design which held the jewel was in the motif of two entwined reptiles supported on the spread wings of a bird. The former appeared to be renderings of the Montezuman feathered serpent God, while the latter was most certainly a quetzal sacred bird symbol of the Nahuatlan Indians at the time of Cortez. There could be no question, even in such a cursory examination, that the odd talisman was Aztec in origin.

Immediately my mind returned to actuality, a region for which disposition and training had far better fitted it. Blushing in a style to shame any peeping schoolboy, I turned my back to North Star standing patiently until she spoke again.

From behind me, presently came a typically Indian instruction. "Hopo, let's go," said North Star, her low, husky voice setting me to quaking all over again.

Clad from head to foot in cotton-white furs and snowy doeskins, replete with colored moccasin and legging beadwork of the rarest Sioux workmanship, caped and hooded by a parka-like garment of prime Arctic fox pelts, Star's appearance made a memory with which any man might live forever, knowing he had seen true beauty.

"Everything is good for the eyes," I managed, worshipfully, my gaze sweeping in the whole wonderful picture of her.

"Hookahey!" she answered, laughingly, suiting motion to phrase by setting off down-trail walking lithe-hipped and pantherish. I fell in by her side and we travelled silently, our tongues as hushed as the fall of our moccasins in the fresh snow.

Bear Meat Good And Raccoon Too Butcher Claims

Ramore, Ont. — (CP) — Kelly Chamandy has opened an unusual butcher shop in this town 100 miles north of Sudbury.

He is probably the first man in Canada licensed to sell the meat of bear, beaver, muskrat and racoon.

Already known for his famed "Eskimo Land" — a unique collection of Northern Ontario relics —Chamandy predicts a booming meat business.

Since obtaining his licence a month ago, he has sold the meat of two whole black bears but claims he "could have sold 10 of them if I had them."

The supply of bear meat now is exhausted and he doesn't expect more until next August. However with the trapping season in full swing, he expects he'll have a good supply of beaver and muskrat meat on hand by the end of the month.

Few Racoons

Racoons, he said, are few and far between in the north but he believes he'll have some racoon meat for sale occasionally.

Requests of friends for bear meat gave Chamandy the idea of the butcher shop and set him about trying to get a licence.

With tongue in cheek he approached the wildlife division of the Department of Lands and Forests at Kirkland Lake in search of the licence.

And with tongue in cheek the division took Chamandy's request to the Ontario government in Toronto.

Within a week's time the licence came, enabling him to open his butcher shop but stipulating that only the meat of beaver, bear, muskrat and racoon be sold.

The plight of the now lowly-paid trapper is part of the reason why Chamandy believes he secured his licence without delay.

"The trappers used to get $75 for each blanket beaver pelt and now they get only $25," he said.

Sends Out Circulars

Chamandy pays trappers 20 cents a pound for the meat and sells it at 35 cents a pound. He had already sent out a number of circulars advising trappers of the new meat market and mailed to settlements from North Bay to Moosonee on James Bay.

About 200 trappers will get circulars. Some of the circulars went to trappers Chamandy already knows, while others were mailed directly to settlements for the trappers' information.

Chamandy estimates that 75 per cent of those who buy from him since he obtained his licence had never tasted the meat before.

"But they all keep coming back for more. They like it so well I can't meet the demands."

Business Only At Allied-Russ Frontier Point

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

On the Allied-Soviet Frontier Near Helmstedt, Germany, (CP) —The Russians are 40-odd miles from the 27th Brigade at this frontier point, but the Canadians are not being encouraged to come and see them.

Soldiers' sightseeing trips "to see the Russians" are, in fact, frowned upon because on a border where both sides try to avoid "incidents" this is no place for too many soldiers to be.

The world the Canadians understand comes to an end here in a pine forest called the Lappwold where men live and work almost side by side and are as depressingly far apart, as cut off as the two worlds they represent.

Work Yards Apart

Here where the British and Russian zones of Germany come together their soldiers work a few yards apart in mutual fear of "incidents." There is no fraternization, no sharing of friendships, of evenings, hardly even any sharing of conversation between the two sides which operate checkpoints on the great two-lane autobahn of highway Hitler built between Berlin and the western boundaries of Germany.

A hundred yards or so apart are the two small buildings which, together with west and east German checks, take up to six hours to clear individual vehicles in the two-way traffic, notably the giant trucks moving towards Berlin with food for the people in its isolated western sector.

(Berlin, incidentally, was the first place in Europe to be placed out of bounds to the 27th Brigade at least until its dangers of "incidents" have been assessed.)

There are only a few buildings, flags, men in British, Russian, east and west German uniforms, a sign which says "you are now entering the Russian zone," lines of trucks and civilian vehicles waiting to get through and, on either side of the highway, the forest through which thousands of refugees from east Germany have fled in the last six years. Helmstedt is out of sight, a small, picturesque town backgrounded by hills.

Manoeuvres Banned

For some years, troop exercises have been banned within five miles of this frontier because of "incidents." The British find that the Russians are terrified of "incidents". The British themselves are warned to "avoid incidents."

The Russians guard their own frontier. The British leave it mainly to west German police in green uniforms, backed by armored car patrols from time to time.

In the little concrete British checkpoint building these signs crystallize the atmosphere for people preparing to move on to Berlin along 120 miles of highway they are not allowed to leave:

"Important notice—if directed to stop by east German police do so but show no documents. If not allowed to proceed return to checkpoint for instructions. Avoid incidents."

"Have you enough petrol for 120 miles . don't leave the autobahn.. If you have a breakdown don't leave the spot."

The two sides have reduced their contacts almost entirely to business. In the words of one west German customs official, "there is business and goodbye and that is all."

Low-Cost Housing Project Underway in Casablanca

Here is aerial view of newly-completed section of Casablanca's "new city," known as Ain Choch, which is part of the ambitious housing project now underway, with 290,000 new housing units scheduled for construction before 1960. Morocco's urban population has risen from 552,000 in 1921 to 1,897,000 at the last count in 1947. The project is financed by French funds supplemented by aid and modern machinery furnished by the Marshall Plan. Even the lowest paid Moroccan can afford one of the new homes, with rent for each family running at 830 francs a month — about $2.35. — Central Press Canadian.

Barrie Flyers Edge Marlies; Indians Lose

(By The Canadian Press)

With Guelph Biltmores standing idle last night, Toronto Marlboros had their best chance in weeks to take over undisputed possession of the league leadership when they met seventh-place Barrie Flyers in the opening game of an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A twin bill in Toronto.

The Flyers provided a surprise, however. Playing a hard-hitting, close-checking brand of hockey, they set the Dukes back on their heels with a 3-2 victory. The loss left the Toronto club still tied with the Biltmores for top spot in the ten-team loop.

Toronto St. Michael's fared much better in the twin-bill nightcap as they drubbed sixth-place Waterloo Hurricanes 8-1. The win moved St. Mike's to within four points of the two top teams.

In the two other Junior O.H.A. tussles last night, Galt Black Hawks pounded out a 5-3 overtime victory in Oshawa, while St. Catharines Teepees came from behind in Windsor to edge the last-place Spirfires 5-4.

Senior O.H.A. play saw Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen move back into a second-place deadlock with Hamilton Tigers with a 5-3 win over the league-leading Stratford Indians. Brantford Indians clipped Sarnia Sailors 4-2 at Sarnia.

Up north, Sudbury Wolves dumped Sudbury Miners 7-4 in a tilt. The loss dulled the Miners' chances of pulling even with first-place Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds who hold a seven-point lead.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Joe DiMaggio's famous "5," the number he carried on the back of his New York Yankee uniform for 13 brilliant playing seasons, will be retired, club publicity director Arthur E. Patterson announced yesterday.

In a special ceremony on opening day next April, DiMaggio's uniform along with his glove and bat with which he hit his last home run will be presented to baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N. Y.

DiMaggio's final homer, his 369th and eight in world series competition, was hit off Sal Maglie of the New York Giants in the fourth series game last October.

DiMaggio's No. 5 uniform is third to be retired by the Yankees. Babe Ruth's famous No. 3 was retired soon after the Sultan of Swat left the club in 1935 and Lou Gehrig's No. 4 followed suit four years later.

Charlottetown Islanders and Glace Bay Miners of the Maritime Major Hockey League were given the go ahead last night to play each other after league president J. Elliott Hudson was assured at Halifax that proper police protection will be provided.

Mr. Hudson ruled out games between the two teams last week after an outbreak of rough play and fan interference at the rinks.

"Both forums have given me their complete co-operation in the matter and I hope and believe that there will be no further trouble," Mr. Hudson said.

A special Ontario Hockey Association meeting at Harriston, under the chairmanship of O. H. A. president J. W. Roxburgh, has ruled that the Elmira Polar Kings, intermediate B club, must play senior B hockey or drop three star players.

The committee found that goalie Robert Rabethege and forwards Grant Brown and Shorty Wildfong would have to be dropped because of ineligibility if the Kings continued on in intermediate B play. It is expected that Elmira will take the boost into senior B hockey and play off with the Bridgeport Vets, recently elected into the same company for the right to go on in senior B playoffs next spring.

Dick Kazmaier, all-American Princeton University football star, yesterday was named 1051's outstanding athlete by the Philadelphia Sportswriters Association. Heavyweight boxing champion Jersey Joe Walcott was second in the balloting with Ferris Fain, of the Philadelphia Athletics, winner of the American League batting championship, third.

Philadelphia Phillies yesterday named two men to the newly-created post of sales representative, believed to be a novelty in major league baseball. Robert R. M. Carpenter, Jr., Phillies president, said the sales representatives will make personal calls on industrial establishments, fraternal organizations, service clubs and similar groups interested in attending Phillies' games.

Appointed to the jobs are Hugh Dougherty, former college public relations director, and Tom Hudson, former airline executive.

Back With Rangers in Coaching Capacity

Elevated as coach of a minor league club to a major one in the N.H.L., Bill Cook is seen at the blackboard instructing a few of his Rangers and also manager Frank Boucher, in civilian clothes, on the finer points of the game following a workout at Madison Square Garden in New York. In succeeding Neil Colville who retired after 14 years in N.H.L. because of poor health, Cook, formerly head man of Saskatoon Quakers of the Pacific Coast League, returns to club in which he starred over 20 years ago as one of the all-time right-wingers. Between 1926 and 1936, the year he retired from active hockey, the 53-year-old native of Brantford, Ont., scored 228 goals for the Rangers. — Central Press Canadian.

Bisons Defeat Mohawks 6-3; Gain Top Slot

Buffalo Bisons outscored Cincinnati Mohawks 6-3 Wednesday night to move into a first-place tie with Hershey Bears in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League.

The Bears lost a chance to maintain their slim two-point lead by dropping a close 3-2 decision to Syracuse Warriors.

In the Western Division, Cleveland Barons took over second place from the idle St. Louis Flyers by shading Pittsburgh Hornets 4-3.

Vern Kaiser got two goals and the other Bison tally went to Eddie Mazur.

The Mohawks, blanked for two periods, broke through for goals by Jack McLeod, Herb Dickenson and Bill Wylie.

Harry Pidhirny, Sam Casanato and Doug M. Mundy scored for Syracuse. Ray Barry tallied both of Hershey's goals.

At Cleveland, Ike Hildebrand scored the winning goal at 18:00 of the third period. Phil Samis sank two for Cleveland, Cal Stearns completing their total. For the Hornets, the goal-getters were Andy Barbe, Frank Sullivan and Phil Maloney.

Petes Defeat Senior Hawks 8-5 To Create Three-Way Top Position Tie

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS · BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

EVEN STEPHEN!

The Peterborough Petes crept back into senior "B" hoc-contention last night when they administered an 8-5 defeat on our senior Hawks. That puts the Liftlock club up there in a three-way tie for top slot with the Hawks and Kingston. Friday night the Eagles are here and a win for the feathered foe will put the squads back on an all-even basis. Which is good for all concerned. The Petes, we are told, deserved their win last night, with all their "injuries" back in action. Looks like it's every man for himself and the "divil take the hindmost" from here in. Which is as it should be.

* * *

WHERE WAS THE BAND?

These alleged fights between alleged topflight people of the squared circle should be staged like any other comedy. Take last night, f'instance, that publicised fight between Ezzard Charles and Joey Maxim could have been made far more attractive with the inclusion of Wayne King's music.

King, if you are not "longhair" is the famous Waltz King and we know of no better foreground for his lovely music than the bout staged last night at the San Francisco Cow Palace between Charles and Maxim. The next time they had better take the show to Lower Slobbovia.

True, Charles won the decision, but he lost a lot of prestige if any remains in the heavyweight division, by sneaking out a win over the cruiser-weight champion, who couldn't punch his way out of a paper bag. Just for emphasis, we adjective that remark with the word "wet".

The pair "Waltzed Me Around Again Willie" to the accompaniment of mixed boos and applause from a 7,000 audience out there in sunny California. The rest of the fight fans went to night clubs and theatres where they got value for their money.

Oh for the return of Joe Louis, Jack Dempsey or any of the actual fighters when they were in their prime. The trouble with topflight boxing, circa 1951, is that it is stealing a feature from movie theatres, in that it gives an all-comedy program, with no main attraction.

* * *

HA, WATSON, THE NEEDLE WORKED!

Accusing this department of being "slightly mad" because, as he says, we "gloated" over the Hawks victory over his pet Eagles the other day, Marse Perdue, the Peterborough scrivener quips from his padded cell thusly, and as follows:—

"A couple of pishes and a tush, podner. You've been whistling that tune in a Quinte cemetery for lo, these many years. You never could take the group title from Eagles, Legion or Petes — or even Kingston — since you were an ex-buck private saving your gratuity for the Wall St. crash! We spent many fruitless hours trying to convince Ald. Claude Tice of your borough, the late Ken Colling and the later you of how hopeless your chances were, even when you had Trenton Fliers for a "home" team. But you'll never learn. True, you've got a contending club at the moment. A pretty fair goalie, a number of good forwards, but a so-so defence. Both Petes and Eagles have ace goalies, also a number of classy forwards. AND strong defences. Add it up and you've got the answer. It may take time to convince your club this year, but playoff time is a few months off yet."

H...mmm. Defeat sitteth not lightly, egad, upon the Perdue pate. All of which is but further proof that an ex-regimental quarter bloke's memory is as short as that of an office creditor.

Harken back, palso! Who ousted your feathered pets from the playoffs last season? The Hard Way, Bub, with no follow-up stinkaroo. And way back, me laddybuck, since you mention it, when we had the Trenton Flyers for a "home team" what team won the provincial Intermediate "A" title and went on to the Allan Cup playdowns? And left a Peterborough squad littering the conquest trail?

Yup, we admit you've got teams which boast "ace goalies, classy forwards and strong defences". Good thing you have, chum. Imagine what would have happened if the Hawks had similar strength. You're going to need all you've got, pal. And now go buy yourself a cooling beaker. Remember there's no truce signed as yet in that hockey "Korea" you've got up there. And if you're a good boy we'll invite you down here to see the senior "B" playdowns. Mission completed.

GREAT CAREER ENDS WITH RETIREMENT OF DI MAGGIO

Joe DiMaggio, one of the greatest baseball players ever to lace on a pair of spiked shoes, has hung 'em up for good. "When baseball is no longer fun" said the internationally famous 37-year-old Yankee, in a press interview in New York, "it is no longer a game. And so I have played my last ball game." Listing "physical injuries" as the chief reason for his retirement after 13 fabulous years in the major leagues, all of which were spent with New York club, the Yankee Clipper said he has not decided on his future plans but admitted "leaning toward television or radio." Since reporting to the Yankees from San Francisco of the Pacific Coast League in 1936, DiMaggio compiled a major league lifetime average of .325, took part in 10 World Series and earned an estimated $700,000 in salaries and series' bonuses. He was voted the American League's most valuable player in 1939, 1941 and 1947, also leading the circuit in batting twice and putting together a record 56-consecutive game hitting streak in 1941. Clean, Speedy Play Features Eight-Penalty Ice Tussle As Senior Race Tightens

Peterborough, Ont., (Special)—Dominating play throughout here last night the Petes fashioned an 8-5 OHA Senior B win at the expense of Belleville to climb into a top place group tie with the Hawks. They looked better than the visitors in a speedy, clean fray, marked with but four penalties aside, including a misconduct late in the third to Jack Wardhaugh for arguing over a minor penalty.

The Ellis outfit flew to a 3-1 lead in a big first frame. The Hawks made their best showing in the second which was a 2-2 heat, the Petes again flashing drive in the third for a 3-2 scoring margin. While Ray Harding handled a lot of hot ones, Maurice Lefort had more work to do in the other cage, and turned in a neat effort. A slim crowd braved the cold weather to view the fast fixture.

Two goals apiece for Petes were tallied by Jack Mortimer, Gus Leonard and Arn Dugan, as Curly Mason and Freddy Garvey each hit the twine once. Chum Fryia aided on a pair, single assists going to Ted Collins, Ron Forton, Gus Leonard, Jack Mortimer, Junior West, Arn Dugan, Curly Mason and Earl Leonard. The Quinte counters were by Nobby Day, Ernie Trumble, Jerry Desjardins, Doug Bastedo and Vern Goyer. An assist apiece was chalked up by Red Doran, Day, Peter Jones and Ernie Trumble.

Hit Post

Moher hit the post on a try early in the first but they could do nothing during Mason's absence for slashing. At 4.55 Garvey got in close with Collins past to blaze the biscuit by Lefort. Fryia's goal from Dugan was not counted. The Petes had a good margin on play, especially their first line, in speedy, clean travelling. The Goyer line threatened later and clicked for a neat goal by big Vern around defence from Trumble as he picked a small target and hit it. MacDonald was gated for holding and Doran followed for tripping. One was back when Mortimer tallied in a ganging-up attack with Horton and Gus Leonard.

With all back, Gus got one more in close from Mortimer and West on nifty passing just before the gong sounded.

Gus Leonard bored in fast from the side to score again as the second period got under way. Jopling was chased for boarding but his mates held off the enemy, and Gus just missed on a break away. Later Mason rifled one in from Dugan and Fryia at point blank range after Lefort made one save and was down. Dugan got the finger for tripping and Harding made several swell saves as Hawks flew in fast. Later, Dugan and Wardhaugh were waved over for minor roughing, and Bastedo blasted one himself from close range from Jones' pass. With all back, Belleville battled away to score one more late one, Desjardins slap shot on Day's passout catching a corner.

Jopling had a good rush to start the third and then Dugan took Fryia's fine pass to bullet the puck into the far net corner. Trumble got that back from Doran on a partially screened shot as play moved up and down at high tempo. A Petes goal was ruled in the crease. The Petes kept pressing a Fryia-Dugan effort nearly clicking just before a payoff rush with Dugan taking Mason's pass-up on a breakaway to sink a smart one. Mortimer added one more on his own rebound on a forward pass from Earl Leonard. Hawks kept fighting back and Day wound up the scoring on a fine solo thrust cuffing the cookie into the oven on his own rebound.

A Garvey-Collins rush just missed and then Wardhaugh drew a tripping penalty with a misconduct for arguing tacked on play was fairly even at the final bell.

American Pair Defeats Swedes In Cup Tennis

By GAYLE TALBOT

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 13 (AP)—Tony Trabert and Ted Schroeder virtually swept their Swedish opponents off the courts the first two singles matches of the United States-Sweden inter-zone Davis Cup final and were expected to finish the job by taking the doubles in similar convincing fashion.

Tony and Ted, whose selection for the singles over Vic Seixas and Dick Savitt caused some surprise, each won their singles matches in straight sets to give the United States a commanding 2-0 lead. A victory in the doubles will put the U.S. in the challenge round against Australia.

Trabert, a Cincinnati youth on leave from the navy, crushed Sven Davidsson, 6-3, 6-4, 9-7. Then the veteran Schroeder from Canada, Calif., stormed over Lennart Bergelin, Sweden's No. 1 player 6-2, 6-2, 6-4. Davidsson and Bergelin will pair against Tony and Ted in the doubles.

A crowd of 7,000 somewhat short of Koonyong Stadium's capacity, saw the one-sided matches.

Trabert defeated Davidsson in the opening match by staying in the backcourt and passing the net rushing Swede or forcing him into errors.

Tacoma Bows To Westminster

(By The Canadian Press)

The first place New Westminster Royals lost a 6-4 decision to Tacoma Rockets in a Pacific Coast League game last night but they showed just what kind of fighting spirit makes leaders.

They were down 6-1 at one stage in the third but they fought back and the Rockets had to hang on grimly to win. In the only other game of the night Seattle Ironmen and Edmonton Flyers wound up in a 1-1 deadlock.

Bradley scored 2 goals to lead the Rockets. The other Tacoma goals went to Doug Adam, Wingy Johnston, Mark Marquess and Gordy Kerr.

Guyle Fielder, Amy Dufault, Gordy Fashoway and Clayton Lavell looked after New Westminster's scoring.

Gaye Stewart Leads Rangers To 6-3 Victory Over Bruins

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Before the National Hockey League season started, manager Frank Boucher of New York Rangers was as happy as a school kid over the off-season trade that sent winger Tony Leswick to Detroit Red Wings for Gaye Stewart. The Fort William Flash would inject some sorely-needed scoring punch into the Blueshirts, said Boucher.

The experts figured that Frank got a bum deal in trades as the season started and Stewart could not buy a goal. Here was a fellow who never had scored fewer than 17 goals a campaign since he hit the big time in 1942 with Toronto.

He went scoreless for 23 games and then started clicking a week ago. Now he has six, exactly one-third of his 1950-51 production with the Wings.

Gaye clicked with Nos. 5 and 6 last night as Rangers dumped Boston Bruins 6-3 and vaulted from the cellar spot into a fourth-place tie with Montreal Canadiens. It was Stewart's third two-goal effort in the last four games.

Disappointing Crowd

There was only one sour note to the proceedings—the only activity on the N. H. L. front—and that was the crowd. It was 6,104, the lowest of the season todate, which is a mite surprising in view of the Blueshirts' thumping 7-2 victory over Toronto at Madison Square Gardens last Sunday.

The Rangers now have scored 15 goals in three games, which should be more than enough to satisfy Manhattan fans who have been screaming for sudden-death overtime after watching the Blueshirts stumble through close-scoring games the last two seasons.

Rangers piled up a 3-0 lead midway through the second period and appeared to be coasting to their second victory in three games when the Bruins got back into the game with goals by Johnny Pierson and Dave Creighton within 28 seconds.

Stewart made it 4-2 early in the third period and poked in his second at 11:57 after Milt Schmidt netted Boston's final tally.

In addition, Stewart received assists on two other Ranger goals.

Other Ranger marksmen were Wally Hergesheimer, Ed Slowinski, Don (Bones) Raleigh and Reg Sinclair.

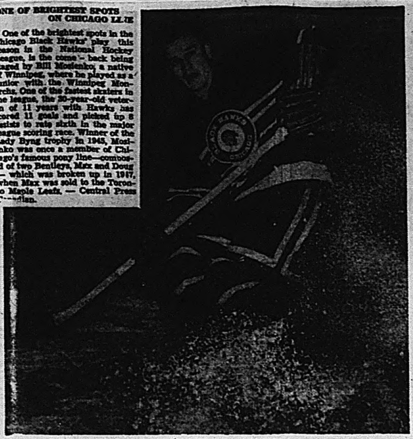
Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Expansion of the National Hockey League to 10 or 12 teams was suggested by Mervyn Dutton, then N.H.L. president, at a meeting of league governors in Toronto six years ago today. He pointed out the league held unused franchises from the old Montreal Maroons and New York Americans and had tentative overtures from new cities. The league however remains at six teams.



ONE OF BRIGHTEST SPOTS ON CHICAGO LINE

One of the brightest spots in the Chicago Black Hawks' play this season in the National Hockey League, is the come-back being staged by Bill Mosienko, a native of Winnipeg, where he played as a junior with the Winnipeg Monarchs. One of the fastest skaters in the league, the 30-year-old veteran of 11 years with Hawks has scored 11 goals and picked up 8 assists to rate sixth in the major league scoring race. Winner of the Lady Byng trophy in 1945, Mosienko was once a member of Chicago's famous pony line—composed of two Bentleys, Max and Doug — which was broken up in 1947, when Max was sold to the Toronto Maple Leafs. — Central Press Canadian.

N.H.L. Turns Thumbs Down On Overtime Play Suggestion

New York, Dec. 13—(CP)—The National Hockey League again has turned thumbs down on overtime play.

The board of governors of the league at a meeting yesterday decided that unless over time could be used to break all tie games it would not be desirable.

The catch seems to be train time-tables. Transportation difficulties would prevent overtime at certain games at New York and Montreal.

Three teams—Chicago, Boston and New York—were reported to be in favor of overtime but only if it could be made universal.

The matter was brought up by Boston general manager Art Ross who made a similar suggestion last year. It also was turned down.

Overtime was done away with in the N. H. L. during the war as it was in all professional hockey. However, the American Hockey League has reinstated the 10-minute overtime period.

The meeting, a spokesman reported, also:

1. Banned exhibition games between big league teams during the regular season. One such game is scheduled between New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks in Milwaukee, Wis., in January but after that no more will be allowed.

2. Heard a report from league president Clarence Campbell that gate receipts are better so far this season than last in all league cities except Chicago. No figures were given.

3. Discussed, but did not act upon; a proposal by Boston that all visiting teams share in gate receipts. Campbell pointed out this was banned by the league constitution.

4. Approved a brief already drawn up to be sent to the congressional committee in Washington which is investigating the anti-trust aspects of the reserve clause in professional sports contracts. The brief was not made public.

Charles Gets Verdict Over Maxim In Waltzing Matilda' Fight Feature

By RUSS NEWLUND

San Francisco, Dec. 13 (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles has finally convinced light - heavyweight title holder Joey Maxim, after five beatings, that it is a hopeless cause to challenge him.

Charles, who expects to punch the crown off Jersey Joe Walcott's head in their return fight early next year, dashed Maxim's hopes for a successful foray into the heavier division at the Cow Palace last night.

The lean Cincinnati Negro outpunched the 175-pound king to win an easy 12 round decision.

There were no knockdowns and not much sustained action. Neither was damaged or even in trouble. The crowd of 10,827 booed at times in dull moments when Maxim engaged in frequent clinches.

A Losing Venture

Gross Receipts were $60,886.25, the net was $48,000 lus $25,000 from television, for a $63,000 total. Charles took 35 ercent of that; Maxim 27 1-2 percent and the Chronicle Christmas Fund for Needy Children 10 percent. Promoter Jimmy Murray said the bout was a losing venture.

Both Charles and Maxim immediately looked forward to championship fights not too long off.

Charles declared "I think I can whip anyone in the world until they beat me." That's what Walcott did last July when he kayoed Ezzard in a surprise win.

Maxim, who whipped Irish Bob Murphy in defense of his championship a few months ago, is going to campaign in his own division. He said he was ready to take on the principal contenders, Harry (Kid) Matthews of Seattle or veteran Archie Moore of St. Louis anytime.

In the sixth round, Charles was warned for a low punch. The ex-heavyweight boss justified his 1 to 3 favoritism to outscore Maxim. He packed the heavier blows, forced the going and landed more frequently.

After the match, Maxim said "I wasn't hurt by Charles, and would be ready to go again tonight. He hit me low three or four times but I made him miss punches every round. He's just a jinx, I can't beat him. He shook me up only once with one to the chin."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

There is a ceiling on aces and kings in a bridge game. The limit is four aces and four kings for each deal. But they are not rationed to the player. Each player does not always get an equal share of them.

When partners get slambitious, they do not go headlong into a slam and hope for the best. They first learn what will be trump and if they have 12 tricks. Then they find out if they have enough aces and kings.

To discover how many aces and kings they have, one of the partners bids four no-trump. But not unless he has at least two aces and a king in his own hand. It asks partner to signal how many aces and kings he has.

Each different signal shows a different amount of aces and kings. Each signal is, of course, in the form of a bid of some kind. But the bids have conventional meanings.

That list of signals makes up an ace-and-king convention.

My convention responses are listed below:

5 C	shows no A
5 D	shows 1 A, no K
5 H	shows 1 A, 1 K
5 S	shows 1 A, 2 K
5 NT	shows 1 A, 3 K
6 C	shows 2 A, no K
6 D	shows 2 A, 1 K
6 H	shows 2 A, 2 K
6 S	shows 2 A, 3 K

After an exchange of bids between you and your partner, suppose your partner bids four no-trump. Find your response with this hand:

♠J 2
♥A K Q
♦A 3
♣Q J 10 9 8 7

Bid six diamonds. It has nothing to do with your diamond suit. It is merely the convention signal for showing you have two aces and only one king. Waggling your ears is not permitted.

Weston's Trim Trudeaus 5-1

Westons Bread continued to dominate play in the Owl League as they racked up their fourth consecutive win without a loss in league play at the Memorial Arena last night, defeating Trudeau Motors by a score of 5-1.

The winners led by a score of 3 to 1 at half time.

Bill Jackson turned the hat trick for Westons with Don Kennedy adding the other pair to account for all of their scoring. J. Garvin tallied the only goal for Trudeaus.

Officials for the contest were Bill Cannon and Bill Williams.

WILL BE GREAT ANSWER

Madras, India, Dec. 13—(Reuters) — The United States believes that "a free, democratic and confident India will be the great answer to communism in India," American Ambassador Chester Bowles said yesterday. He told a press conference he hoped India would receive "substantial and reasonable help" under the point four program for aiding underdeveloped areas.

EXTEND PERIOD

Copenhagen, Dec. 13 — (AP) - The Danish Folketing (Lower House of Parliament) early today passed the government's proposal to extend the military conscription period from 12 to 18 months The vote was 100 to 28. The extended service period will allow Denmark to set up the one fully-equipped, ready-to fight division requested for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Atlantic Pact army.

THE "YANKS" WON

Kitchener, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Eighty Ontario dentists gave up pulling teeth to do some curling yesterday as the Ontario Dentists Association held its third annual bonspiel at the Kitchener-Waterloo Curling Club.

The Major trophy was won by a Toronto Granite rink skipped by Dr. John Trelford.

The runner-up quarter was skipped by Dr. J. A. Spellman of Kitchener.

Prizes for the highest singles went to an Owen Sound group skipped by Dr. H. B. Legate.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 13—(AP)—The man who started the cycle of pictures about super-intelligent animals is content to let the cycle die.

Arthur Lubin, now directing his fourth "Francis" picture, expects it to be his last.

"I'm not sorry I started the cycle," he remarked, "but I'm just as happy to see it end. Too many producers are coming up with pictures about dogs and cats and all kinds of animals, so I think it's time to quit."

Lubin is what is known as a packager. He finds stories and sells them to studios, along with his services as director. He made such a deal for the original "Francis" and also for "Rhubarb," the movie about the cat that owned a baseball club.

Washed Up

"The comic possibilities of such pictures are just about exhausted," the director said. "You can only do so many of them and then the market is full."

I watched Lubin direct scene after scene of Francis until the mule went through the right motion. Despite the pains needed for such scenes, the director displayed affection for the mule.

"He's really a smart animal and takes direction as well as could be expected," Lubin observed.

He wasn't quite as complimentary about Rhubarb. "Cats just won't take direction," he said. "You just can't do a thing with them."

The director's next package will also be in the fantasy department. He will direct Irene Dunne in "It Grows on Trees." The "it" is just what you think it is—money.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, December 14

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Your Mars, the Sun and Saturn now stress need for extra patience and close attention to necessary and important matters. Don't indulge emotional outbursts; listen as well as talk.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Quiet, intelligent thinking and doing today will net tip-top results, leave you and others happier at end of day. Artistic work, finesse, skill in any activity highly sponsored.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Wisely scan notations to all folks and judge for yourself best course to follow: We all deal with others. Restrain self in all emotions and, remember, even small gain is commendable.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Moderation, sensible planning and execution of duties a must for you, too. Better finish incompleted tasks than start new ones, unless urgent. Be serene, co-operative.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Don't seek unreasonable favors for immediate recognition for efforts, but faithfully perform tasks and know that every good deed, and your best efforts will register to your credit.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Not all auspicious nor all restricting, especially for known matters, familiar activities. Day on whole calls for astute management, kindly understanding, patience. You can gain.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—You and Taurus have most favorable rays from Venus and both of you should proceed calmly with day's program. Avoid extremes, especially in private matters. Work for general good.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Your Mars and a few other planets' positions warn against heeding advice promiscuously, insufficiently checking details. You are most efficient when serene, co-operative.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — May not be all smooth sailing but familiar matters should move ahead with your sturdy help. Be fair, genial and you will get along well. More caution, patience with new tasks.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn)—As with most of us today, you will fare better if cheerful, albeit attentive to essentials. No need to strain but keep sensibly busy. Familiar tasks, study, finishing things top favored.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Industry, trades, labor, whether mental or physical, should advance appreciably. Some unusual gains through superiors, also possible by your own observations.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)— Less restraining for you perhaps than for many, nevertheless be cautious, patient, help it be a more pleasant day. Don't seek to do more than you can but do urgent tasks first, and well.

YOU BORN TODAY: Frank, impulsive, versatile and industrious. May be too outspoken at times (this can cause hurt feelings, disrupt reasoned discussions). You have the happy faculty of being satisfied with what you are doing so long as you are busily occupied. Be alive to occasional fresher opportunity, for success awaits your initiative and industry. You can succeed as manager of large concern, as banker, broker; in fact whatever occupation needs intelligent management, smart planning and promoting. Guard against straining energies.

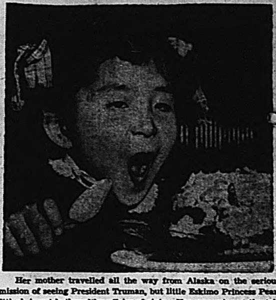
Affairs of State Can Wait



Her mother travelled all the way from Alaska on the serious mission of seeing President Truman, but little Eskimo Princess Pearl Ittigah is not bothered by affairs of state. Her memories of the trip to New York and Washington will centre mostly on this plate of ice cream, the first in her career. Her mother brought a petition signed by thousands asking more federal attention for Alaska. — Central Press Canadian.

CROFTON

CROFTON

Crofton — Miss Theda Jones, Reg. N., of Oshawa hospital, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Jones. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Morrison and children, of Belleville, were visitors at the same home on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr, of Burr's called on Mrs. S. J. Munro on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lefort, Shirley and Paul, of Belleville, were Sunday evening guests of their mother, Mrs. W. J. Gray.

Mrs. Victor Bongard, of Picton, spent Sunday with her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Jerrold Bongard.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Salisbury and Janet and Mrs. Charles Haight, of Blleville and Mrs. Fred Madigan of Toronto, were tea and evening guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Crook and Ronald.

A large crowd attended the church services on Sunday afternoon when the Sunday School children and their teachers took over the song service.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS CENTRAL REGION

Proposed Alterations to Station Building at Belleville, Ontario.

Tenders are invited for the above mentioned work, which includes the removal of existing floor, partitions, brick chimney, stairs, toilet fixtures with alterations, the necessary excavation; concrete beams and concrete slab floor; structural steel; reinforcing rods and mesh; carpentry work; millwork; ticket grilles; plaster work; metal lath; painting and glazing; plumbing; heating, water lines and drainage; metal toilet partitions; linoleum; acoustic tile; ceramic tile; terrazzo floor; miscellaneous iron, and supplying and placing of finished hardware. Sealed tenders, marked on the outside "Confidential"—"Tender for Alterations to Station Building," and addressed to Mr. K. RAWDON

Fred Bateman Installs Officers

Rawdon — On Thursday evening last Fred Bateman, Grand Master of Ontario East Loyal Orange Lodges, and a member of Springbrook, L.O.L., had the honor of taking the chair for the annual election of officers and the installation of the 1952 slate of officers for Springbrook L.O.L.

There was a large number of members in attendance. The slate is as follows:

Worshipful Master, Rev. H. Beare; Deputy Master, Elwood Johnson; Chaplain, Chris Bateman; Recording Secretary, Clayton Burkitt; Financial Secretary, Gordon Webb; Treasurer, Orrie Barton; Marshal, Alex Grabowski; 1st Lecturer, Grant Galloway; 2nd Lecturer, Delbert Mumby; Tyler, Thomas Webb.

Refreshments were served in the dining hall and a social half hour enjoyed.

The Two-by-Two Club held their Christmas party at Mount Pleasant Church Hall on Friday evening. Mrs. Eric Summers presided over the opening devotional and business.

The children in attendance all contributed short items on the program, after which Santa arrived and distributed a bag of treats for each child.

Rev. R. R. Bonsteel conducted the gift exchange after which homemade candy and coffee were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Williams attended a birthday dinner in Trenton on Sunday for their granddaughter, Miss Karen Reid.

Euchre Party

The second euchre party sponsored by River Valley Women's Institute at the school house was held last Friday evening with a good attendance. The prizes were donated by Mrs. Ed. Kent.

There were nine tables in play with winners: ladies high, Isobel Heasman, (fancy plate); ladies' low: Fanny Kane, (flower ornament); men's high: Jack Sager, (deck cards); men's low: Harry Heasman, (pen knife).

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed. Parties will be resumed after the holiday season.

On Monday evening Brother Fred Bateman, Stirling, Grand Master of Ontario East, was a special guest at Tanner Lodge, Eighth Concession Rawdon.

Brother Bateman, assisted by County Master Ernest Coulter of Moneymore, and District Master Jack Sharpe of Rawdon, installed the slate of officers for 1952.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Born: At Sine Maternity Home, Rawdon, on Monday, December 10th, 1951, to Mr. and Mrs. Milton Wannamaker, West Huntingdon, a daughter, Lois Anne. A sister for Linda.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shaw and Wayne, Ivanhoe, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher, at Brinkworth.

Mrs. Charles Ross, Oak Hills, spent a day last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. McMullen, Fifth Concession.

The Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada has prepared its program for "The World Day of Prayer," to be held the first Friday of Lent, February 29th, 1952, on the theme "Christ Our Hope," as found in First Timothy. From dawn on the Fiji Island to dusk on the Arctic Island of St. Lawrence, women of 104 countries will unite in services of praise, penitence and dedication, as hymns and prayers ascend to the Father of all.

River Valley Farm Forum convened on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Bush.

The ladies of Pethericks served a turkey supper at the Hoards Livestock Auction.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine and Doris were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Sine, Salem.

Several Rawdon farmers were busy plowing last week. One man in the Carmel district plowed all day last Saturday.

A large number of Rawdon folk attended the dance at Springbrook on Friday evening, sponsored by Stirling L.O.L. No. 110.

Ida Mae Bailey, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bailey, Carmel community, has returned home from the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, where she spent several days.

Little Miss Suzanne Bailey has been visiting her grandparents at Moira, and her uncle and aunt at Foxboro, for the past couple of weeks.

U.N. Disarmament Talks End in Deadlock

The new U.N. sub-committee, organized for express purpose of seeking a greater measure of agreement on thorny disarmament question, has met with little success in breaking the East-West stalemate. The one point on which "Big Four" representatives were in agreement after ten days of closed meetings was setting up of a 12-member disarmament commission, including Canada, to reopen long-range disarmament negotiations. "Big Four" sub-committee members are seen from left to right: Mr. Jules Moch, France; Dr. Philip Jessup, U.S.; Mr. Andrei Vishinsky, U.S.S.R.; Dr. Luis Padilla Nervo, Mexico, chairman, and Mr. Selwyn Lloyd, U.K. — Central Press Canadian.

FOXBORO

Foxboro — The Rev. H. Giffin baptized the following babies at church on Sunday evening: Barbara Ferne, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gould; Nathan Parry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stoughton and William Kenneth and Stephen Lyle, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Don McKeown.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Menzies were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Montgomery.

Mrs. John Menzies of Provost, Alberta, arrived on Monday to spend some time with her mother, Mrs. A. Bonkin.

The Y.P.U. sponsored a pie social in the Sunday School rooms on Friday evening which proved to be a success.

Mrs. Henry Wallace is visiting at the home of a daughter, Mrs. E. Chambers.

Mrs. Ben Ketcheson of Trenton returned home after spending a week with Mrs. A. Bonkin.

Many friends extend sympathy to Mrs. A. Shorten, Harrowsmith, in the passing of her mother.

Friends extend sympathy to Mrs. Earl Ketcheson who is at present a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Menzies of Provost, Alberta, returned home after spending a few days with their grandmother, Mrs. A. Bonkin.

Mrs. I. Gay returned home after visiting her sons in the United States, instead of Mrs. R. B. Hamilton, as reported in last week's news.

Weston Urges Care in Choice Of Executives

London — (CP) — Garfield Weston, Canadian-born executive of big British bakery interests, believes British business men should comb their staffs to find the right men for the right job because Britain's existence depends on it.

In an informal speech at a company meeting the former Toronto biscuit executive said the matter of management is one of the vital problems of the day.

He pointed out "the vital difference of good management, strong management, aggressive management, as compared with weak management — though working with the same tools, in the same circumstances, and on the same problems.

"England must comb through the management of every single business in the country until she is satisfied that there are at the top the ablest men that she can possibly command. Our very existence demands it."

Weston, known here as the "cookie king" because of his bakery interests, has businesses in Australia, South Africa, Britain and the United States, as well as 32 companies in Canada. He recently obtained a controlling interest in the famous London department store, Fortnum and Mason.

STANDARD FARMING

The classical system of crop rotation in Britain consists of four sowings—clover, wheat, turnips, or such, and barley or oats.

External Affairs Minister Pearson Returns Home

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP) —External Affairs Minister Pearson returned yesterday from a month-long stay in Europe which took him to the United Nations General Assembly in Paris, Atlantic-pact meetings in Rome and conferences with Commonwealth officials in London.

He told reporters that he found conditions in Europe "about the same" as when he visited there earlier this year and said he welcomed the big power attempts to find a formula for disarmament.

He declined to comment on a report that a North Atlantic treaty organization committee has recommended that Canada and seven European member countries boost their 1952 rearmament programs by another five to 10 percent.

RAILWAY HUB

The Railway Veterans Institute at Crewe, England, famous terminal, has 1,400 members mostly 70 and 80 years old.

GOOD PROSPECTS

Winnipeg (CP) — "Excellent employment prospects" for university students on the prairies next summer were forecast by Fred White, regional superintendent of the Unemployment Insurance Commission. Business organizations are already enquiring about workers, he said.

DOUBLING UP

Pictou, N.S. (CP)—Need of additional space in the town schools was forcibly pointed out in reports to the school commissioners. In one grade 9 class there are 50 desks and 53 pupils. Two of the extras use the teacher's desk, while the third is a "floater", using any that happens to be vacant that day.

BETTER FOREST RECORD

Fredericton, N.B. (CP)—Chief Forester G. L. Miller announced that New Brunswick closed the 1951 forest f'e season with the lightest acreage loss in five years. Total number of fires, 113, lowest since 1945, burned an estimated 2,500 acres of timber land.

FINED FOR DESERTION

Newmarket, Ont., Dec. 12—(CP) —Mrs. Agnes Brown of Uxbridge, yesterday was fined $10 and costs or three days for leaving her six small children unattended for an hour in an automobile Oct. 16 while she and her husband were in a hotel beverage room. The oldest child is seven years of age.

CAMPBELLFORD

Deputy Reeve Mason Slams Unauthorized Spending For Gravel to Repair Road

Campbellford—Due to the fact that the election this year in Campbellford fell on a council meeting date, council held its last meeting of the year Monday evening. The meeting threatened to end on a hectic note when the question of a bill presented to the chairman of the road and bridge committee came up.

Deputy Reeve Oscar Mason was away in November, when residents of a street on a hill in the western section of the town began to telephone councillors that the road was impassable. A committee went to the road and decided something would have to be done. The outcome was that 84 yards of gravel were put on the hill, and the bill, amounting to $105, was presented to Mr. Mason, chairman of the road and bridge committee. Mr. Mason took exception to the fact that members of other committees had spent the road and bridge budget money, and pointed out that it would be the same as him ordering work done which would cost some other committee money.

Councillor P. H. McMillan maintained the expenditure was necessary and that as the residents of the street were ratepayers they were entitled to consideration. Mr. Mason claimed two engineers had surveyed the hill and advised what should be done. He claimed the engineers advised against putting gravel on the hill.

Councillor George H. Free said the condition of the hill did not constitute an emergency and wanted it to appear in the records that this action would not establish a precedent. He contended that if the thing were let go, it would lead to haphazard spending of money by committees who did not know what they were doing.

Reeve R. J. Locke, who acted as mayor in the absence of J. E. Ayrhart, said that since the work had been done, whether or not it was correct procedure, he thought the bill should be paid. Councillor Kingston said he believed the same thing and moved that the bill be paid. Councillor Nicholas seconded Mr. Kingston's motion and Mr. Mason signed the bill authorizing payment.

Councillor Rutherford asked if the council wished to purchase trees again this year to use in decorating the streets for Christmas. Council decided the trees would be purchased and set up in preparation for the Santa Claus parade.

Reeve R. J. Locke thanked the councillors on behalf of the mayor for their co-operation during the year and said he thought much had been accomplished. He invited them to lunch; the councillors accepted.

The meeting adjourned until December 21 when the council, or a forum, will meet to pass a by-law appointing a trustee to the high school area board for two years.

HALLOWAY

Halloway—Mr. and Mrs. Bob Coulter and family of Sidney, were Sunday guests of Mr. and M—. Kenneth McMullen.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Leslie and family have moved to Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Emerson and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend and boys were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Townsend on Sunday, it being the occasion of Mr. Herb Townsend's birthday.

Sorry to report at the time of writing that Mrs. Fred Sarles is ill. All wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen entertained on Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. George McMaster; Miss Bessie McMullein and Mr. and Mrs. Blake McMullen.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Rollins and family and Mrs. Joe Rollins of Ivanhoe, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Workman.

A number of children attended the Santa Claus parade in Belleville on Saturday.

A baptismal service was held in Halloway United Church on Sunday afternoon, and those who were baptized were: Roger John Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Reid; Lenny Elizabeth Workman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Workman; and Roger Glen McMullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen.

The children are busy practising for the Christmas concerts for the school and Sunday School.

Friends were shocked to hear of the sudden death of Clayton Helm as he made his home for some time at Halloway.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake McMullen spent the supper hour and evening on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kelly of Belleville.

Delayed Reports Boost Death Toll In Typhoon to 541

Manila, Dec. 13—(AP)—Delayed reports from Leytē Island today boosted the death toll of Monday's typhoon to 541.

The same typhoon turned on itself and is sweeping back toward the Philippines from the west while another is bearing down on the islands from the east.

Southern Leyte, the island on which American forces returned to the Philippines in the Second World War, bore the brunt of Monday's battering storm.

The Philippines news service reported the mayors of two Leyte towns announced 211 bodies counted in their areas alone. Abuyog, 35 miles south of Tacloban on Leyte Gulf, reported 176 dead. Another 135 dead were reported at Sogod on the southern tip of Leyte.

Officials listed 146 known dead in the Tacloban area and around the entrance to Surigao Strait.

Eighty-four dead previously had been reported from three other islands of the Central Philippines—Cebu, Negros and Panay.

An estimated 150,000 were homeless. Property damage from destroyed homes, uprooted coconut and banana groves, flattened cane and rice fields ran into uncounted millions of dollars.

The typhoon's 130-mile-an hour winds had dropped to 105 as it turned around in the China Sea.

The weather bureau reported the tropical cyclone was 220 miles southwest of Manila today.

The weather bureau said both the returning typhoon and the second cyclone, 450 miles east of the Philippines, were turning and might miss the islands. The new storm turned northwestward. The winds in its centre were estimated at 70 miles an hour.

26 PERSONS HURT

Milan, Italy, Dec. 13 — (Reuters) — A gas tank car on a freight train exploded here yesterday, starting a huge blaze which took 10 hours to control. At least 26 persons were hurt. Reports said the explosion, which shattered windows in a 2,000-yard radius, occurred when the train collided with another near the Milan Gas Company.

"A GOOD PLACE TO DEAL"

Felt Weak, Dizzy, Easily Exhausted, Couldn't Sleep

Back Ached, Appetite Poor, Food Upset Stomach, "But Feel Like a New Person Since Taking Syntona," Says This Man.

Some months ago when flu was prevalent throughout the country Mr. Orvil Graham, Hyde Park, Ontario, was one of its victims. He says that ever since then he has been in a weak, rundown condition. After taking several things without getting any better he says he was advised to try Syntona and now tells how this medicine helped him to overcome the trouble.

"I was so weak and tired that I would become exhausted with the least effort. Even so, when I went to bed at night I couldn't get my proper sleep. My appetite was poor and what I did eat upset my stomach giving me indigestion, bloated feeling and sick bilious attacks. I would often get dizzy feelings, my back was lame and sore, and it seemed I was dragging myself around and just had to force myself to get things done.

"Realizing that the things I was taking were not helping me I asked my druggist and he suggested that I try Syntona. I soon found that this medicine gave me better results than anything I ever used before. Also I found that the other things I was taking actually upset my stomach and left me feeling worse, but on the contrary, Syntona helped my digestion, gave me a better appetite, and it wasn't long before my strength returned and I was able to get more sound, restful sleep. Now I am free of dizzy spells and backache and I am able to do my work without becoming exhausted as I did before."

Syntona is a Pure Herbal Medicine. It contains no soda, iron or other minerals. It is pleasant to take and results are quickly felt.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Joan Bennett's Agent Cut Down By Her Husband

Walter Wanger is Arraigned For Attempted Murder

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 14. (AP)—A blazing pistol cut down movie star Joan Bennett's agent as he was standing beside her in a parking lot last night. Police said her producer husband, Walter Wanger, admitted the shooting.

Police Chief Clinton Anderson quoted the prominent, grey-haired movie-maker:

"I shot him because he broke up my home."

Wanger was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder. He stayed in jail overnight. His arraignment was set for 10 a.m. (1 p.m. E.S.T.) today.

The victim, Jennings Lang, 39, was reported in "fairly satisfactory" condition. He underwent surgery lasting 1 1-2 hours.

One .38-calibre bullet penetrated his groin and came out through the rear of his left leg, Anderson said. The other slug tore through Lang's clothes and grazed his thigh.

A bullet ripped through the left front fender of Miss Bennett's big green convertible. She was sitting in the car when the gun roared, about 5.30 p.m., in a parking lot across the street from the Beverly Hills police station.

Lang was standing by the car, talking to her. He doubled over, clutching at his abdomen.

Anderson quoted Miss Bennett as saying she told Wanger:

"Get away and leave us alone".

She told the police chief that her relations with her agent were purely business.

Taken Into Custody

Miss Bennitt, 41, was quoted by Chief Anderson as relating:

About 2.30 p. m. she went into the nearby Music Corporation of America building to see Lang, her agent for 12 years.

They took a drive around Beverly Hills and Hollywood in his car, discussing a proposed television show for her. They returned to the parking lot about 5:20.

She and Lang got out of his car and walked over to hers. She got in, he stood beside the door. They talked a few minutes. She had turned the motor and lights on when the gun flashed and roared and she saw Wanger standing nearby.

The veteran producer of many films, including "Stage Coach," "Foreign Correspondent" and the financially ill-fated "Joan of Arc," was questioned at length and fingerprinted.

The hint of discord between the couple was as shocking to Hollywood as the sudden burst of gunfire.

Lang, the father of two children, is head of west-coast television operations for Music Corporation of America.

Chief Anderson told reporters that Miss Bennett thought her husband had been on the verge of a nervious breakdown because of financial troubles.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was brought against him by the Bank of America for $178,476. To satisfy unpaid loans to Wanger, the bank moved last September to foreclose on the couple's $150,000 home in fashionable Holmby Hills.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 14 (CP) —Synopsis: The chief centre of attraction on this mornings weather map is a typical winter storm covering the Missouri River basin and moving northeastward towards southern Ontario. This storm will bring snow to the southern half of the province and a threat of freezing rain to the lower lakes regions. The amount of snow will vary considerably with the locality, with present conditions indicating two to four inches in regions bordering Lake Erie and five inches or more inland from Lake Ontario.

Lawyer Admits Dropping Case After Request

Washington, Dec. 14. (CP)—A former government lawyer admitted today he let a tax prosecution case drop at the request of a congressman.

The admission came as Charles Oliphant was being questioned by a congressional committee investigating alleged irregularities in the United States income tax department.

Oliphant, who quit last week as general counsel for the internal revenue bureau, said the case involved the Washington Beef and Provision Company for 1942 tax deficiencies. He said the case was dropped at the suggestion of Rep. James Morrison, Louisiana Democrat.

He added that he took the action despite instructions from his own boss that the case should be pressed.

Later, under questioning by Rep. John W. Byrnes, Wisconsin Republican, Oliphant admitted that he tipped off T. Lamar Caudle that his income tax returns were under investigation.

Caudle is former assistant attorney general of the United States whose resignation was forced several weeks ago by President Truman, who said his outside activities were improper for a person holding government office.

With Caudle in its witness chair, the committee delved extensively into his activities and turned up such things as airplane trips to Florida as the guest of a business man in tax troubles, a $5,000 commission on sale of an airplane, and certain associations which committee members have denounced as questionable.

Halt Crime Wave

Kapuskasing, Dec. 14—(CP)—Police said today they believe they have halted a major crime wave with the arrest of four youths and one juvenile and the recovery of $1,500 worth of goods stolen since last August.

Charged with breaking and entering and theft are David Sullivan, Edmond Doucett, Reginald Seguin and Ramould Lalonde, all of Kapuskasing. They will appear on the charges Tuesday.

Law Catches Up With Impregnable 'Rum Fortress' of Prohibition Days

Halifax, Dec. 14 (CP)—The law has finally caught up with 113 Market St., the impregnable "rum fortress" of Nova Scotia's roaring prohibition days.

The little frame house up the hill a few streets from the waterfront has been declared unfit for human habitation and ordered removed.

For old timers it will be the end of an era.

In the roaring '20s, the lights burned late at 113 and the rum flowed free. On deserted bits of beach along the coast furtive little men waited as rum-laden boats nosed out of the Atlantic mists with new supplies Atlantic mists with new supplies for the booming bootlegging trade that blossomed during the life of the Nova Scotia Temperance Act.

Through it all 113 did a steady business.

Outside, the law offices listened in frustrated rage.

The steel doors and shuttered windows of 113 had defied their best efforts. Behind the high fence vicious dogs were on patrol.

On the few occasions that the police did manage to enter the house the ringleaders were missing. Usually, after a court case against the few found in the house, there was a bigger and better celebration at the "fortress."

The day after one such court appearance was the annual police and firemen's parade. At the head of the parade was the band, in a horse-drawn wagon.

Proudly driving the wagon was the proprietor of 113 Market St.

But perhaps the most troublesome, to the police, was the galvanized iron chute which led down to a pile of rocks in the basement.

When police arrived those inside the house with evidence simply tossed their bottles down the chute. The bottles smashed on the rocks and the rum ran down a drain. Result: No evidence

REUTHER SAYS PLAN IS READY TO END STRIKE

Settlement Move May Come Today

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 14. (CP)—A settlement move in the strike at the Ford Motor Company of Canada may come today.

A meeting of members of Local 200 of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) will consider still-secret proposals for ending the wildcat walkout Dec. 3 of 9,000 productions workers that climaxed six months of contract negotiations and was touched off by the firing of 26 union men blamed for causing work stoppages.

These proposals may include a plan which Walter Reuther, the U.A.W.'s international president, said last night he had worked out with George Burt, Canadian director of the U.A.W. and officers of the Windsor Ford Local.

Mr. Reuther revealed no details of the plan. His unusual step of issuing the statement on the eve of the union membership meeting was an apparent move to offset reports that he had moved into the situation to "lay down the law" to the U.A.W.'s Canadian leaders.

However, he said in the statement that the international union "insists on termination of the unauthorized strike" and that he and Emil Mazey, international secretary-treasurer, had advised the Ford Local's executive board of "the clear-cut, firm opposition of the international union to unauthorized strikes which are in violation of the democratic procedures required by the union's constitution."

Agrees With Burt

He added that this position was in conformity with that taken by Mr. Burt.

"Together with regional director Burtt and the local union officers, we evolved a program to bring about an end to the unauthorized strike. We are working with the regional director and the local union officers to put this program into effect."

The walkout of the production workers has caused the layoff of 3,000 Ford officer employees and feeder plant workers. It has also closed down the power plant at the automotive works in what the company says is a violation of a contract with the union.

In the no-deadlocked contract negotiations, the union has been seeking a 30-cent-an-hour "package" increase over the basic hourly rate of $1.32. A conciliation board recommended a 13-cent-an-hour increase.

RESIGNS AS MEMBER

Washington, Dec. 14—(AP)—Sumner T. Pike resigned today as a member of the United States Atomic Energy Commission. Pike was Truman's choice for chairman of the commission before Gordon Dean, the present chairman, was appointed. He served five years on the commission.

Police Predict Speedy Roundup Of Gang of 16 Jewel Thieves; Most of Them Are in Canada

New York, Dec. 14—(CP)—An international gang of 16 jewel thieves, most of them Canadians, is reported on the verge of capture.

A New York police source, who predicted imminent arrests, said last night that most of the gang now are in Canada. Ten were reported in Toronto, one in Vancouver, two already are in prison and another was expected to be taken into custody shortly.

A high-ranking police official, who asked that his name not be used, said the expected arrests would solve a series of hotel and apartment burglaries "here in which more than $1,000,000 worth of gems has been stolen in the last 18 months.

(In Toronto, the Globe and Mail reported in a copyright story that all members of the gang are Canadians. The newspaper estimated the gang's loot from robberies both in Canada and the United States at more than $3,000,000 and said most of it had been taken to the Toronto area for sale to known "fences".

(Toronto police had no comment, either on the Globe and Mail story or on the New York report).

A New York City detective, James McShane, was said to have reported that a Loretta Nesbitt was arrested by Royal Canadian Mounted Police in Toronto. She was identified by McShane as an acquaintance of all 16 alleged members of the ring.

McShane and an insurance company investigator have been working on the case in Canada. They have made two trips to Toronto recently, the last one only Wednesday.

Woman Arrested

The police source quoted McShane as reporting that Miss Nesbitt was arrested "in an automobile which has interested New Jersey police investigating the Willie Moretti slaying" and that she had been arraigned in Toronto on a stolen car charge.

Moretti, a well-known gambler and underworld figure, was shot to death in a Cliffside Park, N.J., restaurant Oct. 4. The murder is unsolved. There have been reports he was executed by underworld gunmen because it was feared he would become too talkative with government officials investigating crime.

McShane also was reported to have said that all members of the ring have police records and are "known" to Canadian authorities. His report to police also said that American officials in Canada are interested in the case on the assumption that the ring's operations had involved illegal crossings of the border.

Commited on 'Prowls'

It was pointed out that all the hotel and apartment robberies here had been committed by what police call "prowls" — in which pass-keys and celluloid slips have been used to gain entrance rather than force or weapons.

The police official gave no list of jewel thefts here for which the gang is believed to be responsible.

Five jewel thefts reported here during the last six months, however, have netted thieves gems valued at more than $100,000.

These robberies, all staged on Manhattan's east side, included thefts at the apartment of James Mason, the actor, with $30,000 in jewels taken; at the Mayfair House apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Victor, $30,470 in jewels taken; at the Waldorf Astoria hotel suit of Mr. and Mrs. Chester H. Lehman, $20,000 in jewels taken; at the Hotel Pierre apartment of Tony and Silly De Marco, $13,000 in jewels taken, and at the Hotel Savoy Plaza apartment of Mrs. William Du Pont, $20,505 in jewels taken.

British Ambassador to Egypt Will Not be Recalled Despite Same Action by Egyptian Govt.

London, Dec. 14—(Reuters)—Britain will not recall her ambassador to Egypt, despite the Egyptian government's decision to recall its ambassador in London, a foreign ministry spokesman said today.

He said the British government does not want to widen the gap between the two countries.

The Egyptian envoy here, Abdul Fattah Amr Pasha, recalled because Britain demolished 50 Egyptian houses in a road-building operation near Suez last Saturday, is still awaiting an order from his government to leave.

In a surprise move today, he cancelled a reservation on a Paris plane and asked for an afternoon appointment with Anthony Eden, British Foreign Minister.

It was understood he would deliver a message from Ibrahim Farag Pasha, acting Egyptian Foreign Minister.

He may yet catch a later plane for Paris, where he is due to attend a conference of Egyptian diplomats tomorrow.

Informed sources said, meanwhile, that Britain will propose to Egypt that the two nations talk things over and try to cool off their dispute about the Suez canal and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Eden is expected to suggest that the two governments begin negotiations, either in London or Cairo, for a new treaty tied in with the British-American-French Turkish Middle East defence plans.

There were some indications that the situation was not hopeless in the bitter and often bloody British-Egyptian dispute. The French-language Cairo paper, Journal D'Egypte which often reflects palace opinion said the recall of the Egyptian envoy does not mean a full break in diplomatic relations.

The journal said a meeting between Eden and Egyptian Foreign Minister Salah El Din in Paris next week would help clear the atmosphere and possibly lead to negotiations.

Three Allied Planes Downed By Communists

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 14—(AP)—Communist anti-aircraft guns shot down three Allied planes today while MIG-killing American Sabre jets destroyed one communist jet and damaged three.

The U.S. Fifth Air Force said all the Sabres returned safely from their two jet fights over northwest Korea.

So did two reconnaissance F-80 shooting stars that were jumped by six red MIG-15s near the north Korean capital, Pyongyang. The F-80s outmanoeuvred and outflew the red pilots in the much faster MIGs.

In unrelated actions red flak brought down a Shooting Star, an F-84 Thunderjet and an F-51 Mustang. All three fell in communist territory.

Friday's two jet battles came less than 24 hours after the American Sabre pilots scored their greatest all jet victory—13 red jets downed, two probably destroyed and one damaged.

In a 25-minute battle Friday morning between 48 Sabres and more than 100 MIGs, one red jet was shot down and two damaged. Another red was damaged in an afternoon scrap.

The flash of action emphasized the current leading role of the air in the Korean War.

TRIP NOT GIVEN UP

Melbourne, Dec. 14 (Reuters) Sir William McKell, governor-general of Australia, said today the King and Queen have not given up their intention of coming to Australia for a royal visit. The King's doctors ordered cancellation of the tour, planned for next March. Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will make the trip instead.

HOUSE IGNORES PARTY LINES IN CBC DEBATE

Battle of Ideologies Rage in Parliament

Ottawa, Dec. 14 (CP)—A battle of ideologies raged in the Commons yesterday.

It grew out of a controversial series of broadcasts made over the CBC in its Wednesday night programs by noted physicians, psychologists and philosophers speaking on religious, moral and similar subjects.

The debate broke across party lines, with some members protesting that such subjects should not be aired in the home while others upheld the broadcasts on the ground that there must be freedom of speech on the air.

Some expressed fear for children hearing such broadcasts.

It ended with Revenue Minister McCann, the minister who reports by parliament for the CBC, conceding that "in this particular instance probably something got over the air which it would have been better for the great majority of our people not to have been permitted to go over the air."

The discussion developed on a government bill to provide the CBC with grants of $6,250,000 annually for a five-year period. The legislation later was adopted and now goes to the senate.

Certain Broadcasts Protested

The protests centred around broadcasts by Bertrand Russell, eminent British philosopher; Dr. Anna Freud, daughter of the famed founder of psycho-analysis; Dr. Carl Binger, professor of psychiatry at Carnell University, New York; Dr. Ewen Cameron, professor of psychiatry at McGill University; and Dr. Brock Fhicholm, Canadian psychiatrist of international renown and chairman of the world health organization.

John Blackmore (SC - Lethbridge), a school teacher and father of 12 children, protested that Dr. Chisholm held views on birth control that were against the teachings of the Bible and against the views of 80 percent of the Canadian people.

The CBC was allowing over the airways an "indoctrination" process by a man who wanted to dry up the source of all manpower. This indoctrination was a "monstrosity" which "petrifies the imagination."

R. R. Knight (CCF-Saskatoon) took the view that limitation of such broadcasts would breach the freedom of speech.

As for children, he encouraged his child to "see everything and examine everything and then bring to bear that intelligence of his own that he may make his own choice." His responsibility was to "guide him along what I believe is the proper road and to provide him with a good example," to see that he is "equipped with the ability with which to make his choice."

O.P.P. Constable in U.S. to Receive Praise from His American Friends

Alliance, O., Dec. 14—(AP)—A Canadian constable, here to receive the praise of his American friends, gave a little talk on international relations in the college chapel today and humbly defined them as:

"The way people get along together."

Constable Harvey L. Adams of Sharbot Lake, Ont., a member of the Ontario Provincial Police was a guest of the city and of Mount Union College because he did a good turn last summer for three Alliance men who were on an American fishing trip.

This was the message he brought to the college's "International Relations Day":

"We have the radicals, the hot heads, the agitators and the rebels just as you have in this country. Yet deep down in our minds we know and you know that we are one country and perhaps the last of the truly great democracies.

"With mutual help we hope to remain that way and carry along with us, at any sacrifice, the little peoples who value freedom and who are willing to fight for it."

He concluded with, "I hope these little incidents will be copied by our heads of state."

Adams was called to the scene one day last summer when an automobile containing three Alliance fishermen was wrecked. He gave them his car to complete the seven-day trip and when they returned, refused to accept any pay.

So the Alliance men, with the help of city officials, civic clubs and the college, staged a celebration here with Adams as the honored guest. Thursday night he was the centre of attraction at the Lion Clubs' Christmas party.

This morning in the chapel services Adams was handed a leatherbound citation for international good will by Paul Swindermand, a Mt. Union senior who is president of the college's International Relations Club.

Dr. Charles B. Ketcham, Mount Union president, termed the constable's act of generosity "one of the truly genuine examples of inter-American friendship and brotherly love."

At a civic luncheon this noon Adams received the keys to the city from Mayor Harley R. Ewing. The three fishermen will entertain him at a private dinner, and the constable will return to his home tomorrow.

Increases Range From 4 to 14 P.C., All Retroactive

St. Laurent Says Series Of Boosts Now Justified

Ottawa, Dec. 14 — (CP) — A broad series of pay, salary and allowance increases for Canada's armed forces, the civil service and the R.C.M.P. was announced in the Commons today by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The raises, ranging from about four to about 14 per cent, all are retroactive to Dec. 1.

The last general adjustment in rates of pay for government employees was a year ago.

Mr. St. Laurent said the government's policy on raises is based on two main principles:

1. That salary and pay scales and other conditions of employment in both the civil service and the armed forces should be such as to attract and retain persons of the right type and necessary qualifications.

2. That, having regard for the ancillary conditions of employment, remuneration for each class of work or employment should be generally in line with that paid for comparable work by good private employers.

Increases Justified

Applying these principles to current conditions, the prime minister added, the government believes that "a broad series of pay and salary increases now is justified."

The general average effect of the increases will be to add between eight and nine percent to the government's payroll.

The armed service increases include substantial boosts in trades pay for qualified warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men. In addition, fully-trained infantrymen and other trained combat soldiers now will draw a specialist's pay of $6 a month.

For the lowest ranks—privates, seamen and aircraftmen— the new scales provide monthly increases in basic pay of $8 and in subsistence allowance of $4. These range up to $13 basic and $7 subsistence for the highest non-commissioned rank.

For officers, there are increases ranging from $8 a month to $95 in basic pay, depending on rank, and from $4 to $30 for subsistence. The outfit allowance for newly - commissioned officers jumps to $375 from $250.

New Rates Given

Under the new rates a private fully trained will receive $152 monthly, including subsistence allowance, compared with $140; a sergeant $201, compared with $186; a lieutenant $299, compared with $274; a major $448, compared with $410, and a colonel $694, compared with $636. Equivalent ranks in the air force and navy will receive similar pay.

For the R.C.M.P., the increases range from $15 a month for third class constables, who have completed training, to $30 for sergeants and staff sergeants.

Increases for commissioned R. C. M. P. officers range from $35 for sub-inspectors to $66 in the rank of deputy commissioner.

Justice Minister Garson said they are expected to stimulate recruiting and encourage serving personnel to remain in the force beyond the minimum pensionable service.

The annual pay of a third class constable after completion of training goes up to $2,220 from $2,040 for an annual raise of $180.

Dealing with the civil service, Mr. St. Laurent said the increases go to all classes with the following exceptions:

Exceptions Outlined

1. The salaries of civil servants in the higher brackets will be reviewed individually.

2. Where it is clear that current civil service salary rates already are closely in line with rates being paid by good private employers, the Civil Service Commission will consider whether and to what extent it would be proper to recommend specific increases.

3. Where the salaries paid in any class have been adjusted since last December, a lesser increase than that applied generally will be authorized.

4. The proposed increases will apply only to classified employees. The rates of pay of prevailing rates employees—those paid by the hour—are governed by the prevailing rates in similar private employment.

The Civil Service raises, in a complex series of tables which cover hundreds of classifications and jobs, go to clerical, postal, customs and similar government employees, whose rates compare most easily with industry.

These grades make up the bulk of the public service.

Cigarets Seized

Harriman, N. Y., Dec. 14—(CP)—A truck loaded with 56,500 packages of cigarets—possibly intended for smuggling into Canada—was seized today by New York State Police.

Police said they believed the cigarets were en route from Maryland to Rouses Point, N. Y., near the Canadian border. Rouses Point has gained a reputation recently as a jumping-off point for smugglers shipping cigarets into Canada.

Special guests at the Boxing Day tea-dance will include Brigadier J. Knight, area commander, Kingston and Mrs. Knight.

Penitentiary Term Of Four Years Given Accused

Appearing for sentence today on five separate charges Gordon Arthur Gough, 27, of New Brunswick, was given four years in the Kingston penitentiary.

A companion, John E. Gaffney, 21, of Belleville, was sentenced to one year in jail. The pair was sentenced by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Gough was given two years in penitentiary for attempting to break and enter Thrasher's Mill on Coleman Street, and was given an additional two years for carrying a weapon. Concurrent terms of one year were given for entering the Swift Canadian plant; entering Belle Cleaners, and being in possession of goods stolen from the office of Stokely Van Camp at Trenton.

Gaffney was given one year for attempting to break and enter Thrasher's Mill, and one year concurrent for breaking and entering the Swift Canadian Company office.

The men were arrested by city police as they attempted to enter Thrasher's Mill. A neighbor had heard the breaking of glass and notified police.

Orange Lodge Elects Officers

The annual election and installation of officers of Sunshine Loyal Orange Lodge number 3199 took place last Friday evening with a large number of members in attendance.

Worshipful Brother, Frank G. Carr, Immediate Past County Master was in charge during the election of officers. Worshipful Brother Charles R. Hewson, Immediate Past Master took the chair for the installation ceremonies.

The following officers were elected to hold office for the ensuing year: Worshipful Master, Henry Maracle; Deputy Master, Thomas Burtt; Secretary Treasurer, Clarence Maracle; Recording Secretary, Alfred Woodhouse; Chaplain, John King; Marshal, Ralph Collins; 1st Lecturer, Frank Carr; 2nd Lecturer, William Adams; Committee Chairman, Edward Adams; Committeemen, Bud Shier, Roland Maracle, Robert James and John Jones.

After lodge proceedings were over all retired to the banquet room where the successful and most enjoyable evening was brought to an end.

Matter of Price Increase For Milk Producers Left To Next Year's Executive

Although members voiced dissatisfaction tha tproducers in the Belleville area were receiving less for milk than is paid in other parts of the province, the matter of a request for a price increase will be left to next year's executive.

It was pointed out that the price received by local producers for bottle milk was $4.12½ per cwt., while in other parts of the province the price is $4.60 and $4.70 in Toronto. Some markets receive as high as $5 and $5.25 per cwt.

Wait And See Attitude

Association president Arnold Mitchell, Thurlow township, said the local producers had taken a "wait and see" attitude while producers in the other parts of the province went after more money. He noted that many markets had now been settled with the provincial award being $4.60 per cwt.

The price for surplus milk is considerably below the bottle trade price.

Mr. Mitchell congratulated local distributors on their handling of milk during the past year and noted that the first duty of a producer was to produce milk of top quality and then advertise the food qualities of good milk. He felt the advertising campaign sponsored by the Dairy Farmers of Canada had been a big help.

Takes Exception to Claim

Mr. Mitchell took exception to claims by several Ontario mayors that the price of milk was too high.

"They just do not know the facts or the actual cost of producing milk," he said.

He compared the cost of producing milk for the dairy trade with that of producing cheese milk, pointing out winter production is much more expensive than producing milk only during the summer months.

He referred to formula prices and zoned milk sheds which had proven successful in some areas, principally in the United States and said that such a system may go a long way toward solving milk production problems in Ontario.

Under the formula price system the price of raw milk was linked to the economic conditions in that area, the basic price taking into consideration labor wage levels; farmers cost of production and cost of other dairy products.

Build Herds Cheaper

Dr. J. M. McLean, V.S., head veterinary in charge of the Quinte District Cattle Breeders' Association, told producers of the value of artificial insemination, pointing out that farmers receive the services of high quality bulls at less than it would cost to keep their own bulls. In this way herds could be built up at less cost.

Provincial Director Morley Davidson reported on the year's work of the Ontario Milk Producers' League.

Executive officers were reelected for another year. The slate include Arnold Mitchell as president; Edgar Ray, vice president and George Flowers, Belleville R.R. 7 as secretary treasurer. Directors are Arthur Vermilyea, Horace Knight, Douglas Atkins, J. Emerson and Jack Parrott. Morley Davidson was re-elected as provincial director.

ESCAPE FURTHER DAMAGE

Manila, Dec. 14 (AP)—Weathermen said today the Philippines appeared likely to escape further damage from typhoons threatening the islands after a storm killed 655 Monday. The same storm that swept across the central islands turned on itself over the China Sea and headed in the general direction of Manila.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 14—(CP)—Steadily weakening support today eased early afternoon stock market prices to the week's fourth decline.

Banks and manufacturing companies formed the market's strongest sections. Agricultures and retail stores weakened. Foods liquors and refining oils dipped sharply.

Trading slackened with decreased activity in speculative mining issues. A scattered list of penny golds showed large turnovers.

Calmont, Gridoil, Home Oil, Scurrry, Tower and Western Homestead strengthened while Calvan Consolidated, Central-Leduc, General Petroleum and Western Leaseholds weakened.

Consolidated Smelters dipped slightly after its dividend discount, while International Nickel and United Keno Hill eased fractions. Anacon Lead and Steep Rock edged upward.

Senior Golds posted two gains against three losses in slow trading. Secondary issues traded irregularly.

PICTON

Cleminson Host At Big Banquet Held at Picton

Picton —More than 200 were guests of Reeve James Cleminson, of Wellington, warden of Prince Edward County, at the annual warden's banquet, Wednesday night. Among those present was the Warden's father, Harry D. Cleminson, who was warden 38 years ago.

Greetings from Hastings County were brought by Warden Harry Coulter. Musical selections were given by Hugo Diggins orchestra and solos by Reg. Bishop. J. Donald Baxter was toastmaster and paid high tribute to the warden, as did other speakers. In responding, the warden paid tribute to members of county council and county officials for their co-operation.

If the province has in its service men of the type that county councillors and officials signify, then we have nothing to worry about, said Judge Wilfred Lane in proposing a toast to the province of Ontario. Responding, Sheriff H. J. Colliver mentioned the expansion of services in the province.

Gordon Walmsley proposed the toast to the county of Prince Edward, with response by Norris Whitney, M.L.A. He expressed the thought that development of the St. Lawrence might mean a good deal to this county.

Toast to local municipalities was given by Mayor Harvey McFarland and the various reeves and deputy reeves of the county. The mayor said he felt that the province should assume more of the burden of taxation now carried in municipal tax levies by paying a greater share of the cost of education and social welfare services. He referred to the county rate in 1902 as one and five-eighth mills, this year 17 mills, as evidence of the importance of his suggestion.

Economical Advantages Of Grass Silage Outlined To Meeting at Stirling

The labor and time saving advantages of grass silage as compared with the former procedure of harvesting farm forage crops was outlined to members of the Hastings Crop Improvement Association at their annual meeting held in Stirling Thursday.

Guest speaker was Thomas Dickenson manager of the Ottawa Dairy Farm who gave his own personal experiences in the swing to grass silage and the economical advantages that had been noted.

The time and labor saving in putting up grass silage as compared to normal haying procedure were two of the factors which were encouraging farmers to swing away from conventional haying operations. With the grass silage method farmers are not held up for weather and the forage harvest can be completed in approximately one half the time with less than half the labor.

Feeding Advantage

There was also a feeding advantage with grass silage that worked out in dollars and cents saved, according to Mr. Dickenson. He said that any crop, which stock would eat green could be put into grass silage, but "the better the crop the better the silage."

The feed would not be as good as green but the silo was the best way to handle it. The feed loss as silage would be from five to 15 per cent as compared with a 20 to 40 per cent loss with dry hay.

Mr. Dickenson went into detail as to the right grass mixtures to use and the proper stage for cutting and wilting of the grass to get the correct moisture content. He said it was better to have too which moisture than to have the silage too dry.

Popular Mixture

Sweet clover and orchard grass was a popular mixture for grass silage, but the clover should be cut before it reached the bloom stage. Mixtures were better than straight crops.

Farmers entered enthusiastically into the discussion period proving that Hastings county farmers were vitally interested in the grass silage method of harvesting the hay crop. Questions were fired at the speaker regarding the type of machinery needed and what machinery could be used in place of a forage harvester.

Mr. Dickenson said the grass crop could be cut with a mower; loaded with a hay loader and cut and blown into the silage with a regular type insulage cutter.

Old fully depreciated trucks were ideal for hauling silage to the silo. They could be operated in low gear and it was easier to get help to run a truck than drive a team of horses.

Summing up the labor problem Mr. Dickenson said the grass silage method had changed haying from a "back-breaking job to a mechanical process."

Fed Silage Daily

Unusual as it may sound, the speaker said the Ottawa Dairy Farm herd of milkers was fed silage only once per day. The silage was augmented by 1.3 pounds of dry hay per cow per day and by feeding of grain correlated to the milk production. The result of this had been increased milk production, and improvement in herd health.

During the morning session of the meeting members discussed field crop projects while in the afternoon J. S. McCrea chief weed inspector for Eastern Ontario and W. Tanner county weed inspector, gave reports.

Murney Reynolds of Foxboro was named president of the association for 1951 with Jerry Wringe of Marysville as immediate past president. Vice-presidents are Irwin McCoy, Marmora and Arthur Wood of Stirling with Arthur Wood of Stirling with Harold Chambers as alternate. Secretary treasurer is A. O. Dalrymple, of Stirling.

Directors are Jack McAlpine, Maynooth; Harry Foster, Tweed; Charles Treverton, Plainfield and W. J. Stewart, Madoc; Thos. Kielty, Tweed, is potato director Mr. Reynolds and Mr. McCoy were named as delegates to the provincial annual meeting in Toronto.

Canada Orders 48 Transport Aircraft from U.S.

Ottawa, Dec. 14 — (CP) Canada has ordered 48 transport aircraft from the United States of the type known as "flying box-cars" at a total cost of $38,633,280, it is shown in a statement on military orders presented before the Commons defence expenditures committee.

The plane, known also as the "military packet," has proved "extremely useful" in Korea, officials said today.

An RCAF spokesman said the planes will not be delivered "for a considerable time."

The military packet will not replace the North Star, which has a greater range and is more suitable for transporting personnel, but it may dislodge the Dakota from a number of jobs for which the latter is not suited.

GUARDS ON LOOKOUT

Mexico City, Dec. 14 (AP)—Mexico's border guards are on the lookout for clandestine Santa Clauses. Federal police and customs inspectors have been put on the alert to sharpen their eyes for smugglers for whom the gift season offers an especially profitable market. Nylons, cheap jewelry, toys, perfume and luxury articles fill the sacks of these gift bearers whose chimney leads through the international border.

Three Countries May be Proposed As Inspectors

Washington, Dec. 14—(AP) — The United States has told three countries— Sweden, Norway and Switzerland—that they may be proposed as members of "non-belligerent" inspection teams in event of an armistice in Korea.

The proposed teams would maintain a check on whether the communists and United Nations forces were abiding by armistice terms.

The approach to the three nations was made through their ambassadors here yesterday by John D. Hickerson, assistant secretary of state for United Nations affairs.

Hickerson, it was learned, told the ambassadors the United States would like to know whether their governments had any objections to participation in an inspection commission.

They were told that in principle the United Nations Korean command probably could accept the armistice inspection idea.

The communists have referred to this idea as inspection by "neutral" teams; the United Nations, as Hickerson explained it to the envoys, calls for "non-belligerent" teams.

Hickerson is reported to have said that the American government does not believe that any United Nations member could be considered as neutral in the Korean conflict but that many members without troops in Korea were clearly "non-belligerent".

WHO'S PROMOTING THIS STRIKE?

The wildcat strike at the Ford Motor Company's plant in Windsor, which has idled at least 10,000 men in the Ford plant alone and created a serious situation for many of the city's smaller merchants and other business men, seems now to be entirely out of hand.

On Tuesday, B. A. E. Clouse, the sheriff of Essex county, succeeded in some way in crossing the picket line to enter the plant for the purpose of removing certain patterns. Sheriff Clouse had been authorized to enter the plant and remove the patterns by a writ issued by the Supreme Court of Ontario. The writ had been issued at the request of the parent Ford company across the Detroit River, which wanted the patterns for use in parent company's plant in Michigan.

The strikers who formed the picket line around the entries to the huge plant allowed the sheriff and his truckload of patterns to depart. But immediately afterward, the pickets, of whom there are hundreds at each of the gates to the plant, turned on some of their own best friends —Mayor Arthur J. Reaume of Windsor, Edward B. Jolliffe, leader of the Ontario C.C.F. and union counsel, and Jack Taylor, president of Local 200 of the United Auto Workers, the union of which the strikers are members.

Mayor Reaume, who has fought for the union many times in days gone by, was threatened with violence and called all sorts of bad names by a howling mob of pickets and their sympathiers. Mr. Taylor was similarly shouted down and threatened with violence when he tried to plead with the pickets, as were other union officers.

A reporter and a photographer for the Windsor Star were given a similar working over and threatened with violence if they took any pictures of the scenes about the plant. In fact, photographer Don Grant was told that if he took even one picture, he would not leave the spot in one piece. (Four large pictures of what took place during the removal of the patterns did appear in the Windsor Star, however.)

In the present series of disturbances around the Ford plant, as in those which took place previously, the police apparently do not intervene. The strikers now disregard not only their former friend and supporter, Mayor Reaume, but their own officers.

If neither the municipal authorities, nor the union officers, nor even the picket captains have any control over the Windsor strikers, who has? Are they a law unto themselves? Apparently, they are.

VOICE OF THE VALLEY

By a vote of more than two to one Pembroke has beaten a bylaw that would have permitted commercial sports on Sundays in that town — and there spoke the authentic voice of the Ottawa Valley. Every polling station in every ward gave a majority against the scheme.

When this matter of "modernizing" our Sundays came up a couple of years ago, first of all in Toronto and Windsor, it was represented as a broadening of our liberties — or at least the chance to broaden them — and a measure to give us more enjoyment out of our leisure.

Actually the governing word in the scheme is "commercial," and those most anxious to see Sunday games established in Ontario towns and cities are, and quite naturally, those who would profit materially from them. In Toronto the chief effect of its new freedom was to give the city commercial baseball on Sundays.

Pembroke was smart enough to understand that there is nothing in the present law to forbid Sunday games for which an admission fee is not charged, and Pembroke chose to keep its quiet Sunday, to retain its traditional observance of the Sabbath. The Journal believes Ottawa would reach the same decision if a vote were taken here. — (Ottawa Journal.)

"PUREBRED" IS THE WORD

A word much abused in its everyday use is "thoroughbred," and trotting horses have been designated by the same name, while it is not unusual to hear a person refer to a dog or a cat as thoroughbred. Actually the word intended in all such cases was "purebred." A Thoroughbred is a special breed of horse, is a proper name and should therefore be capitalized as Hackneys, Standard Breds, Shetlands, among horses, or Jerseys, Holsteins or Ayrshires among cattle. — (Guelph Mercury.)

ITS MASTER'S VOICE

La Prensa, once one of the greatest newspapers in this New World, was put out of business by a Peron-inspired strike in Argentina's capital, Buenos Aires. Now, after nearly 10 months of suspension, it is back on the stands. It looks much as it did before — until one comes to read it carefully. Now, far from being a pillar of a free press, it is just a ventriloquist's dummy for Gen. Peron. — (Brantford Expositor.)

JUST FOLKS

BROTHERS

Some eat no meat on Friday, and other friends of mine
Observe an ancient custom and eat no flesh of swine.
Yet, when we meet at table,
whate'er each choice
may be,
On Thursday or on Friday
still brothers all are we

And still we play together.
Together, too, we grieve—
So little is the difference in what we all believe.

For we have God above us,
although our paths divide,
And what is pride to one man,
to all of us is pride.

One code of honor rules us;
one test for weak and strong.
A gentleman's agreement of what is right and wrong.
In birth and death we're brothers. Why into quarreling fall,
Since what is sin for one man,
is sinful for us all?

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 14th., 1931

The chairs in the Griffin Theatre, corner of Bridge and Church Streets, and which for many years was called the Carman Opera House, are being removed by the Board of Education and will be used in the auditorium at Queen Alexandra School and at King George School. The old opera house building will soon disappear.

Miss Laura Bell was here from Toronto to spend the weekend at her home on Isabel Street.

Mrs. F. Hudon of Lindsay is spending a few days here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. McLellan.

Messrs. David E. Fisher, Charles J. Doran, Jack Donaldson and Fred G. Ward attended the railwaymen's banquet at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Armstrong of Ottawa, formerly of Belleville, are renewing acquaintances in town.

30 YEARS AGO

Dec. 14th., 1921

The following officers of the advisory council of the Belleville high school were elected recently: President, Edward Hart; Vice President, Edith Moore; Helen Sinclair, 5th. form; Austin Walters, 4th. form; William Deroche and Robert Smith, 3rd. form; Laura Cook 1D.

Mrs. M. J. Tisdale has arrived home after spending some months visiting her children at Cleveland, Ohio, Erie, Pa., Lima N. Y., and Toronto.

Mrs. D. Christie of Port Hope is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Harry Elvidge, in this city.

A campaign is underway to raise the sum of $2000. to clear off the deficit of the Children's Aid Society. This worthy cause should receive liberal support from the citizens.

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 14th., 1911

Mrs. James Howatson of Massassuga, accompanied by a young visitor from Carroll, Manitoba, crossed the bay in a rowboat today, Dec. 14th. Quite late in the season, we would say.

Mr. Robert J. Anderson and family, formerly of Turriff, have come to this city to reside.

At the annual meeting of the Belleville Bible Society the following officers were elected: — President, Rev. Robert Wallace, First Vice President, Mr. S. A. Gardiner; Second Vice President, Mr. W. B. Deacon; Treasurer, Rev. A. L. Geen; Secretary, Rev. A. M. Hubly; Executive Committee, the pastors of the city churches and Messrs. Walter Alford, C. M. Reid, P. F. Canniff, S. Russell, J. E. Walmsley, T. Nightingale, C. A. Harte, W. P. Hudson and E. Botterell.

Mr. Alfred Gillen received official instructions from Ottawa to assume at once the position of postmaster of the Belleville office.

50 YEARS AGO

Dec. 14th., 1901

Mr. B. Iler, deputy collector of Inland Revenue, class A., Toronto, has been appointed to succeed the late A. McAllister, as collector of Inland Revenue at the port of Belleville.

A frame building on Everett Street owned by Mr. Philip Hart was destroyed by fire early this morning. A number of valuable dogs were saved .

Mr. D. B. Robertson yesterday completed his twentieth year as city clerk of Belleville.

The Rev. J. J. Rice and Mrs. Rice will leave shortly to reside in Toronto.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LEARN BY DOING

There are plenty of people who talk about the doing of great things, and those who read about how to do things, but the only practical way to learn anything is to go ahead and do the thing you wish to do. Then you learn.

Some one remarked to Thomas Edison once, as he was told of the hundreds of failures that Edison had experienced on an invention he was working on, that he was wasting his time, but the great inventor replied that these hundreds of failures were very valuable to him for through them he learned of the many ways that did not work. He could always go to something fresh knowing that those past failures need not trouble him again!

By doing a thing we learn, not only what we wanted to learn, but how to spread out and learn more and better things. In the lower grades of schools, the children are put to work upon the making of things, and are taught to observe by lessons in art. This stimulates their creative faculties, which is invaluable as they grow older and learn to do new things.

We learn of our many defects by doing, and by testing out our abilities, many of which might lie idle, or never be discovered, otherwise. How many of us actually know the extent of our talents until we begin to dig them out and put them to the test? Learn by doing and you will always be on the right track.

The late Rex Beach was once a brick salesman. One day a chap showed him a cheque for a story he had sent to a publication. Beach read the article and decided he could wrtie something just as good. So he tried—and a cheque came back to him. He gave up his job and devoted his life to writing. He became one of America's finest novelists—and a grand human being he was! He learned by doing.

Joseph Conrad, the Polish novelist, could not speak or write English until he was past thirty years of age. But when he died he was acclaimed as one of the greatest masters of English prose in the world! He learned by doing. So can any of us.

WORK WITHOUT PERMISSION

Lima, Peru, Dec. 14 — (AP)— The newspaper La Prensa reported yesterday that more than 26 United States fishing vessels are operating in Peruvian waters without permission. The newspaper quoted Peruvian Fishing Company officials as saying the ships were seen 30 miles off the coast. Peru claims sovereignty over waters extending 200 miles from the coast.

HELP WITH HARVEST

Mulberry, Fla., Dec. 14 — (AP) — About 4,500 students in Hillsborough county "strawberry schools" will begin a three-month vacation tomorrow. They take their vacation then, instead of in summer, so they can help harvest the strawberries in this big winter berry area in central Florida. About the middle of March the new school year will begin and run straight through the summer.

Letters to The Editor

Government Policies Leading to Inflation

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

Under the caption "Robb Sees Trouble Ahead", you have written an editorial on the address which I delivered to the Ontario Transport Association at Toronto on December 5.

Unfortunately, you credit me with statements which I did not make. Notably, you say:

"During a five-year period ending in 1950, he claimed, production had not increased one iota, and had even declined slightly, although the labor force was larger and management had injected millions of dollars into improved productive equipment."

In fact, I said:

In the five-year period ending 1950. . .per capita industrial production in this country increased not one iota. In fact, it decreased slightly. And this notwithstanding the addition of over $1 billion of plant and plant improvements during such period."

You also credit me with the contention that Canada is heading for national bankruptcy. What I in fact said was:

"We in this country before the impact of Korea. . .and quite apart from the pressure created by defence spending . . .which has scarcely begun . . .were headed. . .and we are headed now. . .on precisely the same course as a business man headed for bankruptcy.

If you had $1,000 invested in a company which. . .through improvidence. . suffered a wastage of assets of 20 per cent each year. . .you would find at the conclusion of five years. . .that your investment had disappeared.

When you read that at the conclusion of a year the cost of living index has moved up so many points. . .what that means, in effect, is. . .that the year has been a losing one. . . and. . .because of the phenomenon of money. . at the conclusion of each year. . .you are reaching into the accumulated savings of annuitants; bond holders; widows; orphans' and persons with moneys invested in insurance.

In fact. . . the accumulated thrift of thousands of people across this country. . .and robbing them of a portion of their savings. . . to make good the books and embark on another year of improvidence!"

What I sought to point out was that a country, unlike a businessman, does not go bankrupt. But because of the phenomenon of money the government avoids bankruptcy by reaching into the accumulated thrift of its people and robbing these people of a portion of their savings. Thus, the working man with $1,000 savings in his bank, in a government bond or in a government annuity, at January 1st, 1949, has been, in effect, robbed, in the past two years, because on January 1st, 1951, his $1,000 will not purchase what it would on January 1st, 1949. But since there are millions of citizens with bank deposits, government bonds, war saving certificates, government annuities, moneys out at mortgage, and moneys in insurance, and the savings of these millions total many billions of dollars, the country is not likely to go bankrupt . . .not so long as the government, by merely lessening the value of currency, can lean into these savings. Of course, if we have to really re-arm, against Russia, in two or three years' time, the destruction of these savings will be at a much more rapid pace.

The most wretched feature of this government-sponsored inflation and debauching of currency is that it strikes at and destroys the thrift of those who can least afford it. . . namely, the wage earners of slender and modest means. Merchants, lawyers and industrialists at this stage are usually careful to have their money in equities and to owe money (so that they pay off in cheapened dollars), and on a short term basis at least gain benefit from inflation. Persons of lesser means and with lesser experience in business, have their savings normally in bank deposits, insurance, government bonds and government annuities, and it it these people whose savings are so substantially wiped out by the present policy of our government.

I have always felt that government should be concerned with protecting the interests of "little persons", since "big persons" can generally look after themselves. It is "little persons" who are being asked by the politicians to buy government bonds and government annuities—while with the other hand the politicians are following a deliberate policy of debauching the value of such government bonds and annuities.

The cruelest gold-bricking has been practised on older people, who for perhaps thirty years past, have thriftily set aside moneys in bonds and insurance or have rights under pension plans to which they have contributed. Not content with debasing their savings by heavy government handouts of cash for no production, in the past, and at a moment when the inflationary spiral was rising monthly. . .the government suddenly announced to approximately 400,000 people that whether they need it or not, the government is going to turn out $40 a month to each of them in cash. The value of their savings will hit a new low; the value of the $40 will reach a new low with each successive month.

Malcolm Robb.

Editor's Note: The editorial, in which Mr. Robb says he was misquoted, was based on a report of his speech which appeared in The Globe and Mail.

U.S. Flag Out of Place In Council Chambers

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Your leading editorial of Saturday's issue will find a ready echo in many hearts.

The presence of the flag of a foreign power, no matter how friendly, powerful or proximate, in the chamber of our municipal government lends nothing to the dignity of our council or our country.

Some time ago the writer made inquiries and was led to believe that the banner had been the subject of a gift from some neighboring southerly municipality.

It would be interesting to ascertain if our flag also adorns the municipal council chamber of our southern benefactor. The writer would be prepared to make a small bet on this.

The writer also wonders what council would have done had we been so befriended by the mayor and council (if any) of Minsk, Pinsk, or Irkutsk.

There may be some slight excuse for this practice in the service clubs but there can be no justification for the display of the flag of the U.S.A. in council chambers of Canadian cities and towns.

We are still British and we are still proud of it.

Kenneth G. M. Ross.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Somebody digging around in the family collection of old gramophone records, put on Paul Robeson singing "My Lindy Lou". We had not heard it for years; and, as the incomparable voice dreamed through the old Negro ballad, it occurred to us all that, for months and months, we had not heard Robeson on the radio or anywhere else.

When it was finished, and we all sat quietly thinking, the twenty-year-old of the family suddenly spoke up.

"I can't help it," she said, "but I can't turn against either Robeson or Bergman!"

Two great artists who, for differing reasons, have been popularly voted into limbo.

The grandmother in the family rose to the occasion.

"Nonsense!" she said, sharply. "Forget them both. They're both responsible for their actions."

But suddenly, we all began casting furtive glances at one another around the room. For we were remembering Ingrid Bergman and the things she did to our minds and hearts and lives in the years she possessed us. And through our ears still floated the echoes of the song Robeson had just sung.

The twenty-year-old was right. Though our brains take one course, in judgment, there is something deeper than the brain which, secretly, rebelliously even, holds fast to beauty, and will not give it up. In beauty, in art, there is no rhyme or reason.

We sat a little while longer. Grandma went on rocking, knitting, eyes down.

"Put that thing on again," she said, absently. "What's it called?"

"My Lindy Lou," said the twenty-year-old, glancing a little wide-eyed around at her elders, wondering if she had said the right thing, a moment before.

As a matter of fact, she had.

REFINED WHITE FLOUR AND PHYSICAL DEGENERATION

The late great Weston A. Price, M.S., D.D.S., F.A.C.D., left as his monument a classic of medical literature titled Nutrition and Physical Degeneration, a book now out of print, I regret to note, but available in every public library, and as absorbing for physician, dentist or layman as any mystery or adventure story oh, excuse me, I already used that cliche to praise another great book which is probably out of print but available in the public library, namely, The Friendly Arctic by Vilhjalmur Stefansson.

I'm a reformed mystery story addict. For years my favorite diversion was hunting and consuming what I considered good mystery stories. I still read all the "reviews" of such stories I come across. But my appetite was surfetited or duller somehow by Dr. Price, Mr. Stefansson and others. I have tried several times to read a new mystery story recently, something highly recommended by an expert, but I find that such yarns can't hold my interest any more.

The per capita consumption of refined white flour and refined white sugar in America today yields more than half of the daily calories in the diet of an adult who follows a sedentary occupation. The per capita consumption of whole wheat flour and crude brown sugar and molasses a century ago yielded the same proportion of the daily calories. Few foods yield more calories per ounce and none more energy in an emergency than refined white flour and refined white sugar.

The reason why a diet in which these refined foods supply most of the daily calories hastens physical degeneration is nutritional deficiency or, as it is sometimes called "malnutrition". Nutritional deficiency prevails mainly among the well-to-do middle class of people, people who enjoy the vaunted "high scale of living", people who accept whatever the manufacturers or vendors tell them is pure, nourishing, easily digested, yum-yum, crunchy and full of pep.

There isn't room here to define physical degeneration—Dr. Webster will tell you what degeneration means—but it manifests itself in such familiar states as pyorrhea, chronic rheumatiz, premature aging and other complaints too gloomerous to mention.

The sad part of physical degeneration is that by the time you and/or doctor recognize that is what ails you it is too late to hope for a cure. The very best doctor, dentist or specialist can do at that advanced stage is to slow or retard its progress.

The time to treat physical degeneration, in whatever form it may become manifest is, say twenty or thirty years before you realize it has got you. I'm a realist—I state what I believe to be the unvarnished truth about it. Oliver Wendell Holmes, M.D., and Sir William Osler were pessimists—they said treatment should begin, say, a hundred years before you are born.

What you eat and drink in childhood and early youth is far more important than any care you take about your diet, minerals, vitamins and the like after you have passed 35.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Anne Has Been There

I find your observations about the fine teeth of the people on Tristan da Cunha especially interesting, as I have been there and I thought their teeth were wonderful.. . . (A.H.)

Answer—Thank you. Maybe our readers will now believe there is such a place.

Fibroids That Cause No Trouble

I go to a specialist every two or three months to see whether my fibroid tumor, which does not bothers me at all, shows any sign of . . . I am 41. (R. V. W.)

Answer—From your letter I infer that you're an intelligent young woman. Evidently, however, not intelligent enough to realize that thousands of women with fibroids experience no trouble from the tumors. Time to consult your doctor, not a specialist, when or if the fibroid igves you any trouble. Spend the money you save on your health. Readers who provide stamped, self-addressed envelope may have the pamphlet Tumor, Displacement, Cancer.

Embalmed Food

Surprised to read in your column that salicylic acid is harmful. Have used it for years because we have no cellar to store canned goods. . . .(Mrs. E. S. J.)

Answer—If the food is fresh, pure, not bruised or carelessly handled before canning, and the canning process is right, it makes no difference where you store it. It will keep all right without the dope.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DOES THIS MEAN YOU?

"The young folks today are terrible. Why, they have no regard for the Ten Commandments. And some of the things they do. . . ."

My friend was holding forth as we sat comfortably ensconced in the big easy chairs of a city club. I could not help observing as he expressed these opinions that the young fry generally follow the example set by their elders and that if the young people of today are "terrible," it doesn't speak too well for the people who are supposed to bring them up in a different fashion.

Personally, the more I have observed juvenile delinquency, the more I have become convinced that it stems almost entirely from adult delinquency. If the people who are over forty years of age would behave themselves, there wouldn't be nearly so much trouble among people who are under twenty-five. And as for the Ten Commandments and the aleged youthful disregard of the code, I could not help but wonder to what pains my friend had gone to teach his children the Ten Commandments and to see that other people's children were similarly instructed.

Ignorance of the law is of course no excuse, but if some adults would squawk less and teach more, they would have less to complain about in their young people.

90-Mile an Hour Police Chase Ends With Two in Stolen Car in Hospital, Other in Jail

Trenton — (Special) — A 90-mile per hour police chase in which three shots were fired was ended early this morning on the main street of Trenton with the fleeing car being completely wrecked as it was wrapped around a light standard.

Three occupants of the car, two Brantford brothers, Hugh and George McLean, and Norman McLean, said to be a cousin, were arrested on charges of car theft. The two McLean brothers are in Trenton Memorial Hospital, Hugh suffering with internal injuries, and George with a fractured [illegible].

Norman McLean, driver of the stolen car, escaped injury and is under arrest in the Cobourg county jail. The car was owned by John B. Wagner of Brantford.

Early this morning P. C. Sam Shaw spotted the speeding car as it was being driven through Cobourg. His suspicions were aroused and he notified provincial police. He was picked up by O. P. P. Bill Baluk in the police cruiser and the two took up the chase.

Road Block Set Up

They radioed ahead to Brighton provincial police who set up a road block. As the speeding car approached the block the driver swerved, spun the car around and then continued along the highway.

Three shots were fired by police, one bullet going through the right front window and two others through the door on the same side.

On the main street of Trenton O. P. P. Baluk pulled alongside the fleeing car intending to force it to the curb, but the driver attempted to squeeze through and ripped off six parking meters before crashing broadside into the light standard.

The three men were thrown out of the wrecked car, two being taken to hospital and the third to jail.

Rev. Gerald O'Hearn Addresses Catholic Women's League

The regular monthly meeting of Catholic Women's League was held in Assembly room of St. Michael's High School with Mrs. J. E. Boyd presiding. A detailed report of the bazaar was given by the treasurer and this was more than gratifying.

The general convener of this event again thanked everyone who worked to make it such an outstanding success, she also conveyed her thanks to the various merchants for their donations and for kindly exhibiting the different articles in their windows. A special thanks to Mrs. J. Vinkle and Mrs. H. Lamp who collected food parcels and other donations and delivered them to the auditorium the day of the bazaar.

Reports were given by conveners of membership, immigration, citizenship, V.O.N., and "Register" campaign. With regard to the latter, it was decided that two women would be on hand Sunday at the church to renew subscriptions for those parishioners who wish to continue taking the "Canadian Register". It was decided to send a Christmas box to the Western Missions. One will go next week to Rev. P. Heffernan and all members wishing to include a small package may send it to the home of Mrs. B. E. Burley, who is packing the box. Your generosity in this regard is kindly asked. A donation is also being sent to Rev. Father Ash.

Christmas packages are also being made for all Roman Catholic patients at the Belleville General Hospital and the visitor for December look after this is Mrs. F. Deacon. Mrs. Fitzpatrick, president of Benevolent Society, will also be packing Christmas baskets and donations will be received at St. Michael's High School on Wednesday next.

The matter of decorating the auditorium in St. Michael's Academy was discussed and Mrs. T. J. Flurey will have all the necessary information in this regard for the January meeting.

Guest Speaker

Following the business portion of the meeting, the director, Very Rev. L. B. Garvin introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Gerald O'Hearn, P.P., of Stirling. His subject was "The Doing of Good". This, he said, can be done in an organized way or spontaneously. The church, which is the physical body of Christ, has been doing good in an organized way down through the ages. The church and the state are two perfect societies doing good in an organized way through their bishops and priests and through their members of parliament of Legislative Assembly respectively.

Individuals have a much greater opportunity of doing spontaneous good than societies and one should not hesitate when the time comes. He commended the League for the many ways in which they do organized good and mentioned league monthly communion Sunday being observed.

Mrs. J. E. Boyd thanked the speaker and an hour of hospitality was enjoyed by the members and guests, refreshments being served by Mrs. F. R. Ross and her committee.

University Women's Club Entertains New Canadians

A most interesting and enjoyable party was held on Monday evening last, when the University Women's Club of Belleville and district, entertained the students of the night school class in Basic English for new Canadians.

The party was convened by Mrs. W. J. Doyle and Miss Erma Panter, and was held in the gymnasium of the Collegiate.

The singing of Christmas carols began the musical part of the program which had been arranged by Mrs. Dorland Houston and led by Mr. Linton Read with Mrs. W. N. Hurst at the piano.

Miss Joan Shindell sang "O Holy Night", and "Gesu Bambino". Miss Getha Joslin and Miss Adrian Millar entertained at the piano and little Barbara Faulkner did a tap dance number. A guitar selection; an original poem and a Greek Christmas carol were contributed by members of the night school class.

Lively Games

Then followed some lively games directed by Miss Nancy Redfern, which were greatly enjoyed by all. Mrs. W. L. Langlois accompanied at the piano for this part of the program.

Miss Ruth Sylvester and her committee served delicious refreshments after which a motion of thanks was given by Mrs. Lucy Bangs, of Rednersville.

The gymnasium was gaily decorated with Santa Claus and his reindeer and Christmas greetings in the language of the many countries represented at the party.

Mrs. E. H. Tindale and Mrs. L. D. Read were in charge of the decorations which were made by Mr. E. H. Tindale and his classes at the collegiate.

Women's P-C. Club Holds Christmas Party, Supper

The regular monthly meeting of Women's Progressive Conservative Club was held at the Kiwanis Centre on Monday evening, for a pot-luck supper, following which their annual Christmas party was enjoyed.

Over 100 sat down to beautifully decorated tables with Christmas ornaments and candles, and laden with the best of good things to eat.

Mr. Sandercock, M.P., donated a large box of grapes for the tables.

Following a short business meeting, all joined in Christmas carol singing with Mrs. Wensley at the piano.

Mrs. Tugnette thanked all the women for their co-operation during the recent campaign.

Mr. Sandercock, the district member was present and was given a hearty welcome and also called on for a few remarks.

A contest was conducted by Miss Gertrude Lazier with Mrs. Denyes being the lucky winner.

Later Santa arrived and distributed the gifts.

QUAKERS EDGE SEATTLE

Saskatoon, Dec. 14 — (CP) — Saskatoon Quakers last night defeated Seattle 4-2 to move within five points of the second place Ironmen in the Pacific Coast Hockey League.

Chuck McCullough, Bob Manson, Alex Kuzma and Ken Hunter were the Saskatoon scorers while Danny Sprout and Joe Bell tallied for Seattle.

Prizes Presented At St. Michael's School Concert

On Wednesday evening the pupils of St. Michael's Academy entertained a capacity audience in the school auditorium.

The first part of the program consisted of choruses; a tone poem; readings; a violin and piano selection; the rhythm band; and a one act play.

The Very Reverend Dean Garvin then presented intermediate certificates to the pupils who had graduated from the academy in June.

Prizes donated by the various parish societies and interested friends of the school were next awarded to the pupils who had ranked highest in academic work in the various grades, and to those who came first in shop work, home economics, and commercial.

Awards were also given to the girl and to the boy who had shown the best spirit of sportsmanship and co-operation during the past year.

AWED INDIANS

Natural gas seepages set aflame by natural causes were held in awe by the early Indians of North America.

Rev. Keith Daniel Addresses H-S Assoc.

The December meeting of Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held at the school lasts Monday. Of special interest were the numbers presented by the kindergarten-primary pupils under the direction of their teacher, Miss Malcolm.

The rhythm band from the afternoon class played "London Bridge," which was followed by drum selection by John Robertson. The afternoon class also sang "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer." The rhythm band from the morning class played the accompaniment for the singing of "Jingle Bell" by the other members of the class.

Following the business period several Christmas carols were sung by the audience directed by Mr. Burgoyne.

Guest Speaker

The speaker for the evening was Rev. Keith Daniel who was introduced by Mr. Edgar Buchanan. Mr. Daniel delighted the audience by singing one of the few Christmas Negro spirituals. He spoke on the celebration of Christmas in the home, reminiscing on Christmas spent at home and away. He urged that in the celebration of Christmas, Canadian do not lose sight of the significance of the Christmas spirit, and that they carry it on throughout the year.

The president, Mrs. Wallbridge on behalf of the executive thanked Mrs. R. D. Arnott and her committee for the splendid results of the telephone bridge and euchre, when the sum of $108.05 was realized. The attendance prize was won by Mr. Burgyone's class. Refreshments were served by the mothers of Miss Thompson's class, grade VIII.

Women's Institute

UNIONDALE W.I.

The December meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Morley Sine, 6th Concession of Sidney, with 20 members present. The meeting opened in the usual manner.

Cards of thanks were read from the Lott family, Lawrence Dafoe, Harry Herrington and Mrs. Fred Farmer. The business of the night was mainly the planning of the Junior Farmers' banquet, which is to be held at Frankford Community Hall, January 25, 1952 The committee consisted of Mrs. Milton Grills, Mrs. Bert Bush, Mrs. George Burkitt and Mrs. Harold Frost, who are to look after planning food; with Mrs. Ross Dafoe and Mrs. Morley Sine in charge of table coverings and silverware.

The convener, Mrs. Fred Farmer, took charge of the Christmas program. She called on Mrs. Gerald Herrington to read a short Christmas poem. Mrs. George Bird read the "History of Santa Claus", and Mrs. George Striker the "History of Christmas Carols".

Mrs. Kenneth Faul gave a short discussion on "The use of Films for Children and Adults". It was decided that Uniondale pay the regular fee as formerly.

The exchange of Christmas gifts was taken over by Eloise Sine with each member drawing a number and then Eloise called out the numbers of the parcels.

The January meeting is to be held at Mrs. Gerald Herrington, 4th concession of Sidney: topic "Canadian Industries".

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Parents object to his girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 and a sophomore in college, and I have been dating a girl rather regularly for about four months. Though we care for each other very much, we have seen very little of each other because we are at different schools and we feel it would not be right to limit one's social life in college.

The real problem is my parents' attitude toward this girl. They are very narrow-minded on certain subjects, and they object very much to my dating her when I get home on weekends because we are of different faiths. Although I have tried every way I know to explain to them that we are not very serious about each other, they insist I confine my dating to girls of my own faith. Should I keep on trying to reason with them in the hope that I may somehow make them understand, or should I abide by their wishes and try to break off with my girl, or should I keep on seeing her against their wishes?

Jerry

Dear Jerry:

Perhaps I ought to tell you that young people should at all times adhere to their parents' wishes, but in cases such as yours, I feel some leeway should be allowed. It seems to me important that young men and young women, whatever their faith may be, should have opportunity to broaden their point of view and increase their understanding of people by making friends among young people of other faiths. I definitely do not advocate ill-considered marital commitments between a girl and a man of different faiths, but as I understand your letter, you have no such idea in mind at the present time.

Being of college age, you should have begun to develop the ability to think for yourself, and to use more mature judgment than could have had when you were younger. If you do use good judgment, refrain from hasty and rash behavior in regard to this girl, and keep your relationship, for the time being anyhow, on a basis of simple friendship, I feel that you should have the right to see this girl as you wish.

If a friendship's dying it's usually fruitless to try and revive it

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 and was going with a boy of 23 for about a month when a friend of mine heard that he had been married and divorced. Of course, at 18, I didn't want to go with a divorced man, so I asked him about this and he said he had never been married and that anyone who knew him would tell me the same thing. I asked some people who knew him, and they did say the same thing, so I believed him.

After that, we went on as before, until recently, when he just stopped calling me for no reason at all that I know of.

Could you please tell me how I could find out what is wrong and why he doesn't call me any more, without coming right out and asking him?

T.

Dear T.:

Better let things ride as they are.

As you realize yourself, you can't very well "come right out and ask" this young man why he doesn't call you any more. And it's not likely that you could find out reliably any other way —and maybe not even then.

I don't like to put suspicion in your mind, but there is a possibility, you know, that no matter what he told you himself, or what his friend told you, there may have been some truth in the reports you heard about him. Naturally, it's not necessary to his discredit that he's been divorced, but if he has been, and denies it, that's something else again.

In any event, it is not up to you to find out why he has stopped calling you. Unless he decides to make some explanation himself, you will only be putting yourself in an embarrassing position if you try to do anything about it at all. Maybe an extremely embarrassing one, if you discovered that he was just tired of you.

Not only that, but it may very well be better if you simply let the relationship die a natural death. When a friendship shows signs of being on its way out anyhow, it's usually fruitless to try and bring it to life again.

Fashion Flashes

GOOD THEATRE is a full, short-skirted evening dress of white satin with pearl-dangle allover embroidery. Deep, squared neckline fore and aft, and short sleeved. A cord of self fabric defines the slim waist.

STANDARD equipment for resort wear will be the embroidered, jeweled or trimmed sweater or cardigan, judging from store orders and re-orders. Such a bit of apparel is a must for the traveller, since it becomes a costume with an evening skirt, can be worn with matching or contrasting dresses and is a good choice when just a bit of a wrap is needed at nightfall. A white wool cardigan with a yoke formed by pearl teardrops, silver bugle beads, sequins and tiny turquoise beads, is a pretty and useful traveller's aid.

TOPPING OFF those deep grays and browns are hats in a glowing garnet red and in bright yellow, with some royal blue starting to appear. Light garnet velvet is used for a bonnet with a rippled brim, a feeling of height achieved by two large gray-to-black shaded feather wings in back.

Food for Thought

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I enjoy your column and use a large number of your recipes. The Chunk Pickle recipe is really good. Thanks, Mrs. K. S. for Judy's Icing, but I've also mastered Elsie's Fluffy Icing too. So now I have two good ones.

How much chocolate equals a square of chocolate? Could you print some Christmas cookies, also chocolate cookies with nuts etc., in them. Mary would you know what I can use to get my baby's white woollens which have turned yellow white again? I have a good muffin recipe made with Graham flour and oil if you or any reader wants it I'll send it in. Also is 400 deg. F., hot enough to bake tea biscuits, and I bake them for 20 minutes, but they never raise any at all. Hoping to hear from you through your column.—Mrs. W. S. E.

ANSWER:

I'll answer your last question first because another reader wants some information on biscuits. My recipe for

TEA BISCUITS SUPREME

will answer all of your problems. This is intended for Mrs. A. W., of R.R. 4, too.

Two cups all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoons single-action baking powder (ordinary baking powder), 1-2 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, 2-3 cup milk, 1-2 cup shortening or butter or margarine. Milk and shortening should be at room temperature. Sift the dry ingredients together. The flour is not sifted before measuring. Cut the shortening into them until the mixture is crumbly. Add milk all at once. Quickly stir. Pat and roll out on floured board to 1-2 or 3-4 inch thickness. Cut out with floured cutter, preferably small. Bake on ungreased cookies sheet at 450 deg. Fahr. about 10 minutes.

One-third cup cocoa plus 1-2 teaspoon butter or shortening equals 1 square (1 oz.) chocolate.

By now you will have seen the Christmas cookie recipes that appeared in this column yesterday.

As for yellowed woollens I hope some of our readers will give their remedies. I have one suggestion to make. Use 1 teaspoon each borax and ammonia and 1 tablespoon Javelle water to a quart of fairly warm water, plus about 1-4 cup finest soap flakes. Gently agitate the garments about in this solution for about 5 minutes. If this does not make them pure white try 2 teaspoons borax and 2 tablespoons Javelle water to each quart of warm water needed. Be sure to rinse them thoroughly in several waters to completely remove these cleaning agents from the fabric. Dry by patting between towels, then on a line in the house.

Yes, I would like the Graham muffin recipe, thank you.

QUESTION:

I have tried your recipe for Christmas hermits and found them delicious. I reserved all of the red cherries for decorating the tops of the cookies. Should some of the red cherries have gone in the batter?

I would also like to know what you consider the best method for storing cookies to keep them fresh, and what do you call a stale cookie? My family considers cookies that are more than three or four days old as something ancient. Thanking you, Mrs. C. D.

ANSWER:

The fat in cookies will go rancid. I have tasted shortbread recently that was stored too long and tasted stale, but if cookies are kept cold enough they will keep for weeks and weeks. I do not think your family would complain if you served them one or two-weeks old sour cream rolled-out cookies. They improve with keeping and I will send you the recipe if you want it. Lebkuchen keeps excellently. Did you see it in yesterday's column? Yes, the red cherries in the hermits were to go on the tops only.

Ontario Women Begin Last Leg Of World Tour

Saint John, N.B., Dec. 14—(CP)—"It's wonderful to be home in time for Christmas," two young Ontario women agreed yesterday as they hoisted their packsacks and began the last leg of a 15,000-mile hitchhiking tour.

As for their two-year jaunt which took them through Europe and farther north than the Arctic Circle, Lenny Burton of Bungessville and Johnny Cochrane of Midland "wouldn't have missed it for the world."

The 1949 graduates of MacDonald College at Guelph had $10 when they arrived here on the liner Empress of Canada from Liverpool. That was considerably more than the five shillings they shared on their arrival in London two years ago. When they reached Sweden six months later they didn't have even "five bob".

Dishwashing and other kitchen work financed the long journey. The girls washed dishes in Englan, Sweden and France. They worked 18 hours daily for six weeks in Stockholm to get funds for their return to Canada.

One memento of the adventure is the blue jeans they wore when they left Canada, when they worked overseas and when they climbed Norway's mountains. Too threadbare and flimsy for today's frosty weather, the jeans were in the packsacks as the hikers set out in warm ski suits they had worn in Swedish Lapland, 132 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

God's Fools

By ROY L. SMITH

Some of the greatest victories this old world has ever witnessed have been won by men who were called fools — ridiculed because they were not "practical," because they could not conform to the common groove for conscience sake.

It looked so unlikely, and sounded so foolish—all that talk about marching around the city of Jericho with trumpets blowing, the little children and the women marching with the fighting men. And six days of it!

No wonder the defenders of Jericho were bewildered, and thought the whole show was a hoax. What kind of enemy was it who came out of the desert threatening to overthrow a walled city with carnival tactics?

According to modern day standards the little city of Jericho wasn't much of a fortress anyhow. It only amounted to the equivalent of about six modern city blocks. A single block buster dropped in its midst would not have left a building standing or a soul alive. But there were no block busters, only spears and shields, and mud walls can stand up again a lot of that.

It Had to Be Taken

The important fact about Jericho was that it had to be taken. Insignificant and flimsy though it might be, the Hebrews would never have a safe moment in the Promised Land with Jericho intact behind their back.

The most tragic mistake any man makes is when he leaves some Jericho, unconquered, behind him. Of many a man who might have been a great success it has to be said, "He never quite mastered his besetting sin." It may be liquor, it may be gambling, or it may be his inability to live inside his income. But any Jericho untaken is a guarantee of future embarrassment.

Jericho might have been bypassed, for the country is broad and level all thereabouts. The Jerichoans were safely shut up behind their mud walls. But Joshua knew, as every wise leader knows, that there are some problems that cannot be by-passed without inviting disastrous defeat. And that is true also of nations. Poverty, ignorance, disease, prejudice—these things cannot be ignored in any modern state that aspires to greatness.

The Old Testament story would lead us to believe that the destruction of Jericho was the result of a miracle, and of course the Old Testament writer believed the miraculous element was present. But there would have been no miracle except that the people had invested a great deal of courage.

We worship a God who expects us to do our share of the work. Nowhere in either the Old or the New Testaments, are there any promises made to the loafers, the shiftless, the cowards, or the drifters. The rich prizes are promised to the courageous, the adventuresome, the faith-full and the heroic who go out before the sun has come up.

First Victory Only First

A second fact of vast importance in this lesson is likewise a simple one. The razing of Jericho was only the first of a long succession of victories that had to be won.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 16: "The Conquest of Canaan." Joshua 1—11.

Many a community would have good government, if one victory at the polls would insure it. Many an industry would have peace, if one adjustment of labor difficulties were sufficient. Many a Church would be victorious, if its only responsibility was that of getting the mortgage paid off.

But the war for the possession of the land went on for years. The conquest of Jericho was but the beginning. There were scores of other Jerichos, large and small which called for continuous and continuing courage.

And that is life.

FRANKFORD

Egyptian Films Shown By Returned Missionary

Frankford.—A number of Frankford folk drove to Stockdale, Monday evening, to hear Rev. and Mrs. Harold Berry, returned missionaries from Egypt, as they were guests of the Stockdale United Church. Mr. Berry showed three films, taken in Egypt, and gave an interesting and enlightening running commentary as the pictures were shown.

On completion of the films, Mr. Berry answered questions put forth by the large number in attendance. Mrs. Berry favored with two solos, one sung in Arabic, the language of the Egyptians.

A short, but none-the-less enjoyable program was presented by the Stockdale Mission Band.

Refreshments were served, to complete a most enjoyable and successful missionary meeting. It is certain that all who attended, gained a greater respect for our Christian missionaries of all denominations, who are taking the Gospel to the far corners of the world.

Heaviest Defence Expenditures For Air Force

Ottawa, Dec. 14 (CP) —Canada's heaviest defence expenditures in the last two years have been for the RCAF and the bulk of these new air weapons are still on the secret list.

The Commons' defence expenditures committee got a document yesterday showing that out of $1,237,830,178 worth of defence orders placed since April, 1950, to November this year, $788,585,635 was for air force equipment. Delivery has been taken on $157,004,557 of it.

The air force total includes a $545,372,261 item listed merely as "classified for security reasons." Much of it is believed to be the latest-type electronic equipment used in modern air war-fare.

Other secret orders included $26,277,973 under the heading of ammunition, of which Canada has taken $2,215,334, and a $14,130,154 item under the heading of artillery and naval guns, mortars and missile launchers.

M. W. Mackenzie, Deputy Minister of Defence Production, told the committee that the $14,130,154 item, now all delivered to Canada, included the latest type anti-aircraft guns. But the remainder of it was secret.

It was the final meeting of the session for the committee set up to study defence expenditures. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, made an unsuccessful attempt to have it extended to Saturday. Lt.-Col. David Croll (L-Toronto Spadina) said the committee would meet early next year after the start of the new session of parliament.

Mr. Drew asked for further information from Mr. Mackenzie and C. M. Drury, deputy minister of defence, as to delivery dates on equipment, how much has been delivered and when the remainder can be expected. This was needed to get a clear picture of Canada's preparedness.

Street Car, Bus Drivers to Meet

Toronto, Dec. 14 — (CP)— Toronto's street-car and bus drivers will meet Sunday in connection with wage demands.

The results of a meeting between the negotiating committee of the Street Railway Union (A.F.L.) and the Toronto Transportation Commission today will be put before them. Unless the T.T.C. is prepared to come close to union demands, the Sunday meeting may call for a strike vote.

The union seeks a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase, plus incorporation into the basic rate of 16 cents now paid as a cost-of-living bonus. Street-car operators now receive $1.40 an hour, including the 16-cent bonus.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg.—On Friday evening last, the I.O.O.F. Lodge, of Thomasburg, were "At Home" to their friends. Mr. Kenneth Jeffrey, Noble Grand, gave the address of welcome and Mr. Graham Mouck presided as chairman.

A program of songs and music by the Martin sisters and Mrs. Don Holbert, followed by a short play "The Census Taker" in the "hillbilly" country, was much appreciated and was amusingly characterized by the Ken Jeffrey family, who received a round of applause.

Following the program, there was time for a social get-together, while refreshments were being served. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

The census of opinion was that it had been an enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Richardson and family, have moved from the Moira Valley Cheese factory. Edward has been cheese maker here for the past five years. They will make their new home in Stirling. Their friends here wish them every success and happiness in their new home.

After moving to Stirling, Brock and Teddy, their small sons, underwent surgery, having their tonsils removed. Their Thomasburg friends hope they will be fully recovered and able to enjoy all the good things of Christmas time.

Young People Meet

The Moira-Thomasburg Young People with a pleasing number in attendance, met Monday evening last, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Elliott, Thomasburg.

Following the devotional period the program was in the form of a radio broadcast with the theme "Home is What You Make it". The discussion proved quite interesting and it is hoped helpful to the young people in their every day practise of their theme.

The W. A. of the Thomasburg United Church held their Christmas meeting on Tuesday evening last at the home of Mrs. Earl Jones. Mrs. G. Boldrick, president, presided. There was a gratifying attendance. The Missionary Monthly Christmas program was used in the devotional period and candlelight service.

Later, under the direction of Mrs. Clarke, a program of recitations and carols was given by the children. Lastly "Silent Night" sung by Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. French and Mrs. Gifford, with guitar and piano accompaniment.

Mrs. Nelson Welsh gave the Christmas story illustrating her address with flannelgraph pictures centering round the Christmas Star. Mrs. Clarke expressed appreciation to Mrs. Welsh for her inspiring address and thanks to the children and all who had helped with the program.

A vote of thanks was also tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Jones for their hospitality.

Rev. Morley Clarke offered a closing prayer and benediction.

Refreshments were served by the ladies in charge of that part of the meeting.

Employment Situation in Once Booming Town Said Desperate

Stellarton, N.S., Dec. 14—(CP)—Robert J. Munroe, chairman of the Citizens' Committee which has been trying to find jobs for workers in this mining town, said today the employment situation has been "desperate" since the Allan shaft closed.

The Allan shaft, a big producer with one of the thickest coal seams in the world, was closed last April after a series of dangerous fires and explosions. The pit employed about 400 men.

Another big producer, the Albion Pit, had a section closed off Sunday when heat was discovered. The 24 men employed in the section were given jobs elsewhere.

Mr. Munroe said the Albion trouble "again draws attention to the desperate situation prevailing in this mining town since last April."

He said many of the Allan Shaft men had not been able to find steady employment. Many owned their own homes and did not want to go to the Cape Breton coal fields or elsewhere.

Mr. Munroe recalled that he had recently been on a committee which went to Halifax for talks with Premier Angus L. Macdonald.

"We got a sympathetic hearing but nothing practical to help our long-suffering and patient men. The government has nothing in mind for the winter at all except unemployment insurance which isn't enough to keep a home going.

"Although the mine was closed in the spring there has been no public works program or anything to take up the slack temporarily.

"It isn't any wonder the situation is desperate.

"We're just forgotten," he said. "Perhaps what we need is to get the attention of those Ontario and western members who are doing more talking about Maritime needs in the Commons these days than the Maritime members are.

"If we could get them talking about Stellarton the governments might get busy and come up with something for our workers more than railroad tickets away from their own homes to distant parts of the nation."

Kingston Board Of Education Makes Final Offer

Kingston, Dec. 14— (CP) — Kingston's board of education Thursday night announced as final its offer of an annual $200 across-the-board salary increase to all public and high school teachers.

The high school teachers rejected the offer which also includes a $500 raise in the maximum salaries of high school teachers and a category system of maximum salaries for public school teachers. The latter thus would be increased by approximately $400. The board offer would eliminate the differential in pay between men and women teachers.

The high school teachers had asked for a $500 across the board increase, plus increases in maxima of $1,100.

The public school teachers, who had asked a single salary schedule, have not commented on the board offer. They also want recognition of summer courses and certificates, and equal status for male and female employees.

The board's proposal would give non-specialist high school teachers a maximum of $5,000 annually; specialists teaching the subjects for which they hold specialist certificates, $5,200; heads of departments, $5,500; vice principal $5,800.

The proposed new maximum for the principal, not being negotiated by the teachers is $6,500.

The maxima which the board has offered the public school teachers range from $3,300 to $3,800 for grade teachers, depending on certificates held and summer courses taken, to a high of $5,200 for principals in schools of seven rooms and more to those holding bachelor of arts degrees.

Whooping Cranes Headed for Zoo

Austwell, Tex., Dec. 14 — (AP) — Crip and Jo, members of that nearly-vanished breed, whooping cranes, no longer are free today. They are headed for life in a New Orleans zoo.

The mates had the freedom of the U. S. wildlife refuge here. They couldn't fly away because of permanent injuries.

The U. S. wildlife service yesterday turned the birds over to the zoo, which will attempt to breed them in captivity. The cranes hatched one egg at the refuge but the offspring apparently was killed by a predatory animal. Another egg was ruined by a high tide.

Only 28 whooping cranes exist. They winter here and in summer go to the far north of Canada.

Close to Chinese

West Sector, Korea, Dec. 14 — (CP) — Entertainer Larry Adler, the harmonica artist, visiting the Korean front, opened a two - day visit today in the Canadian area by playing to the most forward company in the Royal Canadian Regiment. The company is commanded by Maj. Dick Medland, Toronto.

Adler quipped:

"If I went farther north I'd be entertaining the Chinese."

Adler is being accompanied on his entire Korean tour by Signalman Frank Allison of Halifax, a guitarist.

Pilot Trapped In Plane Wreckage Is Found Alive

Calgary, Dec. 14—(CP)— An R.C.A.F. pilot seriously injured and trapped in the wreckage of his aircraft 7,000 feet up a mountainside since Wednesday afternoon, was found alive by a ground rescue party which reached him about 1 a.m. MST (3 a.m. EST) today.

An R.C.A.F. para-rescue team jumped to the scene to help the rescue party evacuate F.O. Cyril Wilken, 27, of Redvers, Sask.

The combined R.C.A.F.-R.C.M.P. ground party of eight men included an air force doctor.

The temperature in the area was about 12 below. The Harvard training plane that Wilken was ferrying from Trenton, Ont., to Claresholm, Alta., crash-landed Wednesday on the mountainside about 32 miles south of Calgary after being lost in a southern Alberta snowstorm.

Policeman, And Burglar Shot to Death

Detroit, Dec. 14 — (AP) — A policeman and a burglar shot each other to death early today as the officer broke in on an attempted jewelry store robbery.

Slain were Patrolman Stanley Jerlecki, 28 year old father of two children, and a man identified as William Brown, 45.

Police said Brown had been freed from prison after serving 15 years of a life term in the gang slaying of another policeman. He was free on $10,000 bond from a dairy holdup last month.

It was believed Brown drew a gun on Jerlecki before the police man had a chance to search him.

Nine Feared Drowned

Haifa, Israel, Dec. 14 — (Reuters) — Nine persons were feared drowned when the 7,000-ton Turkish freighter Gudju Marman sank in Haifa Bay today. Twenty of the crew of 29 swam ashore.

Air Officer Escapes

Ismailia, Suez Canal Zone, Dec. 14 — (Reuters) — An RAF wing commander escaped death last night when Egyptian terrorists ambushed his car near here, it was reported today.

The car of Wing Cmdr. John Barker, commander of the RAF station in Ismailia, was struck by two bullets. Both he and his driver were unhurt.

A British spokesman also reported today that two Egyptians were killed by a British patrol south of Port Said while attempting to cut telephone cables.

No Damage Reported

Los Angeles, Dec. 14 — (AP) — A rumbling earthquake awoke residents in the south Los Angeles area early today. Police and newspaper switchboards received many calls of inquiry but there were no reports of damage.

ABSOLVED OF BLAME

Guelph, Dec. 14 — (CP) — A coroner's jury Thursday absolved Frederick T. Fowler of Stratford of all blame in the death of Albert E. Mabey, 66, of Guelph, who was fatally injured when struck by a car driven by Fowler Dec. 4.

Ford President Says 'Gangsters' Are Responsible

Windsor, Dec. 14 (CP) —The word "they" has an ominous sound in Windsor today.

People will tell you that "they" started the Dec. 3 strike of 9,000 hourly-rated Ford Company of Canada production workers which has made idle almost 12,000 persons in this city of 121,000. Some are Ford salaried employees and workers in Ford feeder plants.

"They" started last spring with acts of industrial sabotage in the Ford plants—by ripping upholstery in new automobiles, slashing tires and jamming production line conveyor belts. "They" intensified this campaign during the summer.

When news of the firing of 26 men for causing wildcat stoppages—some of the men were plant stewards and union committeemen—spread through the Ford works on the morning of Dec. 3, "They" ran in groups from room to room, yelling to workers to quit their jobs, standing up to plant stewards who resisted, elbowing supervisors away from the turned-off switches.

When asked why they didn't resist, Ford men who didn't want to leave their jobs say: "They'd have cracked my skull if I'd raised a finger."

Rhys Sale, Ford president, has termed a small group of "gangsters" responsible for the plant shutdown and for what he calls 34 "unlawful and unauthorized work stoppages" in the last 18 months.

A number of farmers have been plowing; this seems to be a record for this time of year.

Sarah and Arthur Wilson were Tuesday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Moorcroft and Mrs. George Barrager.

Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace included Mr. W. Badgely, of Foxboro, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Benson and Miss Margaret Haggerty.

EASIER METHOD

The ancient flint and steel, or tinder-box method of producing a flame, began to be superseded by matches about 1800.

Hotelman is Expert on Guests

Hotel people all over the world are proud of their professional ability which many of them claim is instinctive—to "spot" a new guest for what he is, Robert M. Shaw writes in The Christian Science Monitor.

A millionaire, they say, can easily be differentiated from one who is trying to appear one. Detectives and entertainers are easy to "spot". Tourists, salesmen, artists, professional people—they all have characteristic habits of dress, speech, or motion that instantly "give them away" to the experienced hotel man.

Art With Swiss

Perhaps nowhere is this power of perception more highly developed than in Switzerland, where the hotel industry is the nation's second in importance. Through centuries of experience with foreign tourists—and living themselves in a land of diverse languages and cultures—Swiss hotel people have perfected their technique of guest-identification to an uncanny degree.

Jules Erb, the maitre d'hotel at Geneva's Hotel du Rhone, is one of these specialists. A tall, good-looking man with graying hair and a friendly manner, he has been in the hotel business since he was 19 years old, when he started out as a dishwasher in the Beau Rivage Hotel in Lausanne. He has been busboy, waiter, waiter captain, and maitre d'hotel in the 26 years since that time. He worked for 20 months at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York and for Burger's Swiss Pavilion on East 15th Street. Words such as "sure" and "okay" slip into his conversation — "souvenirs", he says, of his stay in America.

"Of all nationalities," he says, "Americans are the easiest to 'spot'. In the first place, their clothes are dead giveaways. Nobody else—no offence—wears the widecut coats and bright neckties that you people do, or rimless, wide-brimmed hats. And your luggage is shiny. Nine times out of ten an incoming guest with well-pressed clothes and shiny luggage will be an American."

Shine Wears Off

After they have been in Europe for a while, M. Erb says, Americans lose some of their more obvious characteristics of dress, but never quite shake off their typical manner of moving about. The American walks with a free, swinging motion that is both relaxed and informal. In a group, an American will fold his arms, put his hands in his pockets, or, when he is sitting down, cross his legs "American-style"—one ankle on the other knee. If he feels like laughing in the middle of a conversation, M. Erb says, an American will do so, and if he itches, he will generally scratch.

Then there are a lot of little things. American women generally wears furs—a rare item in Europe, American guests, when approaching the desk, say "hello" (the British say "I would like —"), ask for ice water, rooms with bath, and large breakfasts of ham and eggs or wheat cakes. When eating, Americans pass their fork from one hand to the other in cutting meat, and American children—"no offence"—make an awful lot of noise.

Canadians are often mistaken for Americans because of their American-style clothes. The moment they speak, though, M. Erb says, he can "spot" them by the way they pronounce "ou" sounds. "They don't say about'," he says, "they say 'aboot'." And they walk differently, too. The Canadian moves more in the British manner—slow and straight ahead and controlled.

Identifying British

The British are also easily identified, with their tweed suits, leather sleeves, vests, and characteristic movements. They take longer steps, and "lounge" from one place to another. Englishmen don't use their hands when they speak, frequently travel alone, and carefully pile their food on the back of their forks.

"Before the war", M. Erb says, "they used to drink a terrific amount of cocktails before dinner, but now they can only take 50 pounds out of England, and they are the most moderate guests we have. They also plan their trips more carefully than any other nationality, frequently reserving their rooms six months in advance.

Australians can be "spotted" by their free and open ways, and almost invariably open a conversation with "We're from Australia!" South Africans are very similar in speech and mannerisms to Australians, and both, by their high-spirited talk, form a sharp contrast to the more polite and reserved English.

M. Erb made it clear that identifying the French at sight is a highly instinctive affair. Every Frenchman, he said, takes pains to be unique, and from his boutonniere to his spats is the only thing of his kind. He does, however, have movements "precise and controlled, something like the British—but with more flair, and faster". And French-women are in a class all by themselves. Perhaps, M. Erb said, it's the confident way she carries herself, or the faint breeze of perfume.

N.Z. Strengthens Security Service

Wellington, N.Z., (CP)—After a visit by Sir Percy Sillitoe, British Security chief, New Zealand is planning to strengthen its security service and make it a link in an integrated Commonwealth system.

Announcing the changes Prime Minister Sidney G. Holland said the recent industrial upheaval in New Zealand, the train of world events and development of infiltration by subversive elements had made necessary a review of the security set-up.

The government had accordingly invited Sir Percy Sillitoe to New Zealand and he had made recommendations. He also had made available Michael Serpell, a member of his M15 staff, to remain in New Zealand for some months to assist in the changes.

The proposals include the strengthening of the existing special branch of the police force and its integration with activities carried out by the armed forces. Arrangements are being made for closer links with other Commonwealth countries.

Information and training data will be exchanged with Britain and Australia and visits of security chiefs will be interchanged. Special branch officers will attend courses in Britain.

SUFFERS HEART ATTACK

Toronto, Dec. 14—(CP)—Ontario Welfare Minister Goodfellow yesterday suffered a heart attack at his desk in Queen's Park. Hospital authorities said he was resting comfortably last night. Overwork and the strain of the recent Ontario election campaign were said to have contributed to the seizure.

RAWDON

Baptist Church Picture Recalls Old Memories

Rawdon.—Dr. Harry W. Mack of Detroit, Michigan, has forwarded to this correspondent for the Pioneer Book of Hubble Hill, a picture which he took 30 years ago, when he was visiting old scenes in Rawdon township in the summer of 1921.

The picture is of the former Baptist church, which has since been moved to the top of the hill and converted into a church hall.

Standing in front of the church is his father, Rev. Wilson Mack, his brother, Mr. Percy Mack, both of Detroit, Michigan; Mr. William Henry Scott and his sons, Murney and Clarence Scott, of Mount Pleasant.

As a young man Wilson Mack had charge of the singing and later as a minister he preached his first sermon in this church.

Land Donated

The late Nehemiah Hubble and his first wife, formerly Cinderella Hinds, donated the site for this church and the deed is dated November 19, 1870. The trustees appointed to accept the deed were, Messrs. Reuben Hubble, Silas Sine, Frederick Sine, Allen Sine, Henry White and David Mack.

After the erection of the church it was dedicated "The Regular Baptist Church of Rawdon", but it was more often termed "Hubble Hill" Baptist church.

The first service was held before completion when temporary seats were arranged with planks for the funeral of Mr. A. Chard, of Chard's Bridge. The interment was made in the "Hubble Hill" cemetery, near by, and was the first person laid to rest in this God's acre, which had been donated by Mr. Reuben Hubble from his property as a free cemetery for community use.

Mr. Mack has several relatives in Rawdon who send him clippings from the Ontario Intelligencer and he is busy compiling an up-to-date family tree of the Mack clan in Rawdon.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was talking and ma kept on not ansering, and pop said, What's wrong, my dear, you look as if you were sore at the whole werld.

You flatter my ability, I'm just mad at one particuler inhabitant of it ma said, and pop said, You cant possibly meen me.

That's where you're dubbly wrong, ma said, and pop said, What did I do now?

If you cant even guess, you'll have to go to your grave in solitary ignorznce, ma said, and pop said, Well give me a hint, for Peet sake.

It was something you said to me in frunt of all those peeple, ma said, and pop said, What peeple? There hasn't been a sole here except you and me and Benny, he said.

Dont try to riggle out of it, you know very well I meant at the party last nite, ma said, and pop said, Hang if I can remember saying anything.

There, the very fact that you dont even remember shows your lack of consideration for my feelings, ma said, and pop said, Now listen, whatever it was and however it sounded, I didn't meen it that way. I can remember that mutch perfectly. What the dooce did I say and what did I say it about? he said.

Well, it was just after Maud Hews mentioned something about something or other, now let me think, ma said, and pop said, Yee gods, you cant even remember it yourself.

That doesn't excuse you one tiny particle, ma said, and pop said, My dear, any jury in the land would convict me, though I dont know what of and neither would the jury. I promise I'll never say it again, he said.

You'd just better not, ma said. Anyway, now that you've apologized, let's just forget it, she said.

Being the happy end of the subject.

MARYSVILLE

Marysville.—Sympathy of the community goes out to the family of the late Mrs. Timothy Murphy, who died on Tuesday, and whose funeral was held at St. Mary's Church, Marysville, on Friday.

Mr. Edward Walsh, who was seriously injured last Sunday, is showing signs of improvement. All his friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Wringe, on the arrival of a baby girl.

Miss Joan Wringe was a patient in Belleville Hospital, this week, where she had her tonsils removed.

The children had an enjoyable Saturday afternoon, in Deseronto, where Santa, in all his color and glory thrilled them beyond words. A free gift and candy, was in store for all, and much credit is due the business men of Deseronto, for their work and efforts to make it such a decided success.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Whalen, of Kingston, spent Sunday in Marysville.

SLIGHT ERROR

London. (CP)—Accused in a court case here, the man in the dock was given his choice of lawyers and pointed to one with the remark "I'll have that one". The chosen lawyer replied: "I'm sorry, you can't have me. I'm prosecuting you."

Mr. and Mrs. John Rollins, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rollins and Miss Faye Rollins, of Plainfield, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hark Rollins, at Cooper, on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Rigby called on Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rollins and family on Saturday evening, and took Miss Joan Rollins home with them to Rossmore for the weekend.

Mr. Jim Rutherford and Mr. Hilbert Van Der Veen motored to Ottawa, on Saturday morning and spent the weekend there.

WELLINGTON

Wellington.—Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Channell, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Baitley, Mr. and Mrs. Colin Lane, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Greer, spent last week in Toronto, where the men attended the Canners' Convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Reid and boys, of Belleville, spent last Friday evening with Mrs. James Reid, who was celebrating her 85th birthday.

Wellington is proud of its new fire engine, which arrived last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bishop spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. R. Campbell, Toronto, and with Mr. and Mrs. M. Campbell, Vineland.

Mrs. Beverley Beals and three children left by train on Sunday to join Mr. Beals at Moosonee, on James Bay.

Mrs. Ralph Ellis spent Friday of last week in Toronto.

Infants baptized at the United Church on Sunday were Janet Diane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot Conley; Kathryn Lynne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Baden Alyea; Linda Mae and Jeanette, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon MacDonald and Peter Gary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe DeBoer.

Mr. William Wilson has been confined to his home this week with a severe cold.

This Saturday is Wellington's big day, as Santa Claus is coming to the village, with a big Santa Claus parade being planned.

Mr. Ralph Ellis and children joined Mrs. Ellis at the weekend at Mr. and Mrs. George Roblin's, Rednersville.

RAWDON

Rawdon.—Mr. Jack McEathron underwent an appendectomy in Belleville Hospital, Thursday evening. Mrs. Earl Herron, Morganston, was the special nurse at night, and returned home on Sunday.

Mr. Charles Brooks, Eldorado, spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith and called on several friends at Mount Pleasant.

Mrs. Blake Sharpe spent a few days in Belleville, visiting Mrs. Ida Pitman, Georgia and Jack.

Birthdays

Rawdon folks extend birthday felicitations to a couple of ladies at Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, who will quietly celebrate their natal day during the Christmas season.

Mrs. James Linn will be 79 years of age on Saturday, December 22, and Mrs. Albert Dunkley celebrates her 80th anniversary on Saturday, December 29.

Mr. Clarence Scott, George Raeburn, Ina and Gail, attended the pageant entitled "The Nativity", at the O.S.D., Belleville, on Friday evening.

On Wednesday evening, Fred Bateman, Grand Master of Ontario East L.O.L., and his brother, Mr. Chris. Bateman, Springbrook, visited Sentinel L.O.L. This was the former's official visit and he gave a brief address and installed the new slate of officers.

At the close refreshments were served and a social hour of friendship enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Curry, of Toronto, spent the weekend with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sager entertained several friends at their home, Saturday evening.

Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Sunbeam Mission Band plan to hold their Christmas meeting at the church on Sunday morning next, at the close of Sunday school.

Messrs. Grant and Allan Montgomery, Toronto, spent the tea-hour Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McConnell and Betty.

Christmas Party

On Friday evening, Carmel Young Adult Group held an amateur Christmas party at Jubilee Hall. The program was a series of singing, impersonations, a trio; a ladies' party with the men impersonating the women all in costume, and several items of interest. Refreshments were served at the close.

Crows and chipmunks were seen by several people last week, due no doubt to the mild weather.

On Sunday afternoon, Miss Carol Sharp sang "Away in a Manger", at Mount Pleasant-Rawdon United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Watson, Burnbrae, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Linn and Ruth.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sharp and Bert, spent the noon-hour on Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMaster, Ivanhoe.

Mount Pleasant- Rawdon Sunbeam Mission Band was organized in 1924 by Mrs. John Holmes, president of the W.M.S. The first leader was the late Mrs. Fred G. Joblin.

Mrs. Thomas Andrews spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Higgs and family, Oshawa.

Americans Win Zone Title From Sweden

By GAYLE TALBOT

Melbourne, Australia Dec. 14—(AP)—Lennart Bergelin failed his Swedish teammates badly again today as Ted Schroeder and Tony Trabert won the doubles and clinched the Davis Cup interzone final for America.

The player who was supposed to be his country's ace in the hole collapsed after a good start, enabling Ted and Tony to come from behind and triumph easily, 10-12, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

Sven Davidsson, Bergelin's youthful partner put up a spirited battle all the way but the load was too much for one man to carry.

Bergelin's foldup was a big disappointment to the crowd of 6,000 which had hoped at least to witness a good doubles match after yesterday's one-sided singles.

There was no apparent explanation for Bergelin's abject failure to play his game. His teammates were extremely unhappy about it.

"If there had been two Davidssons out there today we might have had a Swedish victory," said Frank Shields, captain of the U.S. team.

The first set, which required 41 minutes, was marked only by failure of the American pair to play anything like their best tennis. The next three sets, which took only 47 minutes, were distinguished by Bergelin's failure to hold his service in five straight tries.

Despite the one-sided scores in the last three sets, Schroeder and Trabert showed little to worry the Australians in the challenge round at Sydney, Dec. 26-28. The Aussies' two jewels, Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor, likely would like them in straight sets on today's form.

Cobourg May Drop Lakeshore League, Play Valley Loop

Cobourg, Dec. 14—Indications are that Cobourg Comets will leave the Lakeshore Intermediate A hockey series in favor of the Trent Valley League.

The Cobourg executive received little encouragement from Tuesday's meeting with the OHA in Toronto—a meeting designed to determine whether the Comets could be given player aid.

The OHA decided that the Comets would be allowed two players from Senior A or Junior A teams, provided these players had been discarded. Moreover, they must be obtained by Dec. 17.

The Comet executive feels that hopes of gaining such players are dim, with the cost of procuring the mprohibitive anyway. The Cobourg club has until Sunday to notify the Trent Valley League of the decision.

Fourth straight loss to Cobourg's archrivals, Port Hope Redmen, further aggravated the situation, with the Comets unwilling to continue unless the team can be strengthened. Cobourg tempers were not helped by a report from Port Hope declaring that the Cobourg club was "shamming" in the complaint of player weakness.

BROKE INTO CLUB

Toronto, Dec. 14—CP—Thieves Wednesday night broke into the Kiwanis Boys Club here and messed up preparations for a Christmas party for underprivileged children. They smashed a decorated Christmas tree, scattered popcorn about the room and stole or destroyed many presents.

Minor Hockey Leagues Results

Quinte Battery won their second straight victory in the BHA Midget League last night defeating Moose by a 2-1 score. Canadian Tire and the Big "A" team battled to a two-all tie.

In the juvenile league the Glen Roys fashioned a 4-2 victory over the Police Department squad with Belleville Locks and Belle Cleaners playing to a th—-all draw.

Quinte Battery, undefeated in the loop were paced by goalgetters Lynch and Crawford with Be.. scoring the lone Moose goal in a hard fought game.

St. Denis scored both goals for the Canadian Tire squad with Buskard and Vesterfelt getting the Big "A" scores. Vesterfelt has compiled four goals and three asists in the two games played to date.

Bovay, Cook, Goyer and Williams scored fo rthe Glens in their 4-2 victory over the Police Department. Wagar and Walker got the "cops" goals.

Cameron scored a pair in the Belleville Lock team's tie with the Belleville Cleaners with Atkins getting the third goal. Casey drove home a brace of goals for Cleaners with Kellitt getting the third. Brian Mulvihill and Jud Semark were the referees.

Loyola Star Top Grid Passer

New York, Dec. 14 (AP) —Don Klosterman, Loyola's one - man bomber squadron, topped the nation's major college passers during the past season and set eight records in the process.

The 21-year-old senior at the Los Angeles University threw 315 times and completed 159 in nine games, breaking records for both the number of tosses and for completions.

Final figures released today by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau also showed that Klosterman piled up the most yardage by passes, 1,843 yards. Losses on a few attempted runs gave him a total offence figure of 1,803 yards, second to Princeton's Dick Kazmaier, who accumulated 1,827 yards on passes and runs.

Klosterman's average of 204.8 yards per game via aerials also was a first but no record. That's held by Stan Heath, now with Calgary Stampeders, who averaged 222.8 for Nevada's Aerial Circus in 1948.

Kazmaier had the best passing average, 62.6 percent on 77 completions in 123 attempts.

Black to Get Injury Pay

Cleveland, Dec. 14 — (AP)—A regional board of the Ohio Industrial Commission has decided Don Black, former pitcher for Cleveland Indians, is entitled to disability compensation. The team would have to pay him out of its own funds.

Black suffered a haemorrhage at the base of the brain while at bat in the second inning of a game Sept. 13, 1948, against St. Louis in Cleveland Stadium. He was unconscious for five weeks and never succeeded in making a comeback in baseball.

The Indians, then run by Bill Veeck, held a "Don Black" night that summer, which raised $40,000 for Black.

Black, now 23, is an office worker. He would be entitled to a maximum of $25 a week from the time of his injury until he became employed again.

Red Wings Headed For Fourth Straight NHL Title; Defeat Maple Leafs 3-1

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

EAGLES TONIGHT!

These pesky Eagles from Peterborough will be at Memorial Arena tonight questing for another victory at the expense of the senior Hawks. The Eagles rammed a 10-4 defeat down the Hawk throats in the teams last meeting in Peterborough, scoring four goals in the third period to complete the route. However the Hawks threw a 3-2 defeat on the Eagles in their last clash here although the visiting birds made it hotly interesting in the third period in a desperate drive to catch the flying Hawks. Tonight's battle should see plenty of fast furious action as both squads are victory bent. A win for the Eagles will create a three-way first place tie with the Hawks and Kingston Essanays as the teams are settling down and whipping themselves into form. It's going to be a hot race from here in unless one or other of the four squads show a slump. Hawks are anxious to maintain that top-slot berth or at least have a part of it and they'll be out there tonight with all feathers aflutter in a strong bid to scuttle the visiting Eagles.

MINORS SATURDAY

Minor hockey gets in the regular weekly whirl at Memorial Arena on Saturday morning with the peewees and bantams holding forth. Starting at 7.30 the peewees will play a triple-header with Bruins meeting Rangers in the opener; Leafs meeting Hawks in the second game and Canadiens tangling with Rangers in the third tiff.

At nine o'clock the bantams take the ice with the Bruins and Rangers; Leafs and Hawks and Canadiens and Red Wings playing in the order named starting at nine o'clock.

YANKING GOALIE OFTEN BACKFIRES

The practice of yanking the goalkeeper when a team is on the short end of the score in an all-out effort to tie up the game often backfires by the team doing the yanking. On seven occasions this season when a National Hockey League club has removed their goaltender in an attempt to tie up the contest, five of those seven times the opposition has fired the puck into the unguarded net to put the goalless club further behind.

New York and Boston were the two clubs that worked the plan successfully. On November 14 Rangers were losing to Toronto, 2-1, when Coach Neil Colville removed Charlie Rayner from the New York nets in the last minute of play and threw an extra forward on the ice. Paul Ronty scored for the Rangers at the 19:18 mark to make the gamble a success. Toronto were also involved in the other game that the plan worked out to the loser's satisfaction. Trailing the Leafs, 1-0, Boston took Goalkeeper Jim Henry off the ice in the final minute of the game, and Milt Schmidt, veteran center, promptly tallied at 19:35.

The scheme backfired on October 17 when Toronto scored their fourth goal against Boston into an empty net. Trailing 3-2, the Bruins made a valiant attempt to deadlock the game by removing Henry, but the Leafs iced a long one at 19:40 of the third to win 4-2. Cal Gardner did the scoring. Boston were on the other side of the fence on November 4 when Adam Brown scored against a Lumley-less Chicago goal to win 4-2. Then on November 18 Rangers removed Rayner from goal in the closing minutes in a dying effort to erase a two-goal deficit. It failed as Marcel Pronovost scored for Detroit at 19:40 to give the Wings a 5-2 victory.

Sugar Jim Henry was out of the Boston goal when Red Kelly scored for Detroit at 19:27 of the final session. The Bruins lost 2-0. Chicago was losing 5-3 to Rangers on November 28 when Coach Ebbie Goodfellow pulled Harry Lumley from the cordage. Al Stanley propelled the disc into the empty net at 19:29 to give the New Yorkers a 6-3 win.

The teams are yanking the goalkeepers in the last minute of play more often this season than they have in former years.

* * *

LONGEST UNBEATEN STREAK ON ROAD

Detroit Red Wings have yet to lose a game on the road this season. The Wings have won seven and tied three in their first ten games away from the Detroit Olympia. Boston Bruins went 15 games without a loss while playing on the road in 1940-41. That was the season that the Bruins went 23 games in a row without a defeat — an N.H.L. record. In the 15 unbeaten games they played away from home in 1940-41, the Bruins won nine and drew six.

* * *

OLDEST GOALIE TO PLAY IN N.H.L.

Moe Roberts became the oldest player to perform in the National Hockey League when he replaced the injured Harry Lumley in goal for Chicago at the end of the second period on November 25. Roberts, who is 46 years old is assistant trainer of the Black Hawks and a former ace netminder with Cleveland. He was born at Waterbury, Conn. and turned pro with Boston Bruins in 192 -27. He only played the one period in goal for the Black Hawks but managed to keep his cage free of pucks.

Lester Patrick used to have the record of being the oldest player to play goal for an N.H.L. team. Lester was 44 when he was thrust between the pipes in that memorable Stanley Cup game between New York Rangers and Montreal Maroons on April 7, 1928.

Joe DiMaggio signed with the Yankees again yesterday — to do pre-game and post-game television programs in 1952.

The contract of the Yankee Clipper, who announced his retirement as a player last Tuesday, is with the Yankee ball club alone, and, if it should develop that he also will handle the play-by-play on radio or television, it will be a separate deal. Terms of the contract were not revealed.

Increase Lead to Six Points While Hawks Tie Canadiens To Share Berth With Rangers

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

If there's a club in the National Hockey League capable of stopping Detroit Red Wings in their march towards a fourth straight championship, they've yet to stick their noses above ground. This may be a kiss of death to the Wings, but right now they have every reason to be a bit snobbish in the pro hockey world.

The Wings, who would start a big hassle about "what's wrong with Detroit if they ever slipped to second place, demonstrated last night just why they are six points ahead of the runner-up Toronto Maple Leafs. They whipped the Leafs 3-1 at Detroit and became the only club in the circuit to show a victory over all opponents at home and on the road this season.

15th Victory in 26

That should be reason enough to call the Wings to pick up N. H. L. championship No. 4 in as many seasons at the end of the 70-game 5½ month schedule. It was their 15th victory in 26 starts and what makes this record all the more impressive is that they can still set the pace after shedding a batch of players during the off-season to help out the struggling Chicago Black Hawks.

The Hawks caught up to the idle fifth-place New York Rangers with a 1-1 tie at home against Montreal Canadiens. The Montrealers now are in fourth position, 13 points behind Detroit and four less than Boston Bruins, in third place.

Detroit was held to a 1-1 first-period tie but bounced back with a pair in the second session to pick up the two points. Reports from the automobile city indicate it couldn't have been much of a game as Wing goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk had only 13 stops—two in the first period, seven in the second and four in the final 20 minutes.

Maybe it was because the Wings played an alleged "kitty-bar-the-door" game but it also showed that they can score goals when needed and then set the pace to their liking.

Gadsby is Here

Toronto's Tod Sloan matched the Wings' first-period counter by Ted Lindsay and the Wings tucked away the decision with goals by Marty Pavelich and Benny Woit in the second. From there in it was a simple case of holding out the Leafs whose famed power play couldn't penetrate beyond the Detroit Blue line in the third stanza.

At Chicago, Bill Gadsby was the hometown hero when he scored the tying goal with less than three minutes of the game remaining. That nullified his "goat's" role in the first period when Montreal's Boom Boom Geoffrion scored while the Hawk was sitting out a holding penalty.

Hockey Leagues To Use Former Icing-Puck Rule

Midland, Ont., Dec. 14 (CP)—All hockey leagues under the jurisdiction of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association must return to the icing-the-puck rule "within a reasonable time," George S. Dudley, Secretary Manager of the C.A.H.A., said today.

He was commenting on statements yesterday by Ken Mayhew of Yorkton, Sask., President of the Saskatchewan Amateur Hockey Association, that teams in that province may continue to use the present rule if that is the wish of their league.

The old rule, which allows the puck to be fired into the end zone from just across the centre line, was returned to the book recently by a vote of the C.A.H.A. executive. The new rule, in effect for the first time this year and which now has been abolished, calls for the puck to be carried or passed over the blueline without reaching the goal line.

Mayhew said the C.A.H.A. apparently had allowed some leeway in returning to the old rule.

However, Dudley said Mayhew had "apparently misinterpreted the directive" sent out by the C.A.H.A. "They will have to return to the old rule as quickly as possible," he said.

The Ontario Hockey Association, said Dudley, is returning to the old ruling Dec. 17.

Junior Canadiens Defeat Kingston 6-4

Montreal Canadiens, starry leaders in the Quebec Junior Hockey League defeated the Kingston S and A club by a 6-4 score in Kingston Memorial Centre Arena last night.

The clever, if light Montreal club seemed at home on the large ice surface, their speed and general polish being the difference that gave them the victory over the ontario senior "B" club.

Kid Gavilan Meets Henry Carter In Non-Title Middleweight Fight

By JACK HAND

New York, Dec. 14—(AP)—Cuban Kid Gavilan—the man with the iron jaw—tests Walter Cartier's .500 plus knockout average tonight in an interesting Madison Square Garden pairing.

You can watch (NBC-TV) or listen (ABC) at 10 p. m. EST when welter champ Gavilan again ventures into the middleweight division in a non-title 10-rounder.

Everybody pegs away at the indestructible keed and nothing happens. In 93 fights, only Ike Williams was able to knock him down—and he couldn't keep him there. In fact Gavilan won two of their three bouts.

It's often the same story when Gavilan pegs away—nothing happens. His record shows 77 wins with 22 knockouts but most of the KOs came in lesser fights.

Gavilan's flashy moves, his two-step rhumba and bolo are eye-catchers. But he seldom drops an opponent. In recent fights he has chucked the bolo-rhumba style and concentrated on hooks to the body and uppercuts thrown out of a half crouch.

On the basis of Gavilan's unimpressive draw over Johnny Bratton at Chicago, Nov. 28, he is only a 6 to 5 favorite over Cartier. Many think the price is out of line, giving a decisive edge to the fast-punching Gavilan against a standup boxer-puncher like Cartier.

Cartier, 27, has won 20 in a row since he was knocked out by Rocky Castellani in 1948. Gavilan hasn't lost in his last 14, winning 13 straight until the Bratton draw. It will be Gavilan's 12th start this year.

The 25-year-old Gavilan is much more experienced with 93 fights and a 77-12-4 record. He has only 22 knockouts in 93 to Cartier's 22 in 43. Cartier, has a 38-4 record with no draws.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said yesterday at New York that more scoring and not overtime is the solution to curtailing the number of tie games played in the league.

Campbell said an increase in goal production would result in less ties.

"When I assumed office five years ago the league averaged 6.1 goals per game," Campbell said. "Since then the goal production has declined. Last year the average was 5.4 per game. Through Sunday of the current season the average was 4.8. Each drop in goal scoring brings a corresponding increase in tie games," he added.

"There has been no overtime play in the league in 10 years," Campbell pointed out. "When we permitted overtime play before the war approximately 30 per cent of the games were decided."

Campbell also said that week-end games that have teams playing in Canada on Saturday night and in the United States on Sunday evenings make it virtually impossible to play overtime. "The teams have train deadlines to meet," he said.

Entries for the 1952 Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree will close Jan. 1, officials of the race course announced yesterday at London. The race, regarded as the world's No. 1 jumping event, will be run April 5. It carried an added purse of $14,000.

Roy Mason, manager of Guelph Biltmores, said yesterday it is unlikely his Ontario Hockey Association junior A team will add reinforcements before the trading deadline Dec. 15. "I've tried to make deals with several other clubs," he said at Guelph, "but it's the same old story. Nobody has anything to give away.

"St. Mike's offered us Bill Dineen—for $10,000. That's out of the question."

Calgary Stampeders of the Pacific Coast Hockey League have acquired Bing Juckes and Hal Brown from Vancouver Canucks of the same circuit. Lloyd Turner, Calgary manager, announced Wednesday night at Calgary the two players, who played last year with Denver of the United States Hockey League, were received in a trade in which Calgary gave Vancouver full rights to Eddie Leier and an unstated amount of cash.

Jack Lohrke, utility infielder with the New York Giants for the last four seasons, was traded to the Philadelphia Phils yesterday for pitcher Jake Schmitt, a southpaw. Schmitt was with Baltimore of the International League last season where he won 10 and lost 14.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Some bridge players seem to have no particular need for rules. Somehow, they fall right into the correct bids. They find just what they need in their partner's hand. Just as if they had eyes.

If they bid a slam, they do not first see how safe it is. They barge right into it. Sure enough, they find the kings on the right side. Their queens and jacks are in the right spot.

Most of us must feel our way to the correct final bid. We take very great care not to gamble with the result. And we religiously use the signals we seem to feel are so necessary.

We are on this deal:

NORTH
♠A Q 4 3
♥9 5
♦K 10 4
♣A K 4 3

WEST
♠10 9 8
♥8 6 2
♦9 8 7 2
♣6 5 2

EAST
♠K 7 6 5
♥J 10 7 4 3
♦Q J 6 5
♣None

SOUTH
♠J 2
♥A K Q
♦A 3
♣Q J 10 9 8 7

The bidding has gone this far:

South	North
1 C	2 S
3 C	4 NT
6 D	?

The four no-trump bid is the convention for asking partner how many aces and kings he has. The six diamond bid is the convention response for showing two aces and only one king.

North now knows his pair has all four aces and three of the kings. He has thus learned that the opponents have no aces and exactly one king.

With a king missing, the safer contract would seem to be six no-trump. And most players would be content to bid and make that small slam in no-trump rather than risk defeat.

But north decided to play the hand at a grand slam in clubs. So he bid seven clubs and south thus became the declarer. All 13 tricks must be taken. West starts with a diamond lead.

Can you make the grand slam? If so, you are probably smarter than you look.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood. Dec. 14. (AP)—Victor Moore, nearing his 75th birthday, is full of plans for his career, which already has spanned 54 years of entertainment history.

The veteran comedian is currently acting in his first picture in two years. He is the pivotal character in "We're Not Married", in which he plays a confused Justice of the Peace who has been marrying people without the proper authority.

Despite his screen inactivity, Moore has not been idle. He has appeared on many television programs and also has done stage work. His plans include a return to Broadway and his own TV show.

"I did 'On Borrowed Time' at theLa Jolla playhouse last summer", he said. "It's a wonderful play and I enjoyed doing it very much. Now I have plans to take it to Broadway, and I believe it would be my last play there."

Moore's swan song on Broadway would mark the end of a long and distinguished career on the stage. For 18 years, he and William Gaxton starred on the big stem in such hits as "Of Thee I Sing", "Anything Goes", "Louisiana Purchase", and 'Leave It To Me".

"During our partnership, Billy and I had only two flops," he recalled. "Oddly enough, they were by the two men who provided our biggest hit—'Of Thee I Sing'. The shows were 'Hollywood Pinafore' by George Kaufman and a comedy by Morrie Ryskind."

The comic is also cooking up a plan to star on his own television show and has been mulling a number of formats. The one he likes best at present is about a retired mailman who runs a hotel for dogs.

Moore likes to do TV, finding it much like vaudeville. But he feels the medium will be best presented on film, instead of live shows. He commented on the voracious appetite of TV for comedy material.

"Why, I did the same act in vaudeville for 25 years," he observed. "Nowadays, you can do one act on TV for one performance and the material is dead. It presents a tremendous problem for comedians."

Top Racketeer Given Long Prison Term

New York, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Waxey Gordon, top racketeer in the roaring prohibition 1920s, reached the end of the trail yesterday — a prison sentence that amounts to a life term.

The onetime big-shot mobster took it without batting an eye, even as Judge Francis L. Valente said with grim satisfaction:

"It should ring down the curtain of your paracitical and lawless life."

Gordon was arrested as a dope peddler last Aug. 3, sniveling on his knees to police to "please kill me—shoot me . . . I'm an old man and I'm through . . . don't take me in for junk (dope."

Judge Valente gave him two sentences of 25 years to life. They are to be served together. However, at the age of 64, Gordon almost certainly will spend the rest of his life in prison. His real name is Irving Wexler.

Government Acts To Stave Off Wide Steel Strike

Pittsburgh, Dec. 14 (AP)—The United States government yesterday to stave off a country-wide steel strike New Year's Day.

Two mediators were flown into Pittsburgh to take a hand in apparently stymied wage talks between the CIO United Steelworkers and United States Steel Corporation.

Closed door sessions of negotiators continued and steelworkers President Philip Murray made ready for a possible momentous meeting of his policy makers on Monday.

Murray said only that he called the union governing heads to take up progres sof the wage talks. But the reason might be to authorize a strike or extend the present contract.

It is generally conceded that the matter will have to be settled in Washington due to wage controls. Steel sources say the industry can't even make a wage offer until it finds out how much it can give in the way of price increases.

But even as the government stepped into negotiations, mobilization chief Charles E. Wilson was saying:

"We must and will maintain wage control to prevent a spiral of wage-price inflation which would be just as damaging to labor as to every other group in the economy.

Indian Leaders Fear for Those Who Step Inside

Vancouver, Dec. 14 (CP) — Beer parlor doors swing open tomorrow for British Columbia's adult Indian population. But Indian leaders fear of those who step inside.

They say the change in the Indian Act, while long overdue, is a half-way measure paved with pitfalls.

Provincial Secretary W. T. Straith announced Wednesday that Ottawa has, at B.C.'s request, issued a proclamation bringing section 95 of the Federal Indian Act into effect in the province.

Under this section, the Indians may drink in licenced premises. But the rest of the liquor laws governing Indians remain in force.

The Indians say they are still being treated as inferiors. What's more, they add ,the new regulations increase their chances of running afoul of the law.

B.C. has an Indian population of roughly 27,000.

While the Indian now will be able to drink all the beer he wants in the beer parlor, he won't be allowed to buy beer to take out.

This, presumably, is a move to keep liquor off the reservations. And should he leave the premises with a few too many under his belt, he faces arrest, not on the charge of intoxication in a public place, but on a charge of intoxocation in a public place, but on a charge laid under the Indian Act.

A white man still can't give an Indian a drink in his home or at any other place except a beer parlor.

AT THE BELLE

"Fort Worth", Warner Technicolor Film, Due Today

"Fort Worth", one of the important cities of the state of Texas, takes a bow today when Warner Bros. film of that title comes to the Belle Theatre.

Starring Randolph Scott, Phyllis Baxter and David Brian, the sweeping motion picture story, filmed in color by technicolor, or an early episode in the life of the colorful town, takes its place along with many other action-packed films of the past including, "Dallas", San Antonio" and "Dodge City."

For Randy Scott, named one of the ten best box office leaders according to a recent motion picture poll, his role in "Fort Worth" follows such rugged portrayals as in "Sugarfoot" and "Colt 45."

A funny Warner Bros. color-fun cartoon "Leghorn Longhorn" and three other varied short features precede the feature attraction.

VOTE SELVES RAISE

Paris, Dec. 14 (AP) —Members of the National Assembly today voted themselves a raise of about $72 a month. The vote was 495 to 103, with the communists and their allies voting against. In the future, deputies will get 150,530 francs (about $430) a month.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Saturday, December 15

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Conferences, business matters, real estate, issues involving financial affairs should have more careful study Well laid plans and astute manoeuvres will keep you up to standards.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Uncertain for risky financial or business matters unless due reason and circumstance warrant them. Don't be persuaded to go unwisely out on the limb. Wait patiently.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Heed good advice, don't rush into place you know you shouldn't and have regrets. Take the sane centre of the road. Move cautiously.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Daily duties, immediate problems, home, children's affairs need attentiveness. Rightly allocate your efforts so that you will cover all due phases. P.M. favors personal affairs.

July 24 to August 22— (Leo)—Some unexpected circumstances may tend to confuse, mostly in A.M., so be alert, on guard for alterations new notes. A really healthy challenge day so aim to be equal to it. You can.

August 24 to September 23 — Virgo—Take advantage to better your position and personal status. But be always mindful there are others anxious to thrive, improve. Don't take setbacks, temporary disappointment too seriously.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Semi-generous influence. Create a lively stimulus, maintain harmony with associates, friends, all. It should prove worthwhile.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Don't expect all things to run as planned though many may agreeably surprise. You can put over deals without much opposition. Attack intelligently, without malice.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)— Brisk competition, especially in regular business. Inject sound audacity, operate without fear, and have faith in you. Best to rely on known, proven formulas, experience.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)— Blend your efforts with others doing important matters first. Take large and small with equal composure. Measure each problem as to value, all problems can help ultimate success.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius) — We warn against over-extension of production, assets, energies. Fight opponents on fair terms. Suggest ideas, promote; if in doubt; seek advice, but keep doing something concrete.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Don't be content with what is set before you, reach out into the new, perhaps intriguing. Don't stand still; others are making their gains, progressing by experimenting.

YOU BORN TODAY: Jovial; keen, enterprising. Likely to speak out of turn putting over a point; but you are innately honorable, have good sense of humor. Seldom waste time or words, will get to the point quickly; thus make excellent managers, executives, salesmen, teachers. Talent for art, music. Avoid rushing, worry and abruptness. Promote your interests through friendliness, contacts you build on solid foundation. Watch health.

Birthdate of: Nero, Roman emperor; Maxwell Anderson, playwright.

RUMORS NOT TRUE

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP) — Vice - president Alben Barkley did not suffer a heart attack yesterday. Neither did Gen. Matthew Ridgway, Allied commander in the Far East, nor Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Eighth Army in Korea.

Defence headquarters was busy all day checking and denying, a flood of rumors that the three had been stricken. How the rumors got started was a mystery.

SOOTHING TREATMENT

Sugar is prominent in methods of treating stomach ulcers because it furnishes non-irritating energy.

DRY SPOTS

Ice-free valleys and hills and unfrozen lakes have been photographed in the coastal region of the Antarctic Continent.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

We had not far to go where Hussein awaited us, small ears up in curiosity, wicked eyes glaring as he saw I came in company with another. All this time my mind raced with my pulse at a hammering gait but with a million questions thronging my thoughts, I could not voice so much as a word of one of them.

We stood a moment thus, facing each oher, her upturned child's face coming barely to my chest, my head bent forward and down so that her glorious hair lay just beneath my lips. A vagrant breeze lifted one of the soft curls.

Sioux is a language of reality. The Indian mind and tongue do not concern themselves with refined emotion.

"I love you," I said hoarsely, in English. And seized her to smash my mouth against hers.

She staggered back from it as though from a blow in the face, her slim hand held with its back her bruised lips, nostrils wide, emerald eyes on fire. I was aware then that her features mirrored a look which superseded any possible anger, hurt, incredulity. It was a look of fear, the fear of the unknown.

"Wonunicum," I murmered, employing the sole word in the Sioux vocabulary which may be spoken in apology. Literally it means "a mistake has been made."

"No." She whispered, her voice thick with emotion. "The thing was not a mistake. But I know not what it was and I am afraid."

"It is a kiss," I said slowly.

"It is a sign," I said slowly. "It is a sign among my people, sacred to lovers. Its meaning is that I would have you dwell in my tipi forever."

She felt her lips wonderingly with arched fingertips as I talked, meanwhile shaking her head in disbelieving negation.

When a custom is so deeply seated within a race as to be almost an instinct, it is hard to imagine another race being in ignorance of its use and import.

"When you have touched me now with your mouth," pausing here to lay a tapering forefinger upon my lips. "I know that no other man may stand before you outside my tipi door. But neither may you stand there. For I am Wiyan Wakan and no man may wait outside my lodge."

I knew we had come upon dangerous ground so, like the good military man I assumed myself to be my next move was to evacuate the position with the least possible delay and loss.

"This I have shown and have wrestled with it in my heart, bringing herefrom a vision, a dream, which bade me come to you." I shot her a quick glance, wondering how I was getting across. No whit reassured, I stumbled on. "This I have told Crazy Horse, and he has brought me here to council with you. His heart is bad within him also, but he knows not what to do."

"Nor do I," she announced, simply. "Though my heart is good and speakes to me with a straight tongue."

But by this she meant she gave full cognizance to the feeling between us, but dared not question her further on it.

"We shall council then," I suggested, trying to sound casual, "with crazy horse, upon our return?"

"So be it. But my spirit lies quietly, breathing not of hope."

Thinking to retrieve our former, lighter mood, before her spirit began to lie any more quietly or breathe any less vigorously, I suggested a race to the foot of the mesa incline. This seemed to strike the proper note, for she was at once all smiles. I was later to find the pagan priestess and the delighted child never far separated in this strange girl.

At the moment my proposal was a lucky shot, serving to stave off a retreatless impasse.

As we spoke, we stood about ten feet from Hussein, who all the time had been conducting himself peculiarly; poking his head out in our direction, snuffling and flaring his nostrils to sample our scent, flicking his ears to catalogue our voices, in general acting more like an inquisitive weanling than the yellow-toothed old killer he was.

"And what will the wager be?" Star laughed, excitedly. Then, before I could answer "I know. You shall bring me the heart of a great enemy of our people. And you shall lay it before my tipi, that I may know you are truly the warrior they say you are."

"The wager is fair," I laughed, in turn. "But what if you lose?" I had in mind, of course, a footrace.

"I shall not lose!" she shouted, wheeling suddenly. "For even the Hawk is not so swift as the Horse!" With that she leaped for Hussein with the speed of a darting hare. I had no chance to stop her, only being able to cry out in terror. "No, Star! Keep away from him! He'll kill—"

Alas, what fools we males are. And that goes for you, too, Hussein, you traitorous dog!"

Yes, I was left standing there, all fat and stupid, my terrified warnings still resting peacefully in my strictured larynx, while Star, swinging gracefully to the willing back of my erstwhile warhorse, galloped off.

Hussein had the temerity to look back and fling me a whinnying horselaugh before settling into his stride and skimming off over frozen creek and bush alike, as smooth and easy as any bird, quite obviously as happy.

NO LOUDSPEAKERS

Paris, Dec. 14 — (Reuters)— Loudspeakers installed in La Pepiniere infantry barracks in Paris will no longer blare out reveille at 6 a. m., arousing the whole neighborhood as well as soldiers. Police said yesterday the army had decided, following complaints by civilians not to use the loudspeakers in the future before 7:30 a.m.

NOVELIST DIVORCED

Reno, Nev., Dec. 14 — (AP) — Novelist Betty Smith, author of the best seller, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," was divorced yesterday from Joseph Piper Jones of Chapel Hill, N.C. The author charged extreme mental cruelty. She and Jones were married Aug. 7, 1943, and had no children. Property rights were settled by private agreement.

You name it!

DRYOCOPUS PILEATUS
(Northern Pileated Woodpecker)

The Pileated Woodpecker is a startling bird. So spectacular is his appearance that he has long been a target for guns in the hands of thoughtless people. As a result he is becoming rare in many sections of Canada.

He should be protected. Besides being highly decorative and the largest Canadian woodpecker, the Pileated is extremely valuable. He destroys millions of wood insects and provides nesting sites for tree-dwelling ducks.

Get to know wildlife. You'll find a whole new world of interest—and you'll want to conserve our natural scene.

Bank of England Loosens Control Of British Pound

Dollar Parity Remains, Price of Gold Pegged

London, Dec. 15—(AP)— The Bank of England loosened its control of sterling to curb speculative dealings which have weakened the British pound.

The dollar parity of the pound remains at $2.80 U.S. and the official price of gold is still pegged at 250 shillings a fine ounce. There had been world-wide speculation that Britain this weekend would devalue her currency.

An official bank statement announced that the foreign exchange market will be reopened in London for dealing both in spot and forward currencies.

A main effect will be to relax —but not to end—exchange control restrictions.

The main effect of the changes is that though exchange control remains, transactions will take place through the market instead of through the Bank of England.

The Bank of England will allow a wider "spread" on either side in spot exchange. The present spread is one per cent either side of the parity but the new margin will not be announced before Monday.

Commercial banks will be able to deal in forward exchange at market rates.

May Free Sterling Entirely

Canada suddenly abolished her 12-year-old foreign exchange controls last night and thus became the first nation to junk financial bans imposed to aid the war effort and recovery. She joins the United States and Switzerland—neither of which limited foreign exchange —as the world's only countries with fully free currencies.

A longer-term objective of the Bank of England's move might well be to free sterling entirely. This would enable the British pound to find its own level on the world's money markets.

The British presumably think that a freed pound eventually might become worth more than $2.80.

The Bank of England is a British government agency. Its new policy will give greater flexibility to exchange transactions.

By this move the Bank of England thus passes the risk to commercial banks by freeing the money market to make its own prices in forward transactions in many currencies.

The most important of these are the American and Canadian dollars, the Dutch Guilder, the Belgian, French and Swiss francs.

The Bank of England felt that its cheap facilities had been used for "quasi-speculative" dealings. Now dealers will have to take the forward rate of the market.

Subject to certain limitations commercial banks will be permitted to deal in United States dollars with banks in the American account area—but only directly.

District Attorney Says He Will Prosecute Wanger

Bevery Hills, Calif., Dec. 15—(AP)—The district attorney says he will prosecute movie producer Walter Wanger for felonious assault, despite any efforts that may be made to prevent him from being tried for shooting the agent of his actress wife, Joan Bennett.

Prosecutor S. Ernest Roll, taking cognizance of reports that the agent Jennings Lang, might decline actively to prosecute Wanger, issued this statement:

"If the police sign a complaint, and Chief Clinton Anderson says he will, this office will prosecute the case regardless of the desires of the participants."

Roll said the complaint will be filed today.

Lang, shot in the groin, was progressing satisfactorily in a hospital. He underwent surgery Thursday night, a few hours after he was shot while he talked to Miss Bennett in a parking lot.

Given Transfusions

Lang, 39-year-old representative of Music Corporation of America assigned to west coast television talent, was given two blood transfusions.

Wanger yesterday moved out, bag and baggage, from the $140,000 residence of Miss Bennett, after he was released on $5,000 bail.

While Miss Bennett visited a friend, Wanger drove to their home, loaded a steamer trunk, several suitcases and two overcoats into his car, and said he was moving into an apartment. He declined to make any statement on his marital status or the possibility of a divorce.

Shortly after his arrest, Wanger blamed Lang for what he said was a change in Miss Bennett's attitude toward him, and Chief Anderson quoted the producer: "I shot Lang because he broke [illegible] my home."

The 41-year-old Miss Bennett insisted her relationship with the agent was strictly business and she said that "if Walter thinks there was any romance . . . he is mistaken."

Lang, a former lawyer, says he is "bewildered by the unfortunate and unprovoked event . . . and Walter Wanger has misconstrued what was solely a business relationship."

More Troops Arrive

The Hague, The Netherlands, Dec. 15 — (Reuters) — A further contingent of the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade, including a detachment from the Royal Canadian Dragoons and the 1st Highland Battalion, will arrive at Rotterdam tomorrow, the Canadian Embassy announced today.

The units will disembark early Monday morning and will immediately entrain for Hannover to join the remainder of the brigade.

They will be welcomed by Pierre Dupuy, Canadian Ambassador in Holland, Col. T. A. Johnston, Canadian military attache, and Maj.-Gen. J. R. H. Legas, director of transport of The Netherlands army.

HOLD SECOND CAUCUS

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP) —The eight Liberals elected to the Ontario legislature Nov. 22 yesterday held their second caucus since the election. A spokesman said after the meeting that no decision was reached as to who will lead the group, now official opposition. Farquhar Oliver, House leader during the last session, was one of those elected.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP) —Synopsis: The storm which passed south of the lower lakes Friday night moved rapidly eastward and is now centred off the New England coast. It brought a wintery look to southern Ontario a week ahead of the official beginning of winter with an average snowfall of eight inches.

Bitterly cold weather persists in northern Ontario and as far west as the Rockies. Temperatures in Ontario will be 10 to 20 degrees lower Sunday morning with no immediate relief from the cold wave in sight.

RELEASED FROM PRISON

Buenos Aires, Dec. 15 (AP)— The government has ordered release from prison of three opposition radical party members who had been held in connection with Argentina's abortive military revolt Sept. 28.

WILDCAT STRIKE AT FORD PLANT COMES TO END

May Take Three Weeks To Restore Production

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 15—(CP)— A 12-day wildcat strike at the Ford Motor Company of Canada plants has ended and work will resume as soon as the huge automotive factory can be put back into operation.

But it may take three weeks to restore it to full production. Before the turbines can be started, the powerhouse must be warmed. After that, it will probably require 48 to 72 hours to get turbines running and make possible even a partial supply of power, light, heat and water to the plants and offices.

The power house was shut down by the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), in what the company said was a violation of its contract, after the unauthorized walkout started Dec. 3.

The strike came to an end last night after a settlement plan was accepted by both union and company. It provided for arbitration of the cases of 26 men dismissed for inciting work stoppages.

The dismissals touched off the walkout of 9,000 production workers and eventually led to the idleness of an additional 3,000 persons employed in Ford offices and in feeder plants.

The settlement agreement also called for a new start on contract negotiations. The wage talks launched six months ago but broke down. Delay in the handing down of a conciliation report was the reason given for the staging of a series of work stoppages.

Talks Based on Report

The resumed contract talks will be based on the conciliation report, handed down the day the production workers went on strike. It recommends a 13-cent-an-hour increase. The union has been seeking a 30-cent "package" increase over the basic hourly rate of $1.32.

The strike ended two days after Walter Reuther, U.A.W. international president, stepped into the situation and conferred with officials of the Ford local. The proposals he worked out with them were put before a meeting yesterday of the union members.

He told the meeting the wildcat walkout was in direct violation of all the principles of the international union.

"In this case, you are butting your heads against a stone wall. Your heads will be broken and so will many others if you continue."

Jack Taylor, president of the Ford local, later announced that the men had voted "overwhelmingly" in favor of a return to work. He declined to give figures on the vote.

CAN PAY BONUSES

Washington, Dec. 15 (AP) — American employers who want to start giving a Christmas bonus to salaried workers may do so, but only up to $40. The salary stabilization board, which has jurisdiction over pay of people on salaries, has ruled bonuses may be paid irrespective of whether it was the company's practice to do so in previous years.

Home Owner Eyes Latest Damage To House Hit 16 Times in 15 Years

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 15—(AP)—With a sigh of resignation Robert Turner today began planning repairs to his unlucky house on 13th Avenue which has been hit by motor vehicles 16 times in the last 15 years.

The latest bit of misfortune occurred Thursday night when a runaway truck butted another scar into the anatomy of the Turner residence.

The less seriously injured driver, 34 year old W. J. Vickers, has the dubious distinction of being the 16th motorist to smash into the well-scarred house in 15 years.

Turner has had only two such experiences since buying the house.

The previous owner, Sol Masinter said cars and trucks tore off the porch repeatedly, smashed down front-yard trees and even invaded the living room while he lived there.

The house is a likely target for motorists because it is at the bottom of a downhill street that takes a turn as it approaches the house. Occasionally, motorists keep right on going.

The Mastiners once thought of erecting a fence at the edge of their property to shield the poor old house. But a lawyer advised them they might be held liable if any drivers were injured on the fence.

There is one consolation. The lawyer said motorists who crash into the house are trespassing.

Let that be a warning to No 17.

Grand Jury to Take Over In Probe of Federal Tax Scandals After New Year

Washington, Dec. 15—(AP)—It now is up to a federal grand jury to sift fact from fiction in the amazing and conflicting stories studding an investigation of federal tax scandals.

This was apparent today as members of a House of Representatives subcommittee—wearied by lengthy hearings highlighted by everything from mink coats to $500,000 "Shakedowns"—Temporarily closed up shop for the holidays.

A federal grand jury is due soon to pick up where the committee left off.

And President Truman may announce today a board program to eliminate government wrongdoers —a program he returned to Washington from vacation to develop in the wake of the tax scandals.

Chairman Cecil King (Dem. Calif.) ordered the transcript of testimony sent to the justice department last week. He did so after Abraham Teitelbaum, Chicago lawyer, named Bert K. Naster and Frank Nathan, two Floridans, as engineers of a purported $500,000 "shakedown" attempt on the claim they could "fix" his tax troubles.

Both Nathan and Naster denounced Teitelbaum's story as "lies."

Attorney General Howard McGrath has ordered the story—with all its conflicts—sent to a District of Columbia grand jury to decide whether prosecutions for perjury are warranted.

The committee called a halt to its inquiry last night after laboring for three weeks to penetrate a thick fog of intrigue and mystery spreading through Washington's top officialdom and the haunts of the influence peddlers and "dealers".

Many Developments

In the month since the committee turned to its investigation of tax-fraud prosecutions in the justice department, a series of rapid-fire developments has rocked President Truman's household:

1. Assistant Attorney-General T. Lamar Caudle, chief tax prosecutor, was fired by Truman as the committee produced testimony picturing him as the recipient of cut-rate fur coats, fancy fishing trips and other favors from troubled taxpayers.

2. Charles Oliphant, chief counsel of the international revenue bureau, quit suddenly when his name was linked by Teitelbaum with an alleged "clique" of government officials looking for "soft touches" among individuals facing tax-fraud prosecution. Oliphant denied the lawyer's story and said he would not endure the "villification" of his name and office.

3. Nearly two-score internal revenue employees have been suspended, fired or indicated in wholesale shakeups. And more were to come, it was indicated.

4. President Truman has spoken out against "wrongdoers" in his administration with a promise of "drastic action" to clear up the scandals reverberating across the nation's front pages.

Snowstorm and Cold Strike Damaging Blows Across Wide Areas of Midwest and East

Chicago, Dec. 15 — (AP) — A blast of sub-zero cold struck areas from the Rockies to the midwest today and the coldest weather of the season was in prospect for most of the United States.

The biting cold came on the heels of a fast-moving snowstorm which yesterday dealt damaging blows and inconvenienced millions from the midwest to the north Atlantic states.

At least 27 persons died from causes attributed to the mid-December snowstorm, which left record falls in many areas across the northwestern quarter of the country. The wind-swept snowfalls disrupted transportation and communications in scores of cities.

Below Zero

Temperatures dipped to far below zero today in Montana, Minnesota and North Dakota, as the frigid blasts swept across the Canadian border. It was 23 below at Miles City, Mont., and 21 below at International Falls, Minn., Dickinson, N. D., and Lewiston, Mont. It was zero in Denver, four above in Elko, Nev., and two above in Chicago.

The cold weather was headed for most sections of the country, including wide areas of the south.

The snowstorm that swept midwest and eastern states yesterday moved into the northern New England region today. Light snow continued in the southern parts of Indiana, Illinois and Missouri and in a narrow band from western Montana to western Nebraska. Rain pelted areas from Pennsylvania and southern New York southward through the Atlantic coast except Florida.

The storm developed so quickly, weather bureau forecasters in Washington said, they did not have time to predict it in advance.

As men and machines worked to clear the snow, a fresh mass of cold air from Canada moved into the midwest. The coldest weather of the fall season—with winter's official start a week away—was forecast for the north-central region during the weekend. Subzero readings were predicted for the entire area.

The cold from the midwest headed for the middle Atlantic and northeastern sections.

Warnings Hoisted

And in the eastern seaboard, northwest storm warnings were hoisted from Long Island to Cape Hatteras, N.C., including the Chesapeake and Elaware Bays.

City after city in the storm belt reported transportation bottlenecks. Traffic was snarled in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, New York, Newark, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Indianapolis, Milwaukee and many other midwest and northwestern cities.

Air travel was at a near standstill and trains and buses were delayed. In Chicago, where a swirling fall of snow piled up to 11 inches, more than 400 plane flights were cancelled.

At New York's La Guardia Field, 61 flights were cancelled even before the snowstorm hit.

There were huge snow drifts in the prairie lands. Hundreds of roads were blocked. The drifts were not so big in the cities but the snow-and-ice-covered streets and highways caused a major traffic problem.

Five deaths were attributed to the storm in New Jersey. Other deaths from affects of the storm included eight in Indiana, four in Kansas, three each in Missouri and Nebraska, two in Illinois and one each in Wisconsin and Delaware.

General Turner Lambasts Reds On Negotiations

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 15. (AP) —A United Nations command truce negotiator today accused the communists of trying, to win at the conference table what they could not win in battle.

Other U.N. delegates reported "no progress at all" in today's prisoner-exchange negotiations.

Maj.-Gen. Howard Turner lambasted the reds after rejecting a six-point Korean truce supervision plan calling for limited troop rotation.

"You seek to gain through negotiation what you could not win through fighting. You seek to avoid through negotiation what you could not avoid through fighting," he said.

"In accepting the restrictions advocated by the United Nations command, you would merely accept a continuation of limits on your military capabilities which exist today as a result of U.N. command military operations.

"We are not talking as a victor over the vanquished. We are talking military realities on which this armistice must be based," Turner continued.

Negotiators appeared deadlocked both on plans for policing an armistice and exchanging prisoners of war, despite earlier indications that compromise solutions of both thorny problems might be near.

The two sub-committees will meet again Sunday at 11 a.m., (9 p.m. E.S.T. Saturday) in Panmunjom.

Rear Admiral R. E. Libby said the sub-committees on prisoner exchange are right back where they started.

FOREIGNEXCHANGE CONTROL ENDS AFTER 12 YEARS

Statement Approved In Banking Circles

Ottawa, Dec. 15 (CP) —Foreign exchange control is ended.

For the first time in 12 years, Canadians can freely buy at their banks as many United States dollars or other currencies as they wish. There are no more "H" forms necessary for taking funds across the U.S. border.

The individual can hoard as many U.S. dollars as he wants and the investor can buy American stock on the New York—or any other—market to his pocket book's content. He, or any other Canadian, can export as much of his capital and savings as he wishes; all of it if he wants.

Restrictions on foreign-exchange dealings ended yesterday, with a cabinet decision to eliminate the foreign-exchange dealings which have ruled so much of Canada's economic—and at times private —life since wartime September 1939.

Finance Minister Abbott made the decision known to the Commons at 5 p.m. yesterday—after the money markets had closed— in a surprise announcement that brought swift approval from banking circles.

The announcement was unsuspected and dominated a bits-and-pieces day in which the Commons dealt with a half-dozen pieces of legislation in a drive towards a Christmas adjournment sometime next week.

Another development was the announcement by Prime Minister St. Laurent of salary and pay increases retroactive to Dec. 1, for the armed forces, the civil service and the RCMP. They add approximately $40,000,000 to the government's present payroll of $515,000,000.

The chamber's adjournment was slowed by a 2 1-2 hour Progressive Conservative campaign against a government bill which eliminates the word "Domonion" from the Federal Election Act and renames it the "Canada Election Act." The party's ranks were split when two members from Quebec — Leon Balcer (Trois Rivieres) and Henri Courtemanche (Labell)—agreed with the government move.

The bill, which also makes a series of technical changes in the election law, finally was adopted and now goes to the Senate.

A formal division developed after opposition members opposed a government bill changing the makeup of the North Fraser Harbor Commission, which administers harbor waters in British Columbia's North Fraser river. The measure finally was given third and final reading by a vote of 100 to 47.

The abolition of foreign-exchange control has no effect on the practice by which Canadians returning from the U.S. are allowed to bring in $100 worth of American good duty free every four months. That is the customs regulation and has nothing to do with exchange control.

The exchange restrictions, a hang-over from the Second World War which was used to block a dangerous decline in dollar reserves in 1947, have been eased progressively in the last couple of years as Canada's reserves strengthened and her general economy brightened.

Mr. Abbott disclosed at a press conference following his Commons announcement that the government was on the verge of abolishing the controls a year ago last September when Canada freed the dollar, but decided to watch developments and hold back a final decision.

Survey Shows Christmas Trees Plentiful, Same Price as Last Year

(By The Canadian Press)

This is the season for buying and selling Christmas trees. Across the land, except in those areas where a man can cut his own, the lordly evergreen is offered on a thousand vacant lots.

A Canadian Press cross-Canada survey today showed trees plentiful and prices about the same as last year. In most centres the householder can buy a tree for from $1 to about $2.50, depending on the size and type.

Tree exports to the United States were reported higher than last year, with the price up a bit.

Mild weather slowed early sales in Ontario where Scotch pine and spruce were most popular. In Toronto, dealers asked $2 for a four-foot Scotch pine without sprayed-on coloring.

Quebec officials estimated the cut for domestic use at 200,000. Provincial police set up a special patrol to discourage city dwellers from stealing trees from farmers' bushland.

In several provinces, cutting of trees for export has become big business. Besides bringing in U. S. dollars, it provides seasonal revenue for owners of woodlots and the men who cut the trees.

Many of Ontario Scotch pines go to Florida, where the retail price is $15 to $20 for a medium-sized tree.

For Christmas tree buyers, experts had this advice: Put the tree in the coolest part of the room, keep it in water and discard it as soon as the needles start to fall, avoid overloading light circuits with several strings of tree lights and make sure decorations are the kind that will not catch fire.

Fierce Blizzard Hits East Canada, Bitterly Cold

In Ontario Storm Leaves Blocked Roads and Traffic

(By The Canadian Press)

A fierce blizzard hit Quebec and the Maritimes today a week before the official beginning of winter. Bitterly cold weather settled over much of the rest of Canada.

The blizzard, borne from the New England states by stiff winds, hit Montreal with full force during the night and today was moving rapidly in a north-easterly direction. Seven inches of snow fell on Montreal before 8 a.m. tying up transportation over a wide area. Some bus services discontinued service.

Heavy snow began to fall early today in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Up to 12 inches by night-time was forecast, with the snow turning to rain in Nova Scotia. "Extremely cold" was the forecast for the Maritimes for tomorrow.

Bright skies with bitterly cold weather prevailed over most of Ontario where more than five inches of snow fell last night and early today. By morning the storm moving at a rapid clip, had swept eastward, leaving in its wake blocked roads and snarled transportation over a wide area. Two deaths in highway accidents were blamed on the storm.

No Let-up in Sight

From Northern Ontario to the Rockies, sub-zero temperatures prevailed. Saskatoon shivered in 32-below-zero weather. Twenty-three below was recorded during the night at Edmonton. It was 18 below at Winnipeg. And no let-up in the cold wave was in sight. The forecast for the prairies was for continued cold weather tomorrow.

A storm moved southward along the British Columbia coast. Gale warnings were hoisted in northern waters. Rain was reported general in the coastal areas with snow in the mountainous interior of that province.

The snowstorm in the eastern provinces was an extension of a blizzard in the midwestern United States yesterday which created havoc over a wide area.

Montreal, where trains, bus services and air transportation were off schedule, appeared to be about 100 to 150 miles north of the storm centre. But Montrealers didn't think so as they fought their way to work through high snowdrifts that restricted streetcar movement to a cawl. The temperature was about 15 above zero. Near-zero was predicted for tonight.

In Ontario, temperatures from 10 to 20 degrees lower than today's 20-above-zero weather were forecast for Sunday. It was expected to be well below zero in northern areas. And the weatherman said no immediate relief from the cold could be expected.

18 FEARED DROWNED

Singapore, Dec. 15—(Reuters) —Eighteen persons, including a 13-year-old princess, were feared drowned after a crowded double-decked motor boat capsized in the swollen Perak River, west of Ipoh.

The boat turned over after hitting a submerged log late yesterday.

The missing princess is the daughter of Rajah Zainon Rashid and Raja Zakiah — granddaughter of a former sultan of Selangor.

British Diplomat In Czechoslovakia Called Home

London, Dec. 15—(AP)—Britain today called home a British diplomat whom the Czechoslovak secret police fired upon last night during a purported "act of espionage" in a forbidden zone of Czechoslovakia.

Prague radio claimed that the diplomat, Robert Neil Gardner, and a British Embassy typist, Miss Daphne G. Maines, were caught red-handed exchanging money for secret military information.

Miss Maines was shot and slightly wounded and Gardner was bruised in a cloak-and-dagger chase while trying to escape in a British Embassy automobile, the Czechs said.

The foreign office said it had Czechoslovakia's assurance that Miss Maines would be allowed to leave the country as soon as she is discharged from a Prague hospital. She had been due for re-assignment, the foreign office reported.

Czechoslovakia handed the British Embassy a note demanding that Gardner be recalled and quit the country before 6 p.m., Prague time, tonight.

The foreign office announced at noon that the diplomat would set out from Prague by automobile this afternoon.

A foreign office spokesman said Britain would not comment on the Czechs' charges until it had received a full report from its embassy.

The Czechs sent a formal note of protest saying Gardner and Miss Maines were caught Thursday night in "a military area northeast of Prague which was clearly marked out of bounds."

Dressed Turkeys 80 Cents Pound On Local Market

A sudden touch of winter with seven inches of snow and near zero temperatures put a quietous on the local farmers' market today with the outside market being all but deserted.

Dressed turkey put in its initial pre-Christmas appearance with drawn tom birds selling at 75c per lb with hens being quoted at 80c per lb. Undrawn turkeys were available at from 35c to 70c per lb.

Geese were also offered at 65c per lb; capon chickens were quoted at 60c and mature birds at 50c per lb.

Eggs dropped off slightly in price from last week with firsts selling at 50c; mediums at 48c and pullets at 45c per dozen.

The principal offering on the outside market was Christmas trees with farmers and hucksters quoting trees at from 75c up to $2.50 each.

A few apple vendors quoted supplies at regular prices ranging from 50c per basket for McIntosh and Spies and up to 60 for top grade Delicious and Talman Sweets.

Mudcats sold at 35c per lb or three pounds for $1.

Slippery Roads Direct Cause Of Minor Crashes

Slippery street conditions caused by yesterday's snowfall were the direct cause of a number of minor motor accidents in the city Friday afternoon and last evening.

However, none of the mishaps was of a serious nature and there were no injuries reported.

Provincial police reported no accidents other than of a minor nature.

In the city a Quebec motorist, Joseph DePauw, had some grief when his car skidded on Dundas Street and he rammed into the rear of a truck which slowed down to make a right hand turn. Clarence Woods was eastbound on Dundas when he slowed to turn onto Newberry Street, DePauw applied his brakes but his car skidded into rear of the truck causing roughly $300 damage to the front of his vehicle.

The heavy snow resulted in difficulty for heavy transports to negotiate Murney Hill on Bridge Street, West, and more than one transport ran into difficulty.

One west-bound truck owned by Smith's Transport and driven by Gordon Webb of Toronto, became stalled on the hill and jackknifed as it slid back. The rear of the loaded trailer mounted the sidewalk, smashed the sidewalk railing protecting the south sidewalk with the rear wheels dropping over the walk. A tow truck worked for two hours to get the transport on its way.

Four or five minor accidents occurred these resulting in little more than fender dents.

Fire Chief Warns Of Fire Hazards Caused by Trees

With Christmas only a little more than a week away and more and more Christmas trees being set up in living rooms each day, Fire Chief Gerald Vance today reminded householders of the fire hazard caused by trees and decorations.

He urged that inflammable materials be kept away from the trees and extreme caution be exercised to see that tree lighting wiring and fixtures were in good condition.

As protection against fire Chief Vance said the fire department would send a fireman to Christmas tree concerts where children were attending.

Debasing National Currency Ottawa's Policy, Robb Says; Slams Businessmen's Apathy

"Inflation is a destroyer," said Malcolm Robb, Belleville lawyer, in addressing the Sales and Advertising Club Friday night.

"It matters little whether you see it as a statistic, as a housewife at the grocery store, as a municipal official who finds that there must be lesser facilities, or as a widow or retired person where savings are substantially wiped out! Inflation is a destroyer."

Mr. Robb stated that we in this country, even before the impact of Korea had created defence spending, were headed, and still are headed, on precisely the same course as a business man headed for bankruptcy.

"When you read at the conclusion of a year that the cost of living index has moved up so many points," Mr. Robb continued, "what that means in effect is that the year has been a losing one and you are reaching into the accumulated savings of annuitants, bondholders, widows, orphans, and persons with money invested in insurance, and robbing them of a portion of their savings to make good the books and embark on another year of improvidence."

Too Much Money

"You can over-simplify the problem of inflation," the speaker said. "However, inflation is caused by too much money chasing too few goods."

Mr. Robb suggested that two ways in which the number of dollars in circulation varies was by the extension or witholding of credits and by the injection into the country of cold cash. "Both these variables," he said, "are largely within the control of your federal government."

A comparison of this country's production figures during the last five years was used by the speaker to illustrate many of the aforementioned points.

"Make no mistake about it," Mr. Robb said, "the settled policy of your government is to hand out cold cash without production." He mentioned the baby bonus, government grants to British Columbia and Nova Scotia apple growers, the wheat contracts and the old age pension without means test as outstanding examples of the distribution of economic gold bricks.

"With no increase of production per capita in industry" he said, "your population is working less and less, and all at a time when the government has been told by every unbiased economist in the country that to curb inflation production must be increased and governmental spending must be lessened."

Businessmen To Blame

The speaker placed the responsibility for this present situation directly on the shoulders of businessmen. He stated that they had not attended to their business of being citizens of this democracy for 25 years, and the political health of this country is shocking.

"The policy in Ottawa is to debauch the currency", he said, "and we, by our apathy, are applauding this policy. The communists, on the teaching of Lenin, are proceeding on the policy that the surest way to overthrow a government is to debauch that country's currency", he added, "and they are supporting these government measures strongly."

Mr. Robb cited the irresponsibility abroad amongst workers and businessmen as being little short of terrifying. "The businessman who gives his employees the five-day week pay increases here and fringe benefits there, all because he knows he can pass it on to the public by lifting the telephone and talking to members of his trade association or cartel is contributing just as readily to the destruction of the free enterprise of this country as any labor leader," Mr. Robb added.

The speaker stated that this was no time for apathy, lethargy or neglect, but a time for patriotism, action because of love of country.

Make No Apology

"I make no apology for exhorting you to patriotism," Mr. Robb said, "because that is precisely what we need in this country today."

In closing, Mr. Robb quoted the Gettysburg address of Abraham Lincoln as being applicable to our situation.

A discussion followed in which Mr. Robb clarified points for members of the club.

Ed Littlejohn, chairman of plans and projects, told the club that a film entitled "The Bechter Story" would be shown at their next meeting.

Twenty new members introduced themselves to the club, with Earl Morgan winning a prize for the best introduction.

Several booster prizes were drawn for with Charles Lundy, Harold Myers, Bill Jardine, Clive Ryan and Larry Murphy being the winners.

City and District Blanketed With Seven Inches of Snow

A driving snowstorm blizzarding in from the northwest blanketed the city and district in a seven-inch mantle of fluffy snow last night.

The weatherman's Christmas touch that covered practically all the province, caused dangerous driving hazards that reduced traffic to a minimum both in the city and on the main highways.

A number of minor accidents occurred in the city resulting in mostly fender damage to cars and vehicles that slued in the slippery snow-blown streets. No serious accidents were reported on the highways leading to and from the city.

Driven by a strong wind the snow drifted to depths of two feet in some sections of the city although the filtration plant reported an on-the-level fall of seven inches. Driveways were piled high with snow in some cases preventing residents from driving downtown to shop or work.

Travellers and transports alike were slowed down to a near "walk" last night as wind-driven snow sheets reduced visibility to a near-stop level.

Public Works Department trucks and men were out early in an effort to clear the streets and main thoroughfares. Bus routes, it is reported, were cleared the first thing. House holders resorted to snow-shovels and other snow-clearing paraphernalia for the first time this season.

The weather man is following up the Christmas touch with some real winter weather. He predicts the mercury will drop to ten below zero tonight with little respite from the icy atmosphere tomorrow.

Late reports state that a number of cars and trucks were "ditched" last night at the height of the storm. One party of hockey fans slipped off the highway three times en route from Picton. The Peterborough Hockey Club was delayed an hour during its trip to Kingston to fill an engagement.

EARLY MARVEL

Holland's first train in 1839 travelled from Amsterdam to Haarlem, a distance of 11 miles, in 35 minutes.

Falls Through Ice Child Narrowly Escapes Death,

Frankford—Little Herbie MacEachren, three-year-old son of Rev. and Mrs. Roy MacEachren of Frankford narrowly escaped death Friday morning, as he fell through the ice on the mill pond. Herbie had been playing with Richard Patrick, a lad slightly older than himself, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gage. The two kiddies wandered to the edge of the pond, nearby, and attempted to walk on the ice. Herbie got too far from shore, and fell through the thin ice.

Richard Patrick ran to try and attract someone's attention, but couldn't seem to make anyone understand at first. Miss Gloria Easton, a ten-year-old neighbor girl sensed that something was wrong, and finally found out what had happened. She quickly called Harry Rogers, a service station operator near the pond, and he ran to the scene. Postmaster Earl Rogers, nephew of Harry, hurried to his aid, and together they were successful in getting little Herbie out of the water. He had turned blue in color, and they were certain he was dead. They carried him into the post office, and applied artificial respiration for almost half an hour, until he finally responded.

Dr. McMullen arrived on the scene during the resuscitation, and gave the boy a needle. Herbie revived a few moments later, and was taken to his home.

Inquiry revealed that the two little boys had been taken out onto the ice during a freeze-up a few weeks ago by older boys and had decided to try it again on their own this time. This incident seems to be repeated each year, as someone is always falling through the ice before it is solid enough to become the skating centre for the young folks of the town.

Obituary

MRS. EMMA J. KETCHESON

Following a long period of ill-health, Mrs. Emma Jane Ketcheson, wife of the late Samuel Hicks Ketcheson, of Thomasburg, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William E. Robinson, 1103 Colborne Crescent, Calgary, Alta., last Thursday, December 6th., in her 84th year. The late Mrs. Ketcheson, will be remembered by many friends in Tweed, as she resided with her son, Mr. W. L. Ketcheson and Mrs. Ketcheson, for several years early in 1930, after she had spent some time with her sons, George and Harvey, in London, England.

A daughter of the late Harvey Clare and Eliza Moon, the deceased was born at Moira, and following her marriage the couple had resided in the Thomasburg district. Mr. Ketcheson passed away in 1908 and four years later, his widow moved to Belleville, where she resided for a short time. She loved to travel and had lived in England, Calgary and Tweed, where she made many friends. A member of the United Church, she was a member of the W.M.S. and other church organizations, in which she took an active interest until ill-health prevented her from engaging in outside activities.

Surviving are two sons and a daughter, W. Laurison Ketcheson, Tweed; George Ketcheson, London, England; and Mrs. W. E. Robinson, Calgary. Another son, Harvey C. Ketcheson, of Peterborough, England, passed away a few weeks ago.

The funeral was held from the home of her daughter in Calgary, on Saturday, December 8th., with interment in Calgary cemetery.

ISAIAH GREEN

Isaiah Green, a resident of this city for the past 15 years died at the home of his son, 101 Pinnacle Street, late Friday night. He was in his usual good health throughout the day but suffered a heart attack and died suddenly.

He was born in Shannonville, 68 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Green and previous to moving to Belleville 15 years ago resided in Picton. He was a member of the Anglican Church and surviving are two daughters, Mrs. D. (Dorothy) Hunt of Toronto, Mrs. J. (Audrey) Jones of Toronto, four sons, David, Everett, William and Andrew, all of the city.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

LATE JOHN ROBERT CUMMINGS

The funeral of the late John Robert Cummings was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Friday afternoon. The service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. S. E. Larman, assisted by Archdeacon Arthur Smith, while Mr. Larman conducted the last rites at Grafton Cemetery.

The bearers were Harry Sager, Albert Monck, Harold Ingram, Wilbur Sharpe, Ray Chapelle, Frank Douglas.

Rev. A.E. Baker and Family Of Stirling Receive 15th Card From Queen Mother Mary

Fifteen years ago at Sandringham House in London, England, the Rev. A. E. Baker, Mrs. Baker and their two children Earl and Shirley of Stirling, were presented to Her Majesty, Queen Mary, mother of King George VI.

The presentation took place at a reception held for Canadians then visiting Britain following the pilgrimage to the Vimy Ridge War Memorial by Canadian war veterans and others.

Since that day, a memorable one in the lives of the Baker family, it has been in receipt each Christmas of the personal Yuletide greetings card of the Queen Mother.

The other day, Mr. Baker received the 15th series of cards from her Majesty, one to himself and Mrs. Baker, and two to the children.

The cards were signed personally by Her Majesty and are characteristic of the exquisite taste of the King's mother. Signed with a firm stroke of the pen, the signatures do not betray the royal age. They follow the simple greeting "To Shirley, to Earl" etc

The Queen Mother's personal card depicts a typical English garden in summer time. A perfect work of art, its soft coloring and beautiful scenic features makes it a thing of rare beauty.

The other cards to Shirley and Earl depict London scenes, Trafalgar Square and the Mansion House, done in beautiful but simple color effects.

The Baker children have "grown up" since that day in 1936. Earl graduated in medicine last year and is at present an intern at Vancouver General Hospital, Vancouver, Shirley is in her final year in medicine at the University of Toronto, and on the staff of the Woman's College Hospital. She is a member of the Alpha Omega Alpha Society and an associate of the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto.

Trenton's Industrial Survey Denounced by Couch, Ryan; Burtt: 'Sorry I Voted for It'

Trenton—(Special)—Main topic of discussion at the Trenton council meeting last night centred around a copy of the Dominion Management Associates survey presented for examination and correction before publication.

The mayor and each councillor inspected the soft-covered mimeographed survey. It was decided to meet the management associates president, Johannes Alasco, and ask him a lot of questions. Council agreed that the meeting could not be arranged until after the first of the year.

Commenting on the survey, which was authorized at an expenditure of $2,000 Councillor Victor J. Ryan, who was defeated after 12 years of service last Monday, said: "I wouldn't give you $2 for it." Mayor Kenneth J. Couch remarked: "You might better have a department store catalogue." Mr. Couch was against employing the survey when it was first introduced in council last summer. Former chairman of finance Ryan added: "I voted against it (meaning the survey) and that is my stand."

Councillor-elect Ross Burtt, who was acting mayor at the time the survey expenditure was adopted said: "I'm awfully sorry I voted for it. At the time I thought I was doing something good for the town."

Mayor Couch observed: "They've got us over a barrel in one respect. He (meaning the management associates president) now claims that we held up his crew." Mr. Couch was referring to a letter received by Town Clerk O. Larry from President Alasco listing five dates that Dominion Management personnel were registered in hotels in Trenton during the period the survey was supposed to be conducted.

Earlier, Mr. Larry had estimated that the management associates survey men had not spent more than 36 hours in town gathering information. The firm has accused Mr. Larry of holding up the survey, claiming lack of co-operation.

IN MEMORIAM

EVANS. — In loving memory of wife and mother, Nellie Evans, who passed away, December 16, 1950.
One year has passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away.
God took her home, it was His will,
Within our hearts she liveth still.
—Wesley and Ernest. D15

EVANS. — In loving memory of Mrs. Nellie Evans, who passed away on December 16th, 1950.
Those whom we love go out of sight
But never out of mind.
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.

Students Enliven Portuguese City

(Article 48)

Coimbra, Portugal — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — There is a saying throughout Portugal that, "In Lisbon they go for a walk, in Porto they work, and in Coimbra they study." Judging from the number of students I have seen walking about the streets that is no understatement as far as Coimbra is concerned. It is estimated that there are about 10,000 students at present here which is quite a sizeable proportion of the total population of the city. In fact, when all the students leave for the summer the place looks quite deserted.

The city itself has a long history, being founded by the Celts, and at one time was the capital of Portugal. It was originally built on the side of a rather steep hill, mainly because it was easier to protect. This section, which today is called Old Coimbra, is a mass of narrow winding streets, many of which are inaccessible except by foot. One of these streets is known as "Shoemakers Row" since for about 100 yards there are nothing but shoe stores.

Beautiful Avenues

New Coimbra is built on several adjoining hills, and contains some very beautiful parks as well as one of the most beautiful avenues I have seen in all Europe. In one of these parks there were flower beds representing the Portuguese flag, the coat of arms of the city, the crest of the university, as well as a calendar. This may surprise you but every morning the exact date is inserted in a flower bed set out for that purpose.

One of the first things noticeable is that all the streets are paved with cobblestones, and that only the main streets have sidewalks, and narrow ones at that. Many of the Portuguese women like to wear shoes with very high heels, which must make it quite difficult to walk in such streets. But then, most of the women of the lower classes go about without any shoes at all, which solves the problem to some extent.

The Mondego, a river with many legends to its credit, flows through the city, and at this time of year, is little more than a stream. Most of the sandy river bed is above water, a fact which is quite important to many women of the city. For as in Africa, they go to the river to do their washing. Every day you will see hundreds carrying a large bundle of washing on their heads. They wade out a little way into the water, find a rock on which to beat the clothes if necessary, and set to work. When they are finished, they spread everything out on the sand to dry, and after having appointed someone to watch it, they relax for a while. When it is dry, it is rolled up into a bundle again, they put it on their head, and go home with it, on the way passing stores which have the latest models of American washing machines in the window. Two civilizations all rolled up together in a single city!

Word of Caution

For those who have received a B.A. degree and would like to become a Ph.D. in one stroke, you have only to come to Coimbra. Here, with such a degree, you can call yourself Dr. So and So, if you wish, and no questions asked. One word of caution, however. In signing your name, use only the short form "Dr." Those who actually have received the degree of Ph.D. use the long form "Doutor." You had better hurry up if you want to take advantage of this, for I have the suspicion that the porters at the railway station are going to spoil it all for us. They have taken to addressing anybody who looks as if he might have a degree as "senhour doutor," and if everybody else starts doing it, too, well, don't bother coming.

Another thing. If you see the postman carrying a shopping bag he isn't going to the corner grocery store. That's what he carries the mail in.

It seems a common occurrence for animals to walk down the streets of Coimbra. Several times I have seen a pig being led down the main street. To hurry the pig along they sometimes rattle a box of beans in front of him, and this seems to do the trick. Just recently I found myself surrounded by a flock of sheep. It seems they were being herded along the street, and when the street car approached, the shepherd drove them out of the way onto the sidewalk. Also just today a flock of goats passed the house, and I expect any day to see a herd of cattle.

University Main Feature

Although there are many schools scattered throughout the city, the pride and joy of the whole community is the university. Very appropriately it is situated at the top of the hill and overlooks the whole city. This location it has occupied since 1537, although it was founded in 1290. It is without a doubt one of the most famous in Europe, rivalling such others as Oxford, the Sorbonne, Bologna or Basle.

The students make life in this city rather interesting at times, partly because of the treatment that the "caloiro" or freshman has to undergo when he arrives at the university. In fact, he leads a life of misery. He may be ordered by one of the senior students to do things he never dreamed of, such as declaring his love to a freshette, or to any other girl who might be passing by; he may be ordered to deliver a speech on "The Influence of Codfish on Telephone Wires," to dance the conga in the middle of the street, to go on errands with his coat turned inside out, or to drain a glass of water with a match, drop by drop (time limit 10 minutes.)

If a caloiro refuses to do what he is told he is tried in a "republica" a house where students live. The tribunal is composed af three seniors, with a student of law as president. The witness for the prosecution is the student whom the caloiro disobeyed. The defence is carried on by another caloiro, a very critical situation because the better he defends the caloiro on the dock (a night pot) the more liable he is to suffer with the accused, who is always found guilty. The sentence is an irregular haircut.

Other Indignities

The caloiros risk having their hair cut off also if they are caught outdoors after 6 p.m. or after 7 p.m, in the summer, except when permission is given. To make sure they obey, groups of students wearing their full academic dress, are formed, and, armed with scissors and a wooden spoon, with which they beat offenders over the finger nails, they go out through the city. Anyone caught suffers the consequences unless he has a special reason. The caloiro showing me around was deemed to have a good enough reason and so got off.

In May of every year, the annual celebrations take place and the whole city is in an uproar. The students hang every sort of household article from the windows, including wash basins, night pots, chairs. After midnight when everyone is in bed, bands of students armed with a banjo and a guitar, go about the city, singing the fados, the traditional songs of central Portugal. These are actually very nice to hear, but hardly at that hour. Students who own cars decorate them in all sorts of ways, and drive about the city making as much noise as possible.

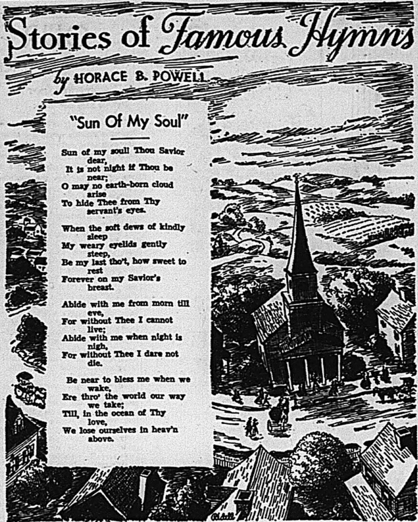
At this time of the year the medical students have to wear black suits and ties with white shirts, and wrap a black blanket about themselves, all of which gives them a rather sombre appearance. However, they are a cheerful lot, and so we promptly called them "The friendlly undertakers."

Famous Library

At the university itself there is a library famous throughout the world for its collections of valuable books as well as for its ornamental workings on the ceilings. In the main building there is a room set aside for each faculty, with all the chairs upholstered in the color of the faculty: dark blue for Art, yellow for Medicine, red for Law; light blue for Science and purple for Pharmacy.

Convocation is a very colorful ceremony. So impressive is its mediaeval pageantry that when General Franco was recently presented with an honorary degree, from all reports he looked like a scared rabbit. No wonder. The recipient is escorted in by guards armed with huge battle axes, and the actual ceremony, filled as it is with speeches in Latin, and much moving about, is enough to fill anyone with awe.

However, the university is gradually losing its mediaeval aspect, if building has anything to do with it, for the main library and the Arts buildings, just recently completed, are the most modern I have seen in Europe. In spite of this trend, the old bell-tower, which is the symbol of the university, will probably always remain, even if they have to prop it up with poles. Coimbra just wouldn't be Coimbra without it.



Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

"Sun Of My Soul"

Sun of my soul! Thou Savior dear,
It is not night if Thou be near;
O may no earth-born cloud arise
To hide Thee from Thy servant's eyes.

When the soft dews of kindly sleep
My weary eyelids gently steep,
Be my last tho't, how sweet to rest
Forever on my Savior's breast.

Abide with me from morn till eve,
For without Thee I cannot live;
Abide with me when night is nigh,
For without Thee I dare not die.

Be near to bless me when we wake,
Ere thro' the world our way we take;
Till, in the ocean of Thy love,
We lose ourselves in heav'n above.

John Keble, distinguished English preacher - poet, gave the world one of its most beautiful and treasured religious lyrics in a poem never intended for a hymn.

"The Sun That Ne'er Goes Down" — more popularly known by the opening line, "Sun of My Soul," Thou Savior Dear" — first appeared as part of a longer poem in "The Christian Year," published in 1827 by Keble and famous ever since as one of the outstanding devotional books of all time.

Keble, the son of an English vicar, was born in Cain, St. Aldwyn, in 1792. At 15, he entered Oxford University where he made a brilliant record. He was graduated in 1810 and five years later had won his ordination as a preacher. There were some tempting offers from parishes which bid against one another for the services of the brilliant young clergyman but John rejected them all and went home to Fairford to assist his father in a small rural parish.

The young preacher was only 35 when "The Christian Year" was published. He was so extremely modest that, if he had had his way, this remarkable volume of poems might never have been given to posterity. It was only after considerable coaxing on the part of his father and his friends that he consented to publication and even then he gave orders that his name should not appear in connection with the work.

"The Christian Year," therefore, was published anonymously as a companion to the "Book of Common Prayer." It had a tremendous reception and before Keble died it had gone through nearly 100 editions. The fame which came to him through the publication of "The Christian Year" brought Keble a professorship at Oxford. But his real life work was carried on in the little hamlet to which he had consecrated his life as a young preacher and in which, for more than 30 years, he labored devotedly with his wife.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By
WINIFRED E. WILSON

WARBLERS IN WINTER

No birds give more pleasure to watchers than the jewel-like warblers. When they leave Canada, as most do in early autum, where do they go?

By this date, nearly all have reached their destination, though both their speed and the distance they travel varies considerably. Many rush along, accomplishing hundreds of miles in a few weeks; some, as black-and-white warblers, take their time. From tree-limit, right across the Dominion from northern Yukon to Newfoundland, come some of the yellow warblers, so familiar even to city dwellers. The multitude gradually getting closer together as they fly south, all squeeze through narrow Panama, then spread out again, until they settle nearly half way down the west coast of South America and more than half way across that continent.

Would that we might follow, even as far as Central America, for there the greatest number of warblers are concentrated, many staying for the winter, but many continuing south. Starting our trip shortly after mid-December, from any point in settled Canada between Manitoba and the Atlantic, we would soon come upon Myrtle warblers. If they have discovered a locality with their favorite bayberries, some will linger for weeks, others remain until spring. Most migrate to the southern states. Ovenbirds will be gathered in Florida, south Louisiana and the tropics; black-throated greens in Mexico and Central America. Beautiful little Parulas, which left us months ago, are holidaying in Florida and the tropics. We might overtake some yellow-throats before they reach Central America, where Nashville, magnolia, chestnut-sided, Canada and Wilson's are all cowded.

HERE TODAY, GONE TOMORROW

W. L. Clark, the vice-president of the Windsor Daily Star, who also writes a daily column for that newspaper, wonders why Canada should continue spending large sums of money in bringing in immigrants from Europe when large numbers of the immigrants come to Canada only because they know they can enter the United States easily through the tunnel under the Detroit River. Here is what Mr. Clark has to say about this matter:

"Windsor is getting a lot of newcomers from Europe, who come here bound for Detroit. There have been men in Canada only a week, who have landed in Windsor with an eye on Detroit. Unable to enter the United States via the front door, they have immigrated to Canada intending to enter the United States via the Windsor back door.

"This is a problem of immigration that should command some intense examination by the authorities in Ottawa. These newcomers are supposed to undertake to do farm or other work for a specified time in Canada. But once in this country they forget their obligations, don't want to farm, don't want to work in the bush, don't want to do much of anything except get across that river fast.

"It is costing Canada quite a bit of money to bring people from Europe to this Dominion. If Canadians are simply financing persons who have no interest in Canada, other than using it as a back door to the United States, then something should be done to rectify that condition."

MORE BANKRUPTCIES

The number of business failures in Canada between November 1 and December 6, 1951, according to Dun and Bradstreet's Monthly Review, was 112. During the corresponding period of last year, the number was 87.

COCKTAIL PARTIES

A curse of modern social custom is that of cocktail parties. Though many attend them we have found relatively few who actually like them.

Usually they are held in late afternoon or early evening when one should be home enjoying supper or relaxing after it. So instead one sips a cocktail of uncertain ingredients and doubtful taste, nibbles on hors d'oeuvres or other unsatisfying tidbits, engages in inconsequential chatter with people with whom one has all too often nothing in common.

The cocktail party ordinarily ends when it is too soon to go home and too late to go anywhere else. One has had enough to eat to spoil a good meal, yet not enough to keep from wanting a meal. Then usually someone has the bright idea of inviting you somewhere you don't want to go.

We don't know when or where cocktails were originated and care less, except for regret they ever were invented. There are so many varieties a man never knows what he's drinking and all too probably is thinking of some drink he would like better.

Cocktail parties do fill a social function. They enable a hostess to repay hospitality by inviting a large number of guests and getting it done with all at once, and with a minimum of bother. But they seem, to us at least, an artificial, frothy sort of entertainment, lacking the substance of being invited out for a good meal and an evening of conversation with companionable people.

We were tempted to let off steam on this subject when we read of a cocktail contest put on by the Bartenders' Guild, in London, England. The Guild has 7,000 registered cocktail recipes, and was proud to be able to add 200 more to the list.

We aren't interested in the extra 200. There already were 6,999 too many to suit us. If there were only one, at least a man might know what it contained and, if he didn't like it, could say so. — (Windsor Daily Star.)

RATS INSIDE ALBERTA

Alberta can no longer boast, with strict accuracy, that it is the only rat-free area in North America.

The discovery last month of a well-established colony on a farm in the Altario district, four miles inside the Alberta - Saskatchewan boundary, shows that the rats are with us, at last, and that they are almost surely here to stay.

Nevertheless, Alberta can still boast, with strict accuracy, that it has fewer rats than any other area on this continent, and that its rat population is still of negligible proportions. The effort now should be to make absolutely sure it stays that way. — (Calgary Herald.)

THE HUMBLER VICTORIES

I wonder how it came about
That riches are the stamp of worth,
And strength by fame is singled out,
Instead of friendliness and mirth?

Why should the winners get the praise,
Because a certain line they crossed,
When better men in many ways
Have fairly played the game and lost?

Success and failure? Shams are they Merely by gains and losses scored,
For many a gentler spirit may
With rare devotion serve the Lord.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 15th., 1931.

One and a half inches of snow fell here yesterday; this is the largest snow fall here this season.

The Belleville unemployment relief committee is urgently in need of warm clothing and donations of clothing of any kind, also footwear will be thankfully received.

Mr. Edward Day, Everett Street, has returned home after visiting relatives in Pontiac, Mich.

The Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of St. Thomas' Church, was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club yesterday.

The Hon. Nelson Parliament is visiting his father in Ameliasburg.

Mr. D. A. Thrasher of this city has been awarded a prize in barley at the International Grain and Hay Show which was held in Chicago. Mr. Thrasher has received a letter from the Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, in which he says: "Your work and award are a great credit to the province and I wish to offer you my congratulations."

30 YEARS AGO

December 15th., 1921.

The Rev. F. E. Malott, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, Peterborough, has accepted a call to become pastor of Bridge Street Church in this city. He will remain in Peterborough until July 1st next.

The Fire Insurance Underwriters have reduced the rate in Belleville by ten cents per hundred.

Mr. J. W. Booth of this city spent yesterday in Peterborough.

Mr. Charles Dalrymple is spending a few days in Montreal.

St. Agnes School for girls has closed for Christmas vacation and the pupils have left for their homes.

40 YEARS AGO

December 15th., 1911.

Jack Roblin has been engaged by the city to repair the shafts and hands on the east dial of the city clock, the cost not to exceed $20.

The council has decided to light the city clock tower with electricity. The cost of wiring will be $45.

At a meeting of Camp Rob Roy, Sons of Scotland, the following officers were elected: Chief, William McIntosh; Chieftain, J. R. Massie; Chaplain, Rev. A. S. Kerr; Recording Secretary, Thomas Bowie; Treasurer, R. Givins; Marshal, MacRae; Standard Bearers, I. Grant and William McDonald; Senior Guard, Donald Grant; Junior Guard, William Grant; Physician, Dr. A. E. MacColl; Trustees, Donald McLean, J. K. McCargar and William Clazie; Pipe Major, A. Johnstone; Bard, Jeter Johnson.

Mr. W. H. Polly of Trenton has been appointed collector of customs for that port of entry.

50 YEARS AGO

December 15th., 1901.

Mr. W. R. Pretty, who at one time was an operator in the Montreal telegraph office here, is now manager of a banking house in Philadelphia, Pa. Another Belleville boy, Mr. Robinson, who was also an operator in the same office here at one time, is now manager of a large life insurance company in the State of Vermont.

Mr. R. Ross, B.S.A., of Gilead, has left for Amherst, N.S., where he will assume a position on the staff of the paper named the Maritime Farmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rogers, Queen Street, are visiting friends in Buffalo, N.Y.

Mrs. James Parker of Jackson, Mich., is visiting her sister, Mrs. George Brough, Everett Street.

Receding Glacier May Give Canada North B.C. Port

Stewart, B.C. (CP)—Changing nature may some day give British Columbia a salt-water port above the 56th parallel of latitude.

Stewart now is Canada's most northerly Pacific port. It lies on the Alaska boundary at the head of Portland Canal, some 500 miles north of Vancouver and 120 miles north of Prince Rupert.

When the Canada-Alaska boundary was fixed more than 50 years ago, it seemed Canada would never have access to salt water north of here.

Some 200 miles north of here, the Grand Pacific glacier at that time filled the entire valley of the Tarr. But the glacier began to recede.

In the 1920s, a far-north detachment of the provincial police found that at the head of Tarr Inlet a strip of flat land half a mile long and 500 feet wide bordered a deep-water harbor more than half a mile inside the Canadian boundary.

An engineer was sent north and he reported it would be possible to build piers to take large ships because of the steep slant of the inlet bottom close to shore.

The inlet is free of ice the year round and the glacier no longer "calfs"; that is, pieces don't split off the glacier to become icebergs.

However, it will probably be a long time before the bared shore is used as a port, if ever. Glaciers and mountains wall in the shorefron and until the ice has receded far enough to open a way through the ranges to the interior, no use can be made of it.

But if far-north British Columbia experiences a mining or lumber boom, or both—the thousands of square miles above latitude 56 have hardly been fully explored—a harbor might become a necessary adjunct. Harbors now are being built along the B.C. coast in spots only slightly less inaccessible than Tarr Inlet.

Anyway, theoretically at least, a treaty has been set at naught by nature's workings.

Say Young Folk Lack Spirit of Adventure

Hull, England. (CP)—A curious lack of the spirit of adventure among modern-day young business men and women has a committee of Hull executives worried.

The executives have about £30,000 in grants to spend on young students who want to go abroad to study foreign trade and languages.

The committee executes a trust fund endowed about 30 years ago by Sir Henry Samman, a former wealthy Hull shipowner. The hitch is that fewer than 200 students have applied for the grant in these 30 years.

Last year, only four students went abroad under the scheme and Leslie Downes, chairman of the trust committee has appealed to the local Chamber of Commerce for more applicants.

"Sir Henry established the fund with the object of increasing trade relations with Russia," said Downes. "But when the iron curtain fell it became impossible to send anyone to Russia to study business or anything else."

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

SCATTERED SHOT

Neither here nor there:

* * *

Our community was cut off from the outside world the other day with gales and rough seas. It's surprising how such emergencies are enjoyed by people. There's a new lift to life when the predictable becomes the unpredictable.

It's true of disasters, too. The greatness of the human spirit rarely shows through except when things are in an awful mess.

I remember a classic case in the Fraser Valley floods a few years ago of a man who performed heroic rescue missions without sleep for 48 hours.

One of the man's neighbors told me about him. "I'll never understand it," he said, "ordinarily the guy wouldn't cross the street to help you change a tire". . . Have you a favorite article of clothing that you'd hate to lose? Just wondered because I have a grey wool turtleneck sweater that's about ready for the ash heap, but I can't bring myself to the final paring.

* * *

A line I like in a book by Evelyn Waugh: "All over England people were waking up, queasy and despondent," . . . I expect you know that ten of Waugh's books are available in the Penguin series, a pretty marvellous way to spend these long winter nights. . . Do you dream in technicolor? A survey of 3000 dreams made up by the psychology department at Western Reserve University showed that only 29 percent of the dreams were in color and that more women reported tinted dreams than men. A friend of mine has all his dreams in color and also claims to have "continued" dreams in which he picks up a new sequence of a plot every night like chapters in a soap opera. . . A guy I'd like to see on the rack is the bright boy who manufactures toy bagpipes for little people. . .The Mario Lanza album of Christmas carols shouldn't happen to a dog.

* * *

The news story I'm looking for is an account of somebody who didn't get a perfect cribbage hand . . . Fellow asked me the other night how paper is made and I'm ashamed to admit I didn't have the faintest idea although I've worked with the stuff for years. I believe they boil the logs and then iron out the goo. . . Come to think of it, I'm a complete blank about how most things are made. Silk, for instance. How do they get all those little worms to do that? Or glass, I'd surely like to know how they make glass. . . . Typographical errors are always good sport except when they're in your own copy. There was a funny one in the Orillia Packet and Times which told how the bride and goon left on their honeymoon trip. The North Shore Press had an interesting ad in its swap column the other day: "One unworn white bride's dress for a baby buggy". . . A swell Christmas present for a boy or girl in their early teens is "Birds of Canada" and a note-book to record when birds are sighted and identified.

* * *

The panel on Court of Opinion, a lively CBC show, dealt with practical jokes the other night. Everyone agreed that such gags are usually most unfunny since, to be successful, they require a victim. Still, there have been some that were funny without hurting anyone. There was the fellow, for instance, who bought a can of fruit each day to supplement his lunch of sandwiches. The gang at the office arranged a cunning plot with the store where the victim made his purchase. The shopkeeper switched labels on the cans so that when the poor fellow brought back peaches he might find beans. Or a tin of pineapple would turn out to be full of sardines. The cherries became meat balls, the plums might be chow mein. When the victim let this be known the office staff suggested he write about it to Ripley's Believe It or Not". Why, he might even make a little money from his experience. So the fellow wrote a letter to Ripley right away, took it down to the mail box and then went to the store to buy a can of pears for his lunch. Got back to the office, opened up the pears, found nothing inside the can but a small piece of paper. On it was writen, "I don't believe a word of it. Signed, Robert Ripley."

* * *

Why don't we have Japanese oranges the rest of the year?. . . You couldn't find anything more delightful than the love letters of Sarah Bernhardt to Victorien Sardou. My, they knew how to do it through the mails in those days! "Your words are my food, my breath, my wine," she wrote in one letter, "Paris is a morgue without you: before I knew you, it was Paris and I thought it heaven; but now it is a vast desert of desolution and loneliness. It is like the face of a clock, bereft of its hands." The telephone and the telegraph killed that kind of writing. And it was Byron who wrote, "The earth has nothing like a she epistle". . . Been reading a report on the harm caused by cigarettes, enough to cut me down by one or two a day. The tests show that the smart smoker switches brands frequently to get different types of tobacco. The report also lists various harmful soft drinks including one with a sugar-content of dangerous proportions. The consumer research magazines tell a lot different story than the advertising men's dreams. . . Did you hear about the kid who came home from Sunday School with a pocket of change and explained "They've got bowls of it there."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A DOCTRINE TO CHERISH

No one doubts as he listens to a minister on Sunday that the man is telling the truth, but very often the people who sit in the pews find it hard to take the religious truth which the pulpit proclaims and apply it to the things of daily life.

One of the great truths of the Bible is that God's spirit is in the world at all times. This teaching is known as the doctrine of the Holy Spirit, and there are few church members who regard it as anything other than a theological abstraction. Yet if God is in the world as the Bible repeatedly declares, then that divine presence is the greatest factor with which life deals, and a consciousness of it is the most important thing for any man to have.

The doctrine of the Holy Spirit really means these three important things: first, that all things come from God; second, that everything is in His hands; third, that all things serve His purpose. That is the practical, colloquial, common-language explanation of the abstract theological doctrine of the Holy Spirit. If every day we make ourselves conscious of these three facts, we will know the power of that presence to cast out fear, to confer peace, and to support our hearts with power immeasurable.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

I DON'T GET IT

In the course of World War II a correspondent sent home a report of the great joy of a battalion of Yanks when, after weeks of "black bread," they arrived at a village where they could once more get white bread.

In the popular magazines recently a great corporation presented a picture of an American family at dinner—you can tell it is American, all right, because the family group comprises (a) one adult with the lined face and gray temples of the typical 50-year-old business man, (b) another adult who is fortyish and presumably feminine, and eke (c) offspring about ten, count him. At any rate this was the typical American family earlier in the century. With the growth of the cocktail evil and divorce in the past quarter of a century it is doubtful whether there is an average of one child to the family.

The handsome husband in the picture is pointing reproachfully at the only food on the table—a tray of black bread—and saying: "Nice thing to serve a guy after a hard day's work! Why . . . that's the kind of food they eat on the other side of the iron curtain." But this darling American husband got it right away. "Then I caught on to why Mabel did it. I'd complained because we'd had baked ham twice that week." The brute. Etc. You can take it from there ad lib, on the freedoms we enjoy in America and all that sort of thing, leading from this into a plug for your product which contributes so much to the American way of life.

To my mind this whole parable sounds phony. Did the corporation clear it first with the milling and baking industries? Ten to one answer to that is "Certainly." But ten to one the corporation did not clear it with the nutrition or health authorities. Shucks, they don't count—they declare no dividends, issue no stocks, have no influence in Washington.

A white collar worker who aspires to be identified with society must eat white bread because black bread is peasant food, says one reader who comments on the ad. Another observes that some people will sacrifice anything, health, sanity, ethics, human relations, for social status or acceptance in society. Still another wonders whether people who buy brown or dark bread instead of bleached white bread are "subversive."

To say the least, it would be better for health if more "black," brown, dark or natural color whole bread, or so-called Graham (flour less refined than white flour) bread were used in every American home instead of white bread.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Foot Itch

By following the advice in your pamphlet on Foot Itch I cleared up a fungus infection that has bothered me for years and cost me hundreds of dollars . . . (Mrs. R. T.)

Answer—Thank you. Any reader who provides stamped self-addressed envelope and asks for it in writing (clipping will not suffice) may have the pamphlet on Foot Itch.

Oh, So, You're Onna Diet?

I've been on a diet for five years and still weigh the same. Please send your pamphlet How To Lose Weight . . . (Mrs. J. R.)

Answer—If you have really restricted your diet your nutritional condition must be pretty bad by this time. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the pamphlet How to Lose Weight.

Keep Your Mind Off Your Bowels

Be good enough to state (a) the symptoms of mucous colitis, (b) what causes it, (c) the cure if any and (d) how serious it is or may become. (Concerned).

Answer—Come, now, Knucklehead, if you are serious about why hide behind the bushes? Send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for the booklet The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene. If you are not sure you know more than I do about the subject, study of the booklet may prove a boon to your mental and physical health.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A heavy snowfall, such as rejoices the heart of skiers and farmers, should smother to death billions of thumb-sized animals such as fieldmice, voles, shrews, which share the world with us in every woodlot, pasture and bush. But it does not. These creatures rejoice with the skier and farmer. For the snow affords them the most wonderful sanctuary from their enemies for long blessed weeks and months on end.

We should imagine that one of those massive snowfalls, weighing thousands of tons per acre, and feeling like lead on our snow shovels, would destroy all breathing life under it. But there is plenty of air to breathe, under the snow, in the spacious halls, chambers, corridors among the branches, debris, rocks and roots amidst which the busy world of miniature life, the mice and voles, have tunnelled their towns and cities in preparation for the snow.

A cottontail rabbit that makes its home in a brushpile is always sure to move about, during a blizzard, to keep open his escape hatch. An Indian told me that one time, when he himself was caught in a blizzard and sat down in a cedar swamp to wait it out, he watched a white snowshoe rabbit keeping itself on top of the snowfall. The snow fell and drifted until the hare was almost buried. It would then kick itself loose, nibble a few twigs, settle down again, to be almost buried and then kick itself to the surface again. Most animals, like foxes, which have dens, sleep unconcernedly through the worst and most prolonged blizzards, because they are easily able to dig themselves out of snow, however heavy. Snow that would smother us apparently has no such effect on bears slumbering in their rough and ready hideouts under the roots of upturned trees or under the thick low branches of a cedar or spruce. Everybody seems to know what to do about snow but us humans (saving, of course, skiers and farmers.)

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE LITTLE COURTESIES

To me the little courtesies of every day life grow bigger the longer I live. Their significance is striking when we find these courtesies where we least expect them. You see we look for them as a matter of course among those of our kind, but even there they are all too many times lacking, so that when we discover them otherwise, their importance is emphasized and we are made to feel our own sense of neglect.

The cheerful "Good Morning" and "Good Night," the "Thank You," the "Please," and the "I'm Sorry"—each weaves itself into a kindly fabric of character conduct. Courteous waiters in an eating place, clerks in a store, or salesmen on the road, all carry with them and their personalities, something that invites or repels, something that marks them for advancement or something that marks up a loss to those whom they serve.

In St. Louis there is a great repartment store that celebrates each year its "Courtesy Day"—and I am of the opinion that such a store can be depended upon to celebrate such a day every day of the year. I believe on that day every employee wears a white carnation! The further to emphasize the importance that this store places upon courtesy.

We never know when we are serving someone of great importance. That's why we should be courteous to all, no matter how humble that person might appear. I recall the instance of a wealthy New York man who visited a boys' camp, and the boys were so nice and kindly to him—he was a cripple by the way—that when he got back to his home he made out a check to build a new boat-house, and for some other things that the camp seemed to need, in appreciation for the courtesies rendered him on his visit.

Many a business has been built to great success with little more than courtesy as an initial capital. We return, again and again, to the store where we are treated with courtesy, and tell others to trade at such a place. Courtesy is contagious, too!

Refuse to Lift Curtain

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 14 (AP)—The communists refused today to lift the curtain of secrecy surrounding their prison camps, but said they would accept the rotation of 5,000 troops a month if the Allies accept other communist terms for enforcing a Korean truce.

The limited rotation plan was part of a new six-point communist proposal which made little impression on allied negotiators. An official U. N. communique made no mention of rotation and said the proposal showed "little significant departure from the unacceptable proposal of Dec. 3."

Five Unmarked Mayoralty Ballots Found on Street

Port Arthur, Dec. 14. (CP)—Five unmarked mayoralty ballots were found on the street here three days after civic elections. A civic investigation has begun.

H. H. Matthews, drygoods store manager, said he found the ballots Thursday on a downtown street.

Charles Cox defeated incumbent Fred Robinson by 113 votes in the Dec. 10 balloting for mayor.

Mayor Robinson Thursday asked council "not to rush into wild charges." He proposed that City Clerk Arthur Evans and a plainclothes policeman visit the printer who produced the original ballots to determine whether the ones found on the street were counterfeit.

Councillores aren't sure where the probe can go from there. Under election regulations it is not possible to open a ballot box and compare ballots.

Labor Minister Says Living Costs Have Hit Peak

Quebec, Dec. 15 — (CP)—Labor Minister Barrette told the Quebec legislature Friday he believes living costs have reached their peak.

Mr. Barrette made the statement while the Legislative Assembly discussed salaries paid to employees of his department.

The labor minister said that about the time the federal government spokesman expressed the view the cost-of-living index would not go higher than 170, a point since exceeded.

Mr. Barrette said his department now is reviewing salaries to compensate for the rise in the index.

RAWDON

Mt. Pleasant, Rawdon W.M.S. Elects Officers

Rawdon.—Mrs. Gordon Linn and daughter, Miss Ruth Linn, were hostesses for the December meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society on Wednesday. The seasonal Christmas decorations and lighted tree gave a special Christmas message to all.

There were 15 members and nine visitors which included Mrs. James Linn, one of the older women of the community and two children in attendance.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher gathered the mite-boxes and when opened they revealed over $20.

The president, Mrs. Ross Hoard, read a Christmas message. Mrs. Burton Sharpe played quiet music and all sang, "Saviour like a Shepherd Lead Us" and Rev. R. R. Bonsteel offered prayer.

The treasurer reported receipts were almost $180. till end of November.

At this point the pastor conducted the election of officers for 1952 with Mrs. Albert Sagar and Mrs. Eric Summers acting as scrutineers.

At the close the pastor paid tribute to the work of the W.M.S. speaking of the Dominion organization.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Roy Thrasher with Mrs. Frank Jeffs in charge of the program.

Some business was discussed. Mrs. Frank Jeffs read letters of thanks from Overseas Relief Committee and Miss Elsie Hunt, Reg.N., for bales received.

The president extended thanks to all for their year's work, after which she read a selection entitled "Christ is Born in Me Today", also reading a paper on "The Spirit of Christmas is a Cherished Gift."

A Canadian Friendship Carol service, arranged by Miss Winnifred Thomas, in the November Monthly, was carried out interspersed with several Christmas carols. Mrs. John Holmes lit a candle for the Jews of Canada; Mrs. George Weaver, for Canadian Indians; Mrs. Herbert Smith for French Canadians; Mrs. Roy Thrasher for those whose ancestors came from Europe. Mrs. P. MacMullen for all newcomers to Canada from war-devastated lands of Europe; Mrs. Kenneth Weaver for Christian Love.

Korean Christmas Carol

Somewhere in Korea, Dec. 15—(APP)—Lt.-Col. Darrell T. Rathbun of St. Petersburg, Fla., has written this version of "The Night Before Christmas":

A Korean Christmas carol

'Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the tent
Was the odor of fuel oil (the stove-pipe was bent).
The shoe paks were hung by the oil stove with care;
In the hope that they'd issue each man a new pair.

The weary GI's were sacked-out in their beds,
And visions of sugar-babes danced through their heads.
When up on the ridge-line there rose such a clatter
(A Chinese machine gun had started to chatter).

I rushed to my rifle and threw back the bolt.
The rest of my tent-mates awoke with a jolt.
Outside we could hear our platoon sergeant Kelly,
A hard little man with a little pot belly.

"Come Yancy, come Clancey, come Connors and Watson, Up Miller, up Shiller, up Baker and Dodson."
We tumbled outside in a swirl of confusion,
So cold that each man could have used a transfusion.

"Get up on that hill-top and silence that red.
"And don't you come back 'till you're sure that he's dead."
Then, putting his thumb up in front of his nose
Sergeant Kelly took leave of us shivering Joes.

But we all heard him say in a voice soft and light:
"Merry Christmas to all—may you live through the night."

Germans Eye Canuck Army Puckists But Brass Says Training is First

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Germany. Dec. 15 — (CP) — Canada's 27th Brigade is under siege by the Germans — for hockey players.

Half the hockey teams in Germany seem to be beating a path to brigade headquarters' door, by car, mail or phone, to inquire about the possibilities of hiring soldiers on a part-time basis either as players or coaches.

It looks as though they are out of luck for this winter, however

With a heavy winter of training ahead for his troops, Brig. Geoffrey Walsh has indicated that he can't see his way clear to give men time off for extra-curricular athletics.

Next winter, when the brigade will be a really operational and skilled formation, it might be another matter because this might be one way to further good relations with the German people.

This winter soldiering comes first.

It is hoped, however, that it will be possible to have some hockey within the brigade as part of the regular sports program. Equipment for a number of teams is said to be available and the big question mark is the weather.

No Ice in Sight

As Christmas approached, the temperature stayed well above zero, the ground was green, farmers worked in the field. Ice seemed a long way off but the Germans said their weather can get really tough in January and February.

But even then it may be hard to find ice. There is no rink in Hannover. The Hannover team, in fact, plays near Gosler, some 50 miles south, and has been trying to convince the Canadians that if three or four good players could be made available it might be possible to swing a new rink for Hannover. So the brigade's hockey prospects for this winter are up in the air.

There are a small number of Canadians at Hamburg, the big port city to the north where there is a rink. Hamburg is one of the cities which has been after the brigade for hockey players, along with Hannover, Dusseldorf, Kleegeld and one ambitious man from the Goslar area who wanted to find virtually a full-time coach to handle four or five teams at once.

It's Christmas Time

When home seems more like a sacred place,
And Joy shines out in each pain-marked face,
To melt care-lines by its warming grace,
It's Christmas Time.
When churches tell of the wondrous night
Judean skies were aflame with light,
While angels sang of a Baby's might—
It's Christmas Time.

When throngs rush happily to and fro,
Each face alight with a friendly glow,
And cheery smiles warm the falling snow—
It's Christmas Time.
When lighted trees decorate the streets,
And each one greets everyone he meets—
The sparkling light from each tree repeats,
It's Christmas Time.

When men lay aside all their selfish sins,
When hatreds cease, and Christ — love begins
To change their scowls into friendly grins—
At Christmas Time!
But here is a thought that I'll give to you;
We'd all be happy the whole year thru'
If all year long we'd behave as we do
At Christmas Time.

Soldier Termed Out of His Senses By Witness at Court Martial

Seoul, Dec. 15—(CP)— A 30-minute shooting spree allegedly by a Canadian soldier termed "out of his senses" was described at his court martial Friday.

Spr. John Murray Steeves of Moncton and Regina, with the Royal Canadian Engineers, is charged with the murder of a south Korean civilian last Sept. 17 in the village of Hwang Bang, southwest of Yonc Hon. The Korean, Shin Yong Dok, 41, died of a bullet through the neck and two other Koreans were wounded.

Six witnesses were heard today, opening day of the court martial. One was Shin's daughter.

Lieut. John Keating of Vancouver, Steeves' troop commander, said he and Capt. Fred Kitchell, North Bay, Ont., were sleeping in their tent when sten-gun bursts awakened them shortly after midnight. He said he and Michell climbed a hill to the nearby village and "there were a few more bursts during the time we were going up there."

Found In Village

Amplifying this later, Keating said there were a total of from 12 to 15 bursts during a 20-or 30-minute period.

Steeves was found in the village with a sten-gun and Keating said he and Mitchell and Spr. Don McCormick persuaded Steeves to surrender the weapon and accompany them to the tent.

McCormick testified that the sten-gun bursts also awakened him and when a friend expressed belief that Steeves was in the village, he dressed and went out. He said:

"I went straight up to Steeves and I talked with him for five minutes before anyone could get near him. He told me he was there looking for his watch which he had lost earlier in the evening."

He said he disarmed Steeves.

Said 'Dead Drunk'

Under questioning by Lt.-Col. J. R. Cameron of Ottawa, defence counsel, McCormick said Steeves was "dead drunk" the previous day and had been carried to his bunk. But McCormick could not say whether Steeves was drunk the night of the shooting.

Mitchell said of Steeves' appearance and talk:

"It was like listening to Alice in Wonderland. It was a disjointed sequence of remarks with no connection. Without a shadow of a doubt he was not in possession of his senses."

Mitchell, Keating and McCormick all testified that Steeves had complained that a Korean had stolen his watch.

The prosecutor, Lieut. A. B. MacDonald of Kingston, Ont., told the court that the watch since had been recovered and the soldier who produced it was unavailable as he was undergoing psychiatric treatment.

Also undergoing psychiatric treatment in Japan is the British warrant officer who investigated the incident.

Accused Not Married

Spr. C. G. Wright, Edmonton, said he heard Steeves leave his bed saying: "Unless I get my wife back tonight somebody's going to die."

Army records indicate that Steeves is not married.

Wright said he advised his corporal who replied: "Crazy? You haven't seen anything yet."

A surgeon from a Norwegian surgical hospital said Shin had a bullet through the neck with a fractured spine and injured spinal cord. The patient was too weak for an operation and died within a half-hour.

Shin's daughter, Youn Hi, 17, testified but when she failed to recognize anyone in the room, including the prosecutor who had interviewed her 4 days ago, Col. Cameron requested elimination of her evidence. The court allowed it to stand.

The court, in which Capt. Jack Moldaver of Brantford, Ont., is substituting for Maj. Herbert Baker, Picton, Ont., adjourned until tomorrow.
